ITALIAN SAYS HIS COUNTRY SAVED FRANCE

By Refusing to Join with Germany in a War of Aggression.

FRENCH HAD FREE HAND.

To Mobilize All Their Troops to Resist the Invaders.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, June 23. — Speaking at a dinner given by Mayor Mitchell last night, Senator William Marconi, member of the Italian mission to the United States, said that Italy's prompt refusal to join Germany in a war of aggression was the decisive factor which enabled France to stem the tide of invasion at the outset of the war. He said Germany did not expect Italy to join her, but merely to leave France in doubt, and Italy's prompt notification to France of her neutrality enabled France to mobilize one million men on the northern frontier, which otherwise would have been employed in watching her southern neighbor.

That million men helped to win the battle of the Marne and to save France.

The Italian ambassador communicated Italy's intentions to Foreign Minister Viviani at midnight, and the latter, who supposed a visit at such an hour portended a declaration of war, could not conceal his relief.

AIR CLEARING IN RUSSIA IS NOW LATEST REPORT

Troubles at Sebastopol and the Capital Are No Longer Dreaded.

EXTREMISTS DEFEATED.

Resolution Pledging Support to Government Is Carried By Four to One.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PETROGRAD, June 23. — In spite of the disorders at Sebastopol and anarchistic threats here, there are indications of a marked improvement in the situation with a growing support of the government and increased animosity against the forces which make for disintegration in the army.

The resolution passed Thursday by a Pan-Russian congress of councils of deputies is regarded as a signal defeat for the extremists and pacifists, a motion supporting the provisional government being passed by a majority of more than four to one. A further significant resolution admits that a transfer of all power to the democracy would weaken the revolution.

The will of Horace White, formerly editor of the New York Post, disposes of $325,000, most of it going to his daughters.

COUNTY TAX RATE THIS YEAR IS FOUR AND ONE-TENTH MILLS

This is for General Purposes and Provincial War Tax is One Mill---$37272.74 is the Amount Necessary for County Purposes.

The County Council has decided to raise $37,272.74 to meet all expenses for the financial year. This calls for a tax rate of 4 1-10th mills, and the Provincial War Tax means an extra mill in the dollar.

The County Council brought their June session to a close this morning after the usual bylaws had been passed.

The appointment of Archie Moore as high constable was approved of. This was done in view of Mr. Geo. Cochrane's statement last year that he would not continue in office another year unless his health warranted it.

The council decided to have an official photo made of this year's council in view of the fact that there are many new members.

Committee On Roads and Bridges

Mr. Bullied presented the report of the Roads and Bridges Committee which was adopted:—

That the special committee proceed along the lines laid down re county roads system in as much as they will be in a position to report at the November session.

That Cohen's Bridge, Galway, be inspected and a report made at the November Session.

That Mr. Young be authorised to expend $100.00 on temporary repairs to Pigeon Creek Bridge, including tool-house.

That the committee while inspecting Monaghan Bridges inspect Ward's Bridge, and look into Mr. Fowler's complaint.

That the chairmen's report be adopted, save the last clause.

That the sum of $50.00 be refunded to Smith, the same having been expended by the Township on Darling's Bridge.

Committee on Equalization and Assessment

Mr. Fitgerald presented the report of the Committee on Equalization and Assessment:—

That the five northerly townships, namely: Belmont and Methuen, Burleigh and Anstruther, and Galway and Cavandish, Chandos, and Harvey; and the three villages, namely: Lakefield, Norwood and Havelock be raised one per cent; and that the rest of the municipalities be raised two per cent, for equalization purposes.—Carried.

That all the municipalities comprising the County of Peterborough, be assessed for the purpose of county rates at the value set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, and that such valuations shall be the

WILL GET AT BIG INCOMES

(Special to The Review.)

OTTAWA, June 23.—Speaking of the speech of Sir Thomas White on the Military Service Bill, The Citizen today says:

"Sir Thomas dealt at some length with the demand made in some quarters for the mobilization of the wealth of the Dominion, and in doing so practically intimated that the Government propose to bring down further taxation measures. That the new taxation will get at the big incomes that have not contributed generously to the war work was equally apparent from his emphatic declaration."

CANADA'S ANSWER TO Y.M.C.A.'S APPEAL FOR FUNDS LIKELY TO REACH THE MILLION MARK

Splendid Banquet at the Empress Hotel Last Night and Enthusiastic After-Dinner Proceedings---Brilliant Oratorical Efforts by Distinguished Guests of Honor, Capt. Cameron and Mr. W. E. Rundell.

The Y.M.C.A. banquet at the Empress Hotel last evening was a gratifying success in every way, some 100 men sitting down to an exceedingly palatable dinner served in the up-to-the-hour approved style for which this hostelry is widely reputed. The attendance was thoroughly representative, and included professional and business men, captains of industry and members of the Ministerial Association, to say nothing of his worship the Mayor with a fair sprinkling of aldermen.

The postion of the local Y.M.C.A. was ably presented by its president, G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., and Treasurer J. J. Turner, preceding stirring and forceful addresses by the distinguished visitors, Rev. Capt. W. A. Cameron, pastor of Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto, and W. E. Rundell, manager Toronto National Trust Co. These after-dinner speeches proved of considerable instructive and entertaining interest, and were pleasingly and appropriately supplemented by a solo, "His Majesty the King," sung in splendid voice by D. Carlisle, with John Allan as accompanist. The whole function was of an exceptionally bright, cheerful and fraternal character, and the enthusiasm in evidence on every hand bespeaks a successful termination to the campaign to be launched next week to raise $10,000 with which to prosecute the noble work for which the Y. assumes responsibility. Capt. Cameron, who has returned from the battle front where he has been engaged in special evangelistic work amongst our boys, presented vivid pictures of conditions there and the successful efforts of the Y.M.C.A. to aid, comfort and cheer, secularly and spiritually, Canada's heroic defenders of our Empire and universal liberty.

G. A. GILLESPIE, M.P.P.

Made a very acceptable chairman of the proceedings, and prefaced the after-dinner program with fitting reference to the work of the Y.M.C.A., its aims and objects, and the needs of the hour for which the present campaign has been inaugurated.

MAYOR DUFFUS.

His worship, in proposing the toast to the King, said if numbers and enthusiasm count for anything he felt assured that the goal of $10,000 would be reached as a result of the campaign next week. The purpose of the Y.M.C.A. is to develop a better manhood in the country, and the names of its members in France and Flanders who are battling for the Allies' aims and objects should stimulate Peterborough citizens to renewed financial support of that institution. He had the honor to ask for a toast to he who so worthily represents a great cause in this world's history—His Majesty the King—whose armies he confidently looked forward to emerging from this great world-wide struggle in complete triumph.

J. J. TURNER

Treasurer of the Y gave statistics showing that the institution cleaned up its financial obligations in 1912, held its own in 1913, but owing to war breaking out in 1914 it that year showed a deficit of between $3,300 and $3,400, and in 1917 that deficit, somewhat augmented, is still showing on the books. "At this banquet the directors take the opportunity of laying before you why money is needed and how it is spent. Compared with other places our budget is light —$8,300—whereas cities of similar size are asking $14,000 or $15,000. One reason why Peterborough's Y. budget is low is that we have no building deficit and consequent interest thereon. Previous campaigns show that in giving 60 per cent is donated by the few and 40 per cent

ANXIETY AT OTTAWA

(Special to The Review.)

OTTAWA, June 23. — Considerable anxiety is felt here over the fact that notwithstanding the support to be given by leading Liberals to the Borden bill, Hon. George P. Graham again yesterday afternoon in his speech, in which he apparently broke with his leader, gave notice of his motion in amendment on going into supply advocating the conscription of wealth. This form of motion on going into supply is the usual parliamentary method of launching a vote of want of confidence. This action, is would seem to the corridors, is not supporting the bill. It does not prevent trying to wreck it and the government with it on the question of the conscription of wealth.

Will Keep 93rd Band Instruments Here

Brigadier General Hemming, O.C. of the third military district, wrote the City Council last night and asked that the city lend the military district the 93rd band instruments.

The council decided to inform the General that the city expects to use the instruments for the battalion which is being formed here.

Have Kept Their Manhood Clean

At the Y. M. C. A. banquet in the Empress Hotel last night, Capt. (Rev.) W. A. ITALIANS TAKE AUSTRIAN GUNS

Much Booty Was Captured in Recent Successful Offensive.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, June 23. — Among the booty taken by the Italians when they captured the Austrian positions on Monte Ortigara in their offensive on the Trentino front last Tuesday were four guns, it was announced today in an official statement issued by the Italian war department.

GERMAN CROPS RUINED BY HEAT

LITTLE RAIN HAS FALLEN AND THERE IS NO PROSPECT OF A CHANGE.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

COPENHAGEN, June 23.—A period of intense heat continues over the greater part of Germany. The heat in Berlin Wednesday has been exceeded only three times in seventy years and then in the middle of July. Very little rain has fallen and there appears to be no prospect of a change. Notwithstanding the double planting of vegetables the yield is disappointing.

His Last Sunday in George Street Pulpit

Rev. R. G. Peever Bids Farewell to Congregation Tomorrow.

On Sunday Rev. R. G. Peever will complete his Pastorship in connection with the George Street Methodist Church. At the morning service he will give the address in connection with the annual flower service of the Sunday schools and congregation.

Miss Telgmann will render several violin solos and the other members of the school will take part.

The Sunday School members will assemble in the school hall at 10.30 and march to the church after which they will place their flowers.

Mrs. C. C. Parsons, superintendent of the school, will be in charge.

At the evening service Rev. Mr. Peever's subject will be "The Complete Message of the Gospel."

The Y.M.C.A. representative, Mr. C. M. Copeland, will be present at the evening service.

FRENCH AGAIN BREAK THROUGH GERMAN LINES

Implacable Foe Renew Assaults But They Are All in Vain.

REPULSED EVERYWHERE.

Attacking Parties of Increased Force Are Broken Up By Fire.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, June 23. — The night was marked by a violent bombardment, followed by a new series of German efforts against points attacked on the preceding day in the region of Vauxaillon on one hand and southeast of Filain on the other. All these attacks were repulsed, and the enemy, whose losses were serious, gained no advantage.

Fighting was particularly spirited between Royers farm and Froidmont Farm. The Germans, who enlarged their attacking front east of Epin de Chevregny as far as to the north of Froidmont Farm, multiplied their efforts to capture these positions. Their attacking forces, broken up by our fire, were not able to approach our lines or debouch from the salient penetrated yesterday. Other efforts of the enemy east of Chevreux, east of Cavaliere de Courcy and in the sector of Chambrettes also were repulsed. We penetrated German lines at several points and took prisoners.

NO PUMPER FOR NEW FIRE TRUCK

Council Decides to Purchase Apparatus That Was First Ordered.

The City Council last night after considerable discussion decided to complete the purchase of a combination hose and chemical motor truck for the Fire Department.

Ald. McIntyre was in favor of getting the pumper attached to the new piece of fire fighting machinery even at the chance of having an overdraft.

Ald. Dobbin moved that the city proceed to buy a combination pumper and hose truck. The manufacturers want it, order it and let us have an overdraft.

Ald. McIntyre moved for a triple combination and Ald. Smith seconded the motion.

Ald. Stratton was opposed to having an overdraft. It was not legal and if the combination hose and chemical truck was bought there would be no overdrawing and next year the pumper could be bought on another piece.

Ald. Weir thought that if they could get the pumper on now at a cost of $3,000 it would save the council next year the necessity of spending $9,000 on another piece.

Ald. Langford was in favor of getting a small truck at a cost of $3,000 or $4,000 and next year getting the largera nd more expensive piece.

The motion to have the bylaw prepared ratifying the purchase of the chemical combination was made and carried.

ENEMY QUIET ON BRITISH FRONT

NO INFANTRY ACTIONS ON LARGE SCALE SINCE JUNE 8.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, June 23. — The statement issued by the Canadian Records Office says that no infantry actions on a large scale have taken place since the extensive raid on the night of June 8th. The enemy has shown little offensive activity. "We have carried out the usual program of a harassing fire by night, both with artillery and machine guns."

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH IS NOW ASSURED

Sir Thomas White Makes an Important Statement in Parliament.

RICH MUST PAY SHARE.

Contributions to Patriotic Funds May Be Exempt From Tax.

OTTAWA, June 23.—Wealth is to be conscripted and the taxation progra mof the Government hearing on the profits of the rich has not yet been finished.

Sir Thomas White followed Hon. George P. Graham's speech on conscription and made the formal announcement.

The Minister of Finance believed that the voluntary system in Canada had been a wonderful success. The effort made had commanded the admiration of the world. But the voluntary system had run its course. The fact was that the civilization of the world could not be saved by the voluntary system as against the Prussian system. The crisis of the war had not yet been reached, but the point had been reached where Canada must put forth her utmost effort or quit. There could be no truce until the issue was decided.

Rich Must Give.

Sir Thomas said that regard must be paid to the fact that many wealthy men had given unsparingly to Red Cross and other patriotic organizations. He believed that the agitation for the conscription of wealth had arsen from the fact that in every town and city there were to be found a few men, who were both rich and close, who were not contributing. "And I assure this House that if I can make them contribute I will do it," said the Minister, amid applause.

BRITISH RAID HUN POSITIONS

MORE PRISONERS TAKEN AND ATTACK REPULSED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, June 23.—"Our troops raided enemy positions north of Gravelle last night and captured several prisoners," says today's official statement on the Franco-Belgian front operations. "A number of other prisoners were taken by us in a successful local operation in the neighborhood of Warneton. A German raiding party was repulsed northeast of Ypres."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1917

ALL MUST DO THEIR DUTY.

All Britain's colonies answered to the call to war, or rather nearly all parts of all the colonies. In Canada, some parts answered that way, and before the war is over we are going to see to it that all parts will answer in the same way."—Captain (Rev.) W. A. Cameron at the Y. M. C. A. banquet last night.

THE EXAMINER'S BREAK.

SOME MYTHICAL individual who signs himself "Justice"—and at the liberty taken with her sainted name the blind goddess removes the bandage from her eyes to give free course to her tears—has a letter in The Examiner last night in which he says among other things that The Review has been opposed to the conscription of wealth.

We cannot bring ourselves to the point of believing that "Justice" is half so stupid as he is malicious, although his letter gives evidence that he is both. The Review has never taken such a stand as he intimates as a reference to its files will show.

This paper regards the letter of "Justice" in the same class as Captain Burnham placed the referendum amendment. It is beneath contempt. Any man who would pen such a screed under the mask of anonimity is not entitled to consideration. But the letter is published in a newspaper which is legally and morally responsible for its statements until it discloses the name of the writer. The letter says that such papers as The Review should be suppressed and the management interned.

That is a serious charge. We wonder how any newspaper management allowed such a rank criminal libel as that to slip through its hands and find its way into print, especially when the tables can so easily be turned against it. The management of a newspaper with two sons at the front, boys who went at the first call, and one of whom has been decorated by his King, is certainly not in the same class as some other manager who disported himself in the garb of a lieutenant in the time of peace, but put his uniform in cold storage at the first sign of war. The Examiner has never come out straight in favor of conscription, and there may be the best of all reasons, selfish as such a reason may be, for its lack of stamina. Our contemporary has always claimed, however, that the voluntary system has been a failure. In its own circle it furnishes ample proof that this contention is correct.

The Review is not disturbed by the slanders in such letters as that written by "Justice." The editorial opinions of this paper, on conscription, both of men and money, on the best means of winning the war, and on other subjects, are quoted in our exchanges daily from coast to coast. This is the best possible guarantee that they are along the right lines. It is, too, a mark of appreciation that our contemporaries withhold from The Examiner. In this respect alone The Review does more to advertise creditably the city of Peterborough in one week than our neighbor does in a year.

Locally The Examiner has always done its little best to encourage recruiting, while editorially it assailed the Government and insinuated that the war, the enlistment of men and the making of munitions were all so many means to gigantic graft. One bar to voluntary enlistment has been the very condition that exists in The Examiner's household. Men who should lead the way to the recruiting office have hung back; men who should be at the front are filling easy berths at home. How could The Examiner hope for any different fate for the voluntary system while it abused the Government that called for recruits, at the same time apologizing for the arch slackers with mawkish sycophancy?

The letter of "Justice" must be regarded as The Examiner's own until the name of the writer is disclosed. It is as such that The Review now alludes to it.

POLITICS AND PATRIOTISM.

Editor Review: I understand that the employes of a local concern are donating upwards of $1000 to an outside patriotic association owing to The Review, which is more interested in party politics than in winning the war, publishing an article that the Speakers' Patriotic League are entering politics "under the disguise of entering a 'win the war' candidate. These employes take the ground that many of the League are associated with the local Patriotic Fund, and therefore they will not donate to any political organization. Hence they have signed up to an outside organization. It is too bad that the local fund should suffer to please a few cantankerous politicians.
WIN THE WAR.

THE ABOVE LETTER was received by The Review yesterday afternoon, but was withheld from publication in order that it could be published with a word of explanation. The writer sends his name, with a request that it should not be used. He is a well-known citizen who has been an active worker in his party and who has been a consistent office holder for years, although now holding a position in private life.

The Review is not interested in party or any other brand of politics except so far as politics and winning the war are identical. We have heard before of the matter to which "Win the War" alludes. The employes of the local concern to which he refers are working for the Government. They are both over-sensitive and needlessly alarmed. No one has in mind any plan to disturb them in their positions. Office-holding on any scale is an insignificant matter when compared to the duty that now confronts the country.

A few weeks ago there was a prospect of a coalition government being formed at Ottawa. The proposition was to form a Cabinet of four Liberals and four Conservatives, with Sir Robert Borden as President of Council and Premier. The Conscription Bill was to have been put through and then the coalition government was to go to the country for a mandate to enforce it.

In the local field it was proposed to form such a coalition as that at Ottawa. Partisanship was to be suppressed and both parties were to endeavor to unite upon some man in sympathy with the new move to win the war, and to elect him to Parliament without a contest. This proposition was entirely without prejudice. It was a big proposition made by big men who were ready to place country above party. Any men who favored the plan were certainly not getting into but directly away from politics. The Review alluded to the new move in its local columns as a legitimate and interesting matter of news.

"Win the War" should read the signs of the times more closely than he apparently does. What does he think of the present situation at Ottawa, where men are breaking party ties like so many silk threads and standing up, at immense sacrifice, present and in prospect, to themselves for what they believe to be right? They are giving up the political associations of years, not without regret, it may be, but with a disregard for consequences to themselves or their organization. It is a healthy indication of a new and better public life.

"Win the War" should pay heed to the changes that are taking place in the country every day. He may yet be convinced that the people of Canada are no longer content to blindly follow in the wake of the politicians, and that no political party is any longer run for the express benefit of the office holders, large or small, the men who are fortunate enough to hold tickets for the pork barrel.

The political world is moving as it never did before. "Win the War" should be able to read even as he runs.

DICTATING TO OTTAWA.

MAYOR DUFFUS fathered a resolution at Council meeting last night protesting against the proposed grant of $21,000,000 by the Government to the G. T. R. and the C. N. R. to help them around a financial angle. This resolution was adopted, and the protest will go to the proper department at Ottawa.

Occasionally a municipal council reaches out after big things and offers suggestions to the men who are in charge of national affairs, but it is yet to be recorded that such advice has been effective in any particular. The aldermen are not always guided by the advice of deputations that appear before them, nor are they disposed to be influenced by resolutions adopted at mass meetings of citizens, by the Trades Council, the Board of Trade, or similar organizations. Even a suggestion from an elected body like the Board of Education would probably be regarded in aldermanic circles as something of a liberty.

There is no assurance that such a grant will be given. If it is, it will probably be for the purpose suggested by Alderman Smith, the purchase of rolling stock or other equipment to relieve the present transportation congestion. The two railways in question are already in law, if not in fact, the property of the country. The question has resolved itself into one of operation by the companies or by the Government. No one doubts for a moment that eventually these roads will be run by the Government, but the question is as to whether the present time is opportune for making so drastic a change. The war remains the outstanding problem of the hour, and no side issues, however important they may be in ordinary times, should be allowed to interfere.

If such a grant as Mayor Duffus and other members of the Council who voted with him oppose is ever made, it will be spent in the improvement of property which will eventually pass into the possession of the people, provided proper oversight is exercised with regard to the outlay. Whatever the Government at Ottawa may decide, it is unlikely that they will be influenced in their decision by last night's protest. If the Dominion Parliament adopted a resolution protesting against or offering a suggestion on some matter before the Council, Mayor Duffus himself would be among the first to resent it as an infringement upon the rights of a duly elected body.

Mayor Duffus, however, is certainly right in his contention that radial roads can never be made a success while the steam roads are pap fed from the public treasury to operate in opposition. And radial roads are needed in this district. Even the three railways along the lake front do not solve the problem of transportation, but have rather intensified the difficulty. High rates are allowed as one means of keeping the roads out of bankruptcy that would be brought about because there are three lines where there is a chance for no more than one.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

SOME OF THESE DAYS Parliament will both take and give a rest.

• • • •

IT IS POSSIBLE to have coalition in a constituency even if there is none at Ottawa.

• • • •

THE GOVERNMENT is supposed to exist for the people, not for the benefit of the men who hold the jobs.

• • • •

THE WAR WILL BRING no greater social change than the enfranchisement of the women of Britain, which is almost as much of a revolution as the upheaval in Russia.

LETTER AGAINST LETTER

"I have been offered more money than you are paying me," said the efficient employe to the more than efficient boss.

"Is that so?" responded the boss, politely. "How much are you offered?"

The efficient employe handed the more than efficient boss a letter. It read:

"My dear Mr. Trumpert: I am writing to notify you that your efficient manner of doing business has not escaped me. I have observed with approval how you are always on the early car every morning and on the job at 8.30, how you work till 5.30 every day, rain or shine, and never take more than three-quarters of an hour for lunch. In recognising these qualifications, I am pleased to offer 20 per cent. increase on what you are now getting. Very truly yours,

"GIGGUM AND SWARTZ."

The more than efficient boss pondered the letter.

"Who are Giggum and Swartz?" inquired the boss.

"Oh, a firm here in town," answered the clerk.

The boss looked at his watch. "See me after lunch," he said.

After lunch the efficient and expectant employe was on hand as directed.

"Dear Mr. Pedro: I have long admired your flourishing business from a distance and now I am ambitious to take up employment with so prosperous an establishment. I have observed that you have a clerk who is lazy and of very little account. He is out so late every night that he comes to work rubbing his eyes along about 9.30 every morning and nods at his desk all forenoon. If you cared to give me his job, so much would I appreciate the opportunity of working for you that I would gladly report at 7.30 every morning and work until 6.30, with only fifteen minutes for lunch. Very respectfully yours,

PUNKERT BUTTER."

The efficient employe pondered the letter.

"Who is Punkert Butter?" inquider the employe cautiously.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Dear Sir:—In discontinuing their weekly concerts in Victoria Park, the members of the 57th Regiment Band feel that their many friends and the public generally are entitled to an explanation of the circumstances which compelled their action. For many years this organisation has been financed, in part, by the 57th Regt., and the city council. A few years ago our city politicians commenced cutting this grant down, year by year, until the other night the low water mark of $300 was reached. The amount appears to have fluctuated just in proportion to the need of some of the aldermen for the votes of a certain element, and the grant on Wednesday night is of the same proportions as that received by the ordinary country village band. On the other hand the great war has not only taken nearly half of our membership to the front, but has deprived us of all military monies previously available, and as the individual citizen is not asked to contribute one cent to our support the net result is that we are expected to "carry on" with a revenue of $300.00. This is an utter impossibility, and as a consequence, so far as concerts in the park are concerned, we are simply out of business.

The band of the 57th Regt. has been giving park concerts continuously for almost half a century, and it is feelings of deepest regret that we are compelled to make this announcement to our friends in the council and the thousands who patronized our concerts.

CANADA'S ANSWER

by the many, and we have decided to ask the public next week to support us in our work by subscribing $10,000.

Work Worth While.

The Y.M.C.A. training is worth while because it inculcates in the boys of today those principles which make for a better manhood in the generation of tomorrow. Such work is especially needed now as our best men are at the front, and a large portion of them will never return. This is illustrated by the fact that out of 80 picked men from a whole battalion which volunteered to destroy a section of concrete trenches, only 18 of those 80 came back after the task was accomplished. This goes to show that Canada's best men will be left in foreign soil, never to return. Hence the need of such work as the Y. is undertaking for the developing of our boys into the highest possible types of manhood."

Liberal Subscriptions.

Continuing, Mr. Turner remarked that the directors are greatly encouraged by the following liberal responses to preliminary solicitations: T. F. Matthews $500 (tha may be increased by the Matthews-Blackwell Co. to $1000), Toronto Savings & Loan Co. $500, Auburn Woollen Mills Co. $500, Sir Joseph Flavelle $500, De Laval Co. $250, Bonner-Worth Co. $200, Mrs. Waddell and R. Waddell $200, the Y. Board of Directors $1000. Altogether a preliminary survey of the field has resulted in contributions amountng to $4000 (cheers). In conclusion, the speaker contended that any community is richer by having in its midst a Y.M.C.A., and he urged a liberal response to the campaign next week.

W. E. RUNDELL

In an earnest endorsation of Y.M.C.A. work, said that a great phenomena of this war was the ready response by people when asked to contribute anything. Whether the call has been for manhood to arm or to women at home to do their bit, the answer has always been in full measure and flowing over; and he opined that we shall find that Peterborough's effort next week will prove no exception to the rule. "This," he said, "is a business men's banquet to discuss this great association's work and needs, and I do not believe any portion of a community has more intense interest in the Y. than business men. I support it because it supports business men; it develops the moral, physical and mental well-being of young Canadians. No business man can afford to take a neutral position in regard to the Y; he must befriend and support it, as the young men in his employ must have recreation, and this institution offers it in that quality of purity and cleanliness which safeguards their moral life and stimulates them to a vigorous prosecution of their duties. Let me ask you if we business men do not too often fall down ourselves for lack of healthy recreation? Do we not confine ourselves too closely to business —not always for money-making reasons, but because we get obsessed with the principle of playing the game, and thus consecrate our lives almost entirely to business. All have their responsibility to the religious, social and public life of the community, and some are called by the State to unselfishly contribute to its needs."

Recreation and Service.

Mr. Rundell here contended that physical recreation is necessary to throw off the fatigues of business and enable its participant to return to his labors with fresh life and energy; and there is no better auspices under which young men can secure recreation, physically and mentally, than the Y. "There also the lesson of service is taught by association with others who are unselfishly endeavoring to accomplish something and add lustre to the day's work and the world's progress. Never was there a time when it has been brought more strikingly home to men that service is the greatest thing in the world than now; and the war is hastening the day when we will ask 'Not how much money did one leave, but what service to the community did he render.' He had, he continued, been struck by the extraordinary ability of the Y. to adjust itself to war conditions, so much [illegible] it now has at the front 51 branches with 36 officers and 150 non-coms. and men. "Twenty-one branches," he said, "are operating under the constant fire of enemy's guns, and Y. men are working in eleven pure dug-outs, performing a service which words fail me in giving proper value thereto."

When the Boys Come Back.

The speaker then went on to say that all are hoping for the struggle to end and to see our boys come back. "But what is going to happen after the war, from either a business or any other standpoint? When the re-action which must necessarily follow peace takes place, and our boys, freed from war's tension, are beset with temptation to an over-indulgence in pleasure, a great work of re-construction will lie before us all, and you'll find that one organization to take its place in safe-guarding returned soldiers from too free a license will be the Y.M.C.A. No doubt victory will be with the Allies, but we must all see to it that we do our share in the great fight. Unless one can look back and realize having made some sacrifice, one will have got nothing out of the war." Referring to France's glorious achievement and its people's determination to throw everything into the melting pot, with a lively hope of eventually rising as a nation with one common object, to lead in a more progressive democracy and the more united brotherhood of man, he concluded by urging all the emulate the example set by our French allies, and do something to help in assuring to our beloved empire and the world at large a more illustrious future.

CAPTAIN CAMERON

Spoke for over an hour. His address was a brilliant and masterly piece of oratory—here pathetic in the extreme, and there humorous, with pictures of life at the front. Y.M.C.A. work overseas and here, he said, is the same, but it is impossible to carry on the work there without the support of the institutions at home. In time of peril national grit is tested. Our enemies thought the British Empire had gone to the dogs; but they have discovered that the same spirit animates its people today, as in the days of Napoleon, when a Wellington arose to defend its freedom then imperilled. And no sooner did the enemy hurl defiance at our Empire's gates than Canadian heroes were born in an hour. All Britain's colonies answered to the call to war—or rather nearly all parts of all the colonies (laughter). In Canada, some parts answered that way, and before the war is over we are going to see to it that all parts answer in the same way (cheers).

Turning to the campaign in support of Y.M.C.A. work, the speaker said: "We asked Halifax for $10,000, they gave $25,000; St. John for $12,000, they raised $22,500; Quebec for $10,000, they contributed $15,000; Winnipeg for $25,000, they gave $51,000; Toronto for $200,000, we got $225,000; Montreal for $150,000, they sent in $290,000. Altogether we asked $750,000 from Canada, the fund is already $900,000, and it is likely to jump to a million dollars before we are through. "I was brought back from Vimey Ridge," he said, "to put up the noise for the campaign in Canada. I came on condition that after it is over I be permitted to return to the scene of action and the boys I love. And next week I sail again for France, where I expect to get some rest and peace once in a while" (laughter).

Most Powerful Appeal.

Asserting that the call of the Y.M.C.A. is the most powerful appeal that can come to the nation, Capt. Cameron pointed out how the Y. adds to the comfort, joy and protection of the men at the front and that it was the only thing which stood between Canadians and insanity in prison camps. "We are," he said, "spending $500 a day in France on tea and coffee alone. Last year our expenditures on stationery for the boys was $30,000, and this year it will exceed $60,000; but it is worth while; no one can realize the influence on civiliza-

Avoid Misunderstandings

Misunderstandings with customers are costly. They often result in the loss of a valuable customer, and of her influence. And you cannot afford to lose these.

It insures accuracy in money handling and in charge accounts.

It makes an unchangeable receipt or sales-slip with printed figures of the amount paid or charged.

It tells who made the sale and the date.

Every clerk makes an unchangeable record inside the machine every time he makes a cash or credit sale, receives money on account, or pays money out.

The National Cash Register makes an indisputable record of each transaction. The possibility of mistakes in charges are eliminated. Disputes with customers are prevented.

Every merchant who values the patronage of his customers should install a National Cash Register system.

FROM LABOR'S VIEWPOINT

(By the Official Scribe.)

There was only a fair attendance at last Wednesday's meeting, but the subjects were very interesting and ably debated. G. L. Myland, of the Typographical Union, was the presiding officer.

Empire Theatre on Fair List

Delegates from the I.A.T.S.E. and M.P.O. reported the signing of a contract with Dr. Robinson, which makes this city a 100 per cent. union for playhouses. Thanks were also given the musicians for assistance rendered.

Independent Labor Party

This was again brought up, as so many other Ontario towns are busy along organization lines. It is remarkable the strikes that the Independent Labor Party are making, and even the doubters can see that Labor is more and more asserting itself, and will eventually be heard in our Legislative Halls. Peterboro will keep on hammering away till it has got as good as any other Ontario city for a Greater Peterboro without Labor representatives would be incomplete.

Sir Sam's Rash Statement

Studebaker
Established 1852

Studebakers for London

When the London, Ontario, Fire and Police Departments wanted motor car equipment that could be counted upon for plenty of power and motoring efficiency, but economical in operation, they chose Studebaker cars.

They made an exhaustive investigation of the leading makes of American and Canadian cars. Their selection of Studebaker — the foremost Made-in-Canada car — came only after a comparative test of the relative merits of each make.

The Studebaker is economical in operation, due to its splendid quality, reducing maintenance costs to a minimum. In ratio to power the Studebaker is one of the most economical cars on the market in its consumption of gasoline.

If economy, as well as power, is a consideration with you, too, follow the example of the London officials and thousands of other motor-wise buyers.

Let us show you the Studebaker's splendid power and easy-riding comfort.

CAUGHT IN THE COUNCIL

Routine Business Transacted by City Fathers at Special Session Last Night.

The City Council held a special meeting last night for the transaction of general business. There were present Mayor Duffus, Ald. Dobbin, Stratton, Langford, McIntyre, Weir and Smith.

Communications

The following communications were received and dealt with, as noted:—

From the Financial Post asking that the city advertise bonds for sale in their paper.—Received.

From the Hydro Electric Commission stating that they had given instructions to Manager Ferguson to proceed with the work on the Patterson Street extension at the same time as the grading of Monaghan Road was going on.—Left with the Board of Works.

From the city solicitor stating that he had forwarded a copy of the city bylaw regarding the purchase of coal to the Railway Board for confirmation.

From R. Hardstone asking that he be allowed to remove a tree that was in the way of an entrance to his garage.—The request was granted provided that it is approved of by the engineer and another tree planted in place of it.

From the Hydro-Electric Power Commission stating that they were investigating a scheme which would better the services of the street railway to the north-west part of the city.

From the City Clerk of Chatham stating that the sending of a deputation to Ottawa regarding the food problems had been adjourned pending the settlement of affairs at the capital.—Received.

From Peterboro Board of Trade asking that the work of grading Monaghan Road to Patterson Street be done at once. — The Board of Works.

From the American La France Engine Company enclosing an amended clause in the contract regarding the new motor apparatus. This is in line with the city's wishes.

From the Peterboro Board of Health asking that the council see that the dog bylaw was more strictly enforced.—Received.

From the Kitchener Board of Trade asking the council to pass a resolution to the Dominion Railway Board regarding better railway facilities. The resolution was passed on the motion of Ald. Smith and Dobbin.

Committee Reports

The reports of the Property Committee and the Manufacturers' Committee were adopted without debate.

The Board of Works report had an amendment moved to it, Ald. Dobbin wanted to ask that the C. P. R. Footbridge be called the "Burnham" bridge, but it did not meet with favor.

Ald. Langford remarked that it did not make any difference what the council called it, the bridge would always be known as the C. P. R. Bridge.

Agreement Reached

The bylaw authorizing the signing of an agreement with the Quaker Oats Company was passed. The little points in dispute were all settled by the committee of the whole.

Band Grants Held Up

Ald. Stratton introduced two bylaws to give the 57th Band and the Salvation Army Band $300 each.

Ald. Weir moved that the grant to the 57th be made $400, and Ald. McIntyre seconded it. Upon a vote being taken it was found a deadlock existed, and the by-laws will have to lay over until the regular meeting of the council.

Ald. Smith asked that the "yeas" and "nays" be taken, and it was found that those in favor of increasing the grant to the 57th were Ald. Langford, McInyre, Weir and the Mayor; and those in favor of a 50-50 division Ald. Dobbin, Stratton, Taylor and Smith.

Traffic Regulations

A new bylaw to make the city regulations conform with the regulations passed at the last session of the legislature was given the required number of readings.

Breaking Building Bylaw

At the request of several aldermen the city engineer paid a visit to the Goodwill building on Water St. and on his return said that the stairs and landings on the south side of the building were not according to the building bylaw, and on the motion of Ald. Dobbin and Smith the contractor was ordered to stop work and remove the offending work.

Will Oil It

The residents at Brock and Sheridan streets want it oiled. The work of the Quaker Oats building made that part of the city very dusty. It was decided to have this street oiled at the earliest moment.

Will Pay Taxes

Last year the city had the use of a lot in East City on the understanding that the city pay the taxes. Ald. Sratton had an order passed that the necessary checks be issued.

Sir Sam's accusation that Labor opposed to conscription ranked as German spies came up for keen criticism. It was decided to write and ask the secretary of the Dominion Trades Congress to take issue with the non-extinguishable late Minister of Militia.

Conscription and Socialism

These two subjects were more or less topics of interest the former being preferred to be exercised over wealth as soon as it was with health. The volunteer, medically examined and pronounced fit, in nine cases out of ten gives all his capital when he goes to the trenches and risks his life to save the lives and property of those who can continue to roll around in luxurious cars and enjoy all the comforts that wealth provides.

Conscription of both health and wealth is the only satisfactory solution, but it was offered that the voluntary system would not be so dead if the pay of $1.10 per day was raised to a more liberal rate to suit the H. C. L.

Next meeting July 4th.

Little Worries in the Home

Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily many little worries in her household affairs. The care of her little ones, the work about the house all contribute to these worries. Most of them may be too small to notice an hour afterwards, but they constitute a constant strain that effects the blood and the nerves and make women look prematurely old. The effect of these little worries may be noticed in sick or nervous headaches, fickle appetite, tiredness after slight exertion, and the coming of wrinkles which every woman dreads. To those thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer a speedy cure; a restoration of color to the cheeks, brightness to the eye, a hearty appetite and a sense of freedom from weariness. Among the many thousands of Canadian women who have found new health and strength through these pills is Mrs. G. Strasser, Acton, West, Ont., who says:—"I am the mother of three children and after each birth I became terribly run down. I had weak, thin, blood, always felt tired, and unable to do my household work. After the birth of my third child I seemed to be worse, and was very badly run down. I found the greatest benefit from the Pills and soon gained my old time strength. Indeed after taking them I felt as well as in my girlhood, and could take pleasure in my work. I also used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones and have found them a splendid medicine for childhood ailments."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or you can procure them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NO REDUCTION IN PRICE OF FORD CARS

Mr. Duffus, Ford dealer for this district, has received a letter from the Ford Motor Company stating positively that there will be no reduction in the price of Ford Cars on August 1st as in former years.

This letter also states owing to the increased price of material and other conditions in connection wth manufacturing, that instead of a reduction there will probably be an increase.

There will be a final drive for volunteers for the U. S. regular army from June 23 to 30.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion or sour stomach you should try a mixture of Sanol Pepsin and Iridin.

This is said to be the formula of Dr. Banta's famous prescription which gave him a world-wine reputation.

"Your Car is Waiting, Sir!"

IN front of the fashionable club, at the door of the dignified office building, in the theatre line-up, everywhere that men of influence are wont to go—there you will find the BRISCOE standing in readiness to carry its owner with speed and comfort to his house, to his office, to keep an important appointment—or to enjoy a "spin" with his family in the country.

The BRISCOE, B "4-24" is a car of which any man might well be proud to say "I own a BRISCOE." It is graceful, speedy, powerful and luxurious. Both driving compartment and tonneau afford ample leg and elbow room for the tallest and stoutest of men. The deep upholstery and high seat backs, which come well up over the shoulder blades, ensure the utmost in comfort. The famous "Half Million Dollar Motor"—Benjamin Briscoe's greatest achievement—provides abundant power for every emergency, and gets every ounce of force out of the gas at a minimum expense for fuel. As a matter of fact, we have obtained 32 miles to the gallon of gasoline with this motor. The long stroke, 5⅛ inch, with its relative small bore, 3⅛-inch, is responsible for this.

The BRISCOE is an ideal family car. The control is as simple as that of an electric. Your wife can drive it for hours without fatigue. She can shift the gears with her finger tips, and the slightest pressure operates the clutch and break pedals.

The regular equipment includes Speedometer, Gasoline Gauge, Ammeter, Trouble Light Socket, Automatic Switch with Key Lock, Horn, Tools, Repair Kit and other important accessories usually classed as "extras"

MANY SCHEMES TO STOP GLARE OF AUTOLAMPS

BUT NONE OF THEM ARE FOUND TO BE SUCCESSFUL AS YET.

To combat the glaring headlight nuisance the Highways Department at the Parliament Buildings is working overtime. Hon. F. G. McDiarmid, Minister of Public Works, has realized that this is something which has got to be settled, as many complants have been heard regarding the trouble which has been caused to drivers of motor cars. At the last session of the Legislature an amendment was made to the Motors Vehicles Act which ordered that all headlights must not throw a light higher than 42 inches at a distance of 75 feet. But this does not come into force till a proclamation is made.

So far no proclamation has been made, and it is not likely that one will be made this year, as the Department of Highways is now working on half a dozen different schemes to get a lamp that will reflect the light well ahead, but still won't cast any glare.

Up to the present the different lamps tried have not given the satisfaction required. George H. Gooderham, M.P.P., has spent a lot of money himself on different kinds of lamps for this purpose, but has not been able to get one to solve the trouble.

Mr. W. A. McLean, deputy Minister of Highways, is also trying different kinds of lamps, but admits that so far without success. He has others to try, but what the result will be can only be conjectural.

"Something will have to be done," said he this morning. "I was on the Hamilton highway the other day trying out some lights, and kept mine on to see if they would act the way required. I noticed that every driver I met who turned off his glare lamps as I approached turned theirs on again immediately they saw I didn't turn mine off."

It may be that another amendment will be made to the act next session, if a good lamp isn't discovered. It will likely be to require all motorists to turn off their headlights and just have the dim lights showing as they approach or pass a car going in the opposite direction. This would do away with a lot of the trouble, but then there are some cars whose lamps cannot be dimmed in that way, and the owners would be kicking at the extra expense of getting new lamps.

Another scheme which may be evolved is for the Government to fix a standard candle power for the motor cars lamps. This might cut down the glare considerably. At the present time, however, the motorist who thinks of others does dim his lamps as he approaches another, while there are others who sail ahead with the full glare going, and many drivers are temporarily blinded by it.

Give it Fair Play

WILL SUSPEND ALL SEWER WORK

UNTIL PROPER APPLIANCES ARE RECEIVED BY THE CITY.

The City Council last night decided to stop all sewerage work until such time as the new appliances and sheeting are at hand to render the progress of the work more rapid.

Alderman McIntyre brought the subject up and drew attention to the very slow manner in which the work on the Princess street sewer was going on. It was all due to the foreman not having the proper appliances, and he blamed the city engineer for trying to hold back getting the pile-driver and other appliances.

Chairman Weir took exception to the remarks of Alderman McIntyre, and stated that the appliances had been ordered, but the railways had delayed the delivery.

Alderman Smith told Alderman McIntyre that it was impossible to get sheet piling in the province. He thought that a better man could be secured to handle the foreman's job.

Alderman Dobbin and Stratton fathered the motion to shut down the work until everything was on hand to go ahead properly. The motion carried.

TO LAY THE DUST ON McDONNEL ST.

SUPPLY OF OIL GIVES OUT BUT WATER WILL BE USED.

At the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night, Mayor Duffus was very wrath that McDonnel street had not been one of the first streets to be oiled. He pointed out that it was a much-travelled street owing to it being the main inlet to the city from Chemong and the northern townships.

Alderman Weir, chairman of the works department, stated that he had left the oiling of the streets to Mr. Parsons, and he had proceeded as far as the supply of oil lasted.

City Engineer Parsons pointed out that the street would have to be repaired before oil was placed on it.

After the chief magistrate had stated that other street work where travel was not so heavy could have been let go and McDonnel street repaired, the matter passed along with a promise that the street would be oiled at the first oportunity and in the meantime it will be treated with water.

Alderman Stratton was anxious to know why the streets in the west end had been so heavily oiled, in some cases being treated twice.

This was explained very satisfactorily by Mr. Parsons, who pointed out that the oiling had not been heavier, but the cold weather had prevented it spreading after leaving the sprinkler.

COUNCIL OPPOSED TO MORE PUBLIC AID FOR RAILWAYS

Mayor Duffus Brings in Resolution Protesting Against Proposed Grant of Twenty-One Million Dollars to Roads in Financial Straits.

At the Council meeting last night Mayor Duffus was the sponsor for a resolution to the Dominion Government protesting against the grants of $21,000,000 to the G.T.R. and the C.N.R. He pointed out that the Hydro Railway scheme would never be a success if the government subsidized the railways to go into competition. The railways had already been given land grants to the extent of over a billion dollars. If the railways could not pay the money due the government let the people's mortgage be foreclosed and the government run the roads.

Ald. Stratton thought the matter ought to be left with the government. It was not up to the council to interfere. He questioned whether the government would make any such grants at this time.

Ald. McIntyre agreed with the Mayor, and seconded the Mayor's resolution.

Ald. Smith thought that the government might be loaning the money to buy rolling stock.

Ald. Langford was confident that a resolution of the council would have no more effect on the government than a resolution of citizens would on telling the council how to run the city business.

The resolution passed, and other cities will be asked to send a similar resolution.

Wit and Wisdom

Stretching.

The doctor's wife had advertised for a girl to do housework and was showing an applicant over the house. She had been very liberal in her promises of privileges and it looked as though the two were going to come to an agreement, when the girl suddenly asked:

"Do you do your own stretchin'?"

"Do we do our own what?" asked the puzzled mistress.

"Stretchin'," repeated the girl. "Do you put all the food on the table and stretch for it, or do I have to shuffle it around?"

"Well, my boy," he asked cheerfully at the breakfast table, the morning after Cholly had taken the leap, "how did things go last evening? Did she smile on your proposal?"

"No," said Cholly, faintly, pushing away a breakfast roll. "She smiled at it."

Conscription Might Not be Necessary

About 400,000 men were passed by the doctors out of more than 500,000 offering themselves for enlistment in Canada since the war began.

Of these 400,000 men, upwards of 16 per cent. (70,000) were rejected later on.

This makes a total of more than 170,000 men rejected.

That is, out of more than 500,000 men applying, only 330,000 proved fit for war.

Had every man been fit who applied, Canada would have had her 500,000 men long ago.

All these 170,000 A. R. men might have been fit had they been looked after early in life or before they were born.

Most of them were rejected because of defective eyesight, faulty heart action, rupture, varicose veins, bad teeth, bad feet, many of which defects are remediable before birth or after.

It is dreadful, when you come to think of it, this neglect of the youths and men on the side of their physical fitness- by themselves and by the country.

Here we have been letting the individual run his own show. It is his own affair, we have been saying, whether he makes and keeps himself fit physically.

Now we are beginning to think differently. We are beginning to see that it costs the country real money to neglect enquiring into the state of her men's health and condition, individually and collectively.

We do much as a nation to prevent and cure disease, but in the matter of physical fitness we have troubled but little as a country.

It costs hundreds of dollars, on an average, to recruit a single individual by the voluntary system. Suppose we say just $200. Then to recruit the rejected men it has cost probably $34,000,000. Just so much waste.

The Y. M. C. A. Has Served Peterboro Immeasurably by Furnishing Sound Recruits

The "Y." in Peterborough and elsewhere has made many a man fit for war—this before he offered for enlistment and since—for many a reject has gone to the "Y." to be built up in his chest and in all-round physical vigor.

We are asking the citizens of Peterborough to subscribe $10,000 to carry on "Y." work in Peterborough this year and pay an outstanding deficit. And we ask this contribution in the confidence that every thinking citizen will appreciate the point we have made, namely, that because there was not enough "Y." work done in Canada before the war, it has cost Canada vast sums, thousands of lives and thousands of death-darkened homes.

Our great need has been men. Had we had all the men physically ready to go when they offered, this war might have been over now.

Every one of us is paying now and will pay for a long time to come the cost of our country's neglect to insist that her young men shall be made physically fit. Let us pay some of this tax now—as a form of insurance—to make men fit now — the young men of Peterborough — that they may be ready for the world's work to-morrow. More Y. M. C. A. men are needed, be it peace or war.

WE NEED $10,000 AT ONCE

GEORGE P. GRAHAM BREAKS WITH HIS PARTY LEADER

OTTAWA, June 22.—Hon. George P. Graham was the first speaker on the conscription bill in the Commons this afternoon. He said that as the greater part of his life had been spent in defending the minortiy, and as he was now himself in a minority among his own friends, he asked their consideration.

"Be steady, aye steady," he suggested as a motto for the house in the present crisis. Nothing could be gained by recrimination. There might be difference on details, but every member believed that Canada's destiny is bound up in that of the British Empire. Anything done to disturb harmony within Canada would be playing into the enemy's hand.

Not a Severance

"I differ with my revered leader to-day" he said, "but I and all other members on this side of the House have bis absolute permission to take whatever stand we desire. In doing so we are not switching away from our party nor yet severing our connections with our grand old leader." He added that freedom of thought was one of the principles of Liberalism.

"The great Liberal Chieftain," said Mr. Graham, "stands to-day where he always stood as an advocate of that which is best for Canada and the empire. He is as anxious about winning the great struggle as I am. He sees difficulties in my view-point, though he recognizes my right to hold that view-point. I don't see these difficulties. But he and I are together in a desire to carry the struggle to a successful conclusion.

"It is only on the details we differ. I may be wrong, he may be right. Young men may forget that when they were boys the Liberal chieftain was fighting for the right which they enjoy.

"Our fathers fought in 1812," said Mr. Graham. "Better a thousand times they had lost in 1812 than that we should lose to-day, for then we would have come under another form of democratic government, but losing now we would become the slaves of other masters."

Passing on to a review of voluntary recruiting, Mr. Graham declared that in Ontario there had been no adequate Government organization. Enlistments would have been 25 per cent. greater if there had been. But citizens had spent large sums out of their own pockets, and to them is due the credit for such results as were obtained. A great many of the recruiting officers had been sent out who were not the right sort to get recruits. They began abusing the men and calling them slackers. They actually hindered the efforts of civilians.

"I have been on platforms where I had to apologize for them," said said Mr. Graham.

tion the letters our Canadians send home will have. Then we spent $25,000 on baseballs last spring, and cornered the American market (laughter); and thousands in England alone for concert parties. These concerts have succeeded in eliminating to a large extent the influence of drinking resorts."

"Turning to the question of administration, the speaker said all the money given the Y. is administered at a cost of one per cent. Henry Perks and others give their services free. D. W. Corbett was offered $20,000 a year to manage a large English estate; this he refused to devote his time, free of charge, to Y. work. "And when I tell you that Corbett is a Scotchman, you will realize what a miracle his action is" (laughter).

False Distinction Broken Down.

Referring to the complaint that there is too much secularism in connection with Y.M.C.A. work, Capt. Cameron pointed out that amusement was a means to an end; through concerts, for instance, many a soldier had been attracted to the sphere of religious influence. As for athletics, surely no fault could be found in that connection. He admired the custom in Catholic Spain, where the boys' play grounds are invariably found in church yards, thus recognizing a true union between devotion to religion and humanity. "One effect this war has had," he continued, "on Canadian soldiers, is to break down forever that old false distinction between the Church and secularism, and elevate the secular up to the level of the sacred. By the means of concerts, boxing bouts and athletics the Y.M.C.A. overseas is winning men to the Kingdom of the Highest. Such an influence has our methods had at the front, that in France men in the Canadian army, in an overwhelming majority have kept their manhood clean and unsullied, notwithstanding reports sent back to the contrary. (Applause)."

Canadian Crucified.

The distinguished guest here contended that Y.M.C.A. work at the front had stood the test and was appreciated. He drew vivid pictures of incidents where boys had been redeemed from advanced secularism to a realization of their religious responsibilities and duty to their parents. A young soldier thus influenced by his meetings was one of seven brothers; all had enlisted, and all but he had made the supreme sacrifice; one brother had been crucified by the Germans. "We try to make them church soldiers," he said, "but there is no danger of the Y. becoming denominational; it is the church united in various forms of work."

He concluded with an eloquent peroration, in the course of which he urged a realization that the most critical stage in the life of our Canadian soldiers will be when peace is declared. Then a period of violent re-action will set in, accompanied by the wildest license unless we are on our guard against the menace. If a looseness of morals supervenes the nation will become degraded in the eyes of the world, and sink in national credit. We must, therefore, endeavor to instil into the minds of our soldiers those religious and moral precepts which will elevate their manhood and bring them home to us clean, pure Canadians, ready to take their share in the development of a world-wide democracy and the reconstruction of a glorified Canada.

Visitors Appreciated.

In a few timely and well-chosen words, Captain Soden and Mr. R. Harstone moved a resolution in appreciation of the admirable addresses by the evening's honored guests, which was enthusiastically adopted.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to an appropriate close at 10.30.

Mr. Squire presented the report of the Finance Committee which was adopted as follows:

Briefly I beg to present to you for your consideration the different amounts required for various purposes for the year 1917.

The cost of administration of justice has increased so rapidly the last two years, I do not think it would be advisable to lower the general rate.

After considering all expenditures and resources as you will see by the attached statement there appears to be necessary the sum of $37272.74 to meet the same, or 4 1-10 mills on the dollar.

The Board of Management for the House of Refuge asks your approval for the provision of $5909.08 to cover the expenditures of the Institution or 65-100 of a mill on the dollar.

The amount equivalent to the government grant re accommodation and equipment to schools is $1137.26 to be levied on the County less sections connected with urban municipalities for school purposes requiring 14 120-100 of a mill on the dollar.

As you are aware the sum of $40,000.00 was granted by the council to the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the British Sailor's Relief Fund and by-laws constent therewth duly passed; therefore $40,000.00 plus $1274.25 interest on such loans will necessitate 4 54-100 mills on the dollar.

The Provincial War Tax is $9091 or 1 mill on the dollar.

That the matter of remuneration to clergymen for House of Refuge services be left in the hands of the Board of Management.

That the grants to the agricultural societies be the same as 1916.

ton to come to Peterborough where they had been assured steady jobs. They stopped off in Port Hope in the afternoon and following the advice of a friend, had proceeded to a certain drug store a short distance from the Queen's Hotel where three bottles of Jamaica ginger was purchased at a cost of $1.50. This hot stuff was mixed with 2 per cent beer and as a result the three got real hornswaggled. They were arrested shortly after their arrival in the city and all of the ginger had been consumed.

The three men, Jos. H. Baker, Orville Bovay, and James Pigden all paid their fines and were allowed their liberty.

Satisfied Mothers

No other medicine gives as great satisfaction to mothers as does Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets are equally good for the newborn babe or the growing child. They are absolutely free from injurious drugs and cannot possibly do harm—always good. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. In his latest encounter he was always on the offensive, and the light and heavy artillery of his fists gave his opponent no rest. The only time that Welling had a real chance was in the now famous second round, when he landed a terrific right on Johnny's jaw which made the recipient stagger. Had Welling followed this up there might have been a different story to tell.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot serve a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultvate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

K—Let's see—K? Well, as far as I know,
That letter has no place in baseball, and so
I'll leave it to you, and if you have the time
Just sit down yourself and make up your own rhyme.

Somebody must have given the Cleveland team some ginger to eat. They are beginning to wallop the ball all over the lot and are becoming a serious menace in the race for the pennant. Cleveland fans are rooting hard for their favorites.

Pitcher Win Noyes is making considerable noise (excuse me!) for the Athletics and Connie Mack is making him perform on the mound just as often as he can. There is more than something in the front as well as the end name of this young baseball artist.

Just because the Montreal team of the International League drops a few notches in the league standing now and then, it is no sign for the fans from that fair city to become perturbed. There's good stuff in the team, and good stuff will out. So cheer up, everybody, and look out for the bunch from Montreal.

Here's old Tilly Walker, of the Red Sox, batting like a regular fiend. Tilly has improved all around since he has been assigned to Tris Speaker's place on the Boston team, especially with the bat.

Speaking of the Red Sox, there's nobody more enthusiastic about them than President Frazee, who bought them from Joseph J. Lannin. Boston fans are showing their appreciation for the work of their home team by being on hand as often as time and their purses will permit.

Grouchy Gus Says:

"The umpire may be the kaiser of the baseball field, but the fans are no docile population afraid of commiting lese majeste."

The Giants feel seriously the loss of Lew McCarty, their hard-hitting catcher, who recently broke his leg at Cincinnati. It will be three weeks at least before he will again appear in the line-up, and perhaps longer. McCarty is not alone a top-notch player behind the bat, but his work with that instrument has done much to put McGraw's men in their present high place. This is the second accident of a serious nature sustained by a Giant player this year. Herzog, the victim of the first, is still suffering considerably, and is far from being able to play his best. McCarty sustained a broken hand while with the Brooklyn club last spring, but had escaped injury so far while with the Giants until his recent mishap. The burden of catching for the McGrawites is now on Bill Rariden, a very able man, but not as good as McCarty with the bat.

"M" stands for manager, powerful man,
Whose dictum is law to the whole baseball clan;
There's only one person who rules him—but then,
It's his wife; so you see he's like all other men.

The Phillies have got a new system, and systems, you know, are great little things to have, especially when they work. This one seems to be doing just that. Here it is: Pat Moran is working five pitchers in rotation, and the result for the Phillies is gratifying. They are garnering a greater average of games than ever. Maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea for some of the other baseball Napoleons to follow these Moranian tactics.

Like unto a fishing net that gathers up everything before it in the deep sea, so is Old Boy Pipp's catching hand. It seems as though he grabs everything that flies through the air within a radius of several miles of where he stands. The major leagues show no better firstbaseman than Pipp.

To watch Frank Baker play these days one would never think that only recently he recovered from an injury. Frank has projected himself into the game in earnest, and is displaying a mighty fine brand of ball.

Among the most prominent American optimists is Clark Griffith, whose Washington club is struggling with mighty kicks from being precipitated into the nethermost cellar. Griffith is also one of the leading members of the "Never Say Die" club. He is quite certain that the Senators will finish in the first division. Well, nothing is impossible, particularly in baseball.

THE BIG REGATTA

Yesterday was the day upon which in times of peace thousands flocked to Poughkeepsie, on the Hudson, to witness the American intercollegiate regatta. Cornell has most often carried off the laurels in that classic event, but not without exerting themselves considerably. In 1912 Cornell finished just four seconds ahead of Wisconsin, and the year before that Columbia was just six seconds behind them to go over the finish line. In 1908, when Syracuse won, Columbia was only one second behind. The closest finish on record was that made by the four-oared crews in the 1905 regatta. As far as the spectators could determine, Cornell and Syracuse were on an absolutely even line. The judges declared Cornell victorious, which decision was followed by loud protests from the friends of Syracuse. The cry, "Kill the judges!" was not infrequently heard, but, of course, the event went off without any spilling of blood. The Syracuse crew itself took the verdict of the judges like true sportsmen. But behold, before you could say "Jack Robinson," the judges had changed their minds and Syracuse was declared to have won. The Syracuse enthusiasts immediately changed their minds, too, as to the advisability of killing the judges. On the contrary, they cried "Vive!" this time. But now Cornell's friends were peeved. A little while later, and behold, the judges had again changed their minds and ran up Cornell's colors! Further discussion followed, and after a few hours the final decision awarded the victory to Syracuse, which crew, the verdict ran, had finished an inch ahead of Cornell—or maybe it was a fraction of an inch. The judges in this event hung up a new record for incompetency, which is likely to stand for a long time. Columbia has for many and many a year fought for victory on the waters of the Hudson, but only once has that illusive damsel smiled upon her. That was in 1895, in the famous "submarine regatta." The New Yorkers won by a foot-pump, which they applied continuously in order to keep their shell from sinking. The river was unusually rough, and the University of Pennsylvania boat sank while still a mile short of the finish line, while the Cornell boys were spilled into the river when their craft went to pieces.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE

MISS HAMILTON MADE 205 VISITS DURING LAST MONTH.

The Peterborough Health Association have received the report of the district nurse for the month of May, in which it is shown that Miss Hamilton made 205 visits during the month, and a great proportion were for free patients and tubercular cases. The report is as follows:

General Work

Number of patients, 16; number of visits, 119; number of paid visits, 27; number of free visits, 92.

Tubercular Work.

Number of patients, 13; number of visits, 86, paid visits, 15; free visits, 71.

Supplies Given Out.

Forty refills, old linen and carbolic acid.

Total number of visits, 205.

AT THE CONSERVATORY.

Among the numerous recitals which have taken place during the present series, none created a more favorable impression than the program presented last night at the Conservatory of Music Hall by the pupils of Miss White and Miss Helen MacLaren, twenty pupils taking part.

The entire program reflected marked credit on the teachers, and at the close a large number of their friends presented compliments to the talented little group on the fine playing during the evening. Mrs. Hall, a pupil of Miss MacLaren, sang most acceptably Watting's setting of "Sing, Birds, Sing,' which was much admired.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM CHARLTON.

Wm. Charlton died at his home in Lakefield yesterday, aged 78, after a brief illness due to his advanced years.

The late William Charlton was born in Ireland but came to this country when a boy and has lived in the vicinity of Lakefield for the past fifty-five years. He was at one time a well known and successful farmer in Harvey and Douro but some years ago he retired from active life and took up his residence in Lakefield.

His wife died about three years ago. The surviving members of his family are two daughters and four sons, Mrs. H. Ingram and Mrs. W. C. Garbutt, both of Douro, and R. G. of Douro and W. J., Samuel J. and David H. of Lakefield. The late Mr. Charlton was a member of the Presbyterian Church and a Conservative in politics.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon with service at 2.30 at the house and interment in the Lakefield cemetery half an hour later.

The funeral of the late Mary E. Lendrum will take place from the family residence, 699 Water street, on Monday at 2:30 to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house by Rev. Mr. Rowand at 2 o'clock.

FAIRMOUNT GARDEN PARTY

will be held on the lawn of Mr. Robert Staples, 12th concession, Cavan, on Monday evening, June 25th. High-class program has been arranged, consisting of the George Street Methodist Quartette, Mrs. C. C. Parsons, the noted reader, and Miss Mignin Telgeman, the violinist, and other well known artists. Tea will be served from 6 to 8. Admission, 25 cents. Refreshment booth in full operation.

CANADIANS DRAW NEARER LENS

UNDER LIGHT OF STARS BRITISH TROOPS TAKE FRONT LINE TRENCHES

Drawing Nearer and Nearer to Lens by Every Operation Against Foe---Raids in in Dark Keep Prussian Nerves on Edge.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

British Headquarters in France. June 25.—Although the official statement reports little activity the British are keeping up their pressure day and night along the entire 120 mile front they occupy. Last night a number of local enterprises were carried out successfully. One of them was rather important increasing as it does the British grip about Lens. Under the light of the stars British troops stormed and captured four hundred yards of front line trenches east of Riaumont wood, in the western outskirts of Lens. thus drawing closer to the mining capital of France.

Elsewhere several raids in the darkness served to keep the Prussian nerves on edge. One of these was undertaken west of Hulluch. Here fifteen prisoners were brought in while during a period of two and a half hours the British remained in the enemy trenches.

Heavy casualties were inflicted upon the Germans and their dugouts were bombed. Two more raids were carried out east of Roeux and in the region of Vendhuille, while a local push northwest of Warneton secured two advance posts. In this affair a number of Germans were killed.

A Disappointed Liberal

A Liberal who was evidently disappointed at the Borden Government's announcement on Friday of measures to conscript wealth is reported to have said to Mr. Burnham, M.P.:—

"Captain, you're a d——d scoundrel. I believe your resignation was merely a put-up to enable the Government to get back of George Graham's amendment."

That anything political can be done with a single eye to the good of the war and the State is evidently beyond some men's power to grasp.

GEORGE P. GRAHAM FOR LEADER

(Special to The Review.)

OTTAWA. June 25.—The talk of Ottawa in political circles is the warm praise bestowed by the Toronto Globe upon Hon. Geo. P. Graham for the motion he is to bring up on supply by which supply is to be struck out and a great scheme of national organization substituted. He votes for conscription but does not intend the Borden government to carry it out. Hence the vote of want of confidence. It is to be a new government with Hon. Geo. Graham at the head.

HALF MILLION MEN ENLIST IN U.S. SINCE WAR BROKE OUT

Million More Men Will be Ready for Service by End of Summer.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, June 25.— More than half a million men have volunteered in the American army and navy and in less than three months since war was declared. Today between seven and eight hundred thousand men are enrolled and great majority armed, equipped and under training. They will be joined at the end of the summer by nearly a million men selected for the new National Army from the ten million registered June fifth.

Travelling Clock for Mr. John Crane

Trinity Church Choir's Handsome Gift to Retiring Organist.

The choir of Trinity Methodist Church met after morning service yesterday and presented Mr. John Crane with a travelling clock on the occasion of his givng up the position of organist which be has so satisfactorily filled sor some time.

Mr. Crane was taken completely by surprise, and thanked the members for their kind remembrance, and told of the pleasant time he had spent as leader of the choir.

Mr. King, the new organist, will take charge of the music this week.

SINN FEINER IS KILLED IN RIOT

MERCHANTS TO FORM BRANCH

RETAILERS WILL JOIN FORCES WITH BOARD OF TRADE.

The retail merchants held a meeting last week, and have decided to form a section of the board of trade

A committee was appointed to confer with the officers of the board of trade and arrange for the merchants' section.

The proposition was explained to the members and the motion to jo'n in with the board of trade was unanimously adopted.

Mrs. Celia Diamond, owner of the "locked trapdoor" factory in Williamsburg, which burned in 1915, causing the death of 12 garment workers, unexpectedly pleaded guilty to attempted manslaughter in the second degree before Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn.

BRITISH PARTY SPENT TWO HOURS IN ENEMY TRENCHES

Drove Out Foe Blew up Dugouts, Inflicted Heavy Losses on Garrison---French Ready for New German Offensive That is Expected.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON. June 25.—Successful enterprises were undertaken by us last night at a number of points on our front. Parties of our troops raided the enemy's trenches in the neighborhood of Epehy, Bullecourt Roeux Loos and Hooge, killing many Germans and taking several prisoners.

In another raid east of Vermilles we captured fifteen prisoners and two trench mortars. Our party remained over two hours in the enemy's trenches, blew up his dugouts and inflicted heavy casualties on his garrison.

In addition to these raids successful minor operations carried out by us southwest of Lens and northwest of Warneton added to the number of our prisoners and enabled us to gain ground in both localities.

FRENCH ARE PREPARED.

PARIS, June 25.—Continuous German attacks in Champagne since Thursday suggest a new great offensive by the enemy but the French are fully prepared to meet it.

SERBIAN CABINET RESIGNS.

CORFU, June 25.—The Serbian Ministry has resigned. A new cabinet will be formed with Nikola Pachitch as premier.

MUNITIONS PLANT DESTROYED.

AMSTERDAM, June 25. — The Litchenberg smelting works near Berlin were destroyed by an explosion Saturday night.

MINISTER WOUNNDED.

LONDON, June 25.—The Daily Express says General Zeely, a former Minister, has been accidentally wounded in France.

BERLIN NON-COMMITTAL.

BERLIN, June 25.—Artillery engagements in the Dune's sector increased in intensity yesterday afternoon and continued into the night, army headquarters announced today.

GREEK CABINET RESIGNS.

ATHENS, June 25.—M. Jonnart, representative of the Allies and Premier Zaimis had a long conversation with King Alexander at the palace yesterday. It is reported the cabinet has resigned and M. Venizelos has been asked to form a ministry.

MORE GERMAN FAILURES.

PARIS, June 25.—Unusually active artillery fighting continued during the night in the sector between Royere and Froidmont farms and also near Hurtebiz and east of Chevrex. Two surprise attacks against our trenches east of Chevreux cost the enemy losses without any other result. German attacks on our small posts in the Woevre and in the region of St. Mihiel were checked completely. Everywhere else the night passed quietly.

ODDFELLOWS DECORATE GRAVES OF THE DEPARTED

Impressive Services Held Yesterday at Little Lake Cemetery when Wreaths were Placed On Last Resting Places of Those Who Have Gone Before.

Decoration Day was celebrated yesterday by hundreds of our citizens who joined with the local lodges of Oddfellows in bringing to memory the departed of our city who lie beneath the sod of the beautiful Little Lake Cemetery.

The weather man had promised that thunderstorms were to be the rule for the day, but out of consideration for the great number of ladies and children, he bravely held off the threatened downpour, and as a result an ideal day was given to the relatives and friends of the dead to see that a small token of respect was placed on the graves.

The cemetery never looked more beautiful, and many remarks of commendation were to be heard from out-of-town visitors, as well as from the shareholders of the Cemetery Co. over the splendid care that was shown to have been given the grounds. The flower beds were equally lovely, and the dense foliage of the trees made the surroundings for the occasion exquisite.

There was another thing that was mentioned on several occasions. Sunday is the proper day on which to hold Decoration Day. Everyone can turn out, and the young as well as the old have more of an opportunity to take part than when the ceremonies are crowded into an afternoon of a week day. Yesterday from early morn people could be seen wending their way to the burial ground, each one carrying a bouquet of some floral decoration. The florists who had urns and hanging baskets were busy with their late orders, and the scene at the cemetery yesterday demonstrated that hardly a grave was to seen that did not have at least one bunch of flowers on it.

The Daughters of the Empire had placed on all the graves of the Veterans of former wars little flags, denoting the members' respect to the departed soldier for services rendered.

The Oddfellows

The local Oddfellows have for many years been the nominators of the day on which Decoration Day would be observed, and yesterday the members of all the lodges turned out in large numbers to take part in the ceremonies in which 128 departed members of their order would be remembered. Col. J. W. Miller was the marshal for the 26th consecutive time, and headed by the Salvation Army band the march to the cemetery was made. At the entrance a host of people had assembled to witness the march and listen to the services.

At the chapel a stop was made, and the religious service of the order were read by Chaplain W. A. Logan, assisted by Deputy Grand T. G. Gillespie. After these had been concluded the brethren present were divided up into sections and each were given a list of the graves to be decorated. It was not hard to pick them out, as Superintendent James had marked all of them with a small vase with the "three links." At the rear of the procession were hacks containing the older members of the local lodges, containing Brothers W J. Green, Andrew McFarlane, J. A. Smith, and J. Mathison, while in the second were Brothers Charles Noyes and William Pilling. Brp. John White and party were in the rear. The brothers in charge of the sec-

ARTILLERY FIRE HEAVY.

Troops on the Canadian Front Had No Rest on Sunday.

By Stewart Lyon.

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, June 25.—There has been a marked increase of artillery fire all along the Canadian front during the last twenty-four hours. Early Sunday morning the enemy began shelling Vimy and Farbus wood with vigor. About 10 o'clock the Canadian guns began to hammer Coulotte, Avion and Mericourt.

While the cannonade was in progress the ceremony took place behind the front of the presentation of the decorations conferred upon the heroes of the Vimy Ridge battle belonging to one of the Canadian divisions whose duties prevented their attendance at the recent investiture by His Majesty the King in London. One of the recipients was Lieut. MacDowell, who won the Victoria Cross for his gallantry in capturing machine guns and mopping up enemy dugouts.

THE C583 BEATS EXPRESS TRAIN IN GREAT RACE

OFFICER LOST AT BELLEVILLE, BUT A WINNER AT COBOURG.

Thursday afternoon shortly before four o'clock the first flying machine to visit Cobourg made a landing in the field north of the C.N.R. station. It was in charge of Lieut. Layton, a R.F.C. instructor at Deseronto aviation school. He left Deseronto with another officer to catch the G.T.R. International Limited at Belleville, but being late there came on to Cobourg, and arrived there in time to catch the train. The trip from Deseronto to Cobourg, 65 miles, was made in one hour and 15 minutes, flying against a 30-mile head wind. horsepower, 8-cylinder engine. He The machine was C583 with a 90-left Cobourg after 5 o'clock and expected to make Deseronto in 45 minutes, as the machine is capable of making 100 miles an hour.

Lieut. Layton was in France with the Royal Flying Corps, and states the kind of machine he is now using is the same as was used there by the British at the outbreak of war. Now they have a new machine capable of making 120 miles an hour, mounting two Lewis machine guns, one fore and one aft. The one aft fires, through the big propellors of the machine, the firing mechanism of the machine gun being regulated by a trip on the gearing of the engine.

The flying machine has on each side of it the skull and crossbones, the insignia of the Royal Flying Corps.

CHARGED WITH SELLING BOOZE

License Inspector Stewart has been busy for the past week investigating complaints of alleged selling of intoxicating beverages near Lakefield, or to be nearer correct, at Phelan's Corners.

As a result of his investigations summons have been issued for about ten young men on a charge of intoxication and against one party for selling the wet goods.

It was rumored on the street to-day that the latter had enered a plea of guilty, but as the case was billed to be tried before Magistrate Langley next Friday at Lakefield nothing definite could be learned.

CANADIAN TROOPS TAKE FOUR HUNDRED YARDS OF FRONT LINE TRENCHES

Gain Was Made in Face of Difficulties, Tangles of Wrecked Mines and Miners' Houses, Railway Embankments and Flooded Valley.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, June 25. — In a difficult advance towards Lens and amid a confused tangle of wrecked mines, partially destroyed miners' houses, railway embankments and the flooded ground in the Souchez valley, a valuable bit of the enemy's front line trench, extending over four hundred yards north of the river and east of Bois de Riamont, was captured during the night by Canadians, and was firmly incorporated.

The task set for the Canadians was to capture the enemy outposts to the southwest of Reservoir Hill. The attack on the outpost was evidently expected. The enemy scuttled, abandoning the ground, upon which a machine gun fire was immediately turned by the Germans located on the hill. This was speedily followed by heavy artillery fire, which continued during the night, and was especially severe in the vicinity of Lens electric station. The enemy's dugouts were searched, but found to be empty.

The enemy on this front appears no longer to have confidence in the ability of his infantry troops to oppose a night attack stoutly. Several raids last night in the region between Lens and Labassee showed that the German trenches were so lightly held that little resistance could be offered to raiders.

In a recent cable on the part taken by the Canadians in work preparatory to the capture of Messines ridge, mention should have been made of the work of the tunnelling companies from the Dominion. During many weary months, while Canadians above ground in the Ypres salient bore with fortitude the constant fire from enemy guns behind the ridge, Canadian miners far underground were driving mine shafts for the enemy's destruction.

After our troops went to the Somme, the work was continued. It is not permitted to write in detail of the work of miners, but Canadians will learn wih satisfaction that no small part of the mining operations that made possible the blowing up of the German lines on Messines ridge stands to the credit of Canada.

Beer Monopoly for Standard Hotels

WINDSOR, June 25—Giving hotels which had been granted standard licenses by the Ontario License Board exclusive rights to sell "near beer" and malt liquors, the Sandwich Council has passed a bylaw prohibiting drug stores and other business places from selling temperance drinks which contain alcohol.

The council has issued a warning that any persons selling or dealing in "near beers" or malt liquors within the town limits other than standard hotels will make themselves liable to penalties provided in the Ontario Temperance Act after July 1.

Windsor City Council was asked by the License Board to pass a similar bylaw, but so much opposition developed from the storekeepers and breweries that no action was taken.

With the exclusive right to sell the "two per cent." drinks is a string attached, standard license holders being obliged to close their bars at midnight Saturdays until 8 o'clock Monday morning.

Private G. B. Seaborn of Coe Hill is reported ill. He enlisted with the 93rd but was transferred to the Mounted Rifles in England.

Gunner E. Wellwood of this city who enlisted with the artillery is reported wounded.

Private W. J. McGirr of Durham is reported wounded.

Private H. E. Masters of Pontypool is among those who have been wounded.

MAY LOSE ARM.

Mr. George Jefferies of Birmingham has received another letter from his brother, Lance-Corporal Charles Jefferies, who was reported wounded some time ago at Fusnoy. Lance-Corporal Jefferies says that his left arm will probably have to be amputated as the doctors seem to have about given up hope of being able to save it.

Lance-Corporal Jefferies went to Europe with the 2nd Battalion and this is the third time he has been wounded. He was among the casualties at Langemarck, and again last year in one of the engagements at the Somme. His third casualty, at Fresnoy, was the most serious of all and he was wounded by shrapnel seven times in the left side and is now likely to be crippled for life.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY JUNE 25, 1917

THE CALL FROM THE TRENCHES.

> "There is imperative and urgent necessity that steps be immediately taken to ensure that sufficient drafts of officers and men are sent from Canada to keep the Canadian corps at full strength."

That appeal should speed up the Dominion Parliament and give pause to the partisans who are attempting to embarrass the Government in the very work which General Currie says is so urgent. Men are needed from this country, and the call for aid that comes from the trenches should meet with a prompt and unanimous response.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

> The proper study of mankind is—human nature. The clergyman, the physician, the lawyer and the politician see much of it. But it is safe to say that not one of them gets the insight that is afforded in a single week by the anonymous contributions that, thick as leaves in Vallambrosa, fall on the editorial desk.—Vancouver World.

BUT NOT ALL COMMUNICATIONS of this kind, in which one man works off his spleen against a neighbor while concealing his own identity, meet the same fate. Some newspapers print them, while more consign them to the scrap heap. It is only the spineless journal that fears to offend a patron by denying him the use of its columns to traduce some man against whom he holds a grudge. Any citizen has a right to discuss a matter of public interest over an assumed name, and such letters are always welcome in any newspaper office. Assailing an individual is a different question entirely, and no man should try to escape responsibility for his utterances by placing it upon the shoulders of a public journal.

CALLED HIM A KAISER.

EX-ALD. SAMUEL J. McBRIDE, who has been something of a picturesque figure in municipal life in Toronto for a number of years, has entered action for unstated damages against Frank Ward, alleging slander. Mr. McBride asserts that the defendant colled him a kaiser.

The city officials, past and present, in Toronto and elsewhere, are perhaps too sensitive. It occurs to us that The Review something like a year ago alluded to the then chairman of the board of public works as a kaiser because the other members of the Council had voted him practically unlimited power in the administration of his department. The official objected to the term as one of reproach.

Even if a man possesses the powers of a kaiser, he is not necessarily a demon in human form. He may, on the contrary, be a beneficent agent in the economy of man. There have been kaisers and kaisers, and not all of them were ministers of iniquity. "A kaiser" is essentially different from "the Kaiser" as the world knows him today. There are politicians, especially in Quebec, who assume all the fanctions of an autocrat, who are not satisfied to lead the people politcally, but even sometimes go the length of dictating in the matter of their religious faith and in planning their social customs. Such politicians resemble the Kaiser, especially in one particular. Their star is drawing near the western horizon, and that is banked with angry and ominous clouds.

MORE TROUBLE FOR THE LIBERALS.

THERE IS MORE TROUBLE ahead for the Liberals when it comes to choosing a successor to Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader of the party. They cannot face another general election with him in command and conscription as the issue. The last remnant of his following would be wiped out in Ontario. He would receive no support outside of his own province.

Hon. George P. Graham is the recognized leader of the Ontario section of the party and is the logical successor of Sir Wilfrid. But a greater than Mr. Graham has arisen within the past three years in the person of Michael Clark, the redoubtable and fearless member for Red Deer, the one Liberal in Parliament who has been big enough to shake off the party shackles and co-operate with the Government in the work of winning the war. He is above suspicion, for the reason that he has never attempted to play politics. He is for conscription, but refrains from dragging in side issues in the hope of wrecking the Government. Michael Clark is a statesman rather than the politician that Mr. Graham is. He has held aloof from all the byplays of Mr. Graham for political advantage and is regarded as the man who can save his party from extermination in this crisis.

WHY BE INCONSISTENT?

THE KITCHENER COUNCIL sent to the aldermen of this city for endorsation a memorial to the Federal Government asking that public funds be used for the purchase of rolling stock and other railway equipment, these to be sold or leased to the companies in order to solve the transportation problem. This memorial was approved by the local Council. Later in the session the aldermen passed a resolution protesting against any farther aid to the railways, thus nullifying their previous action. Why not be consistent in following up one line of policy? If further financial assistance is granted the railways, it will probably take the form suggested by the Kitchener Council and approved by the local aldermen.

WHAT THE UNITED STATES HAS DONE.

THE AMERICAN CONGRESS has decided to appoint a food and a fuel controller. It has furthermore decreed that during the progress of the war no grain used in the manufacture of foodstuffs shall be utilised in the distilleries or breweries of the country. All the liquor now in the country is to be appropriated by the President, under special authority conferred upon him by Congress, for military purposes.

The United States has been in the war only a few months, and yet it has put through more practical war legislation than the Canadian Parliament has been able to accomplish in three years. This is all the more remarkable when it is recalled that the government has a narrow majority in both Houses of Congress, a majority so slim that no government in Canada could survive with so light a support. The opposition would have found some means of wrecking it long before this.

Partisanship is the curse of Canada. It is partisanship that account for all the delay. No suggestion is made except by a faction for party purposes. The ambition of the opposition since the early days of the war has apparently concerned itself with nothing higher than getting the Government in wrong with the people.

In the United States the people in and out of Congress are united in a common purpose. They have forgotten the very name of politics. Men elected to represent the people are voting for what they regard as the national welfare and not at the dictation of party leaders. Men in the House of Representatives and in the Senate are changing their political affiliations daily and are revising their former creeds, falling in with the majority. There is nothing in such a condition as this that is regarded as unusual or worthy of more than a passing mention. In Canada, on the other hand, when a member of the opposition rises above his party and supports a Government war measure, the incident is heralded from one end of the country to the other as one of the wonderful happenings of the day.

The political parties are almost of equal strength in the American Congress, and yet the business of the country is conducted without either deadlocks or exasperating delays.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

• • • •

NOT EVEN A SHADE TREE should be allowed to stand as an obstacle in the pathway of civilization.

• • • •

GERMANY REFUSES to acknowledge herself beaten so long as the slaughter of babes and helpless women is kept up.

• • • •

THE JOB HOLDERS who assume to run a politcal party should read up the story of the three tailors of Tooley Street.

• • • •

THERE IS PLENTY OF ROOM left in the atmosphere for that fleet of 100,000 airships that the Americans propose to build.

• • • •

LACK OF RAIN and abnormal heat are burning up the crops in Germany, showing that Nature, too, has joined the Allies.

• • • •

THE ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONISTS would tie the hands of the Canadians in the trenches and let the enemy do their worst with impunity.

• • • •

THERE WAS A COALITION of politcal factions in Canada fifty years ago, and the necessity for co-operation is greater than ever today.

• • • •

THE WORLD WAS WICKED beyond doubt in the days of Noah, but it was spared a paranoiac who would have set one of his submarines on the ark.

• • • •

HON. GEORGE P. GRAHAM may have broken with his party, but so long as he holds on to that amendment it cannot be said that he has made a clear getaway.

• • • •

FOOD CONTROLLER HANNA has an excellent opportunity to make himself unpopular by insisting upon the people eating certain articles of food three times a day.

• • • •

THE MAN WHO DOES NOT want to fight for his country is naturally opposed to the draft, just as the man sentenced to be hanged lacks sympathy for the hemp industry.

• • • •

IF THE SASKATCHEWAN Government is sustained at the polls tomorrow the moral will be obvious. The party was purged of the grafters before an appeal was made to the people.

THE RICH MAN is not always a slacker, either as to service or money. One of the young Astors in the United States has not only invested $2,000,000 in war bonds, but has enlisted in the navy.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Thinks Canada Is Liberal.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Canada's liberal policy puts us to shame. While the officers are serving in the army their wives get a separation allowance ranging from $30 to $60 a month. In case of death or total disability the widow of an officer is granted from $720 to $1890 a year, depending upon his rank. Even the lowest pension for the wife of a private is $480 a year. Under our system the widow of a lieutenant-colonel would not receive as much as the widow of the Canadian private. She is entitled to only $360 a year. The amount is proportionately scaled down for lower officers—widows of lieutenants receiving $200 or less.

Molybdenum a Treasure.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

The more one learns about molybdenum the more one feels that Canada, which is the principal source of this metal, has in it a product quite as valuable as nickel, if not more so. Molybdenum is now used as a substitute for tungsten or vanadium in hardening steel, for which purpose its use is far more economical. It lengthens greatly the durability of of gun metal and armour plate. It is valuable in high explosives, and it has other uses in war. But this is not all. It takes the place of platinum in the compounding of chemicals used for dyes, while it has also been found effective as a support of the filament of electric lamps. Its possibilities, however, are only beginning to make themselves known.

MUST UNITE TO STOP WASTE

Canada is living too extravagantly. Despite the war experiences of France and Great Britoin, despite the growing seriousness of the Canadian situation, waste and luxury are still common in the Dominion. Millions of dollars are being spent on unessentials that should be devoted to war work. War has brought an artificial prosperity which is blinding the eyes of many to the true fact that the Dominion is spending money at an unprecedented rate and that the resources of the country are under serious strain. The situation must be corrected if the strain is to be endured. Waste and extravagance today are crimes against the men in the firing line. Their sacrifice demands sacrifice at home. There must be conservation of resources and united effort towards thrift and economy. Practical experience in industrial life has taught that there are few "waste" products that cannot be utilised. War has proved the truth of that teaching. Eliminate waste practise thrift and invest your savings in War Savings Certificates.

THE BISCUITS A FAILURE

"Men are that perverse!" said Mrs. Wilson Beach. "They ask you to do a thing, then when you do it they get mad. Wilson has been lecturing me vociferously about wasting stuff in the kitchen. When I attempt to utilize the odds and ends he gives a hollow moan and stalks out of the house. It was this way. The other day we had a pint of milk left—something that seldom happens in our house—and it became sour. I was going to throw it away, but Wilson said that was sinful waste, and asked why I didn't make sour milk biscuit, as his mother used to do. So, after he was gone, I thought I'd try. So I got out the cook book and found the recipe. We have been buying our bread, so I had to buy a sack of flour, some baking soda, a sifter, a bread board, rolling pin and a lot of things like that, and they cost me nearly $5, too, but, of course, I need them. But it was dinner time before I got everything, and then I had to make the biscuits. In about an hour I took what looked like a lot of yellow pebbles out of the oven, and, of course, we couldn't eat them, so Wilson went out for a loaf of bread. And he was as cross as a bear all the evening, despite the fact that I had used the old sour milk as he requested. Aren't men a trial?"

THE BITTER FEELING IN QUEBEC VOICED IN LETTER TO JOURNAL

The following is a letter which the Ottawa Journal admitted to its columns, and, therefore, it is genuine—at any rate, it is supposed at Ottawa to correctly indicate the feeling of the French Canadian, high and low:

Editor Journal: Being a French-Canadian, which means that I am a bilingual, I have been for years a constant reader of all the Ontario papers. For years I have resented your bitter attacks on everything which "meant" French, and like every one of my compatriots who anxiously awaits the "verdict" of the House of Commons, I have cast away all respect for everything that hails from the pious Province of Ontario. Most of your Ontario papers, and yours in particular, have taken opportunity of everything to throw disrepute and blame on all those of my people whose opinions were different from those of that good and loyal Province of Ontario. For a long time I was classed by my compatriots as one these fair-minded French-Canadians who imputed those slanders printed against them to a band of uneducated Loyalists unrepresenting the really true Canadian element in your province, and for a long I advocated that a policy of mutual tolerance would eliminate these differences of opinion and would succeed in creating a better understanding between the different elements of our population. I must frankly admit that I misjudged the real animus of these Ontarians that I considered as fair-minded and different from the rest of your bestial population. Since the beginning of the war, and especially during the discussion of the conscription bill, the Ontaro "gazettes" have given out their real spirit. According to their statements French-Canadians are nothing but curs, cowards, etc., of the same qualification. Our heroes of Ypres, Vimy, Courcelette, etc., will certainly appreciate this late compliment to their valor. Your loyal Orangemen will certainly answer that these chivalrous soldiers were exceptons to the general rule, another one of these silly arguments that boosters of a slanderous cause never forget to bring forth to prove that our "priest-ridden" province which fought for England when the British cowards were fleeing from Americans, has produced nothing but blackguards. Your articles aim at this only solution: the civil war. Well, you'll get it, and in a very short time. The French-Canadians at Quebec laugh at your statement that they are "unprepared." It would certainly enlighten a few of your Dennisons to learn that every young man of the uneducated French province has been through a military course in our schools and colleges. Our qualified officers have graduated "en masse" from these cadet regiments, and you may rest assured that the first Ontario regiment that will cross the boundary line of Quebec and Ontario will receive quite a "cordial" reception. Don't mind if we have all the "paraphernalia," Winchesters, Marlins, etc., that every French-Canadian uses for hunting purposes in time of peace will be brought to contribution to get a "decent crack at our dear friends from Ontario. "Nuff said" for the present. Stand for your Dennisons, Willisons, etc., throwing dirt at our province. Every slander will be accounted for in due time. Down with the Ontario Prussianism. French blood, and it is the present mistake of France, is too noble to be shed for Imperialism, and that Ontarioism which aims presently to the domination of all those who find in Old England the most treacherous nation on earth. Those "ignorant" French-Canadians who are intellectuals compared to your "brilliant lights" will be there on time. In the meantime will practice shooting wooden ducks. What an excuse for a future revolutionist. It beats the firing exercises at the ranges of Camp Borden.

Yours truly,
A "PEASOUP" SHARPSHOOTER.

Editor Review: Acting on the suggestion of prominent people in the city I planted a garden and worked early and late after hours with blistered hands and weary muscles trying to do my bit in the interests of production. But as I toil what do I see?

BYG.

THE SALE OF CHEESE.

Editor Review:—In your issue of the 16th instant you refer to the rules of the Cheese Commission in a headline "Cheese Graded by Commission."

I enclose you copy of Circular No. 5 issued by the Commission which will show that the Commission has no intention of grading cheese. The rules which are referred to apply only to transactions between the Commission and the dealers or buyers. The business between the buyers and the factories will be conducted, or at least should be, exactly on the same lines as heretofore.

The Commission has been set up to facilitate the export of cheese owing to the extraordinary shipping situation which has developed.

The Commission will inspect the cheese which is delivered to it in order to see that they agree with the invoices, but that has nothing to do with the purchase of cheese from the factories.

Buying Cheese.

To Whom it May Concern:

The Cheese Commission is now receiving cheese for shipment overseas and has been authorized to pay, for the present, 21 3-4 cents f.o.b. steamer, Montreal, for No. 1 grade.

The rules which have been adopted to govern the acceptance of cheese by the Commission, on the above terms, apply only to the transactions between the Commission and the cheese dealers, and do not affect the purchase of cheese from the factories by these dealers.

While the cheese will be received from any person who complies with the conditions, it is expected that the business of buying the cheese from the factories and deliverng it to the Commission at Montreal will be carried on by the regular dealers and exporters.

The purchase of cheese at the Country Boards and elsewhere may, and should be, conducted on the same lines as heretofore.

In accordance with the general custom of the trade, the Commission recognizes three grades of cheese, namely, No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3, but does not undertake to decide between the factories and the dealers as to the grade of the cheese. The dealers will do their own inspecting as they have done in the past. The graders or inspectors employed by the Commission will examine the cheese only when it is offered to the Commission in order to see that the quality is as specified in the nvoces from the dealers. No graders certificates will be issued to dealers. The employment of graders or inspectors by the Commission does not introduce any new feature into the sale of cheese by the factories.

The net price of cheese to the factories will naturally be slightly affected by the differences in the rate of freight from the shipping stations to Montreal, but other handling costs are about the same in all classes.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

Is Highly Satisfactory, but Conditions Are Abnormal.

The reversal in the position of Canada from a debtor to a creditor nation deserves attention. There is much depending upon the balance of foreign trade. In periods during which Canada imports greatly in excess of her exports a debt is created to be liquidated by loans and interest charges to the detriment of domestic commerce; while if the value of goods sold abroad exceeds imports, the difference accrues to the country in the shape of income. Roughly, the stability of a country's prosperity may be increased by the balance of its foreign trade. A favorable balance means prosperity, just as an adverse balance means, sooner or later, adversity. This rule may seem to be departed from in the case of Great Britain, whose imports greatly exceed exports, but the explanation is found in the fact that Britain is a creditor nation through her large investments in other countries, and receives payment of interest on these investments in goods to some extent. In the case of Canada it will be found that periods of progression and recession in business are coincident with the balance of foreign trade. The Finance Minister recently referred to an extraordinary expansion of Canada's foreign trade since the outbreak of the war. In 1912, that trade had a value of $841,000,000, in 1916 it reached $1,309,000,000, and in the fiscal year ended March 31st last it had attained the immense sum of $2,043,000,090. Higher prices account, in part, for this expansion, but the fact remains that the foreign business of Canada has reached dimensions far in excess of anything in the past.

In the short period of seven years Canada's foreign trade has doubled in value. The point not to be lost is that the balance of this trade has turned heavily in favor of Canada, being for the year recently ended upwards of $250,000,000 in favor of the country. It is only since the outbreak of the war that this condition of things has been brought about, brought about partly by the sale abroad of the great wheat crop of 1915, but more particularly by the export of munitions. We exported manufactured goods to the value of $408,160,000 in the eleven months ending with February, as against an export of $195,021,000 in the corresponding period last year, and of this great value of exports one-half, $201,061,000, consisted of war ammunition. This trade, however, must be considered abnormal, as not upon a permanent basis, nor one to continue beyond the duration of the war. It is satisfactory for the time being. It accounts for the prevalent prosperity in Canada, and has placed the country upon a strong financial basis, but it will be well to remember that the figures are inflated by fleeting conditions, and that with the conclusion of the war we must seek more permanent sources of foreign trade.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets have kept him Fit through Two Wars.

Sapper A. Hartley of the A Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 904 Trafalgar St., London, Ont., is one of many who hav written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says: "As a constant user of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt rundown. I always recommend them, for I know that they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul St., Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis, Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. Beware of imitations said to contain hypophosphites. The composition of Dr. Cassell's Tablets is known only to the proprietors, and no imitation can ever be the same.

Why He Asked.

A boy asked one of his father's guests who his next door neighbor was and when he heard his name asked if the gentleman was not a fool.

"No, my little friend," said the guest, "he is not a fool, but a very sensible man. But why did you ask the question?"

"Why," said the little boy, "my mother said the other day that you were next door to a fool, and I wanted to know who lived next door to you."

The guest retired.—London Tit-Bits.

More Chestnuts.

It is stated that chestnut-trees are to be grown in England from chestnuts picked up in Verdun. Lord French, when visiting the camp, picked some up, explaining his intention of planting them in his grounds at home as future monuments to the glory of Verdun. The Verdun municipality has received hundreds of requests from England for chestnuts. Since the municipality is not in Verdun, but in Paris, the requests have been forwarded to M. Proust, the Commissary of Police, who remains in the town. He has done all he can to satisfy the demand, getting chestnuts and acorns dug out from what were once Vaux and Douaumont woods and from the public squares of Verdun itself.

Safeguarding Health.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About a Most Unusual Happening.

FAIRY TALE FROM FAR JAPAN.

How Good Luck Came to a Kind Hearted Farmer—Gift That Came Strangely on the Wings of a Storm—Wonderful Ending of a Birthday Feast.

Well, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, tonight I am going to tell you about

THE THUNDER CHILD.

It is a fairy tale that Japanese fathers often tell their little ones as they sit out at evenings beside the doors of their straw cottages and see the rice growing in the little fields above which rises the beautiful mountain, which all Japanese love, the stately Fujiyama.

Once upon a time, say the Japanese, there lived in one of their valleys a good couple, who, after spending their lives in hard work, were growing old without having earned enough to keep them when they should no longer be able to toil.

One day the old man was hoeing his field when a thunderstorm gathered. It was only when the rain began to patter down heavily that he stopped his work. Just as he turned to the house there came a terrible crash of thunder and a bolt of lightning seemed to strike the ground directly in front of him. When the cloud of dust had cleared away the old man was amazed to see lying on the ground a dear, little rosy cheeked child.

Delighted, he picked it up and ran to the cottage, crying:

His wife was not less pleased than he was, and the little one grew up in their home tenderly loved and cared for.

He was a wonderfully good boy. He never cared to run about and play with the other children, but followed his adopted father about the fields trying his tiny best to help.

And though they had been so very poor before, now everything seemed to come their way. They were pointed out as the luckiest people in that part of Japan. When their dear boy was eighteen years old they made a birthday feast for him, but although the old couple were now rich enough to feed the whole country if they had wished, the lad asked that the feast be just for themselves.

When it was over, he rose and said:

"Dear parents, you have made me very happy, but I am, as you know, not your child, but the child of the thunder, and the time has come when I must go back to my own. May you always be happy as kind hearts deserve to be."

And then where he had stood was a little white mist that floated out of the door and grew and grew until it was a tiny cloud before it reached the top of the mountain, where it melted into another snowy white cloud.

THOUSANDS OF SICK WOMEN

Helped Every Year by Common Sense Suggestions Given Free by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

For forty years women suffering from all kinds of female ills have been writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Thus they receive common sense suggestions drawn from a vast volume of experience, and thousands of sick women have been saved from untold suffering, as letters like the following clearly show:—

Newark, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman. Your Sanative Wash is just the thing to overcome female weakness. I have told young mothers as well as older ones about your remedies, and what they have done for me. I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, as my health was very bad when I wrote you, but now I can do my own work and have not had a sick day since I began taking your remedies. I keep the Compound and Liver Pills on hand all the time."—Mrs. GEO. THOMPSON, 24 Sherwood Court, Newark, Ohio.

Why don't you write for free advice? Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

Like the Seashore.

The man was reading his paper the other evening while his wife put her hair up in waves and curls and his little daughter played about the room.

Said the daughter after a long silence:

"Dad!"

Dad grunted, "Well?"

"Isn't it funny?" remarked the observant child. "Ma's hair is all waves, while yours is all beach!"

Later she observed that pa had a particularly heavy hand.

Everybody Can Take Milk.

If a person tells me "I cannot take milk" I always say, "You can if you will take it in a certain way." It is a question usually of taking it aright or of taking it like soup, with a spoon, with a bite of some carbohydrate substance, cracker or bread, between the sips. I do not think everybody must take milk, but I think everybody can.—Dr. R. C. Cabot in "A Layman's Handbook of Medicine."

New Brunswick Statistics.

Potatoes—44,583 acres, 8,148,807 bushels; in 1915, 41,217 acres, 8,348,951 bushels.

Turnips—9,135 acres, 4,189,203 bushels; in 1915, 7,617 acres, 3,733,763 bushels.

Live Stock—Horses, 65,939; 1915, 64,448. Cattle, 247,609; 1915, 247,212. Sheep, 188,883; 1915, 136,193. Swine, 87,847; 1915, 88,538.

The yield from cheese factories and creameries will be about the same as 1915, viz., 776,416 lbs. butter, 1,165,651 lbs. cheese.

The values in 1915 were: Butter, $231,837.82; cheese, $168,086.88. During 1916 the values increased 25 per cent.

Worse Than Siberia.

William Robinson, Customs Officer at Windsor, has received a letter from his son, Private Harold Robinson, a prisoner of war in Germany, the first letter since September of last year, saying he was well. Private Robinson was taken prisoner during the battle of St. Julien, April 22, 1915. A year after his capture Robinson and two hundred other Canadian soldiers were sentenced to work two years in a coal mine because they refused to make munitions.

In the early part of September last year the Canadian Militia Department was notified that the soldiers, including Private Robinson, had been re-sentenced to twelve years' solitary confinement after they had refused to obey a second order to make shells.

More Life Insurance.

Life insurance business written in Canada last year amounted to $231,146,125, as compared with $221,119,568 in the year previous. Payments for death claims amounted to $16,358,678, as compared with $13,621,455 in 1915. Claims due to the death of soldiers at the front and other persons engaged in war service paid by companies operating under Dominion licenses last year totalled $4,560,938, making the total from the beginning of the war until the end of 1916 $6,518,268. In addition Canadian companies incurred claims under policies held by British and foreign policy holders to the amount of $524,935, and companies and fraternal societies operating under provincial licenses paid since the beginning of the war $352,369. Fire insurance premiums totalled $27,713,308, while the losses paid were $4,611,280. Of the totals British companies received over fourteen million and paid nearly eight million dollars, while Canadian companies received $4,736,038 and paid in losses $2,580,594.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

NOSEBLEED.

IN THE ORDINARY CASE of nosebleed the loss of blood will stop spontaneously in a few minutes if the sufferer will remain quiet. In some cases the loss of a few teaspoonfuls of blood is helpful rather than harmful, and, therefore, it is just as well to wait a few minutes for spontaneous stoppage.

When the time to do something arrives it is well to make use of the simplest procedures possible. Grasp the soft part of the nose between the thumb and index finger in such a way as to close both nostrils, and press the wings of the nose against the septum. The septum is the partition which separates the nostrils from each other. The head is then leaned forward without bending the back. After about ten minutes the pressure of the fingers on the nostrils is very slowly and gradually lessened. Five minutes should be consumed in turning the nose loose. In the majority of instances the bleeding takes place from a vessel within the territory pressed upon. When such is the case the pressure is reasonably certain to stop the hemorrhage.

The method is also efficacious when the bleeding point is higher up. The method of cure in that case is as follows: The nostrils fill up with blood. The blood coagulates. The clot stops the hemorrhage. It is good judgment to leave the clots in the nose for at least an hour after the bleeding has stopped. They can then be cleaned out with a clean handkerchief or by washing in slightly cold water.

If these methods fail the physician must be called upon. He usually examines the membrane for the bleeding point. If he finds it he may touch it with caustic or some milder application. Or, this failing, he will probably pack the nose.

There are many causes for nosebleed. This explains why some cases are easier remedied than others. Among the causes are the following:—

1. Too much blood. Where nosebleed comes along with a severe congestive headache it gives relief. A certain amount of bleeding helps.

2. Over-exertion. The nosebleed which comes on while children are playing hard belongs in this group. The bleeding stops spontaneously in a few minutes.

3. The onset of infections. Typhoid particularly is liable to start with nosebleed.

4. Growths in the nose. Nasal polypi are especially to be mentioned.

5. Injuries, including the scratches made by picking the nose.

6. Chronic diseases and conditions—e.g., hemophylia (bleeders), pernicious anemia and leukemia. 7. Vicarious menstruation. 8. High blood pressure. 9. Kidney disease and heart disease.

SIX-YEAR MOLARS.

Notice the mouth of any middle-aged man or woman when he or she laughs or opens the mouth widely in speaking or singing. The chance is that you will notice one tooth gone on each side of both upper and lower jaws. The vacant space is always at the same place—toward the corner of the mouth. If you ask a dentist which tooth it is that is missing he will tell you the six-year molar.

It is significant that the loss of teeth begins with the six-year molar. The reason is easily understood. The six-year molar comes in at about six years of age. It seems to be the last of the temporary teeth. It is in fact the first of the permanent teeth.

Boys and girls do not begin to brush their teeth until they get into school, begin to have sweethearts, and in consequence take pride in their personal appearance. The urge to brush the hair, to keep the clothes clean, to wear a tie, and to brush the teeth all ground in the same instinct. In consequence the six-year molars have had several years of neglect before the habit of brushing the teeth is established. And then again they are not cleaned as easily as are the front teeth.

Presently the molars begin to ache. A dentist is consulted. He finds a large cavity. "The tooth is too far gone. It will be easier and better to pull it," is his verdict. And in consequence the unsightly gap so nearly universal in middle-aged people.

The six-year molar is not a delicate tooth. It can be saved. To save it a habit must be changed. Instead of beginning the care of the teeth as a part of the preadolescent sex urge, it should be begun in the home in the pre-school years. If children four years old and even younger were taught to brush and clean the teeth every day, and if they were sent to the dentist periodically there would be none of these unsightly gaps at the corners of the mouth. By the time the six-year molars are cut the habit of caring for the teeth will have been thoroughly established.

Visited Heroes of Vimy Ridge

THAT portion of the Canadian front from which the point of the attack on Vimy Ridge appears to have been projected happens to have been the place which I chose for my visit on Feb. 21, says the correspondent of The New York Times. I wanted to meet General David Watson, and I was glad that this distinguished officer, whose career has been one of the many romances of the war, was holding a line that touched such historic spots as Carency, Lorette Ridge, Souchez sugar refinery, and the Labyrinth.

Canadians are optimists unashamed. They told me that day, with shining eyes, that the British and French were going to dig Fritz out. In the face of such faith as they had it was a sin to doubt. I didn't doubt, but I made a show of it.

"You are doing wonderful things here on your side of the line. But do you know what the Germans are doing on their side?"

"We don't give a damn," came back in clear Canadianese. "Fritz has got to go."

That is what all those miles of munitions meant to the Canadians. Above all, that is what the seventeen-inch guns meant. There were seventeen lines of defense between the Canadian front and the Douai-Cambrai line; these were concrete dugouts. The only openings were for the guns, and against the old artillery the German dugouts were practically shellproof.

The gun openings were the only vulnerable spots in the vast underground network of steel and concrete. But on the whole front there was something new in the way of artillery. The seventeen-inch gun fired shells that turned dugouts upside down and inside out. We stopped on the road to look at one of these in process of erection under some trees about 100 yards from the road.

"Those guns are the guns that will do the trick," said an officer. "But they are not much good at a distance less than eight miles," he added, by way of apology. They seem to be in the way of doing the trick.

There are four Canadian divisions in the Vimy neighborhood. The Canadians were delighted when they were assigned to what was expected to be, and what has turned out to be, the hottest corner on the whole British front. Major General David Watson's Fourth Division occupied the very heart of the hottest spot. This division held the area between the Souchez sugar refinery and the Labyrinth where the very flower of France had fallen in order to stem the German tide.

This was the right kind of territory for the heroes of Hill 60 at Ypres. There it was that the then Colonel Watson's troops had received their historic baptism of fire.

The French line had withered under the first application of poison gas; the surprise of it had stampeded them. The Canadians relieved them and held the line. Not many of these particular Canadians survived to climb up Vimy Ridge, a mere handful. But the tradition has lived and put the heart of a lion in every raw recruit.

General Watson smiles broadly when he tells how little he and the rest of his battalion knew when they yielded to the patriotic impulse to join the colors in September, 1914.

"We had this advantage," he said, "the nothing we knew was as much as anybody else knew. It was a brand-new game and had to be learned. There was mighty little about soldiering that we had to unlearn, which was to the good."

They put the battalion through all the training that could be had in England for six months, and then shot it straight into the thick of the Ypres show. (That is the word universal for everything in the way of a fight on the British front.) If of the thousands of great episodes of this war one had to be singled out for heroism, it would be that of Hill 60 at Ypres.

Gen. Watson's headquarters were in a house three miles from the actual front and within range of gas as well as guns. He went in the trenches almost daily and mingled with his men. When he raised some question as to the danger of my going under fire, I said that it was much more to the point that he should take no risks. His reply was that he couldn't get along without intimate contact with his soldiers. New headquarters were then being got ready a mile nearer the front.

But for the fog that hung over the scene that day I would have had a good view of the west slope of Vimy Ridge. I was in the trenches near Souchez sugar refinery, the foundations of which are still standing.

There had been an incident at the division headquarters at Ablain that I missed by a few minutes, much to my regret. They had brought in a lot of German prisoners. They expected to be stood up against a wall and shot. Instead, they were given kind words and cigarettes. Thereupon they assured the Canadian officers that if the German soldiers only knew the kind of reception they would get they would walk across the lines and surrender in such numbers that the Kaiser would be compelled to quit.

General Watson used his bedroom for his workshop. I imagined that the room had something of the atmosphere of a newspaper office. The General couldn't have been more modest in his ways if, instead of examining war maps, he had been glancing at the proofs in the office of his newspaper, the Quebec Chronicle. He and his staff were a very happy family. I should like to spend an hour in that friendly circle after what has happened!

RAISE MORE POTATOES.

Prof. Zavitz Makes Suggestion to the Tobacco Growers.

Prof. C. A. Zavitz of the O. A. C. recently made an interesting suggestion in connection with tobacco-growing. He pointed out that, as a war measure, efforts are soon to be made in the United States to reduce the acreage devoted to tobacco-growing, with a view to the land being used for food production instead.

"Tobacco land," he said, "is also excellent potato land. Last year something like eight thousand acres of land were used in Ontario for the production of tobacco. If, in 1917, this acreage were used for the production of potatoes instead of tobacco, the potatoes produced on that land should be sufficient to furnish 200,000 persons with food for one year. If the potatoes were a big crop in all the Provinces this year, and in the United States, prices would, of course, come down, but it is very seldom that a good crop of potatoes is universal over a large section of the country.

"In 1915 and 1916 the potato crop was exceptionally light in Ontario, but in each of those years it was fairly good in Prince Edward Island, Alberta, and British Columbia. The seed of Ontario potatoes likely will be used principally on the farms, and it is going to be a difficult matter to get satisfactory seed potatoes for town lots, especially where the seed has to be purchased. It requires ten to twelve bags of potatoes to plant an acre, and seed potatoes are now selling at $4 a bag, which would mean from $40 to $50 an acre for seed.

"Another crop which might be grown to advantage is turnips. The area in which Swede turnips give satisfactory results in America is limited. Central Ontario, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island are perhaps the best turnip-producing sections in North America. A large amount of valuable food material is produced on an acre from a turnip crop, which usually gives a yield of over four hundred bushels per acre. Prices during the last year have had a range of forty to sixty cents per bushel, which means $200 per acre. There is a big demand in the western States for Ontario-grown turnips, many of which are shipped out of Ontario for human consumption each year."

Referring briefly to winter wheat conditions, Prof. Zavitz said the seriousness of the situation was intensified somewhat in Ontario by the fact that the weather was so dry last autumn that a smaller acreage of winter wheat was sown, and the plants went into the winter in a somewhat weakened condition. When the snow disappeared this spring the small plants of winter wheat were mostly alive, but freezing and thawing have in many instances weakened the plants, and in a good many cases killed them entirely. It is quite probable, therefore, that the production of winter wheat in Ontario will be less in 1917 than in the previous year.

"I believe," said Prof. Zavitz, "that it would be a decided advantage in the interests of food production, as well as in the interests of the farmers themselves, if the farmers would increase as much as possible their acreage of spring wheat this year. Experiments at Guelph in recent years have shown that spring wheat has given very good satisfaction."

SUNDAY'S WAR BULLETIN

South of Armentieres Portugese troops killed or captured an entire German patrol. Saturday evening's official statement reports nothing except artillery engagements at various points.

In patrol encounters south of the Scarpe Saturday night the British captured a few prisoners.

No infantry actions reported on the French front. Twelve hundred shells fell in Rheims Saturday.

Sunday's report says a German attack south of Juvincourt was prevented and an attack northeast of Mount Carnillet in Champagne easily repulsed by the French fire. Some prisoners were taken from the Germans in a surprise attack near Auberive.

On the British and the Serbian fronts in Macedonia patrol actions occurred Friday.

The Turks have retired before the Russians for about two miles on the right bank of the Rayatsk River. The Russians advanced in the Sakiz region to the River Abishirvan and are exchanging fusilades with the Turks who occupied the heights in the region of Divana.

German Army headquarters announce the French have been compelled to evacuate the ground they gained on Monday and Thursday east of Mount Cornillet.

The House of representatives passed a food and fuel control bill with a liberal financial appropriation for its enforcement, after inserting provisions that foodstuffs must not be used for the manufacture of alcoholic beverages and giving the president authority to take over for war purposes all the liquor now on hand.

An explosion believed to be from a bomb explosion in Fort Cabanas last night killed at least one and injured many.

The Austrians have been repulsed by Italians with heavy losses in an attack in the Cordevole Valley. The official statement records a renewal of lively fighting in the Trentino generally but no changes in position.

LABOR MAN FOR CONSCRIPTION

Strong support of the Government's compulsory service bill is given by Mr. Calvin Lawrence, a prominent Canadian labor leader, in a recent letter to the Ottawa Evening Journal. Mr. Lawrence's letter is as follows:—

Sir,—The time has arrived when all citizens of Canada and allies of Great Britain should do their utmost toward winning the terrible war in which we are engaged. and whereas the present system of recruiting for overseas service seems to be exhausted, also, as it is quite evident that something should be done in order that our boys overseas, who have accomplished such glorious results at St. Julien, Vimy Ridge, and other places, should be reinforced, so that the splendid and magnificent deeds that have been achieved by our own flesh and blood might not be in vain. Therefore, as the Government has thought it advisable to pass a selective measure in order that our expeditionary force might be kept up to a satisfactory standard, which is meeting wth a certain opposition, I deem it my duty as a responsible citizen and a representative man, to point out wherein, in my opinion, the proposed conscription bill is a fairer measure to all classes of citizens than the present Militia Act.

"10 All male inhabitants of Canada of the age of eighteen or upwards, and under sixty, not exempt or disqualified by law, and being British subjects, shall be liable to service in the Militia: Provided that the Governor-General may require all the male inhabitants of Canada, capable of bearing arms, to serve in a case of a levee en masse."

The section just quoted seems to make it quite plain that any male person between the age of eighteen and sixty years, who is not disqualified, must serve in the Militia if required to do so.

Clause one of Section 26 reads as follows:

"26. When men are required to organize or complete a corps at any time, either by trainng or for an emergency, and enough men do not volunteer to complete the quota required, the men liable to serve shall be drafted by ballot."

Under the selective conscription measure the men who can best be spared will be chosen for service, and those that are the most useful to the country, or those with the largest number of dependents will not be conscripted. Not so with the Militia Act, for under that law it does not matter how useful a man might be to his country at home, or how many dependents he might have, he would have to take his chance with the other fellow, under the balloting system. Surely no fair-minded person will attempt to justify such a procedure. Imagine a man with four, five, or six dependents going by the side of a man with no dependents, and the person with the dependents drawing a ticket sending him to the front, and the man with no dependents drawing a ticket that would allow him to stay at home. Then, again, imagine a man that should be used in important work at home, such as farming or munitions, etc., drawing a ticket to go overseas, and the man who could better be spared than either of the former, drawing a ticket exempting him from service. It seems to me that further arguments are unnecessary to prove which is the fairer measure of the two, i.e., the Militia Act of the selective conscription proposition, but in order to prove beyond a doubt what the Militia Act will do, I will quote Section 69 of that Act, which reads as follows:—

"69. The Governor in Council may place the Militia or any part thereof on active service anywhere in Canada, and also beyond Canada, for the defence thereof, at any time when it appears advisable so to do by reason of emergency."

In accordance with the foregoing sections of the Militia Act, any male person in Canada between the ages specified can be ordered by the Governor in Council to ballot, and if chosen, can be forced to serve in the Militia unless he is exempt or disqualified by law for the defence of Canada, either at home or abroad. I understand that some of our people have urged the Dominion to put the Militia Act in operation, in order that the Expeditionary Forces might be kept at their proper strength Having a copy of the Militia Act in the Militia Act or the selective contents I have lived in fear of this being done, for I realized the effect it might have upon some of the citizens if such a course was taken. I submit, therefore, in all fairness, that it is quite evident that a proper conscription measure is preferable to the present Militia Act.

I canno see wherein the selective conscription measure is going to affect the working people any more than it will any other person, or I cannot think that the majority of the workmen throughout Canada, who now have and always have had my utmost sympathy regard and assistance in their many difficulties, and with whom I have been closely allied for more than thirty years, are opposed to this country sending a further supply of men to assist their comrades who have already gone overseas and who have so magnificently borne their share of the great conflict in France and Flanders, so that the Huns might be prevented from committing the crimes and devastations to our people and country that they have committed to the citizens of France, Belgium and other countries.

In conclusion, let me suggest that the national needs of the country outweigh all selfish motives, and everything else ought to be subordinate to the winning of the war; so let us all put our shoulder to the wheel. If we do, there need be no doubt as to the outcome of the issue. This has been my policy since the beginning of the conflict, which I would like to see the unanimous opinion of all our people, and I trust that it is.

I am of the opinion that a fair selective conscription measure, properly administered, is the most adequate form of enlistment, and have no hesitancy in supporting such a proposition

Y.M.C.A., City.

Dear Mr. Meserve.

Will you allow me to send you a word or two of appreciation of the work of the Y.M.C.A. both in Peterborough here and also overseas. My two sons have received much benefit from the "Y" here for a number of years and since Will (Lieut. W. F. Leader) has been overseas he has written in appreciation at finding its privileges and influences in camp there.

I am sure your work is second to none in its influence for good, both on the civilian and the soldier. Thanking you as its representative for benefits received through my boys, I am.

Yoursfaithfully.
GEORGE LEADER.

C. N. Meserve, Esq.,
Gen. Sec. Y.M.C.A.

Dear Sir:—

My son, Clarence, who enlisted June 3rd, a year ago, is now in France. Previous to enlisting he was a member of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. It is a pleasure for me to express my appreciation of the help he received from the Y.M.C.A. here in the formation of his character for Christian service. Overseas the Y.M.C.A. is the favorite spot to which our boys go for physical comfort, rest and congenial companionship, where home seems nearer and friends seem dearer. Enclosed is my cheque in aid of the home branch.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sir:—

As the father of a Y.M.C.A. boy, who is in the service of his country with the Royal Flying Corps, I wish to bear testimony that the influence of the Y.M.C.A. on the spiritual, moral and physical life of my boy has been of the most helpful character along these various lines and I feel assured that the memory of the lessons taught in your organizations will abide with him in the years to come and particularly in this the formulative period of his miltary experence when he will be exposed to dangers, physical and moral, and I hope and pray and will believe that through these very influences he will be kept brave, true and clean. It is a great source of satisfaction and comfort to me to know that the same influence will be thrown around him overseas. God bless the Y.M.C.A. and may you be successful in securing the necessary fund to carry on the good work? We, as citizens, must be ready and willing to do our bit in helping an organization that is doing so much for our boys in this great conflict.

Sincerely yours,
W. A. LOGAN.

To the Secretary and Board of Managers:—

As I have had two boys who have received a training in the Y.M.C.A. for at least 8 or 9 years, one of them in the far West, the other overseas, I wish to thank you in as grateful a manner as possible for the training received in your organization as I consider it spiritually, morally and physically of the very highest type conceivable, and I am satisfied it is worthy of all the support the City, as well as private citizens can give it. The boy overseas writes home on Y.M.C.A. paper and says he treasures the training he received from the Y.M.C.A. more than all else and wishes me to still help to support it which I intend to do.

Dear Sir:—

In reply to your letter of the 7th. I may say that my son. Pte. F. G. McNeeley, who was formerly in the Y.M.C.A. office here, enlisted with Q.F.A.C., Kingston, and when last we heard from him, was at Moore's Barracks, England, but may now be somewhere in France.

Fred says that the Y.M.C.A. is of great service to the Army and is described by the soldiers as "A Home at the Front," and personally, I cannot speak too highly of the "Y" as I well know what this service means to me.

Yours very truly,

To the Sec. of the Y.M.C.A.

Dear Sir:—

In reply to your favor received today with regard to our boy. Arthur, now for about 2 years serving with the 33rd Battery overseas I have much pleasure to say we had a letter from him a few days ago written on the 12th of May and that he was quite well then and that he thought the war will soon be over. We have heard from others that have seen him lately and they all say he is looking fine and I have much pleasure in saying that I have no doubt that the training he received in the "Y" before the war has been a great help to him in every way, physically, morally and spiritually, and to all the "Y" boys serving at the front and I have no doubt it is the training that has enabled the Canadian troops to win the honors they have so nobly won. I have also noticed with pleasure the great work the "Y" is doing at the front and wish them every success.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.) GEORGE HORSEFIELD.

REV. R. G. PEEVER PREACHES FAREWELL AT GEORGE STREET

REV. R. G. PEEVER

Rev. R. G. Peever has taken formal leave of the congregation of George Street Church of which he has been the esteemed and successful pastor for the yast four years. He preached his farewell sermon last night and the congregation bade him God-speed in the closing voluntary by the choir, which selection was the old favorite hymn "God be with you till we meet again."

Mr. Peever has been long regarded as one of the foremost preachers in the Methodist Church in Canada. He is still a young man as preachers are regarded and there is a greater future still before him, successful and brilliant as the past has been. He leaves Peterborough for a wider field having been apopinted pastor of the First Methodist Church, the leading church of that denomination in London.

Mr. Peever may be a loyal Methodist but he is in no sense a sectarian and Church Union has no warmer supporter than he. He has been a good citizen as well as an earnest pastor during his stay in this city, popular with all classes and an energetic worker in all public movements. He has been one of the foremost workers on behalf of recruiting and has raised a son who is now in the service of the Empire. The temperance cause never had a more faithful or judicious advocate in this district.

George Street Church has on its records the names of many prominent pastors but perhaps none have been so successful in building up the congregation as Mr. Peever. Every department of church work has flourished under his pastorate, the young people's societies especially, the attendance at every service has increased, the membership has shown steady progress and the finances have kept pace with the other evidences of growth. As a preacher he has been broad-minded and never hesitated to discuss public questions, but always dealt with such topics so fairly that no offence was given to any individual or faction. His own congregation is not alone in regretting his departure. Friends in all denominations sympathize with them in their loss.

Floral Sunday.

Yesterday was flower Sunday in George Street Church and the beautiful weather lent a charm to the impressive services in the morning. The children met in the school room and marched upstairs, class by class, and took their places in the body of the church, each carrying a bouquet of flowers. These were carried to the altar and four pillers erected in front of the pulpit were beautifully decorated. The tops of the pillers were draped with Union Jacks and the flag of the United States.

Special music was furnished by the Sunday School orchestra and Mr. C. C. Parsons, the superintendent of the Sunday School, assisted in the services. There was a violin solo by Miss Mignon Telgman and a duet by two of the younger pupils of the School. Mildred and Hazel Tretheway.

Mr. Peever gave one of his characteristic talks to the children, arousing their interest from the first with an object lesson in which an orange, chestnut, leaves and a daisy figured. He showed from these that everybody and everything has a duty to perform in life. The orange tree grows fruit for the tastes of the princes, the chestnut affords shade for the weary and even the modest daisy growing by the roadside cheers the tired traveller on his way.

A Word From the Congregation.

At the conclusion of Mr. Peever's address Dr. Harvey rose in his place among the audience and made a few remarks expressing the appreciation of the congregation of the departing pastor's services. He said that the people too often withheld their approbation of the work of their minister and it was to avoid that the somewhat unusual spectacle was witnessed of a worshipper rising to speak during the service. Dr. Harvey told of how Mr. Peever had endeared himself not only to his own congregation but to the people of the city at large. He spoke of his stirling qualities as a preacher and a man, of his consistent Christian life and his worth as a citizen. On behalf of the congregation Dr. Harvey extended to Mr. Peever their best wishes for his future success.

The Evening Service.

Mr. Peever was never heard to better advantage than he was in his farewell sermon last night. He had prepared a special address last week giving a resume of his work in Peterborough during the past four years but when he came to look for the manuscript yesterday he was unable to find it. It had been lost in the preparations for moving to London for which city he leaves next Monday. His address last night was extempore but it was a straight heart to heart talk with his people, his closing message being based on the text, "And Jesus said, I am the way the truth and the light. No man cometh to the Father but by me." His model for a Christian life which he has always held before his congregation was his farewell theme.

A Word for the Y.M.C.A.

Before the sermon Mr. J. J. Turner spoke for ten minutes on behalf of the Y.M.C.A. Rev. C. E. Cragg, formerly of the Mark Street Church, who is on his way to a new charge in Lethbridge, was on the platform with Mr. Peever and assisted in the services. Mr. Cragg is regarded as a product of George Street Church and selected his wife, formerly Miss Wright, from the congregation.

Gifts to Mrs. Peever.

Mrs. Peever has been as much of a favorite with the congregation as her popular husband. Last Thursday night the tennis club of the church presented her with a handsome bouquet, and the ladies of the congregation have made her the recipient of a purse of gold.

Rev. Amos J. Thomas, the new pastor, who comes from London, will arrive in the city on the C. P. R. train Thursday morning. The two cities are certainly to be congratulated on the exchange. If each has lost a good man, both have been fortunate in securing another.

Messrs. W. H. Cunningham, C. C. Parsons, Harold Jones and E. Walker sang "Somewhere" last night in admirable expression.

BRITISH SPORTS

Royal Princes Are Manly and Not Mollycoddled

Says A. B. George in his gossip of British sports: "It is undoubtedly true that the late King Edward owed much of his great popularity to the fact that he was a fine sportsman. The anti-sports have obtained more than their proper proportion of power in late years, but at heart, the rank and file of Englishmen are sportsmen, and the knowledge that our late King supported yachting and horse racing added to his popularity. It can also be truly stated that the fact of King George being one of the best shots with the gun in Europe is of much worth. Not only does it give the lie to a silly assertion sometimes heard, but it also pleases the average man to think of the King as an expert shot. The family ability extends to our young Princes, all of whom have shown a liking for athletics. The Prince of Wales proved himself no mean runner when at Oxford both when racing along the river bank to cheer on his college crew and also in cross-country runs. More recently he astonished the stalwart guardsmen of his regiment by the way he went through long route marches, and in spite of his somewhat spare physique, he evidently has no end of stamina and grit. It is pleasing to notice this Royal support of athletics, as it will tend to make foot racing more popular in some quarters, whilst it further proves that our young Princes are manly and not mollycoddies."

Golf Behind Front

The plan of a six-hole golf course just behind the British front in Flanders, which has been built by the general staff officers of one of the army headquarters, has been received in London. As desk work at headquarters is strenuous and continuous, often meaning spending twenty-four hours on duty at one time, the men feel the need of out-door relaxation. The links is distinguished by three real bomb holes and one of the greens is known as "Bomb Green."

POWERFUL BOOKS PERFORMED MIRACLES

Works of Undying Fame Relieve Human Suffering and Benefit the World

It would be a wise man who could foresee the effect a book is destined to produce when it is issued from the press. Some very pretentious books fall flat, whilst others simply perform miracles by impressing the public in dramatic guise with some needful reform, some dreadful scandal, or some social need.

The Geneva Convention, which made the Red Cross the emblem of mercy the world over in 1864, was the direct result of a movement which sprang from the publication of a book entitled, "Un Souvenir de Solferino," by Henri Dunant, a Genevan philanthropist and physician.

With such awfu ldetail did he describe the sufferings of the wounded that henceforth the subject was one of universal interest. It was energetically taken up by the author's friend, M. Gustave Moynier, whose agitation led to an unofficial congress at Geneva in October, 1863. This was followed by an official one at Geneva called by the Swiss Government in 1864. The Convention, signed on August 22nd, 1864, afterwards received the endorsement and adherence of every civilized Power.

No. 5 John Street

"No. 5 John Street," is not exactly a novel with a purpose, but it had an immense influence over modern methods of dealing with the rougher class of working girls in the East End of London. Perhaps this is a case of prophecy bringing its own fulfilment, for many of the methods described by Mr. Richard Whiteing are so reasonable and so eminently practicable that there is little wonder that social workers made him a true prophet.

On June 5th, 1851, commenced in the National Era of Washington a serial which in book form has been translated into over a score of languages, has been the pabulum of innumerable plays, and achieved a circulation only exceeded by the Bible. Its author was a modest little woman named Harriet Beecher Stowe, and the story was "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It probably holds the world's record as a miracle working book, for it freed every negro in the United States from slavery. The book went like a flame of fire round the world, and what statesmen could not do a book accomplished. It tore the last rag of justification from an iniquitous system which had brought untold misery to millions of human beings and sounded the knell of slavery for the whole globe.

The splendidly organized system of nursing with which Queen Alexandra's name will ever be associated, and of which the late Florence Nightingale was the pioneer, was largely the result of the lurid pictures Dickens drew of the typical nurses of his earlier days. "Sairey Gamp" embodies in her fat person all the vices of her obnoxious sisterhood.

Charles Reade killed the horrible system of transportation for life and removed from Australia and New Zealand the stain of being criminal dumping grounds. His novel, "It is Never Too Late to Mend," did the trick, and the great and self-respecting and self-governing dominions in the southern hemisphere owe the novelist a debt of gratitude which they have not failed to pay.

BUSY TOMMY BURNS

Many Come-backs And Activities of Canadian Pugilist

When Noah Brusso, alias Tommy Burns, former heavyweight champion of the world, and subsequently Calgary haberdasher and New Orleans boxing promoter and referee, announced his intention to pull a comeback, the fight fans chuckled at the idea. Tommy is pictured as a patriarch with flowing beard and bent shoulders, but as a matter of fact the only Canadian-born heavyweight champion was born at Hanover, Ont., June 17, 1881. Tommy quit the ring after his defeat by Johnson in 1908, and settled in Calgary, where he engaged in the business of supplying the smart dressers of the Alberta metropolis with the latest in sartorial embellishments. In 1910 he pulled a Patti in Australia, whipping Bill Lang in twenty rounds at Sydney. For a couple of years he remained in retirement, but emerged in 1912 to whip Bill Rickard at Saskatoon. A few months later he fought a short go with Arthur Pelky in Calgary, and then promoted the tragic Pelky-McCarty bout in that city. In 1914 Tommy had another whirl at the game at Taft, Cal., picking for his purpose a two-legged quince known as Battling Brandt. Tommy had been quite successful as a promoter in the Crescent City, but his decisions as a referee have not always been in accordance with popular opinion.

HOW UMPIRE SURVIVED

Countless Decisions Given And Kicks Faced By Emslie

It was on August 19, 1891, that Emslie, who had been arbitrating in the Western league, reported for National league duty at Cincinnati. It is estimated that in his quarter of a century of National league service he has handed down about 130,000 decisions. Joe Tinker, in discussing the matter, expressed the belief that about half of these were right, but John McGraw insists that Bob's guessing average is considerably less than .500. However that may be, it is only fair and truthful to say that Bob has probably hung up as high an average as any arbiter in the trade. On the basis of 130,000 decisions, it is probable that Mister Emslie has listened to at least 125,000 roars, or an average of about 5,000 kicks per year. A man who can survive that and still be hale and hearty at the age of fifty-five deserves a bunch of laurels.

Famous Old Lacrossist

The late Dave Coulson, the Montreal lacrosse player was one of the greatest centre fielders of the game in the days of the late Ross McKenzie and other stalwarts in the game. He started with the Toronto Lacrosse Club, but moved to Montreal, where he was one of the fastest men in the game during the days when the Winged Wheel experts were in their prime.

Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm labourers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honourably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

IN THE BASEBALL WORLD

BASEBALL ALPHABET

O—stands for "Out, and for "goose egg" as well,
There's many a sad tale this letter can tell
Of high hopes demolished when umpires shout,
With a wave of the hand, "Three strikes and you're out!"

The White Sox have a gem of a short-stop in Risberg, who is doing some star performing these days. Now if he can only improve his work with the bat, he'll soon become one of the leading citizens.

Eddie Cilcotte, pitcher for the White Sox, has everybody worried with that "shine ball" of his. Eddie is not letting any of the boys know how he handles it or what he does to the pill, but wherever he appears, the eyes of the players as well as the fans are glued to his delivery.

Connie Mack hasn't gained a name as a great maker of ball players for nothing. If any further proof were needed of his ability, one might point to Ping Bodie and Rube Schauer. These two players are developing winning qualities under the careful supervision of the Athletics' famous manager.

George Stallings is working his Boston Braves under high pressure, and is getting a first class brand of ball out of his men. He insists that his outfit will be a serious contender for pennant honors at the end of the season.

The old-timers have a staunch friend in Connie Mack. Just because a man has a few years to carry around on his back is no reason why he should be dropped, according to the Athletics' manager. Cy Falkenberg is still a prominent member of that clan, and Harry Davis is allowed to sit around waiting for a chance to come to do a little pinch-hitting.

Grouchy Gus Says: "Thousands of fans have been soaked vigorously on the back by over enthusiastic fans. Here's a chance to put one over on your mother-in-law. Take her along next time."

Baseball managers are certainly having their troubles this year. In one case the infield is weak, in another the outfield; with another both may be good but the stick work is bad; and so on. Trouble with the pitching staff seems to be chronic and universal. There is John McGraw, for instance, who is getting gray worrying about his moundsmen. Perritt and Eesreau are both in poor physical condition; Benton slumps every once in a while; Sallee is fairly good, and the work falls on Schupp and Anderson. These men can be counted on to hold out for a time, but sooner or later will crack under the strain, if there is no relief.

The patriot says to his son:
"My boy, you go shoulder a gun,
And also a pack:
And don't you come back
Before you've made Kaiser Bill run."

Eleven years ago today an event took place at Spokane, Wash., that caused one of the bitterest controversies in sporting annals. On that day, June 23, 1906, Dan Kelly, until then absolutely unknown in the world of sports, was said to have run a hundred yards in nine and three-fifths seconds. This record was accepted by the Amateur Athletic Union on the testimony of a score of reputable men, who declared that they had inspected the watches, three in number, and that all read alike—9 3-5 seconds. No other record in amateur athletics aroused so much controversy as that attributed to Kelly. One of those who refused to believe in the authenticity of Kelly's time was the late lamented Mike Murphy, who a year later became Kelly's trainer and who knew the youth if anybody did. Murphy maintained that Kelly hadn't it in him to do better than 10 1-5 seconds. It was later alleged that unofficial timekeepers at Spokane made the time over ten seconds. It is certain that Kelly never did anything wonderful after that, although he had the advantage of being trained by Murphy

What Do These Words Mean to You?

They mean greater safety in the Home. Surely something that interests you keenly!

Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation, "No fire left when blown out," on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The splints or sticks of all matches contained in these boxes have been impregnated or soaked in a chemical solution which renders them dead wood once they have been lighted and blown out, and the danger of FIRE from glowing matches is hereby reduced to the greatest minimum.

SUNDAY.

The sun was shining on the street,
Shining with all his might;
He did his very best to flood
The cty streets with light.
And yet a lot of motor cars
Were busted up by night.

This being the touring season, when the voice of the cutout is heard in the land, it seems advisable to print a little something of interest to the man burdened with the upkeep.

Motor Mutterings.

Automobilists, driven to desperation by the persistency of pedestrians in trying to cross the street, when they are just as well off on one side as the other, will have a bill introduced in the next Legislature, providing for the locking up over Saturday and Sunday of all persons who do not own cars.

Kathleen de la Quince, the popular screen idol, has started a movement to have the license plate numbers for 1918 done in smoked champagne on a purple background, to match the new $80,000 car she is having built by the Ach Himmel Auto company of Blue Island. Little Miss Quince got her idea for the color scheme from a Greek fruit store proprietor's tie, two years ago, when a waitress in the Ptomaine Tea and Lunch Room in New York.

An inventor is working on a substitute for gasoline, to be made out of apple parings, but folks aren't saying much about it because they don't want to hurt his wife's feelings.

If there is a young gentleman in the audience who thinks he can hit a baseball hard and timely, let him hasten at once and seek out Bill Donovan, manager of the Yankees, who is looking high and low for just such as he. The Yankees, in other words, need some heavy artillery, and that is very scarce indeed.

Grouchy Gus says: "Arguing with the umpire is like arguing with the tax collector. You can call him all the names you like, but you have to pay in the end."

Owner Henry Berg of the San Francisco ball club says he will pay Manager Harry Wolverton the $5000 his contract stipulates for the season, send him home, and run the team himself. One might gather from this that he questions Mr. Wolverton's ability as a director.

Lee Fohl, manager of the Clevelands, is looking around for an outfield utility man, and has had his eye on Sam Crawford, veteran outfielder of the Tigers, for a long time. But there's nothing doing in that direction. He can't have Sam; at least, not for the present. President Navin of the Tigers knows that he has a good man in Crawford, otherwise he would not have rejected the offer of James C. Dunn, owner of the Clevelands, to buy the veteran at a liberal figure. Crawford is getting a salary of $7500 a year, and Navin is glad to pay it, despite the fact that lately Sam hasn't been doing much except polishing the bench. It was in 1913 that Navin got hold of Sam and signed him up for a four-years' contract at the abovementioned figure. Sam is now serving the last year of that contract, waiting for pinch-hitting opportunities to come along and give him something to do. At that, his average is pretty low, being somewhere around .130. He is said to be the highest salaried pinch hitter in the history of baseball.

Despite the fact that the war has called out a great many football stars for service in the army or the navy, there is every reason to believe that the colleges will perform on the gridiron as usual this fall. Of all games, football is recognised as the one which more than any other brings out the qualities of aggressiveness, courage and generalship, and in every way develops manly traits. There has, of course, been talk here and there of discontinuing college athletics, but it is sincerely hoped that such a step will not be taken unless it is absolutely necessary.

PUGILISTIC ANNALS

The Louisville club of the American Association celebrated June 23, 1889, by winning a game after having lost twenty-six games straight, establishing a record for consecutive losses in major league ball. On the same day in the following year a curious game was played between Philadelphia and Pittsburg teams of the Players' League. In that game Mike Griffin, of Philadelphia, got to first base four times without making a single hit. He made four trips to first on fumbles by players on the opposing team. On June 23, 1907, Jiggs Donohue had a hard luck day which has rarely been equalled. Jiggs was playing with the White Sox against Cleveland. He came up to bat five times when men were on bases and failed to advance a single one, leaving eleven of his mates stranded. Cleveland won the games, which went to twelve innings. Score 7 to 5.

Henry D. Cruger, whose daughter was murdered, has written Mayor Mitchell of New York demanding the removal of Police Commissioner Arthur Woods.

KICKING MUST END.

Will Not Be Tolerated Longer in the International League.

NEW YORK, June 25. — "Kicking must go," said Edward Barrow, president of the International League. "It gets nothing. I do not believe the fans realize the tremendous responsibility of the umpires. Two judges of play are compelled to render between three hundred and four hundred decisions during a championship ball game. Is it any wonder, then, that they sometimes make mistakes? Yet it is practically a certainty that close decisions on balls and strikes or on the bases even up in the long run."

"It stands to reason," says Barrow, "that an umpire who is constantly nagged by players and panned by the spectators cannot give satisfaction. Some persons seem to forget that umpires are impartial, that they must decide close plays one way or the other. There can be no splitting of hairs. In such cases it is a joke to see a team that loses a close decision kick and protest. For if the ruling had been rendered against the other team the umpire would have been in hot water just the same. Kicking usually covers up the mistakes of the players, not those of the umpires, and we will positively not tolerate it in the International League."

KING OF UMPIRES

"He was never fined, suspended or censured for any breach of conduct in 25 years." That was President Tener's tribute to "Bob" Elmslie, the dean of umpires in the world of fandom, and by birth a Canadian. When one thinks of the fierce light that beats about the plate; of the anger of the coward crowd as it demands that the "Umps" be "Killed"; of the jibes of the rowdy ball player, and of the difficulties of serving four masters at one time, "Bob" Elmslie certainly proved himself a true hero. He was nearing the end of his baseball usefulness, but he will carry with him into retirement, whenever it comes, the kindliest affections of the millions of fans who love courage and honor. Elmslie was born in Guelph in 1861 and started his career as a major league umpire thirty years later.

Throws A Lead Ball

Did you know that Grover Cleveland Alexander always toys with a lead ball on the days that he goes into the box. Fans have been a bit mystified by the actions of the star in playing a game of "toss-up-and-catch" all by his lonesome. The reason? Oh, well if you toss around a lead ball for five or ten minutes and then switch quickly to a regular baseball, the difference in weight is such that the baseball seems little heavier than a tennis globule. And the result is blinding speed.

RACING AT LANG.

In the open class there were 2 entries, "Jack Brooks," owned by J. Dindale; "Sidelia," owned by R. Elmhurst. "Jack Brooks" won by an eyelash. Best time 1.10.

In the green class there were three entries: "Lift Lock Bill," owned by W. Elmhurst; "The Bunter," owned by J. Elmhurst; "Lauria Tariff," owned by A. Elmhurst. "Lauria Tariff," ably driven by Art Elmhurst, won first money after "Lift Lock Bill" and "The Bunter" were set back for their unsteady performance. Best time 1.30.

DEPARTMENTAL STORE IS IN LIQUIDATION

OTTAWA, June 25.—Justice Lennox Saturday granted an order winding up the departmental store concern of A. E. Rae, Ltd., the largest in Ottawa. The Standard Bank is a creditor for $700,000, and the solicitor representing the bank, together with local creditors, pressed for the granting of the order. Geoffrey Clarkson, of Toronto, was appointed provisional liquidator.

TWO WAYS TO ACQUIRE AN ESTATE

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family, and yourself maybe, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

TWO WAYS TO BEQUEATH AN ESTATE

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape at court. Requires court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator—you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of court proceedings—no expense of court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

Which is the SAFER and BETTER Way to Bequeath an Estate?

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mulligan, of Omemee, were in the city yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Inker and party motored to the city yesterday, and after visiting Chemong and Lakefield left this morning for other lake points.

Mr. A. W. Crouch, general manager of the Dearborn Chemical Co., of Toronto, is in the city.

Mr. H. G. Buck and several friends motored to the city yesterday from Norwood and lunched at the Empress.

Mr. K. M. May, of Buffalo, is in the city.

Mr. and Mrs J. C. Sullivan, Peterborough, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alleen Mary, to Mr. Francis Joseph Hickey, of Peterborough, the marriage to take place July 4th.

The engagement is announced of Delphine Anne (Dell) youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Baker, to Leo Eagen Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers, both of Lindsay, the marriage to take place about the middle of July.

In its account of the commencement exercises held at St. Joseph's Accademy, Lindsay, the Post says: The valedictory of the students was a masterpiece of English diction. An extract from Lord Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" was happily selected as a theme around which was beautifully entwined ennobling sentiments and lofty ideals. Miss Gertrude McCabe, of Peterborough, achieved a triumph as valedictorian, her delivery being graceful, her enunciation clear and distinct, and she well deserved the many tributes showered upon her by the different speakers.

Mr. Gus Gough, of the Sellors-Gough Co., furriers, Toronto, is in town renewing old acquaintance. He has the happy look of a man without an enemy in the world and exudes prosperity from every pore.

Mr. Wilfred Adams left this morning for Toronto where he will join the University Officers' Training Corps.

Mr. Clark Earls and Mrs. Harper of Toronto are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huffman, Margaret ave.

Rev. R. G. Peever and family will leave for their new home in London on Wednesday.

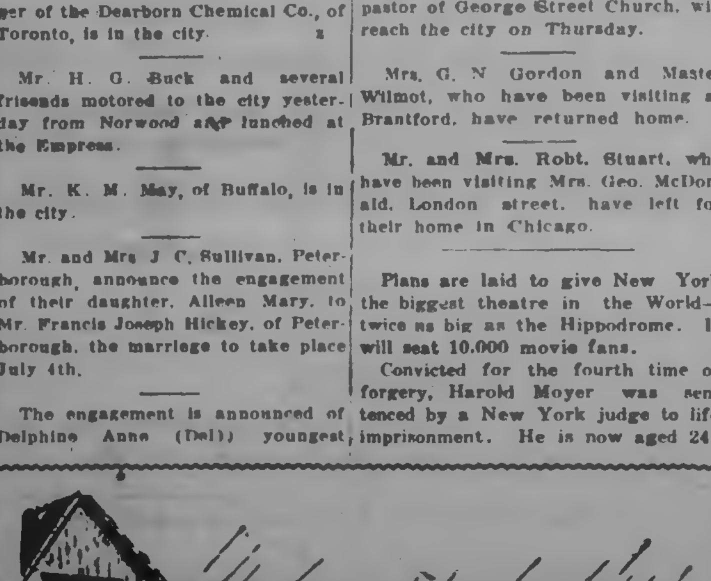
Rev. Amos J. Thomas, the new pastor of George Street Church, will reach the city on Thursday.

Mrs. G. N Gordon and Master Wilmot, who have been visiting at Brantford, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Stuart, who have been visiting Mrs. Geo. McDonald, London street, have left for their home in Chicago.

Plans are laid to give New York the biggest theatre in the World—twice as big as the Hippodrome. It will seat 10,000 movie fans.

Convicted for the fourth time of forgery, Harold Moyer was sentenced by a New York judge to life imprisonment. He is now aged 24.



A Y.M.C.A. HUT OVERSEAS.

The splendid overseas work of the Y.M.C.A. is made possible only by the home work being well maintained. The Peterborough "Y" is one of the units that is backing up the work at the front.

The Y.M.C.A. has 120 military centres, forty-five in Canada, twenty-two in England and fifty-three in France.

The Y. M. C. A. is not self-supporting, and never can be. If it were it would not be doing the work it should. It must be made attractive to young men and boys. It must be made a home for them, where clean living and moral physical development will be encouraged. The facilities to accomplish this good work are placed within the means of the young men and boys by your generosity. The work could not be carried on without your help. There is no institution in Peterboro that so liberally repays the support it receives in the results achieved. The future of the city and nation depends upon the proper training of our young men. To adequately sustain o program to guide the young life of the city into habits of self-control and achievement, the above sum is required.

The contribution the Y.M.C.A. has made to the soldiers in training in our city the past three years is sufficient warrant for the appeal now being made for financial support, but in addition to this there is the very important work being done for the teen age boys too young to enlist now, but not too young for being trained to meet the responsibilities soon to be placed upon them.

As Capt. Best graphically said yesterday—the military work of the Association is only one of the branches of which the home work is the tree. If the tree is not nurtured or is girdled the branches will wither and fall.

YOUNG WOMAN LOST LIFE WHEN DRESS TOOK FIRE

Tragic Death of Mabel, Sister of Peter Smedmore, Stewart Street, at Her Home in Quebec.

Mabel Smedmore, a sister of Mr. Peter Smedmore, Stewart Street, was badly burned at the summer home of Col. Woods, near River De Loup, Que., on Friday evening last. The exact particulars of the accident are not known, but it is understood that while engaged at a stove she poured coal oil or gasoline on it, and was so badly burned from the effects that she never recovered from the shock.

The deceased was born in England 23 years ago, and only last fall left Woolwich and came out to Canada and went to work for Col. Woods at Ottawa. The relatives of the young woman tried to get more particulars, but Dr. Grandeau, of Fraserville, Que., who accompanied the remains to the city could not give any definite information of the accident.

The funeral will be held from the residence of Mr. Peter Smedmore, 283 Stewart Street, tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

TWO NEW SENATORS

The government on Saturday appointed two new senators to represent British Columbia. They are E. A. Plant, of Nanaimo, and L. W. Shatford, of Hadley, on the mainland.

His shirts having gone astray with his trunk, Signor Marconi had to dine in his room instead of attending a Chicago banquet to the Italian Mission.

CANADIANS CAPTURE A VILLAGE

CANADIAN TROOPS LEAD ALL OTHERS ON TO LENS

Capture and Hold the Strongest Outpost in Defence of that Place ---Enemy Fall Back for One Last Effort

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Headquarters in France, June 26.—The Canadians have occupied the strongest outpost in the defence of Lens, and have pushed their advance towards La Coulotte. The unceasing pressure to which the enemy in the Souchez Valley has been subjected during the past few weeks has brought a signal success to the British arms with relatively slight losses.

Early yesterday afternoon an unusual movement within the enemy line indicated he was retiring, while at the same time aerial observers brought the news that the cross roads and street intersections west of the German lines had been mined. Craters were seen by them at a number of these cross roads. At once patrols were pushed out, who early in the morning had occupied the enemy trenches at the foot of Reservoir Hill. They reached the summit of the hill without opposition and pushed down the eastern slope. Strong posts were established, and a strong Lens outpost was effectivey occupied.

Meanwhile, to the south of the Souchez River we pushed forward on the heels of the retiring enemy. Railway embankments to the east of Lens electric station were occupied. The advance was then continued towards La Coulotte. As night fell strong parties were sent out to consolidate the positions occupied, and patrols were pushed out with the object of keeping in touch with the enemy.

Several days ago the enemy was known to be destroying houses in the western part of Lens and with the object of giving wider area of fire for his guns. That may indicate his intention of clinging to the eastern side of the city and prolonging the struggle by house to house fighting. Heavy artillery fire was directed last night upon all roads eastwards of Lens and Avion, by which troops and guns could be moved back. On the extreme south exploratory patrols met heavy opposition.

CHANCE FOR RETURNED SOLDIER

The local Soldiers' Aid Commission has been advised that a desirable opening is available for a returned soldier, who, if at all possible, has been a farmer. Preference will be given to one who has been a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and one who is able to operate a typewriter or is willing to learn. The applicant, being successful, will be required to take charge of correspondence regarding farms and lands and have a knowledge of stock farming.

If such a man be available, will he please apply to the office of the local branch of the Commission, City Buildings, at the Patriotic Fund Rooms? If any one knows of someone who would like this position, please advise as above.

OTTAWA, June 26.—The action of the City Council of Toronto yesterday in refusing by 13 to 2 to permit the conscription of their employes unless the wealth of the country also is conscripted has produced a strong impression here.

THE BIRTHDAY OF THE DOMINION

On Sunday, July 1st. the congregation of Murray Street Baptist Church will hold a special service in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of confederation. The entire service will be of devotional and patriotic character and the complete choir will lead in suitable music. The church will be appropriately decorated. A full announcement will be made in Saturday's Review.

ROBLIN AND PALS GO SCOTT FREE BY ORDER OF COURT

Lawyers on Both Sides Agree to Let the Matter Drop.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 26. — Sir Rodmond Roblin, Geo. R. Coldwell and Jas. H. Howden, who have been under indictment in the Assize Court here for months charged with conspiracy in connection with the Manitoba Parliament Buildings, were discharged yesterday afternoon by Mr. Justice Prendergast.

A. J. Andrews, counsel for the defence, read to the court letters from Dr. Baker and Dr. E. Richards, of Winnipeg, stating that the health of Sir Rodmond was precarious, and that he was in no condition to stand the strain of a trial. Mr. Andrews stated that it was only fair to say that one of the other defendants was in even worse physical condition than Sir Rodmond. If the trial were to proceed, however, it should go on now, he said, since it was not likely that the health of the defendants would improve, especially with a trial pending.

R. A. Bonnar, for the crown, said he had taken the matter up with the attorney-general. He was convinced of the truth of the statements made by Mr. Andrews. A grave responsibility rested on the crown in the event of the trial proceeding and anything happening, and it had been decided to leave the matter to the judge.

Mr. Justice Prendergast reviewed the situation briefly, and said that if the crown desired to enter application for a nolle prosequi it would meet with his approval. Mr. Bonnar made the formal motion, which was granted. His Lordship said it was the first time the matter of no further prosecution had been mentioned to him, and he formally discharged the ex-ministers, who shook hands with their counsel and left the court room.

The ex-ministers were tried last summer, and after a hearing lasting several weeks the jury disagreed.

VENIZELOS HOLDS OUT HOPE GREECE WILL JOIN ALLIES

New Premier will Take Action as Soon as Parliament Meets-- Campaign of Education to be Launched

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, June 26. — A Times despatch says French troops yesterday entered Athens and occupied several points in the city. A Havas despatch says Venizelos arrived at Athens yesterday and will be received by King Alexander. A Times despatch says Venizelos, as soon as Parliament is convoked, will propose that Greece join the Allies, but before mobilizing will undertake a campaign of education. If successful in this, it is expected he will put Greece's entire strength on the Entente side in three months.

WIN BATTLE IN AIR.

LONDON, June 26.—Three British naval airplanes fought a battle with ten German machines over Flanders on Monday. The official account of the fight says that one, and probably three, of the Germans were driven down. The British airmen returned safely.

DEATH LIST.

Detailed official figures of the casualties in the air raid on London June 13th are:

THE CRISIS IN SPAIN.

PARIS, June 26.—A decree suspending the constitutional guarantee in Spain goes into effect today. It is assumed that the crisis in that country is not developing as favorably as hoped.

The official statement says: After a short bombardment last evening, our troops made a brilliant attack northwest of Hurtebise against a strongly organized position of the enemy. All objectives maintained.

FOR A BETTER PETERBOROUGH

Peterborough will be a better city to live in, both for ourselves and for our children, because of the work of the Y. M. C. A. among the boys.

Boys need training and kindly guidance, but it is necessary that the lessons be received unconsciously. Example counts for more than precept. It is also essential that they should have a thoroughly good time while they are being taught. In this work the Y. M. C. A. is supreme. To see the youngsters in the Boys' Department is a joy. They are not prevented from making a noise, as that is every boy's right. They have all the good, healthy fun they want, and at the same time are taught to be little gentlemen.

It is great work. You will be glad to help it along. $10.000 is needed for pressing needs. The canvassers will call on the citizens this week. Be prepared.

SUPPORT THE "Y."

GALLANT MEMBER OF FLYING CORPS INCAPACITATED BY ACCIDENT.

Captain Maurice Park, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion, and who joined the R.F.C., has been acting as one of the instructors in aerial gunnery to the 6th Wing since his serious aeroplane accident last December. Capt. Park is on his way home, having received instructions to report for similar duty in Canada, having been rendered unfit for active service. He is suffering from heart and nerve shock as a result of the accident.

DAILY COST OF WAR TO ENGLAND

AVERAGE IS MORE THAN THIRTY-TWO MILLION DOLLARS.

LONDON, June 26.—The total national expenditure for the nine weeks from October 8 to December 9 last was on a daily average of £6,615.000, says a statement in detail prepared by Andrew Bonar Law, the chancellor of the exchequer, for the house of commons.

For the five weeks from April 1 to May 5, 1917, the statement shows the daily average of expenditure was £7,971.000, while for the five weeks from May 6 to June 9 it was £7,582,000.

For the ten weeks from April 1 to June 9, the expenditure is shown to have averaged £7,752.000.

Por the respective periods set forth the actual war expenditure daily, the chancellor states, was £5,714,000, £7,457.000, £5.989,000 and £6,723,000.

CANADIANS NOW ESTABLISHED IN VILLAGE OF LA COULATTE

Enter Place With Little Resistance After Long Night's Vigil in Muddy Trenches While Artillery Prepared the Way for Advance.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, June 26. — Canadian troops entered the village of La Coulotte this morning. The Germans have withdrawn in this neighborhood from a line about one and three-quarter miles long. The retirement of the Germans ceased during the night. Patrols sent out on that part of the front opposite Mericourt and to the south found the front line of the enemy strongly held. The Germans used many flares throughout the night, and threw rifle grenades whenever our patrols were observed. In the vicinity of La Coulotte machine guns were in action all night. The night was wild and pitch dark. The torrential rain which fell was accompanied by a high wind, which held the advance towards the village until daylight.

CANADIANS ENTER VILLAGE.

All night our artillery was extremely active. The clash of guns along the front seemed like distant lightning. It was more like a storm than a thing of man's handiwork. Early this morning the men who had lain all night in the wet trenches were cheered by orders to advance. A barrage was laid up on La Coulotte, and closely following it the Canadians entered the village about seven in the morning, encountering little resistance. The Germans have made enormous craters at all cross roads in Avien and leading towards Lens. These craters did not exist forty-eight hours ago. About nine o'clock this morning the enemy's front and support lines south of La Coulotte were occupied, indicating that the Germans have relied upon their strongly wired positions in front of Mericourt.

MINING CENTRE IS ENCIRCLED

(By Associated Press)

British Headquarters in France, June 26.—The British are closing in upon Lens. After the capture Sunday of the enemy trenches west from the hill and from lines immediately south of Souchez River several new positions have been occupied in this region. Nearer Lens patrols are advancing across the plains in an easterly direction. This great mining centre is being slowly encircled. For weeks Lens has not been exploited economically by the Germans and now it is directly menaced by the military

MINERS AT COBALT DECLARE FOR STRIKE

COBALT, June 26. The result of the miners' vote on the strike question was announced by James Simpso from the grand stand at the public square, as follows:—In favor of a strike, 1,121; against, 105. The total vote was 1,226. What further actio will be taken now rests with the executive commitee.

TWO FAVOR REFERENDUM TWO ARE FOR COALITION

Pugsley and German Stand by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Amendment---Hon. Albert Sevigny Will Support Bill.

OTTAWA, June 26.—The debate on the Conscription bill made slow progress Monday, only four speeches being delivered, and the house adjourning at half-past ten. Two of the speeches favoring conscription were delivered by ministers of the crown, and two urging a referendum were delivered by English-speaking Liberals. A desire for a coalition or a national government was expressed by Sir Edward Kemp, W. M. German (Welland), and Hon. Wm. H. Pugsley.

The debate was resumed by Sir Edward Kemp, who spoke of the necessity for reinforcements and of the defects of the voluntary system. [illegible] defect, he said, of the voluntary system, was the choice it gave the soldier to select the arm of the service in which he wished to enlist, and the result in Canada had been that we could not raise enough infantry, while recruits for the artillery have exceeded the number required. He was followed by Mr. German (Liberal member for Welland), who declared that he would vote for the Laurier amendment which calls for a referendum, but if that were defeated he would vote for the bill. He prophesied a general election, which, he said in bitterness would rival the P.P.A. campaign against Sir Oliver Mowat in 1894.

Sevigny Is Firm

The feature of the day was the outspoken support of conscription by Hon. Albert Sevigny, Minister of Inland Revenue. Mr. Sevigny said he had accepted office under Sir Robert Borden after the latter had refused to give any pledge that he would not resort to conscription if necessary to win the war. His victory in the Dorchester by-election, Mr. Sevigny said, had followed the announcement of the prime minister.

The fourth and last speech of the day was delivered by Hon. Wm. Pugsley, who not only favored the referendum, but announced that he would vote against the bill.

Says While Private Institutions Revel in Banquets and Exemption, People in Back Streets Must Not be Deprived of Amusement.

Please put me down for fifty dollars towards a fund to make up the grant in full to the Bands. It may look like cheap politics but I cannot see private institutions revel in banquets and exemptions while the people on the back streets are deprived of their only source of entertainment.

The above despatch was received by The Review this morning from Capt. Burnham at Ottawa. As usual the member for West Peterborough comes to the rescue of the masses not with empty talk but with aid that really counts. If there are two more residents of the city who are of the same genuine public spirit, the present unfortunate situation can be cleared up and the services of one of the best bands in Canada will be assured the citizens who count upon the weekly concerts in the park as one of the features of their existence throughout the summer.

The 57th Regiment Band will probably consent to remain in business so far as the weekly concerts are concerned if they receive adequate financial assistance. The members of the organization are naturally averse to working for nothing and no one will blame them for taking such a stand. On the other hand the Salvation band, too, is a civic asset and has always been free with its services. It has asked for a grant from the city but has offered to turn over any money so received to some patriotic fund.

The aldermen who voted and who are likely to vote when the matter comes up again for an equal division between the two bands of the $600 appropriated for the purpose probably believed that this was only a question of simple justice when the public services of the two organizations are taken into account. There is no ground for the assertion made in a communication to the papers the other day to the effect that those who favored a 50-50 division of the appropriation were angling for the votes of a certain faction. If there are citizens in favor of such action there are others beyond question opposed to it.

If two or three citizens would follow the example set by Capt. Burnham, the situation would be smoothed out. Any private citizen has the privilege of placing his money where his inclinations lead him. The aldermen who are entrusted with the disbursement of public funds should play no favorites.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, JUNE 26, 1917

MORE PAY FOR PRIVATES.

THE MEMBERS of the City Council in Toronto have decided to ask the Government to double the pay of the privates and non-commissioned officers in the service, holding that the present rate of pay is entirely inadequate. They also ask that the pay of commissioned officers on actual service be revised.

The wealth of the country could be conscripted for the very purpose the Toronto aldermen have in view and to provide a fund for pensioning the soldiers when the war is over or the days of the soldiers' active service are ended. When the pay of a private was set at $1.10 a day the compensation was, and is, the most liberal allowed in any branch of the Allied armies, especially when the separation allowance was taken into account. Since that time the purchasing power of the dollar has fallen off nearly one-half. Many a dependent of the soldiers finds it hard to make ends meet from the income derived from assigned pay and the allowance from the Government and the Patriotic Fund.

There has for some time been a general demand for more pay for soldiers. The Toronto Council is the first organisation to put that demand in definite shape. If the country is overflowing with money, as some of our financial experts appear to believe, there should be no difficulty in providing at least a fair compensation for those who are making so many sacrifices to save the nation.

THE BANK OF COMMERCE.

THE BANK OF COMMERCE has just issued its usual comprehensive monthly statement, which contains information of value to the Canadian public. The crop outlook is cheering, and not only are the prospects promising for an abundant yield of grain, but for roots and fruits as well.

The farmers of the West are in a better position than ever. They have had two years of good crops and high prices, and this has enabled them not only to settle their liabilities, but to invest heavily in improved agricultural machinery, the use of which will enable them to put more land under cultivation than ever before, in spite of the scarcity of labor. There is no sign of a revival in real estate speculation, but railway and land companies report more sales during the past two months than have taken place in the same length of time for many years. This means more production than ever in the immediate future.

Labor conditions are still serious. There have been labor troubles which have tended to lessen the volume of export of manufactured goods, and in the month of April the value of exports was less than that of the imports by twenty-one million dollars, the first unfavorable balance since February, 1915.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

IT SEEMS HARD for th leading newspapers of the United States to understand the situation at Ottawa, why men should play a game of party politics in a time of danger, why politicians should attempt to hamstring a Government that is doing its utmost to save the reputation of the country and at the same time lend a helping hand to the Canadian heroes who are bleeding in Flanders. Here at home we have become so accustomed to such exhibitions that they fail to impress us as they do impartial outsiders. Right at home we have the spectacle of a newspaper so wedded to its idols that it has been forced to take refuge in a tree. It can talk glibly in favor of the conscription of wealth, a perfectly safe course, as both parties are agreed on that issue, but all so much wasted space, while it neither condemns nor supports the stand taken by the Opposition leader with reference to a referendum.

The Detroit Journal is near enough to the situation to watch it closely, and sufficiently far away to discuss it without either personal or political bias. Here is what that newspaper says editorially of the scheming politicians in Canada's Parliament:

WHEN THE TROOPS RETURN.

"Premier Borden's memorable plea for Canadian conscription thundered in a climax of patriotic power when he exclaimed:

> "'God speed the day when the gallant men who are protecting and defending us will return to the land they love so well!
> "'If we do not pass this measure, if we do not provide reinforcements, if we do not keep our plighted faith, with what countenace shall we meet them?
> "'If what are left of 400,000 such men come back to Canada with fierce resentment and even rage in their hearts, conscious that they have been deserted and betrayed, how shall we face them when they ask the reason?'

"The Premier spoke to a nation that has been watching and worrying over the slackers, and the members of Parliament who are not ashamed to line up with the slackers. He tellingly turned the people's gaze away from these little souls toward the men in the scorched trenches.

"And by the same token he turns the gaze of those men in the trenches toward the politicians at Ottawa. Those anti-conscription time-servers, bargaining for votes at the expense of the Empire and civilization, are now watched by eyes that have been strained along the German battle line.

"Those eyes have seen comrades drop writhing under the lung-scorching poison of gas. They have seen their comrades take Vimy Ridge, first covering it with corpses and blood. They have seen their friends and brothers laid away in the field cemetery within the Ypres salient—and they now see where the members of Parliament stand.

"It will not be forever before those boys stand in Berlin or wherever Fate decides the German chieftains shall yield their swords. And it will be a short, swift journey from Berlin back to Ontario. In those days the boys who have reckoned with Von Hindenburg will reckon with those who would strengthen Von Hindenburg by weakening the Canadian force.

"Poor little politicians, trading Canada's glory for a few slacker votes! Playing a cheap ward game of politics when civilisation is at stake! How much afraid of retirement they are now—but how eagerly they will rush into hiding, into oblivion, when the Khaki Majority comes home!"

WHAT LABOR STANDS FOR.

IN THE ELECTION TODAY in Saskatchewan there is one Labor candidate, A. M. Eddy, who represents the party that has recently been organised in the Dominion by the union workmen. His platform is the same as that which has been discussed by the advocates of an independent labor party in this city. One newspaper, the Saskatoon Star, an independent Conservative organ, endorses the Labor candidate and says that his platform comes closer to meeting the wishes of the majority of the people than either of the platforms issued by the regular politcal parties.

The platform of the Labor party deals extensively with that most important of all subjects — taxation. They want a direct tax on improved land values, a sharply graduated income tax on all incomes over $2000 a year, a graduated inheritance tax on estates, and a graduated income tax on the profits of corporations. Where such taxes are now imposed, the new platform calls for a revision of rates.

First Things First.

(Winnipeg Post.)

It may be necessary to confiscate wealth. It may yet be necessary for the Government to seize every dollar's worth of private property in the Dominion. No man can tell whether it will be necessary or not. If it should become necessary, it will assuredly be done. But what is needed now, and most pressingly needed, is a vast increase in the number of fighting men. There is as yet no dangerous shortage of money. There is at the present moment a dangerous shortage of men. The more pressing need must be supplied first. If the need for money should later become necessary, there is no practical limit at which the Government will stop until exhaustion calls a halt.

"Conscription of Wealth."

(Ottawa Journal-Press)

J. C. Watters demands that in Canada wealth and railways and banks and all the rest shall be conscripted prior to conscription of man-power. What a titbit for the Germans! Conscript wealth to begin with so that the Germans could get hold of all the wealth without trouble from the man-power! J. C.'s brain is a daisy. But he's just an average Socialist. Socialist brains are mostly like that. They think the world owes them a good living, and they don't know how to get it except by getting somebody to help them grab what other people have earned. The world does owe everybody a living, but, as Uncle Eben remarked, every man ought to do his own collecting.

EVERY DOLLAR MEANS A BULLET

Dollars means bullets The man at the front must be munitioned. A turning point of the war was reached when Britain created its Munitions Ministry. Mr. Lloyd George had been Chancellor of the Exchequer. He knew the need of shells and the He was made Minister of Munitions. need of money to make shells. He had the vision of the battlefield and practical experience of finance. He knew that the money and shells were inseparable. The Imperial Munitions Board of Canada is doing a colossal service in the output of shells. Canadians in France and Flanders have won the admiration of the world. The Dominion needs money to fnance its war undertakings. Government War Savings Certificates can be secured at the nearest Money Order Post Office or Bank. They are issued for three years in amounts of $25, $50 and $100. They pay interest equal to 5.2 per cent compounded each year. A Formula Simple and Sufficient

(New York Sun)

Cardinal O'Connell's counsels addressed to an audience gathered in Boston to support the Ninth Massachusetts Regiment are applicable to every American in every State of the Union. Among other sensible and wise things the Cardinal said:

"The air is rent with a thousand strident voices shouting hysterically a thousand different principles.

"Let us have done once for all with these bewildering orations; the one thing now necessary and the only thing that will stand firmly through all the varying vicissitudes now before us will be this principle— our country is at war and we are bound before God to render it our fullest service."

Nowhere have the futility of meaningless words and the plain duty of every loyal citizen been more convincingly and simply set forth than in these sentences. They expose the plain obligation that rests on the nation and its people in a manner that will relieve the doubts of those who have been confused by "hysterical shoutings" and "bewildering orations." and they make clear the course that will be followed, through good days and evil days, by every man and woman who is untainted by treason and anxious only to keep his conscience clear.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Who Paid The Bills?

Editor Review:

Some over-bashful soul of the gentler sex has written me to ask if I would mind saying who paid the expenses of the parliamentary party of military men to France. I do not mind doing so and since the dear lady does not give me her address I must do so through your paper if you will allow me, Mr. Editor.

The parliamentary party to which she refers consisted of five colonels in command of Canadian troops in England and anxious to see how best to train properly for the front, of Col. Treadwell, the representative of the U. S. Army, and myself. This inspection tour did not cost Canada one cent. We Canadians quite unnecessarily paid our own expenses. The ten days cost me one hundred dollars. What little there was that was not paid for by us was furnished by Great Britain, not by Canada for whose benefit, however, we were working in an endeavor to see, learn and report.

It is useless to talk of or complain or criticise such matters, in fact lament without knowing at first hand about them. Nor can Canadians learn about the situation at the front except from those who take in the whole situation, fighting line, relief line, battalion headquarters, hospitals, casualty centres, convalescent relief stations, transport, import entry depots, equipment, training camps, This is the only way it can be properhints on future training, etc., etc. ly done.

I might also add that I paid my own fare on the steamship from London to Halifax when I returned. So far from the war being a picnic for any of us I am like many others in the service and elsewhere a long way "out." Very few have gone into the war at home or abroad except for patriotic purposes and I should be very sorry to think that they were suspected of doing so.

Sometimes people grumble to hide their own disappointment at being too old to go or otherwise handicapped and it is quite excusable for them to do so under the circumstances. However, the soldiers know. They know all about it and anybody who wishes to criticise had better ask the men of the battalion first.

If this letter does not enlighten my fair correspondent sufficiently I can show her where the money has all gone and I think she would be quite ready to agree that the officers of the 93rd were not such a bad lot after all.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

From The Review of June 26, 1900:

Mr. Michael O'Brien on resigning his position on the teaching staff of the Collegiate to become Provincial Inspector of Public Schools, was presented with a handsome travelling bag by his fellow teachers.

Potatoes were selling for 50 cents a bag.

Wit and Wisdom

A Miller of Punctuation.

"Old hats made new while you wait for a quarter," was the advertisement of a repairer of gentlemen's headgear.

The tradesman was greatly surprised when one of his patrons, on receiving a hat which had been "made new," said:

"I am in rather a hurry, so if you don't mind I will take the quarter now."

An explanation followed and the advertisement was properly punctuated before it appeared again in the window.

The Wooing Bar.

"I say, miss, where's the bar?"

"What kind of a bar?" queried the waitress in return, and as icily as she could.

"Why! A liquor bar, of course!" he drawled. "What sort of a bar did you suppose I meant?"

"Well," she said, and her eyebrows arched slightly. "I didn't know, but I thought perhaps you might mean a bar of soap."

His Effort.

A country hotel proprietor, glancing out of a rear window, saw his new waiter chasing a chicken about the yard.

"What have you in the bowl?" demanded the hotel man, referring to a utensile he was hugging.

"Mushrooms," responded the new waiter. "There's a gentleman that wants chicken smothered with mushrooms and I'm trying to smother him, sir!"

The Letter of the Law.

The new doorkeeper at the museum turnstile had learned a book of rules by heart before taking over the job.

"Here, sir, you must leave your umbrella at the door," he said to a visitor who had failed to hand over that article.

"Then go back and get one," said the keeper. "No one is allowed to pass in here unless he leaves his umbrella at the door."

On the Free List.

Things looked black for the dramatist. For the fourth time in one season a play had been withdrawn after a week's run.

"Cheer up, old man," said a consoling friend. "Perhaps posterity will recognize the genius displayed in your plays."

"Maybe," said the dramatist, bitterly, "but the difficulty is that, so far as I am concerned, posterity is on the free list."

Ending of the too modern novel: "So they were divorced and lived happily ever afterward.'

"Now, Mr. Jones," said the attorney for the corporation to the aggrieved party, who occupied the witness stand, "will you kindly tell the court whether or not your mule was on the track, the property of the defendant, when hit by the train?"

"Well, sir," replied Mr. Jones, "I didn't witness the occurrence, but I suppose things must have been about as you say. This was a pretty bright mule and I reckon if that train had took out after him in the woods which fringe the track there where he was killed he would have got behind a tree."

The Ontario Government has acted wisely in appointing two returned soldiers to be superintendent and foreman of the Industrial Farm at Thornhill. Enemies of Tea

If tea is left open near oranges, soap, spices, matches, etc., the tea will take on the flavor of any of these articles.

In fact, tea absorbs odors as readily as does butter. This is because of the high temperature at which it is "fired" during the drying process, which makes the tea very sensitive. It thus quickly loses flavor and strength, and goes "flat" if left exposed to odors, dust or air.

To Protect the Consumer

When you buy a package of Red Rose Tea at your grocer's you get the benefit of the great care we take to protect the consumer, as the sealed package is an armor that keeps out odors, dust and air. It keeps the tea pure, clean, fresh and full strength.

The price printed on the package protects you against overcharge. It is the lowest price for which a tea of Red Rose quality can be sold—a price which allows the grocer only a fair profit.

You will enjoy the distinctive flavor, rich strength and splendid economy of Red Rose Tea. TRY A PACKAGE.

Australia Will Assist All Imperial Soldiers Who Will Take Up Farms

THE energy with which Australia is grappling with the problem of re-establishing the returned soldier in civil life, at the end of the war, or as soon as he is discharged, is characteristic of that part of the Empire. The board of trustees of the Australian Repatriation Fund has now been in existence for some time, and has already done excellent work; whilst, from reports made from time to time, it is clear that the whole movement is being gradually so molded as to give it a truly national character. All the States are coming into line. At a recent conference held at Melbourne, which was attended by the Federal Prime Minister, the Federal Treasurer, the State Premiers, the ministers for lands, and the representatives of the Repatriation Fund, it was resolved that, with the exception of land settlement, the entire question of the re-establishment of discharged sailors and soldiers, and the care of dependents of sailors and soldiers, should be made the concern of the Commonwealth authorities.

The most recent statements on the matter show that the work of this authority is to be most comprehensive, and it is specially welcome to find, in the forefront of the obligations which it places upon itself, the task of securing the "immediate amelioration of necessities" of the returned soldier. In an organization so vast as the Australian repatriation scheme a certain routine, often involving consideraable delay, is almost inevitable, and this is especially the case in any scheme in which land is involved. The way of the land is, indeed, in this respect, in a class by itself. It is essentially slow-moving. Before the returned soldier can be transformed into a successful farmer, supporting himself, a considerable time must elapse, and it is for this reason that those who understand the situation regard with special satisfaction the evident intention of the authorities to take the returned soldier in hand, if he so desires, from the moment he lands.

One aspect of the land question is particularly interesting, and is clearly deserving of much more attention than has hitherto been given to it, and that is the expressed intention of the Commonwealth to throw open the land settlement scheme to every British, as well as Australian, soldier and sailor who has fought in the present war. In view of the liberal way in which the Commonwealth is prepared to deal with the matter, the effect of such a policy on emigration from the United Kingdom, after the war, may be very far-reaching. The project, indeed, raises possibilities which call for early and careful consideration.

Sergeant Duncan MacNeil, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, writing from Europe (his home address is 116 Pleasant St., Halifax, N.S.) says: "For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of dyspepsia, often being in bed for days at a time. When the war broke out I joined the Expeditionary Force and came to England. I had not been long there, however, when my old trouble returned and I had to go to hospital. While in hospital a friend told me of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I decided to try them. The first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued the treatment. To make a long story short, a complete cure was effected."

"How, it may be asked, can the President borrow $7,000,000,000 when there is not that much money in the entire country? The answer is that it will not all be borrowed at one time in one lump sum. Portions of it will be borrowed at different times; and soon after one portion has been borrowed it will be spent, and those who receive it can lend it again. This can be made clear by an illustration: Mr. Smith, a shoe merchant, has $500, which he wishes to lend to Uncle Sam. He gives the Government the cash in the form of a five-hundred-dollar bill, and receives in return a bond (a promissory note) for $500. Shortly after this transaction Uncle Sam buys from Mr. Smith five hundred dollars' worth of shoes for the soldiers and pays for them, let us say, with the identical five-hundred-dollar bill which he borrowed from Mr. Smith. Now, if Uncle Sam is still borrowing money, Mr. Smith, if he desires to do so, can lend his five-hundred-dollar bill to the Government a second time, and receive in exchange a second bond for $500. Thus, our five-hundred-dollar bill has served as the means of borrowing $1,000. Of course, by repeating the transaction often enough, the five-hundred-dollar bill could be used for borrowing many thousands of dollars."—S. E. Farman in the June St. Nicholas.

IN ENGLAND'S FORESTS

LUMBERMEN FROM CANADA ARE DOING THEIR "BIT."

Toronto Writer Visits Camps and Finds Scenes in Historic English Forests That Are Reminiscent of Pioneer Life in Northern Ontario.

A COUNTRY clubhouse forsooth! The fireplace and mantel of white brick and the comfortable furniture suggest it, as do the little windows through whose yellow silk curtains the spring sunlight filters in. Outside stretches a vast expanse of withered grass dotted with trees. Well might it be a golf headquarters near Toronto. Then the visitor glances at the roof and rafters of unpainted lumber odorous of resin, fresh from the woods. How "lumber campy" that smell! And just that is this habitation—nothing more nor less than a boss logger's shanty, set down, of all places, in the midst of royal Windsor Park.

Those mighty oaks among which the road winds stood there when Bluff King Hal hunted the deer in the long ago. Indeed, several of those ancient beeches, twisted and distorted by age into weird witches of trees, were lusty saplings when England's chivalry was faring forth on the Crusades.

What scenes those trees have witnessed, of archers and cross-bowmen and of merry huntsmen riding through the glades! And now — a khakied host has appeared to fell the timber, an army of axemen, sawyers, saw-filers, and timber-cruisers, no river-drivers being needed for the lordly Thames, which shows darkly through its wooded banks beneath the white minaret which commemorates tragic Culloden.

"Ah, Culloden!" exclaimed a stalwart man from Glengarry, a veteran of the Ottawa Valley, through whose veins courses Highland blood. "Yes there's the monument erected by Cumberland glorying in his defeat of the clans. And here we are, the descendants of those Highlanders, getting even with the mean old scoundrel by chopping down the trees he and his folks planted."

But fear not that these historic woods are being destroyed. Not against the boles of mighty oak and massive beech are the axes of the Canadians swinging. Hardly a forest monarch has been touched. Windsor Park is a huge place. Far away from the hardwood stands the green bush. Prior to visiting the scenes of these operations, your correspondent met the "head-push" of the Canadian Forestry Battalions here—to wit, genial Colonel Charlie Macdougall, of the firm of Latchford, Macdougall, and Daly, late of Ottawa, lawyer, lumberman—and soldier.

Far from the slab-pile and the hum of the buzz saw, up in noisy Victoria street of this old town, Col. Macdougall has his office. Many charts adorn the walls—charts drawn to fine scale, showing all the camps in Great Britain, right from Devonshire to the bleak north of Scotland, wherever there is a patch of timber. These charts chronicle the contents of each bush, the capacity of every camp, and the output to a "T"—kept right up to date in regard to planks for the trenches, railway ties for the lines the British engineers are rushing up in pursuit of the Germans, mine props, etc., etc.

But back again to the country club-lumber-shanty, where Lieut.-Colonel S. L. Penharwood, of the "Soo," presides as first in command, with Lieut.-Col. de Salaberry, grandson of the hero of Chateuguay, Major Swinburn, second in command; Captain Augar, of Calgary, quartermaster, and Major McNeil, Ottawa; to assist in looking after the peavies and axes and, incidentally, several thousand men. Here, close to headquarters whose walls are clothed rustic-fashion, with the bark left on, are many comfortable huts for the men. Baths and kitchens with concrete floors are near completion. Princess Victoria has just written saying she would like to open the new Y. M. C. A. adjunct to the canteen where English ladies work.

The boys like Windsor Park. I didn't see a discontented-looking man among hundreds. And be it said in repudiation of some of the unjust aspersions cast upon Canadians, that a certain royalty who has long lived near them, and should know, declared that he considered them as well-behaved a lot of chaps as ever wore khaki. A fine band, among whose musicians is an Indian — there are a number of Indians in the Foresters — fills the air with "The Maple Leaf" and other stirring melodies.

Passing a statue of the late Prince Consort placed in an out-of-the-way spot in the park, passing three Canadian boys practising bugle calls in a neck-o'-the-woods where only the deer and pheasants would be annoyed, passing the deep black depths of Virginia Water, that famous artificial trout pond made by George IV., and out of which Canadian Isaac Waltons would mightily enjoy to pull some fish, the visitor is suddenly confronted with a scene which might well have dropped out of Northern Ontario. A real live saw-mill stands there in a waste of slabs and sawdust, while Canadian lads in cowboy hats, overalls, and sweaters drive Canadian waggons about. The screech of the saws, the thump of the lumber gliding down from the mill, the black cloud from the iron chimney, and the blue-white smoke of burning brush-piles hard by—how like home!

HIS HEART BADLY AFFECTED

"Fruit-a-tives" Soon Relieved This Dangerous Condition

"Why!" exclaimed one sightseer to a friend, "I saw one of those Canadians poke a little stick under a log and roll it along for about twelve feet. They're a wonder, them chaps."

Stacks of birch logs lie piled alongside the road near here. Presently they will be charcoal in the filters of our soldiers' smoke helmets. And quite close to this first camp they were felling sixty-year-old Scotch pines. These trees run to about 24 inches at the base, and there isn't a rotten spot in them—clear right to the roots, and very little gum. Attired in a tail-coat of black velveteen, one of the Royal Park keepers was measuring up logs, assisted by a Canadian soldier.

Lord Derby, Secretary for War, owns an estate here which is to be cut over. The late Lord Roberts also held property close to the King's. In fact, though there is much cutting on the King's estate, this particular patch of pine we saw was not on the Royal demesne. But king, peer, or commoner, a careful tally of the stumpage is kept for future payment.

"Foghorn" Macdonald lives near here, bosses a big gang just outside the lodge gates of the Duke of Connaught on the latter's estate of Bagshot. Everyone in the Canadian army knows this Major Macdonald, of the trumpet voice. He did his bit as a private with the Pats, got his commission, and was sent here because "Foghorn" knows the lumber game from the roots up. His is the camp of instruction for the whole British Isles. Officers come over from headquarters, stay a couple of weeks, and pick up much useful information from their energetic preceptor. The Duke frequently drops in to see the lumbermen, not forgetful of the fact that Canada's historic lumber town was his home for five years.

Firewood is a precious thing in England. In times of peace the felling of a tree in my lord's park is a weighty matter. The right to gather faggots in such woods is, too, a great privilege. But now, thanks to the war, all the old housewives may have their fill for the asking.

Lumbermen of all ages are represented in the camps here. Grizzled veterans who have been packing their turkeys into the bush every fall for forty years stand shoulder to shoulder with husky youths who have just done their first river drive. They are a sturdy, soldierly-looking crowd as they stand there being inspected. So far we have nearly 7,000 men in the forestry battalions here and in France. But more are needed, and more will respond when they hear from their chums what a good job it is.—Douglas Robertson in The Toronto Telegram.

Our Trade Increased.

There appears to be ample evidence to justify the statement that the Canada-West Indies trade agreement which was entered into in 1912 has been the means of increasing the trade between the two countries to a considerable degree. The latest report of the Trade and Commerce Department, just issued, shows that the effect of the treaty is especially noticeable in the imports of certain articles of Canadian produce into the islands that are parties to the agreement. The latest West Indies figures available are those of 1915, and they show that from 1912 to 1915 the imports from Canada to the Barbadoes, British Guiana, and Trinidad, the three largest colonies involved, have been increased 85 per cent., while the imports from the United States during the same period have been only 6 per cent. The preference has greatly benefitted the trade with Canada in articles such as boots and shoes, butter, cheese, condensed milk, cordage, fish, flour, lumber, oats, paints and colors, paper, potatoes, and soap. The four products which have been particularly affected by the treaty have been fish, flour, oats, and lumber. In these products there has been a remarkable transference of trade from the United States to Canada. From 1912 to 1915 the exports of fish from Canada to the West Indies increased 52 per cent. while the American export of the same articles decreased 36 per cent. The increase in Canadian flour exports has been no less than 195 per cent., while the American exports decreased 64 per cent. The Canadian export of oats increased 52 per cent., the American decreased 53 per cent. In lumber there was an increase in Canadian exports of 26 per cent. and a decrease in American exports of 66 per cent.

Purses and Pocket-Books.

An interesting study is to note the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman usually carries silver and copper all loose in his trousers' pocket, pulls out a handful of the mixture, and selects the coin he needs. The American carries his wad of bills in a long narrow pocket-book, in which the greenbacks lie flat. The Frenchman makes use of a leather purse, with no distinguishing characteristics. The German uses one gaily-embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Gretchen. The half-civilised capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly-devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with very light fingers. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gaily-colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secrets in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower-class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding-place for his savings.

THE FUEL SITUATION

Present Difficulties Attributed to a Number of Causes—An Important Statement

THE following statement is sent out by Mr. A. D. MacTier, General Manager of the C. P. R.:

It is realized in most quarters, some more than others, that this country is face to face with a coal shortage of very alarming proportions, and that by next winter, if conditions under which fuel may be obtained do not alter in the meantime, a great many industrial concerns and householders will be unable to supply themselves with sufficient coal to carry them through the severe weather.

The present and prospective difficulties in the way of bringing coal into Eastern Canada may be attributed to a number of causes, principal amongst which are dearth of mining labor and shortage of coal carrying equipment at the mines. The situation in some of the mining territories at the present time, is that, even with the labor shortage, mine operators are able to turn out coal at a greater rate than they can obtain cars to carry it away. It, therefore, naturally follows, that more coal can be brought into Canada if the car supply is increased.

Unfortunately, it is out of the question to obtain any number of new cars at this time, and the situation can be met only by obtaining more service from the present rolling stock. To do this cars must be moved promptly between the mines and destination, and must be unloaded as soon as they reach consignees.

Railways must have coal in order to discharge their obligations to the country, and for their own preservation as well as for the benefit of their patrons, they are putting forth their utmost efforts to minimize delay to cars while en route to and from the mines.

All efforts in this direction, however, will be of little avail without the whole-hearted co-operation of the man who unloads the coal and releases the car after it gets to its destination. Some consignees, who thoroughly appreciate the situation, have almost a hundred per cent. record in the prompt unloading of coal cars, but there are others who are helping to create the prospective shortage of coal by keeping the equipment out of active service. To-day there are in one town of comparatively small size fifty-two coal cars awaiting unloading. The arrival of these cars was spread over a period of thirty-one days, an average of cars received per day of 1.68. They are consigned to three organizations who have the facilities for unloading a large number of cars each day. These fifty-two cars have been out of service a total of 1029 car days. Coal cars that are not held for storage purposes as these cars are, average at least fifty miles per car per day. Had the fifty-two cars been unloaded promptly they would have, by this time, travelled 51,450 miles. The distance from the point where they are now located to the coal mining territory is approximately four hundred miles. It follows, therefore, that had the fifty-two cars been in active service they would have been available to bring into the country sixty-four carloads, or about thirty-two hundred tons, of coal. The quantity is not very large, it is true, when the total demand is considered, but it would have kept over three hundred families warm for the winter or heated the boilers in an industrial plant for some little time.

Unfortunately, the case cited is not the only one of its kind. It is one of the worst at present, but there are hundreds of cars at this moment that are lying idle, waiting to be relieved of their loads, so that they may go back to the mines for more coal. The coal dealer and consignee can do the country an immense service by promptly releasing rolling stock and helping to reduce car shortage at the mines.

There is also the man who has always called for open top cars for the handling of his goods because the loading and unloading with that class of equipment is more economical than in using closed cars. When he insists on being supplied with cars that should be in the coal business he is helping to create a coal shortage by keeping cars away from the mines. No doubt he is a heavy coal consumer. As a business proposition would it not be more economical for him if he used closed cars now and enabled the railways to transport more coal into the country so that he would not be in danger of having to close down his plant altogether later on account of being unable to obtain fuel?

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company, for itself, and on behalf of other railway companies, most earnestly calls upon its patrons and employees to do their utmost to fight off the impeding shortage of fuel by keeping coal cars continuously in the proper service, which is the transporting of coal.

MADE-IN-CANADA STAMP.

Important Suggestion Has Been Made by Australian.

Germany's trade penetration policy received its greatest impetus by virtue of the big advertising scheme whereby the "Made-in-Germany" slogan was printed on practically every article, large and small, that left that Empire. The potentialities of this system are now readily realized by Canadian manufacturers, though the idea has not been very largely adopted.

The idea of inaugurating a "Made-in-Canada" stamp system is revived in the Weekly Bulletin of the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa. Mr. D. H. Ross, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Melbourne, Australia, forwarded to Ottawa a suggestion made by a leading Australian lumber dealer, which reads in part as follows:

"The time has now come when each part of the Empire must and should do its best to help the other, and there is no better way of making a success of this than by trading. I am not a believer in a preference tariff, but do believe in preference to our own race, and if my suggestions were carried out I see no reason why the greater part of the Oregon (and, I might add, other lines) should not come from Canada.

"In the past you have not had a fair share of our trade. It would be as well to take a few figures based on the year before the war (1913). We are safe in basing it on the size 12 by 6 and its equivalent and over. We find imports of Oregon or Douglas pine into the Commonwealth were:

Canada	3,890,000
United States	123,145,000

"These figures should be reversed, or at all times altered materially, say, two-thirds from Canada and one-third from the United States.

"Keep this well before you: Whilst the war is on trade is brisk and men are in constant work, whether at their own special trade or at something else. When the war is over no one knows what will take place, and it is for us all to try to make work within our own Empire. My suggestion is this: that all timber coming from Canada should be branded at each end with the word 'Canada.'

"A well-organized campaign is necessary. Also keep this well before you: The timber merchant does not count; it is the architect and the general public. The architects specify fully 80 per cent. of the Oregon used, and if in their specifications Canadian Oregon or Douglas pine is mentioned the trade must stock it or lose the business. If the Institute of Architects decide upon this course, then the trade must follow. It is no use the trade trying to supply American, as the clerk of works will only send it back; besides this, it will be necessary to have some inspector going round the yards to see that they hold stocks of Canadian.

"Besides the brand 'Canada,' there should also be a mill brand, for this reason: It makes keen rivalry amongst the mills, and leads to better average shipments. All the Baltic mills brand the whole of their output. It has been made a success of here, then why should it not be with your Oregon? It goes without saying that the railways and the Public Works Department, both large consumers, would always specify Canadian Oregon."

While the above suggestion is confined to the Canadian lumber trade, the authorities also offer the suggestion that it could be adopted by all Canadian industries for advertising purposes.

Some Latest "Howlers."

Below is a selection of "howlers" from a recent issue of the "University Correspondent," which journal offers each year a prize for the best collection of schoolboys' mistakes—

Walter Scott was imprisoned in the Tower because he could not pay his debts; while there he wrote the Waverley Novels, but he was afterwards burned alive; he also brought tobacco from Virginia, so called after his beloved mistress Queen Elizabeth.

James the First claimed the throne of England through his grandmother, because he had no father.

Joan of Arc lived in the French Revolution, and one day she fell into the arms of the English and got burned.

Poetry is a thing you make prose out of.

About Seals.

That the seal is a typical marine animal is well known. Hence the occurrence of a species of phoca in Lake Baikal, Southern Siberia, which is of fresh water and has no connection with the sea, is of special interest. Recently Doctor Charles Hose has obtained skins and skulls of two specimens of the Baikal seal which have been offered to the Museum of Natural History, where the species has not hitherto been represented. It is the only seal which habitually lives in fresh water, though the common seal will often resort to estuaries, and even ascend rivers as one did some time ago in the Trent, as far up as Hazelford, where it was shot. The Vikare seal again, common in the Arctic regions and also found in the north of the Baltic, occurs in lakes Ladoga and Onego. It is able, however, to reach these from the Baltic by means of the rivers Neva and Svir.

An Industrial Census.

The Government has decided to take an industrial census of Canada this fall. A postal census of manufacturers for the year 1916 was taken last year, forms being mailed to over 50,000 names. This census showed that the total product of manufacturers in 1915 was $1,392,516,953, compared with $718,352,603 in 1905. The industrial census that will be taken will, of course, be much more thorough and elaborate. At present an industrial census is taken at the same time as the census of population, etc., is tabulated. This has proved in the past unsatisfactory and incomplete. The chief reason is that the census enumerators have too much work and too many forms to fill out and are not men specially trained for taking an industrial census. It has therefore been decided to divide the census work. The regular census of population, origins of the people, etc., along with the agricultural census, will take place as in the past, every ten years, the next census being due in 1921. The industrial census will be taken by special enumerators mid-way of the ordinary census, but also every ten years. This will have the advantage of not throwing all the work of a decade on the branch at one time. In addition to the decennial industrial census there will likely also be an annual postal census so as to keep the figures reasonably up-to-date.

The Women's Patriotic Society of Ashburnham at their last monthly busines meeting, June 6th voted to give $100.00 to the Prisoners of War Fund, also $100.00 to the Field Comforts Commission, and increase their regular donation to the four prisoners of war whom they have adopted from $5 a month each to $12 a month each.

They also shipped through the Red Cross Society twenty-four pair of pyjamas, eighteen bed jackets, forty-six pairs of socks for the month of May.

The total monthly collections for May amounted to $43.

One cent a day collections amounted to $45.27.

The society will hold their annual monthly business meeting in the work room, Wednesday, July 4th. Will every woman in Ashburnham who is at all interested in this society make a special effort to attend this meeting, as there are matters of importance to discuss.

AUTOISTS ARE WARNED

No Infractions Of Traffic Bylaws Will Be Tolerated

Police Magistrate Dumble issued a warning to the auto speeders and other offenders against the traffic by-laws that he has given instructions to the police to stop speeding within the limits of the city. To the offenders the highest penalty that it is possble for the court to impose will be meted out as a warning to the car owners that the safety of the public will be protected.

Auto owners have disregarded the rule about stopping when a street car is discharging or taking on passengers, and on Aylmer, Park and Charlotte streets many complaints have been received of reckless driving.

This warning is given to the drivers of motor cars at the request of the magistrate, so that there will be no excuse in case a heavy penalty is given to the next offender.

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET

A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveller with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with up-to-date equipment unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars—in a word, everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

Miss Marjorie Mather, A.T.Coll. M., will give a piano recital in September, when she will render her graduation programme as given by her recently in Toronto.

At the urgent request of the audience Mr. Allan has consented to put on another recital next fall in which those of his pupils unable to take part last night, will be the performers.

EPWORTH LEAGUE OUTING.

Young People of George Street Church Hold a Moonlight.

The Epworth League of the George Street Methodist Church had a very enjoyable moonlight excursion down the Otonabee River last night per steamer "Stony Lake."

The weather man had placed his approval on the evening and everything was on hand to delight the large attendance of the members and their friends. The beautiful said down the waters of the Otonabee to a point just below T.A.S. park delighted everyone and it was with feelings of regret that those on board noticed Captain Scollard turn the Stony Lake up the river for the journey homeward.

The boat landed at the George street wharf shortly after ten o'clock.

Both Liberals and Conservatives Are Confident of Victory in Saskatchewan---Soldiers' Vote Cannot be Recorded.

REGINA, Sask., June 26.—The most animated political campaign Saskatchewan ever witnessed ended Saturday night with scores of meetings in all parts of the province. If the confident predictions of the two leaders are to be realized, each will have a majority in the next Legislature. Neither side undertakes to mention the seats they claim to be certain of, but the Liberal executive claim 45 without a dispute. They had 47 in the house just dissolved, while the opposition had seven. There are fifty-nine constituencies in the redistributed province and three soldier seats at large. There are two deferred elections and two acclamations.

Some eighty-five thousand votes were cast in 1912, and there was no outstanding issue to bring out the electors. The balloting will be heavier today because the women vote for the first time, but it will be reduced by some 33,000 soldiers who are at the front.

Liberals Better Organized

The alien enemy problem has been very gingerly handled, and both sides have claimed to be in favor of improvin the educational institutions of the province. Apparently, there is little money being used by either side, though the opposition forces have shown considerable speed in the closing week. The Liberals, however, have unquestionably the stronger organization, and their candidates are better known. However, Premier Martin suggests by his eleventh hour methods a fear of defeat, which neutrals have forecasted for him in his home town. He is opposed by Brig. General Embury, a popular citizen even before he went to France and won renown as an heroic commanding officer.

Attack On Soldier

Major L. M. Bidwell, of Saskatoon, a soldier of prominence, who has been campaigning for the Opposition, and who has denounced the Government for disfranchising the soldiers, was made the victim of a vicious personal editorial attack in the local organ of the Government on Saturday, in which his conduct in urging the people to vote against the Government, and especially for General Embury, was described as disgraceful. The paper asserts that Major Bidwell flagrantly violated regulations by appearing on the platform of a political meeting in the uniform of an officer, and added that if the commander of the district failed to take action he will be guilty of neglect of duty.

The School Language

The Government organ Saturday also carried a page advertisement for the Government, stating the reasons why the electors should vote Liberal and one of the chief claims made is that the Martin Government has "made English the language of our schools." Evidently the Government is feeling the effect of the under-current of indignation against the methods in vogue at many, at least, of the private schools of teaching German from the Austrian text books printed in Vienna.

Another half-page advertisement in the Government organ makes a special appeal to the soldiers not to vote for General Embury on the ground that he is not a representative of the soldiers, but merely of the Conservative party.

HIS PLACE WILL BE HARD TO FILL

SMITH COUNCIL VOICES REGRET AT DEATH OF JOHN CHITTICK.

Mr. J. W. Kelly, of Smith, has sent the following letter to Mrs. John Chittick, whose husband was killed when the boiler in the cheese factory blew up last week:

Dear Madam: At a special meeting of the Counil of Smith a motion was unanimously passed that the sincere sympathy of the council be tendered to you in your sad bereavement.

Mr. Chittick's services as collector for nineteen continuous years have been much appreciated by the members, and they feel that it will be a difficult task to secure a person who can render such faithful services. He was especially endowed with tact which made him particularly fitted for his position. He was a man favorably known by all the ratepayers of the township, and his loss will be greatly regretted

Signed on behalf of the council,
Yours truly,
J. W. KELLY.

TWO WOMEN ARE SENT TO MERCER

THEIR MALE ASSOCIATE ESCAPES WITH FINE OF $8.75.

The local Police Department have been in receipt of numerous complaints against certain women of the city who were said to be leading unchaste lives, and as a result a watch was kept on the subjects of the complaints.

Last night Annie Deline and Blanche Deline were found in the company of a young man by the name of Dennis Sullivan, on Bethune Street, and when taken in charge by the police officers did not give at all a satisfactory account of themselves.

At the police court this morning the two women were charged with being common prostitutes, or street walkers, and each of them pleaded "guilty," and were sentenced to one year in the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto.

Dennis Sullivan who was with them pleaded 'guilty" to a charge of disorderly conduct, and was fined $5.00 and $3.75 costs with the option of spending 15 days in the county jail.

CLOSING CONCERT.

Of the Conservatory Orchestra Attracted Large Audience.

A large and appreciative audience attended the closing concert of the Conservatory Orchestra, held in Conservatory of Music Hall last evening. A most exacting program splendidly rendered was worthy in every way of the high artistic standard always maintained at the Peterborough Conservatory of Music. The work of the orchestra was a genuine and delightful revelation to all present, each number being rendered with exceptional artistic excellence. Without going into detail, the fullest measure of credit is due this well-trained musical aggregation for its acceptable balance as to instrumentation, demonstrating admirable qualities of execution, with sufficient volume of tone without an impairment of musical quality when called for, together with the most beautiful pianissimo at times. The attack was artistically prompt and the shading as smooth and gradual as the dawn of day. In fact, every element of really high class orchestra music was in commendable evidence.

Miss Florence Scott, Miss Helen McLaren and Mr. Walter Evans in tion; Miss Cora White and Miss Ag- vocal solos, Dr. Park in violin selecness Logan in piano numbers, were all heard to splendid advantage, and accorded enthusiastic applause.

REAL SUMMER RESORT SEEN ON GEORGE STREET

Cressman and Company have a very pretty window display to-day, and it is attracting a great deal of attention from he shoppers and visitors to the city. A real summer resort bathing beach makes up the back ground, with a real sand shore in the foreground. The figures are dressed in the latest bathing costumes and fittings.

The idea speaks well for the creative taste of Mr. C. Nichols, who has charge of the advertising department.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things—and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is hair to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realise that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

STEAMER SINKS GERMAN U BOAT

An Atlantic Port, June 26.—Officers of a British steamer which arrived here today reported having sunk an attacking German submarine. The British vessel sent a shell into the U-boat's magizine, causing an explosion which parted the under sea boat about amidships. Each end sank separately. The British steamer was uninjured. The submarine was five miles distant, and was running away after having attacked the steamer nearly four hundred miles off the coast of Ireland.

While a woman may not care for a vacation she hates to admit that she passed the entire summer at home.

The War Will Be Won In 1935

So said Baden-Powell, organizer of the Boy Scouts.

What he means is that not until 1935 will the fruits of victory be gathered in fullest measure.

He means that it will be the lads and young men of to-day who will give a country dominance 18 or 20 years hence.

That for the next two decades, the strength of every country now engaged in war will be crippled because of crippled men and insufficient men.

For this war is killing off our best manhood, and leaving the country poor for a generation in workers of ability. Until the young crop of undecimated men comes into the fullness of its fruitage, our country and other countries must go a-limping.

That country with the largest number of efficient men—18-20 years hence—will win the war—no matter how victories may have gone in the actual conflict now on.

When the Napoleonic wars were over, the stature of the sons of France was lower, on an average, by one inch!

Already, the Red Cross sewing-women and the factories who make night-shirts for our soldiers are making them smaller—because smaller men will wear them!

Those boys of tender years now—in their early teens and even younger—must be built up physically, to do the world's hard work of 1935 and 1940. They, too, will in time become fathers, and if their children are to be full-powered men, then lads of to-day must be physically fit.

we are doing what we can to make strong men for to-morrow.

We are giving all the boys who come to us and we want more—vigorful bodies, and are helping to endow them with resolute wills and clean hearts and heads.

We are making lads doubly efficient—and they will need double efficiency when they become bread-winners and producers and fathers.

And we can continue this work only through the generosity of those in Peterborough who have reached man's estate and who are themselves earning and bearing burdens and producing.

You can contribute to final victory by helping us keep the "Y" going in Peterborough.

And since you have not been able yourself to go to war, cannot you not and will you not contribute something to keep up the "Y"—which is working not for any profit, but to build up Manhood?

We ask you for a contribution to help the "Y" do its fine work.

And we know that we shall not ask in vain.

Yours for the men of the future—the boys of to-day,

G. A. GILLESPIE, President Y. M. C. A.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION.

Local Orangemen and Friends Had Enjoyable Outing.

L. O. L. No. 1175 held a moonlight excursion last night per steamer "Geneva" and a very large crowd of the members and friends of the order took advantage of the beautiful evening and enjoyed the sail down the river. The boat was billed to leave the wharf at 8.15 but long before that hour the carrying capacity of the steamer had been reached and the start had to be made leaving a number of the later arrivals behind.

The evening sail was a very enjoyable one and the party returned to the city about 10.30, everyone regretting that the evening was not longer.

W. A. BOYCE CLAIMS TO HAVE SOLVED FUEL PROBLEM

Uses Bricks Soaked in Coal Oil to do Cooking for His Household and Can Afford to Laugh at Coal Dealers.

Mr. W. A. Boyce, a carpenter living on Lansdowne avenue, has solved the fuel problem so far as the needs of the kitchen are required during the summer and with an improvised coal oil stove is in a position to snap his fingers at the coal and wood dealers. Mr. Boyce now hastens to give the public the benefit of his invention and of his own experience with it.

The fuel now used by Mr. Boyce in his kitchen consists of bricks soaked in coal oil. He got his idea from the custom of fishing years ago by "jablight" when the artificial aid used was a brick soaked in kerosene. Mr. Boyce now takes a brick, cuts it in two equal parts in the interests of economy and soaks the pieces in a pint of coal oil over night. He places two bricks in their native state close together on the bottom of the grate in his stove, puts one of the prepared pieces over these and sets it alight. This ensures a steady fire for at least twenty minutes, a fire sufficient to cook an ordinary dinner. At first Mr. Boyce used an entire brick but found the same purpose could be achieved at half the cost by cutting the bricks in two. The experiment has demonstrated that the ordinary cooking in a household can be done without either coal or wood and that the cost is nominal. Any person who wishes to substitute coal oil for coal or wood as a fuel and who does not wish to go to the expense of a new stove is recommended by Mr. Boyce to try his plan.

NEW CHANCE FOR ALL OFFICERS

EACH MONTH AN OFFICER AT FRONT WILL BE RELIEVED.

LONDON, June 26.—It is announced that shortly one officer for every Canadian battalion at the front will every month be sent to England for three months, and replaced by an officer from England. This will greatly help to solve the Canadian surplus officer problem, besides being a boon to the men in France. It is expected the arrangement will shortly be enlarged to include one non-commissioned officer, too, and eventually privates. This is good news for Canadian officers at the front who have long been anxious for such an arrangement, and also for Canadian officers in England who are equally desirous of a change.

During the past three months 500 Canadian privates have been sent from France to England to take courses for commissions. The Canadians in this number do not include those getting commissions in the Imperial forces.

Canadians here are anxiously awaiting the result of the conscription bill vote. With conscription passed, as everyone hopes and expects it will be, it is regarded as certain there will be two Canadian army corps at the front instead of one.

MORE PAY FOR SOLDIERS

In the Toronto City Council it was moved and seconded that the council memoralize the Government at once to increase the pay of privates and non-commissioned officers to double the amount per day now paid, and to revise the pay of commissioned officers on actual service.

A CHANCE FOR THOSE GOING WEST

Homeseekers' excursions to Western Canada at low fares, via Canadian Pacific, each Tuesday until October 30th inclusive. Particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or W. B. Howard, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

USING AMERICAN ENGINES

Owing to the busy conditions prevailing on the Grand Trunk Railway in this section, two or three engines from the United States have been brought into service. There is no let-up to the amount of freight being hauled, and the train crews are all being kept busy.

Don't waste time in sighing over what might have been; make the best of what is.

NO PILGRIMAGE THIS YEAR

The pilgrimage to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, which has been conducted by the Archdiocese of Kingston for the past several years, and which embraced this section, will not be held this year. The railways are unable to supply the accommodation.

Litters for wounded used by the Dutch army are made of straw and are equipped with straw blankets so they can be used as beds.

HUNS FAIL IN ALL ATTACKS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, June 26.—After a short bombardment last evening our troops made a brilliant attack northwest of Hurtebiz against a strongly organized position of the enemy. All our objectives were attacked. In a few moments we carried the German first line. Counter attacks delivered by the enemy at both ends of this position, supported by violent artillery bombardment, were broken up by our fire. The enemy, surprised by the rapidity of our attack, suffered heavy losses and left in our hands more than three hundred prisoners, including ten officers. Several enemy surprise attacks on small posts in region of Tapue and in Argonne were broken up by our fire.

BERLIN SENDS OUT VERSION

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, June 26. — French troops which penetrated the German positions northwest of Hurtebise on the Aisne front were subjected to a counter-attack and ejected from the greater part of the positions they had occupied, army headquarters announced today. Great quantities of ammunition are being expended in artillery fire along the front held by Prince Rupprecht.

COAL CONSPIRACY ALLEGED

NEW YORK, June 26. - Testimony that price lists fixing $3 at the mines as the minimum cost of semi-bituminous coal were sent out to operators on the day after a conference of coal presidents and operators in this city in January, was introduced by the Government in its trial of fifty-one individuals and 102 companies, engaged in coal production, in the Federal Courts here.

It is the Government's contention, as set forth in the indictment, that the defendants conspired, in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, to establish prices in the semi-bituminous districts in Virginia and West Virginia.

Work of Rebuilding Court House Now In Progress.

The work of rebuilding the Court House is going along steadily. The entrance to the judge's chamber is from the south end of the building while the entrance to the sheriff's office and to the office of the county treasurer is through the new special entrance constructed at the north side of the Court House.

Chairman Anderson of the Property Committee has placed a special insurance risk on the building during the rebuilding.

NEW RUNABOUT FOR FIRE CHIEF

The new motor runabout for the Fire Department arrived from Lindsay yesterday afternoon and Chief Howard was busy explaining its make-up to the many friends of the department. The runabout will take the place of the Chief's horse and buggy and will carry at all times the pulmotor as well as a couple of fire extinguishers. It is painted a bright red and has the initials P.F.D. on the side. The chassis was made by the Ford Motor Co. and the body was built by the Fitzsimmons Auto Body Works of Lindsay.

Chief Howard is highly pleased with his new "Jack Rabbitt" and will be able to attend to the ordinary chimney fire without the larger apparatus turning out.

SOME ONE TRIED TO WRECK TRAIN

WORKMEN DISCOVER OBSTRUCTION ON THE C. P. R. TRACKS.

Charges of trespassing on the property of the C.P.R. have been laid against twenty of the residents of the city. Some days ago the workmen employed by the company found a fish plate and some bolts placed on the track and a serious accident might have resulted if a train had chanced along before the obstruction was discovered.

A watch was set and the summonses to appear on Thursday have been issued. The new foot bridge will soon be entirely completed and then there will be no excuse for any one trespassing on the right of way of the railway company so far as the crossing of the river is concerned.

SIX MONTHS FOR DISORDERLY

Asa Downer Draws Stiff Sentence At Police Court

Asa Burton Downer, an inmate of the Protestant Home, was up before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning on a charge of vagrancy. He pleaded "Not Guilty" to the charge.

Chief Thompson told the court that the man was a real trouble maker for the matron and the commitee of management. A long list of his wrong doings in the institution were recited. On one occasion he had upset the dining table; he was always quarreling with the other inmates and making things generally unpleasant.

Downer stated that he had nephews that would take care of him which called for the remark "Quite likely if you will behave yourself."

Downer will spend the next six months at Castle Nesbitt, for which

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District . Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot serve a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

WEST ENDERS WIN FROM THE SOUTH END

Last night at the Water Street Alleys a league game was pulled off when the West End took 2 of the 3 games from the South End five. who are at present at the top of the league. The first game was won by the West Ends by a large margin, but it didn't discourage the leaders, who came back and won out by two pins in the second game. In the third game the West Ends got away with a good lead and won out by a large margin.

Following are last night's scores:

South Ends.

Gordon	102	131	116—349
LaPlante	82	124	122—328
Shook	109	86	103—298

LAWN BOWLING

At a meeting of the Executive of the Lawn Bowling Club the following skips were elected for the season:—T. C. Elliott, R. M. Waddel, Jno. Wylie, E. L. Bowes, W. J. Oke, R. Elliott, R. C. Budd, Dr. Wightman, R. J. Soden, and Jno. W. Maynard. Skips to elect vice-skips. All parties desirous of bowling kindly hand their names to the secretary, W. J. Oke, at once.

After a year's retirement, Patrick Cudahy, the Milwaukee packer, is "doing his bit" for the country by returning to active business life while his sons have entered the military service of the United States.

Are You an Asset to Canada— or are You a Liability ?

ARE you helping to win the War? Or could Canada put up a better fight without you?

Are you working—saving—paying—to back up the men at the front? Or are you loafing—wasting—spending on selfish indulgences the money that should be loaned to the Nation?

Man-power is at a premium! The time and strength of every man in Canada should be devoted whole-heartedly to really useful work—work that will help, directly or indirectly, in the Struggle.

Food is short the world over! Every housewife in Canada should devote herself earnestly to the problem of conserving it—of feeding our people well, yet economically and without waste.

Canada needs every dollar you can invest in War Savings Certificates, and for every $21.50 you loan now, she will repay you $25.00 at the end of three years—or you can get your money back at any time. Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, which may be purchased at $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at any Bank or Money Order Post Office. 25

ENTRIES FOR BICYCLE RACES ON DOMINION DAY

Mr. C. R. Banks Secured a Number of Notables at Toronto Yesterday.

The bicycle races here in connection with the demonstration on July 2nd is causing a lot of interest in the nearby towns, and even in Toronto. Mr. Chas. Banks was in Toronto on Saturday completing arrangements for the five mile open race and the two mile handicap and was succesful in securing several entries from Toronto riders, such as Doc. Morton, as well as several members of the Swift Bicycle Club.

Mr. Harry Richard, of the Dunlop Tire Company, Wr. William Gladish, of the Motor Bicycle Journal will be the officals in charge of the races, which will be run under C.W.A. sanction.

The prizes in addition to the $50 bicycle, on view at Banks' bicycle store, include 100 lbs. flour donated by Mr. Roland Denne, a box of cigars given by Yoetes Bros., and a set of tires donated by the Dunlop Tire Co.

There will be several other prizes to be competed for.

Bicycle fans can be assured of a good day's sport, for in addition to the races Mr. Fred St. Onge has promised to put on his famous "Dusty Tramp" act.

Mr. A. E. Bregent, of Montreal, wholesale distributor for the Pope Bicycle has donated the $50 bicycle, and placed the services of Mr. St. Onge at the disposal of the committee.

Mr. St. Onge is arriving on Friday and invites all his boy friends to meet him at Banks' garage on Friday and Saturday. Mr. Banks expects that there will be a bicycle run on Saturday afternoon or evening, an announcement of which will be made later. Watch for it, boys!

BANKS' The Bicycle Man

— SPORT PARAGRAPHS —

Baseball Alphabet.

He works twice a week for a big salary.
He winds himself up and lets the ball fly;
The fans all adore him—sure, he's some guy.

Eddie Murphy is warming the bench, which makes Comiskey sad, for that astute business man paid $11,000 for Eddie, which makes Connie Mack glad, for Connie got the coin.

Nemo Liebold is little—but oh, my! Being the smallest player in the American League is only one of his distinctions, and the minor one. For the first time since the White Sox got him from Cleveland, he is one of the leading outfielders of the Windy City outfit.

Ray Schalk has a way with him that is all his own, particularly during his work behind the bat. If the game gets slow, you can always have a good time watching Ray.

Just leave it to Hans Wagner to brace up the Pirates' infield. He came into the game without any practice, and, age or no age, he's showing the other fellows how things are done, and done properly.

Eddie Collins used to be good for an occasional clout. An event of this kind these days, however, is like a surprise party, and while his slugging used to make pitchers lie awake nights thinking how to avoid him, it's Eddie who lies awake now thinking how to hit 'em.

Grouchy Gus Says:

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home—particularly when it's raining, and you've no place else to go."

Despite his youth, George Sisler already occupies a stellar position in the baseball world. He is of course, the best player the St. Louis Browns have and he has made a big hit with the fans wherever he has played. This is Sisler's third season in the American League, and although he is only twenty-four years old he is rated in the same class as Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb. As a first-baseman he has no superior in the major leagues. He is a left-handed batsman, and his average is above .300. He is speedy on the bases, and uses his head. It is not generally known that Sisler has filled, with credit to himself, every position in the game except catcher.

Pop Time said: "Doc, your stuff I can't quite get.
You said that man at forty years is through.
And still old Honus Wagner's playing yet."

"Shine ball" specialists are being developed in the major leagues. A regular epidemic, in fact, is sweeping through the pitchers' ranks. The "shine" is described as a ball with two slick spots. The majority of pitchers are trying it out, but it takes some time before it can be successfully controlled. Among those who are devoting considerable time to the study of the "shine ball" are Shore and Baker of the Red Sox, Dumont and Shaw of the Washingtons, Falkenberg of the Athletics, and Cicotte of the White Sox.

Prizefighting and Bullfighting.

The Latin races have always looked down upon our good old Anglo-Saxon boxing matches, and the reason that they did so was because they considered them oh, so brutal! The Spaniard, for instance, loves his bull fight. There is glory to him in such an exhibition. To us there is in it nothing but glory with the "l" left out. It is just four years ago today that "the greatest bull fight ever" was held at Santander, Spain, and while details are lacking, it is certain that an enjoyable time must have been had by all. The announcements of this great event promised to give full satisfaction to the tender feelings of the audience. Among other things it said: "Instead of the usual six bulls, the customary number, no less than eighteen bulls will be killed. Six bull fighters, all numbered among the most famous in Spain, with their suites, have been engaged, and it will be an all-star engagement from beginning to end." The event is called the "most wonderful spectacle of its kind ever beheld, and not likely to be repeated." Small bills supply additional details regarding the great sporting event—details which would make some of our roughest ring artists, even the old-timers who fought with bare fists, shudder with horror. For instance, it is predicted that no less than fifty, and probably as many as a hundred, horses will be killed before the day's festivities are over. There are hints that even some of the matadors may lose their lives, and this is offered as an additional reason to be present, although this is not said openly. The picadors and assistants, however, being less skilled than the matadors, are certain to come to grief, and from the way the program talks of it, you can just see Mamma and Papa and Willie saying in Spanish, "Gee! won't that be fine!" It may be mentioned here that such a brutal thing as boxing is unknown in Spain. No noble Spaniard would think of soiling his hands in obliterating the salients on another Spaniards map—no, never-r-r! Such a thing would be unheard-of and ungentlemanly. However, everything depends upon the point of view, so what are you going to do about it?

Hundred Million for Red Cross Work

Mercy Fund in United States Is Over-Subscribed.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Over-subscription of the Red Cross One Hundred Million Dollar Mercy Fund seemed assured when the eight-day nation-wide campaign concluded with final rallies in hundreds of cities.

The country's total outside New York City, late last night was $60,650,000, and pledges still were pouring in at the rate of about a million an hour. New York City's total, although not announced, was believed to be near $40,000,000. Definite figures will not be available until late, when cities report the result of their last-minute efforts, but Red Cross officials said they have no doubt that the totals will show that American generosity has responded in the same spirit as for the Liberty Loan, with millions more than asked.

A young fox which had been on exhibition in Torrington, Conn., was killed when he broke from his cage and tried to eat a toy balloon. The balloon burst in the throat of the fox causing him to suffocate.

TROUBLE AT LITTLE LAKE

Visitors On Sunday Moved Urns From One Grave To Another

Considerable annoyance was caused the management of the Little Lake Cemetery Company on Sunday when it was found out that urns had been moved by interested parties from one lot to another. The parties who did these acts apparently overlooked the fact that they were guilty of stealing. Superintendent James was very particular to see that all the urns were placed in proper position for Decoration Day, and it was easily ascertained who the guilty ones were. The officers of the company have decided to let the matter drop this time, but prosecution will follow should it occur again.

The directors of the company and Superintendent James were very proud of the splendid appearance of the burial ground on Saturday, and to have their perfected plans marred by deliberate meanness was hard for them to forgive.

PRESBYTERY MEETING.

Members Held a Session in Knox Church Today.

The Peterborough Presbytery met at Knox Church here this morning and transacted the usual business, Rev. C. I. Craw, moderator, presided, and there were present Revs. J. A. Mackenzie, Knox Church; R. McEachran, Keene; R. J. Ross, Baltimore; H. L. Bennie, Grafton; J. H. McGill, and A. H. McConnachie, South Monaghan; A. Bowman, Plainville, D. A. Thompson, Hastings, and W. S Mabon, Pontypool. Owing to the report of the previous meeting not being sent out on time, a number of the members did not receive notification of the meeting and were not present.

The delegates who were present at the meeting of the General Assembly at Montreal made their report.

AMERICAN TROOPS REACH FRONT

COUNTER ATTACK PLANNED BY HUNS ON BRITISH FRONT IS CHECKED BY ARTILLERY

Russian Workmen's and Soldiers' Council Pass Resolution Rejecting All Offers of Separate Peace With Germany But Hold That Early Conclusion of War is Desirable

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, June 27. — Another hostile counter-attack was attempted early this morning against our new positions northwest of Fontaine les Croisill and was prevented from developing by our artillery. We made a successful raid west of Oppy and captured a few prisoners. A raid attempted by the enemy southwest of Labassee was stopped by our fire.

NO SEPARATE PEACE.

PETROGRAD, June 27. — A resolution rejecting every policy tending to the conclusion of a separate peace or to its prelude, a separate armistice, has been adopted by an overwhelming majority by the congress of workmen's and soldiers' deputies of all Russia. At the same time a resolution declares that the restoration of peace at the earliest possible date is the most important need of the Russian revolutionary democracy. Ending the war by the defeat of one of the belligerents, the congress declared, would constitute a point of departure for fresh wars, increase dissentions among the nations and lead them to complete exhaustion, famine and ruin, but that a separate peace would strengthen one of the belligerents and give it the possibility of gaining a decisive victory over the others.

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR PREMIER

CONSCRIPTION MAY STRIKE ROCKS IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, June 27.—A. K. Maclean, Halifax, recognized as a moderate Liberal and convinced free-trader who is slated for the finance ministership in a Laurier cabinet, plainly intimated to the House of Commons last evening that while he would vote for the second reading of the conscription bill now before the House, he and his party would consider that when the bill got into committee they had a perfect right to make as many criticisms and suggestions as they thought fit and necessary. The future is beginning to look less bright for a settlement.

WAR VETERANS ARE ASKING NO FAVORS FROM THE CITY

Will Pay Admission Fee of Families to the Grounds Monday and Believe Dependants of Men Overseas Are Alone Entitled to Complimentaries.

Mayor Duffus when he took the chair at the meeting of the committee of the whole council last night apologised for having had to call them together again after his remarks on Friday night last. He had hoped to get along until the regular meeting next week, but the matter of properly celebrating and recognizing the 50th anniversary of confederation had been overlooked as far as the council as a body were concerned, and he thought that it was absolutely necessary that the council should in some way recognize the event. The military authorities requested that as much of a military display as possible be made, and it was for this purpose that he had called the meeting to take the matter up with the Greater Peterboro Industrial Associations and the Great War Veterans.

On the Complimentary List

Ald. Dobbin explained that he had taken the matter of tickets up with the demonstration committee, and had issued tickets to dependents of all soldiers overseas who were on the Patriotic Fund. There were a few that he could not reach.

It was the general feeling that the dependents of all the men who had taken part in the war, even if they were not on the Patriotic Fund, should be admitted to the grounds free. The city would have to arrange with the committee in this regard as there are about 1,400 of them in this district.

Well Done, Veterans!

Sergt. Victor, Sergt J. Coppock and Private Muir, of the Great War Veterans, and Messrs. Roland Dence, G. H. Roper, C. G. Graham, W. A. Haslam, R. Glover, A. Kay, R. Dobbin, R. J. Munroe, T. Hooper, J. Brooks representing the Demonstration Committee of the Greater Peterboro Association, were called in

Tickets For the Veterans

At the joint meeting of the Great War Veterans, the Citizen's Committee having charge of the details of the demonstration at the Exhibition Grounds, on Tuesday next, and the City Council, final arrangements were perfected with regard to the part assigned to the returned men from service in the day's proceedings.

In order that all the men returned, with their families, should enjoy the day, admission tickets will be issued to all who apply. Tickets have already been sent and given to the wives and children of men on service. Returned men, or their wives are asked to come or send to the Patriotic Fund office, any day, or on Saturday night for tickets. If personal application is not convenient, a messenger may be sent.

Also widows, in receipt of pensions and who care to attend during the afternoon will find tickets at service for themselves and children. Application at the office will ensure tickets being supplied.

Please be so good as to send promptly, or call.

FIRST DAY OF CAMPAIGN FOR Y.M.C.A. FUNDS RESULTS IN OVER HALF SUM AIMED AT

Total of $5,237 Raised by Canvassers Yesterday—Citizens Willing and Ready to Give and Many Contributions More Than Doubled.

Total Objective	$10,000
Subscriptions end of 1st day	5,237
Still to be raised	4,763

Never has the Y.M.C.A. stood as high in the esteem of the citizens of Peterboro as at this time. The great work it is doing at home and which has made possible the splendid "overseas" branch of its activities among the boys at the front is making its influence felt in the hearts of the people. The result is that all over Peterboro the people are willing and anxious and pleased to contribute to the funds of the Y.M.C.A. in the special campaign for $10,000 that is now under way. This was shown yesterday by the splendid reception that was extended to the workers who yesterday started out on their first day's work. Everywhere they went they found the people ready for them, and in most cases with their minds made up as to what they could and would do. This saved their own time as well as that of the workers and helped on the work materially.

A Valuable Combination

The work is full of interest. Even before the campaign started one gentleman who expected to leave the city Monday night, called on one worker and handed him a subscription of $25, which was just two and one-half times his usual subscription. He said that owing to his expected absence he did not want to be considered "out of it," so was doing his part early.

One large business firm which did not give anything last year has given $500 this year. Another firm which never contributed over $100 before yesterday, when canvassed mentioned $200 as their contribution, but to encourage other firms to give more, increased the amount to $250.

One manufacturer when called on asked what the canvassers thought he should give. They handed him a card made out for $100. He took and signed it and sent his visitors off happy.

Everywhere there is a readyness to give that is most encouraging and that makes the work a pleasure, as it shows how much the Y.M.C.A. is valued in Peterboro.

In one store a young woman told her employer that when the canvasser called she wanted to see them. He passed the good word on and the young woman did "her bit" by the nice contribution of $15.

More Workers Needed

The great need for the next couple of days is going to be to get enough workers to cover the field. Could 15 or 20 more workers be enlisted, hundreds of dollars, and possibly $1,000 or more, could be collected that now may be missed through the inability of the workers to get around and see all those who would like to be visited. Here, then, is a suggestion. Will all those who would like to have the privilege of contributing to this great work and who have not yet been seen, send in their amounts or phone 246 to have a canvasser call. This will help wonderfully and save time and energy on the part of the canvassers.

MICHAEL CLARK TAKES ISSUE WITH LEADER

Says Sir Wilfrid Is More Anxious to Win an Election Than the War.

OPPOSES A REFERENDUM.

Liberals Would Not Pass Conscription Bill Even if in Power.

OTTAWA, June 27. — Colonel James Arthurs, Conservative member for Parry Sound, Dr. Michael Clark, Liberal member for Red Deer, Donald Sutherland, Conservative member for South Oxford, A. K. Maclean, Liberal member for Halifax, and F. S. Robidoux, Conservative member for Kent, N.B., delivered strong and earnest speeches in the house yesterday against the refreendum and in support of the Conscription bill. The anti-conscription sentiment was voiced at today's sitting by Onesiphore Turgeon, of Gloucester, N.B., and Jacques Bureau, of Three Rivers, both Liberals. Colonel Arthurs, who resumed the conscription debate has recently returned from the front and on behalf of the Canadian army pleaded for immediate reinforcements. He spoke plainly of the lack of loyalty in Lower Canada, and declared that only one thousand French-Canadians were actually at the front.

Dr. Clark's Points.

The points made by Dr. Clark in his objejction to the referendum were as follows:

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by refusing coalition, opposing conscription and preparing to oppose parliamentary term extension lays himself open to the charge of being less anxious to

SOLDIERS' DEPENDENTS ASKED BY GOVERNMENT IF THEY ARE SATISFIED WITH CONDITIONS

Blanks Sent to every Beneficiary of Patriotic Fund With Instructions to Fill Out and Return to Ottawa—More Pay for the Soldiers Likely.

The Dominion Government, anxious as it is to help the men in the trenches, is not forgetful of the wives, the children and other dependents that these men have left behind them. There is a proposal that the material assistance rendered soldiers families in the past will be increased.

Every beneficiary of the Patriotic Fund in Peterborough received with their June checks from Ottawa blank forms to be filled out and returned by the Government. On these forms are printed a number of questions. Those interested are asked to state any grievances that they may have and to furnish other particulars. Among other things they are asked if they are satisfied with their present grants, whether in the way of separation allowance, assigned pay or the money received from the Patriotic Fund. They are also asked to state whether or not these different allowances are received regularly.

It is almost unnecessary to say that the blanks are being filled out and that the answers indicate general dissatisfaction with present conditions. The allowance is the same now as when at first granted and the price of living has gone up over fifty per cent. The cost of coal alone is sufficient to cut heavily into the incomes of the soldiers dependents and the landlords have raised the rents pleading the very war itself as an excuse.

There has been started in Canada an agitation not only to raise the wages of the soldiers but to increase the separation allowance in keeping with the higher cost of living. That the Government has some such move in mind is now apparent from the issue of the circulars referred to.

There are no enlistments recorded in this city. No new names are being added to the list of those who receive aid from the Patriotic Fund. On the contrary there are fewer names on the books now than at any time for the simple reason that when a soldier returns and gets back to work his name is dropped. The same is the case when a man is killed and his wife is granted a pension.

The local Patriotic Fund still enjoys the enviable distinction at headquarters of being the most economically and carefully administered of

LIBERALS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP IN SASKATCHEWAN

PREMIER IS RE-ELECTED.

All Labor, Independent and Non-Partisan Candidates Were Defeated.

REGINA, Sask., June 28. — The Liberals swept Saskatchewan almost clean in yesterday's elections, and will have more than fifty of the fifty-nine seats in the Legislature, a greater majority than was accorded the Scott Government in 1912. Of the seven Conservatives in the last House only two are definitely known to be re-elected, W. B. Willoughby, the Opposition leader, and Lieut.-Col. Glenn, who was not opposed by the Liberals in South Qu-Appelle, but was opposed by an independent. The only other Conservative elected is Donald MacLean, in Saskatoon. The Liberals wrested Lumsden, Moose Jaw county, Prince Albert and Willow Bunch from the Opposition, while returns from Maple Creek are still so incomplete as to give no indication of the result.

GERMANS MAKE NO FURTHER ATTACKS ON POSITIONS WON BY FRENCH IN MONDAY'S FIGHT

Cavern of the Dragon, Fitted up as veritable Fortress is Important Capture--Vast Stores of Munitions and Over Three Hundred Prisoners Taken.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, June 27.—Official statement: Spirited artillery fighting continued in the vicinity of the Hurte Biz Monument. The Germans made no further attacks on the positions which we took from them in that region on Monday. According to information now at hand among the positions which we captured on that day is the Cavern of the Dragon, more than one hundred metres wide, and about three hundred metres deep, which had been converted into a veritable fortress. This cavern, with numerous exits and openings from which machine guns were fired, constituted an important armed position, and the point of departure for the enemy troops in making counter-attacks. A considerable amount of war material was secured there, including nine machine guns in good conditions. Equipment for more than three hundred men, numerous rifles, ammunition depots and electric searchlights, and a hospital relief outpost fell into our hands.

The number of prisoners counted has reached 340, of whom six are officers.

In Champagne the enemy made a surprise attack west of Mount Carnillet. It was repulsed by our fire. We penetrated the German lines near Maisons De Champagne and brought back ten prisoners. At about eight o'clock last night German aviators threw several bombs on Nancy. No damage was done and there were no casualties.

ENGLISH SOCIALISTS HAVE DECLINED INVITATION TO CONFERENCE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, June 27. — The section of British socialists led by Henry Hyndman has declined the invitation of the Russian council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates to attend the international socialist conference at Stockholm because it will be attended by German and Austrian socialists and cannot do any good.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1917

WHITEWASH FOR ROBLIN AND CO.

OUT IN MANITOBA, if a man finds himself in a tight place, facing a criminal charge in a court of justice, it seems that escape is not impossible. All he has to do is to produce a medical certificate to show that he is in poor health and that his physical welfare will be further endangered if he is submitted to the ordeal of a public trial. Then considerate prosecuting attorneys and judges can be depended upon to do the rest. The defendant goes free.

Ex-Premier Roblin and Ex-Attorney-General Howden were charged with defrauding the public they were elected to serve. Both were tried some time ago, and the result was a disagreement of the jury. The case came before the court again, when the medical certificates were put in evidence, and considerate and tender-hearted administrators of Canadian justice dropped the charges rather than submit the defendants to further inconvenience.

Public men have been whitewashed before today by partisan investigating committees in Parliament, but it is seldom that the calcimine brush is applied in a court of justice. If there was, in the opinion of the court, no evidence to convict the defendants, that fact should have been brought out in the first hearing, and the cases then dropped. Kelly, the contractor, is in the penitentiary. He could not have defrauded the people of Manitoba without collusion on the part of those who were in authority at the time. One would appear to be as guilty as the other. To be perfectly consistent, the courts should proceed to liberate Mr. Kelly at once. The same reason can be pleaded in his case. Confinement is no doubt impairing that gentleman's health.

It is only natural to believe that when a man finds himself in public disfavor, with a prison sentence staring at him, his bodily and mental economy both suffer considerable of a shock, his appetite falls off, his disordered nerves bring on hours of sleeplessness. In a word, he goes to pieces, and any doctor called in can conscientiously testify that he is in bad shape. Further annoyance in the shape of a trial in court will aggravate his maladies. Then why make him uncomfortable when a free pardon will restore his health and strength?

Perhaps it makes all the difference as to the standing of the defendant in the community. The man who steals a loaf of bread or who pilfers a trifle from another, is obliged to take the consequences of his act. Men have been placed on trial for their lives, and no consideration was show them even when they were so physically weak that two court officials were obliged to hold them up while the judge pronounced upon them the sentence of death. Men have been carried to the scaffold to expiate a crime when unable to make the short journey alone. It is only the "big' man higher up whose peculations run into the thousands, who has a chance to escape. Public life in Canada is not purged, the dignity of Canadian justice is not vindicated, by the disposal of the graft cases in Manitoba.

The whole plot is out. Ex-Premier Roblin, when he found the palace of power crumbling over his head, turned over the reins of office to Premier Norris. It was openly charged then that there was an understanding between the two parties that there was to be no prosecution when the rottenness of the former administration was exposed. The former ministers were not to be sent to prison. There have been prosecutions, it is true, but prosecutions that ended in a fiasco. Some showing in the interest of public virtue had to be made, and Kelly was the goat.

In the meantime, the faith of the people in public morality, in even the justice of courts, receives another jolt.

WHY BILLY SUNDAY IS POPULAR.

BILLY SUNDAY is not only the most picturesque and successful, but he is beyond question the most popular evangelist now before the public. Those who have studied his methods explain the latter circumstance by saying that he is in no sense a sectarian and that all denominations that are engaged in the Master's work find favor in his eyes. He is content to make converts, not proselytes. His trail hitters are advised to identify themselves with the church that most appeals to them. Their names are then turned over to the churches which they select. Billy Sunday is not a religious agitator or a sectarian mischief maker. He does his part, and it is up to the churches to complete his work.

THE FAMILIES OF SOLDIERS.

THE AMERICANS are now facing the same problem as confronted Canada at the outbreak of the war, caring for the families of the men who enlist. The pay of the soldiers in that country has been doubled, placing it at about the same rate as that paid enlisted men in Canada, but even that is, of course, inadequate to provide for the wife and children who are left at home.

The American Red Cross has taken this matter up and appointed an expert in charity work as its national director of family relief. This official says that in the very near future there will be in the field nearly 300,000 state militiamen, and about January 1, 1918, it is altogether possible that there will be under arms around 2,500,000 of men in all branches of the service. In a comparatively short time a large part of these men will be at the battle front. Then a little later some thousands will return home disabled. That it would be fatal for the country to wait until then before making plans for every conceivable emergency and to deal with war realities must be realized. People understand pretty fully what the Red Cross is doing on the medical, nursing and supply sides of its program, but as yet there is not a full grasp of what this organization is planning to do among families of soldiers and sailors.

The official further adds: "The Red Cross officials at Washington, however, are looking ahead toward a large task that will confront the chapters throughout the country in the near future. Even with the increased pay of soldiers and sailors recently provided for by Act of Congress, and even though the Government grants a separation allowance for dependents of soldiers and sailors, and further under the selective draft a large percentage of the registered men with families may be exempted, it is still conceivable that among the grand total of the men drawn into the army service of the country in every branch there will be left behind tens of thousands of relatives of these men who, in one way or another, will need the friendly aid of the Red Cross. It must be remembered that in peace times fourteen per cent. of regular army men sent home portions of their pay to relatives, even though there has always been a rule against recruiting men with families. It must be remembered further that the navy has no rule against the enlistment of men with dependents.

"We must prepare for a large sized task to be executed through the civilian relief committees of Red Cross chapters. These committees should have on them carefully chosen members, some of whom at least have had experience in social work. In the large cities is will doubtless be necessary to have one or more paid, trained social workers at the center of operations and surrounding these there should be corps of volunteers who have gone through a period of training for the many sided duties that will confront them.

"The Red Cross will be concerned not merely about the creature needs of the families of soldiers and sailors, but with their social needs also. Through its chapters' bureaus of advice and information it lets it be known that it is ready to serve as 'next friend' in all sorts of difficulties that may arise; for example, wage complications, troubles with landlords and regarding insurance, property and furniture payments, dangers threatening the moral welfare of the children, illness, accident, etc. Experience in Canada, England and France shows that a great many families have come to grief unnecessarily because not early enough did helpful organizations get in touch with them. The American Red Cross conceives that it has a great preventive function as well as an ameliorative task ahead of it.

"The best principles and methods known in the field of social work should be applied in this service. This will mean the application of fine sympathy and understanding conferences with members of families so that they and the Red Cross workers can plan together most effectively. All the committees' resources for maintaining right family conditions, health and general well-being are to be brought to the attention of the families with which the Red Cross deals.

THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE.

THE MEMBERS of the Toronto City Council by a vote of thirteen to two declared against a proposition to enforce conscription among the employes of the city by asking for the resignation of all eligible men who refuse to enlist. It is hard to see how any other course was open to the aldermen. A month ago, or before the Government's policy on conscription was announced, such civic legislation as that proposed in Toronto might have been appropriate, but now it would appear out of place. The council, by adopting it, would really have been usurping the functions of the Government. The selective draft will take the men from the city offices and elsewhere who can best be spared. Any such move as that proposed in Toronto, to be useful, should have been put in operation long ago.

The Toronto aldermen reverse the natural order of events by insisting that wealth must be conscripted before men, no doubt with their weather eye on the future. Why should even aldermen play cheap politics at such a time as this? All the money in Canada confiscated by the Government would not of itself win the war. The money is required to give the man-power effect. Men are the first essential, and when they are secured the means that are further necessary will be forthcoming. Getting money in Canada has so far been a comparatively easy task.

The Canadian soldiers in the trenches are in need of reinforcements. So far as heard from they are not complaining of their compensation, paltry as it may appear. Their voice, however, is constantly heard crying for help. Is there anyone in Canada who imagines that it would be other than mockery to increase the daily pay of the soldiers as a compensation for their sacrifice, desirable as such an increase may be? Our soldiers in Flanders would prefer a new battalion to all the money this country could send them.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

SATAN FINDS some excuses still for anti-conscriptionists to plead.

• • • •

IS IT TO BE a fifty-fifty split, too, of Captain Burnham's donation to the civic grant to the bands?

• • • •

• • • •

PITY, ISN'T IT, that some of those leather lungs at Ottawa could not be conscripted for raw material to be used in the manufacture of shoes?

• • • •

THE WAR VETERANS last night showed the proper independent spirit, just what was to be expected of men who have done what they have for their country.

• • • •

BANG GOES THE DELUSION that the administrators of justice in Canada were upholders of law and order, not mere physicians concerned more with the health than the morality of those who are unfortunate enough to fall into their hands.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Whole Wheat Bread.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

According to some people who profess to be well-informed on the subject, the millers of the United States, with their present machinery equipment, are prepared to turn out whole wheat flour in any desired quantity. Making whole wheat flour means, it is said, simply stopping at the first stage of the grinding. More than that, it is claimed that if the millers refuse to furnish whole wheat flour plentifully or cheaply enough, the housewife can grind the wheat at home. Thus the simple life and the low cost of living may be brought into a happy alliance.

ADMIRES CAPT. BURNHAM

(Ottawa Citizen)

The member for West Peterborough in the Canadian Commons has a supreme contempt for assumed ignorance to serve ulterior ends, to judge by his remarks anent conscription of wealth in the debate on the military conscription measure on Thursday last. This outspoken representative cannot be accused of any desire to mislead the ignorant, to encourage malevolent persons, to foment disloyalty or any of the other incendiary motives so glibly charged those who advocate the conscription of wealth and are convinced of the practicability of such conscription. The remarks of Captain Burnham are so apropos to much of the discussion now going on respecting this important matter that no apology is due for their reproduction from Hansard. Captain Burnham said in this connection:

"Every man must do his duty and we must remember that just as there may be the shirker or slacker amognst us, so there will be the financial slacker., the man who declines to come forward and place his resources at the disposal of the country. I myself know men whose resources consist of money. The cost of their living is but little more than that of the humblest amongst us. They have no children; they have no hostages to tune. They do not even come within the purview of the Finance Minister's tax on sugar for "they do not take sugar." The fact is that they give to this great conflict just exactly what suits them, which is often not very much. When I am confronted by the statement of a class of people who say, We understand conscription of men, but we cannot consent to the conscription of wealth because, while we understand the conscription of men, we canot comprehend the conscription of wealth,—I am at a loss to understand it, and I cannot but suspect the motives of the men who make it. Is that right? When they find out what direct taxation in its multitudinous forms mean—and how prone some people of all political parties are to sidestep direct responsibility—although they do not recognise the positive principle, they are quite able to say promptly what the negative is, and they are sure, after looking at it from all aspects, that they do not understand it. Well, all you have to do to show that you do understand a thing is to show absolutely that you do not understand it, because there is no getting away from a proposition which you are able to deny from all angles and all points. The shirking of such men will soon, I understand and hope, come to an end."

Now, we submit this is putting the shoe on the other foot with a vengeance. The regular formula is to accuse those advocating conscription of wealth of being ignorant, malevolent and disloyal—in short, "an ugly picture," to quote the words of a local contemporary. But Captain Burnham has his own ideas on that point. He says that he suspects the motives of those who profess to be unable to comprehend what is meant by conscription of wealth, and that he considers that the density of derstanding in such cases is derectly related to a rather keen comprehension of just what such a measure would bring about!

The member for West Peterborough really seems to have acquired a faculty for hitting the brass tack on the head.

THE MAN WHO TRIED TO SAVE

"Is there any arnica in the house?" queried Biggers, as he stretched himself on the chaise longue and Mrs. Biggers tenderly placed pillows around him.

"I don't think it's a case for arnica," replied Mrs. Biggers, anxiously. "It looks as if I'll have to call in Dr. Hardbe."

"Nothing doing! What do you think I am? I wouldnt have the doctor know I made such a fool of myself for any amount of pain alleviator. You know, the doctor is a born joker, and he'd remember this for the rest of my life."

"No, Harry, that wouldn't be ebtical."

"Ethics or no ethics, the doctor would laugh his head off, and I wouldn't blame him. Furthermore, I don't want you to tell your sister Hattie—or any of the neighbors. Of course, if you tell sister Hattie you won't have to tell the rest of the people, for she'll attend to that. But I want this to be kept quiet. If any one asks why I am going around looking like a rioter, just tell them it's the lumbago again."

"How many rounds up the ladder were you, Henry, when you slipped?"

"Didn't count 'em. But it seemed as if I were as high as the Eiffel tower. When I first skinned up that ladder I had a severe spasm of what painters and paperhangers call 'ladder scare.' It's an awful disease! But after I was up a while I got over the attack and became quite daring. I balanced on one foot, then the other, and was just contemplating the words of the poet who said, 'How happy the life of a bird must be, flitting about in each leafy tree.'

"Then Barlo came along and asked me what I was doing. I told him I was taking the measure for some screens. He asked me why I didn't let Jim, the man of all work, do the job. He said Jim was the handy man of the city by right of inheritance and was trying to bring up his little family in an honest way, and if there was a chance to make a few dimes it should be his.

"I told Barlo I had been hearing so much of how the country should husband—and wife—its resources, that I was going to be economical from now on. I was going to hoard my pennies and shine them with metal polish till they looked like $5 gold pieces. I was going to kill the cat for its hide and turn the canary loose to forage for itself.

"Barlo said something about hoarders being a menace to the country, and I, thinking I was on terra firma, made a swift kick in his derection. Is there any horse liniment around?"

"You don't want horse liniment—you didn't display horse sense," replied Mrs. Biggers tartly. "I thought you were economising to buy me an elaborate birthday present. Barlo was right, and Jim, the handy man, shall do our work as heretofore."

Wit and Wisdom

His Own Doctor

A soldier shot in the fleshy part of the leg was brought in, and the operating surgeon started probing for the bullet. He could not find it; yet, as there was no point of exit, he assumed quite naturally, that it must still be in the wound, and he probed yet more vigorously.

"Searching for the bullet," answered the surgeon, laconically.

"Well, doctor," replied the wounded man in a quiet, confidential tone of voice, "you won't never find it. 'Cos why? I've got it in me pocket. I wasn't going to lose the chance of losing it, so I picked it out wiv me penknife afore I was brought 'ere."

The Kaiser As A Musician

Most people know that the kaiser dabbles in various arts, music being one. During a holiday spent aboard his yacht he often kept a band playing. One day as the emporer was listening to it he suddenly turned to one of the officers near, and said. "What execrable music! Whatever made them choose such a piece? would you go and find out the composer's name?

"Well," the kaiser cntinued, as the officer returned, "who wrote it?"

"Sire,' the man stammered, as he held out a copy of the piece, "it is one you composed yourself."

A Matter Of Spelling

In a north country harbor a Scotch drifter was having her name repainted. Near to her was a British war vessel, from the deck of which a knot of interested tars was watching while the letters P-S-Y-C-H-E were completed. Just then one afflicted with a particularly sensitive "receiving station" received a "brain wave."

"Ho, there below!" he drawled, and the words squirmed along the stem of his aged clay. "Cawn't yer not spell? Was yer never at school, eh? That's not the way we spells 'fish' in the navy."

Not For Him

He had joined the territorials, whose drilling ground was a nice level field close to the bank of a river. One day he was met by the drill sergeant coming late to drill,

"You're late again," said the sergeant. "Go down to the river and fall in at once."

"Not likely, sir,' replied the recruit, rather excited. "I beg to remind you, sir, that I listed in the territorials, not in the Coldstream guards."

The Man Over There

"Do you see that man over there?"

The world famous detective spoke in a whisper, and his friend looked quickly round, scenting a mystery.

"Yes," he replied, just as cautiously.

"Well, he's a professional forger."

"Then why don't you arrest him?" asked the friend, in surprise.

The world famous detective aggravatingly.

"Can't," he said briefly. "It's not breaking the law to make horseshoes."

FASHION CUES.

Points About the Very Latest Spring Togs Are Here.

Despite all the rumors to the opposite effect, there is a strong directoire influence in some of the spring suits and frocks. Especially is this true of the Paris collection. In the suits this effect is obtained in the placing of the belt and in the size of the revers. As for the materials used, there is a quantity of satin and charmeuse besides figured and striped foulard and striped mousseline. Embroidered chiffon is used to drape over satin or charmeuse. There are seen both the barrel and the draped skirts, while the skirt for the suit is narrower and occasionally plaited. Jackets for the two pieced suits are short, for they reach to the waist, not even the conservative finger tip length that had been predicted for the early spring. These short jackets frequently show panels of accordion plaits and a combination of materials, but in a different order from that which we have been accustomed to—for instance, the skirts will be checked material and the jackets of plain.

At the southern resorts, for cycling, which is eminently southern sport, the suits are most attractive, the skirts short and the bloomers of the fitted riding type, and these of a striped, checked or blocked material, and the jacket of the predominating tone of the figured material. The material used for these sports clothes is homespun, and this, by the way of a change, is quite acceptable and very attractive. The skirts as often as not are divided, and the knickers are, of course, of the same material.

On all sides we hear of the slip-over effect of suits and blouses and even wraps. Organdie and linen make a southern wear frock on this order.

Top coats come in all the bright new colors and are most attractive in design. Some have quite a directoire effect, while others show belts at the natural waist line. Velvet ribbon enters into the trimming of these as well as the dressier suit.

FULLY PREPARED.

For Play Is This Comfortable Two Piece.

Blue linen trousers strongly, obviously buttoned into a waist cut with a stylish twelfth century neck makes a very satisfactory uniform for small barnes to romp in. Short sleeves are best to punch things in.

MENIN AND THE WAR.

Little Town in Belgium First Gave Fame to Scharnhorst.

News of the deportation of the whole civil population of the Belgian city of Menin by the Germans brings into the focus of world interest a community which is strangely connected with the inception of the world war. It is barely possible that had there been no Menin there might have been no world war, for it was at the siege of this little city in 1798 that the Hanoverian army officer, Schranhorst, won his first distinction. Subsequently he wrote a military paper on the escape of the Menin garrison and this brought him to the attention of staff officers of various German states and he was offered several commissions. He accepted service under the King of Prussia, and from this time dates the beginning of activities that eventually resulted in the establishment of the present-day Prussian military system, which was the genesis of the holocaust of nations.

It was Scharnhorst, the hero of Menin, who induced his sovereign to put aside the Prussian professional long service army which had been shattered at the battle of Jena and to inaugurate the policy of universal service. This was not ordered, however, until after the originator's death from a wound inflicted at the battle of Lutzen, in 1813.

Menin is, or was, a prosperous little town of 20,000 inhabitants engaged in the manufacture of lace, cotton goods, and tobacco. It nestles on the banks of the River Lys which here forms the boundary line between France and Belgium for a few miles.

Less than seven miles to the north-east of Menin is Courtral, scene of the famous battle of the Spurs in 1302. To the southwest, three and a half miles by rail, is the tobacco manufacturing town of Wovicq, whose 10,000 inhabitants are very proud of the Church of Medardus, founded at the beginning of the thirteenth century and rebuilt in 1383-1430. It had been rebuilt just before the outbreak of the war.

Branch lines from Menin run from Menin to Roulers, 11 miles to the north, and to Roubaix, a mile or two nearer, in a southeasterly direction, Ypres is 15 milee by rail to the north-west. Lille lies to the south, a distance of ten miles in an airline.

Grafting With Frog Skin.

A successful method of skin-grafting in which frog skin is used instead of human skin, as a covering for slow-healing wounds is described in The British Medical Journal by Captain H. W. M. Kendall, R.A.M.C. Wounds in which the skin has been destroyed heal naturally with a contracting scar, which is often unsightly and inconvenient, but the new method leaves a neat and supple scar.

Frog skin can be obtained in abundance at the front. The loose skin of the inner side of the frog's leg is snipped off with scissors, spread out, and applied by its under surface to the wound, which has been cleansed without antiseptics. It is fixed in place by a covering of gutta-percha tissue and a dry dressing. In three days the site of the graft appears as a spot branching outwards towards the edges of the wound. After the fifth day the wound is dressed with boric ointment until healing is completed, all contraction being avoided.

Captain Kendall claims for this method that it has the advantage of transplanting a skin free from hair and also free of any disease which might be conveyed in human skin. Twelve cases are described in which the frog-skin grafts were successful. The wounds were of various sizes up to four inches in length and one inch and a half in breadth.

His Scheme.

An actor in a London lodging house who had discovered his landlady's propensity for "swiping" numbered and listed his things. One night he roused the household by shouting down from his attic a demand for "No. 8."

"No. 8?" shouted the landlady back. "What No. 8?"

"I want cube No. 8 of my lump sugar," he replied.

Thenceforth the provisions in his cupboard were unmolested.—Argonaut.

RUSSIA IS A RIDDLE.

Slavs May Delay the Victory of the Allies.

A month that has seen the hardest and most costly fighting in the whole war will be remembered hereafter because of its political rather than its military events. In May the Russian situation underwent one complete change and many incidental shifts. A world that proclaimed the Russian Revolution as the guarantee of Allied victory and the assurance of solidarity between the Slav and the western nations has been compelled to face the possibility that Russia would voluntarily retire from the war or that the chaos within Russia would eliminate the new republic as a military force against the Central Powers.

The riddle remains unread. I do not pretend to forecast what may come out of the Russian situation. But I do warn my readers that it is idle and unwise to accept each passing interpretation of Russian events upon hope rather than knowledge, as a final disposition of the Russian problem and an ultimate dispersal of Allied doubts. In my judgment it is highly unlikely that there will be effective Russian military co-operation with the nations fighting Germany during the present year and this means that the war will almost inevitably be prolonged for another year.

There is a very large and influential body of Russian opinion which now advocates peace, not a separate peace with Germany, but peace in the world based upon the formula of no annexations and no indemnities. For Russia this means the renunciation of Galacian ambitions, and, even more important, of designs upon Constantinople and the Straits. This faction demands that the world shall make peace on the basis of things as they were in July, 1914, and also consents to the establishment of a free Poland and an autonomous Finland.

Unfortunately for the Allies this Russian faction demands that they shall declare themselves agreed to this program in advance of the Germans and a very real split is taking place between the liberal nations of the West and the radical and socialistic elements of Russia, because the Allies cannot and will not accept the Russian formula. Thus it is wholly inequitable that the Russians should demand that France accept the mutilation of 1870 as permanent, that Italy should resign her claim upon the Italians of Trieste and the Trentino, that the Serbs and Roumanians should be sent back to Austrian and Hungarian slavery in the name of justice and honorable settlement.

With this element in Russia Germany is playing. She has not agreed to accept peace without annexation or indemnity. The Russian collapse enabled Bethmann-Hollweg to face the peace party in Germany and silence it in the Reichstag, because in the Russian collapse the mass of the German people saw the promise of a real victory for themselves. Since the Russian Revolution German depression has almost vanished and at the moment there seems to be greater hope of decisive victory for their arms among the Germans than at any time since Verdun.

We are bound to face the fact that this extreme element in Russia may force a separate peace when it fails to force its program on its allies in advance of imposing it upon an old enemy. We are bound to face the fact that, even if a separate peace does not follow, this radical element in Russia has already so destroyed the cohesion and discipline of Russian armies that Germany has been enabled to transfer many divisions from the East to the West and these divisions have temporarily slowed down the British attack and absolutely checked the French.

Now it may be true, as many Russian sympathizers to-day assert, that the crisis has passed and that henceforth we may look for improvement in the Russian situation, viewing it from the Allied point of view. It is true that Alexieff and Brusiloff, who with Russky had resigned, have consented to go back to their posts. Therefore we may soon have a Russian attack. But, on the other hand, we may at least as reasonably expect a new outbreak of the element which desires to apply Utopian ideas to a world in which unconquered German armies still support ideas and ideals which have nothing in common with Utopia.

My judgment is, and it is founded on the opinions that I derive from France and Britain alike, that it would be idle to count upon any Russian aid for the next year. It may come and it may not; it probably will not. If it comes, effectively, we may see an end of the war this year, following a military decision, but not otherwise. If it does not come this year, it will, as I shall point out later, await the arrival of United States armies on the European battle front, unless the submarine weapon wins a negotiated peace for Germany.—Frank H. Simonds, in the American Review of Reviews.

Roumania Still Desires,
In Spite of Disasters,
To Liberate Countrymen

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

THE Roumanian Premier, Mr. Bratiano, gives the Petrograd correspondent of the Parisien the good news that the army of his sorely tried country is "perfectly trained," provided with better equipment and material than ever before, ready to fight again for the object which brought Roumania into the war:

"Her single object was and is the liberation of Roumanian territories enslaved by Hungary, which never had the right to dispose of themselves."

Consequently, Roumania can accept the present Russian formula of "no annexations nor indemnities." She seeks not conquest, but the union of a nationality. Beyond the Transylvanian Alps is a great stretch of land comprising all Transylvania, penetrating Hungary up to Arad and Grosswardein, and the Bukowina to Czernowitz. This territory is occupied by Roumanians, save for the Saxons and Zeklers in the bend of the Carpathians. "On the one side of the Carpathians," writes Mr. Lewin in "The German Road to the Far East," "is Roumania and freedom; on the other side is Transylvania and the political and spiritual domination of the Magyars." "The Roumanian communities," Mr. Leon Dominican tells us in his "Frontiers of Language and Nationality," "are scattered over an area of about 76,000 square miles." The official estimate of the number of Hungarian Roumanians is 2,932,214. This was made in 1910. The Roumanians show that the Austrian count in 1840 was 2,202,000. If the coefficient of increase among the Transylvanian Roumanians is the same as among Roumanians of Roumania, there must be 3,536,000 of the former.

PREMIER BRATIANO.

These Roumanians are peasants, few of them are landholders. They do own a good deal of the Transylvanian forest, and the Magyar magnates are trying to expropriate them, after the manner of the Prussians in Prussian Poland.

The Magyars rule these Romance-speaking unwilling subjects not more, or not much more, kindly than they rule their Slav subjects. In the courts Roumanians ignorant of Magyar often have to plead, by interpreters, before a Magyar judge, who insists on the use of Magyar, though he is familiar with Roumanian. Of the 413 members of the Hungarian Parliament, the Rumanians had one in 1896, in 1910 five. The Magyars have a monopoly of education as well.

Political freedom for these more than 3,000,000 Roumanians oppressed by Hungary, their union with their brethren on the other side of the Carpathians that is the Roumanian aim. The Roumanians fight for self-government, the triumph of nationality and popular aspiration. Roumanians have been annexed by Hungary. They wish to be disannexed. The Russian democracy must approve that wish and aim.

Russia's New Song.

The Russian revolution is complete, for Russia has now her revolutionary song! It is to be the song of the freed Russian Nation. The "Boje Tsaria Khrani," the old anthem, beautiful as it is, stands for a past from which every Russian wants to look away forever, and so it has been discarded for the wonderful plaint of the haulers of the Volga, a song than which no other is so full of the religious feeling of a race. Under the ancient regime the melody of the Volga was forbidden to be sung, because it had already been adopted by the revolutionaries. Igor Stravinsky has made it the theme of a national anthem which will take its place with the "Marseillaise" among the great historic songs of the world.

Preventing Explosions.

Mysterious explosions have been known to occur in flour mills and breweries, and are found to be due to fragments of iron, nails, or other particles which have got among the grain. These striking against the steel rollers of the mill produce sparks which ignite the finely-powdered matter. In one of the latter, where several explosions had occurred, it was determined to free the grain from iron before using it. To accomplish this it was passed over a set of electro-magnets before it was sent to the brewery. It was found that from eight hundred to one thousand bushels of grain could thus be freed from iron in an hour. When a large amount of iron fragments was collected the magnets were de-energized and swept clean.

SUGGESTIONS TO SICK WOMEN

How Many Are Restored To Health.

First.—Almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

Second.—The medicine most successful in relieving female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates and strengthens the organism; it overcomes disease.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, relieving backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

Third.—The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Fourth.—Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Contagious Diseases Among Plants.

All the fungous diseases of plants, such as mildew, scab, blight, rust, rot, etc., are contagious. The contagion is carried from year to year in the diseased part, be it leaf, fruit or branch. The presence of any of this diseased material in the orchard or vineyard increases the chance of the appearance and spread of the disease another year. Nothing is so destructive to the fungous spores as fire, and all affected plants or parts of plants should be cut out and burned.

Sea Serpents.

Sea serpents date back to the days of Aristotle, who wrote: "The serpents of Libya are of enormous size. Navigators along the coast report having seen a great quantity of bones of oxen, which they believe without doubt to have been devoured by the serpents. These serpents pursued them (the seamen) when they left the shore and upset one of their triremes."

Olaus Magnus wrote in the middle ages of a sea serpent 200 feet long and 20 feet thick which haunted rocks and caves near the seacoast, the old writer adding, "And he puts up his head on high like a pillar and catcheth away men, and he devours them."

An Explosion and a Bit of Luck.

A few years ago, at the railway station at Johannesburg, a trainload of blasting gelatine and ninety cases of detonators scooped a hole 400 feet long by 65 feet broad. Pieces of the engine were found a mile away, and beside the fifty more or less complete human bodies discovered twenty sacks were filled with human fragments.

A most extraordinary piece of good fortune attended this terrific explosion. A redhot missile hurtling through the air fell into another dynamite factory nearer the town. Had that factory exploded, the whole town of Johannesburg would have been an utter ruin. But it fell into the only pail of water in the place and instantly quenched itself.

QUAINT INDIAN LEGENDS.

Stories Are Associated With Our Great Lakes.

In old, old times, on the highest peak of a great mountain, there dwelt a hunter and his five sparkling daughters. Their lodge was of bright betula bark, and on clear days they could see the distant ocean flashing like a silver band.

"Come out! Come out!" cried the youngest daughter, the little Er. "Come Su! Come Hu! Come Mi! Come Cla! (The names stand in order for Erie, Superior, Huron, Michigan, and St. Clair). Let us away to the sea, where the foaming breakers roar!" So they left their lodge, and leaped and sang with happy hearts. Their robes were of blue and chrysolite green, and floated on the breeze. Their moccasins were of frozen water drops, and their wings of painted wind. And they scampered and romped across the plain, or floated beneath the sky, or rushed past valley and hill and field, singing and shouting with glee.

At last they came to a precipice of jagged rocks and moss. "Alas!" cried Er, "What a dreadful leap! But we have come so far that we must go on, or our father will laugh at us. So come on Su! Come Hu! Come Mi! Come Cla! and follow me!"

So over the steep they sprang, and floated down on their painted wings. They leaped and they sang like happy-hearted birds. Then little Er cried, "Let us up and down the steep again!" And up and down the five maids skipped and laughed at the sport and foam and called it Niagara Falls.

And to-day, through the rainbow mist, you may see their robes of blue and chrysolite green, and their painted wings and their twinkling feet, as the five play in the waterfall.

Once on the shore of Lake Superior there dwelt a lovely Indian girl. She was tiny and slender, with soft dark eyes and little feet. And whenever the moon rose faint and white while the sun was setting, she danced in a pine grove by the shore. When she danced thus her mother called, "Come back to the lodge, Leelinau, for the silver moon is rising. Soon the Little People, the fairies, will come out to play among the trees, and they carry away dancing maidens." So Leelinau returned sorrowfully to the lodge, for she longed to see the Fairies.

Summer after summer, on moonlit nights, the Little People joined hands and danced among the pines, and their sweet voices were heard by Leelinau sitting in the lodge. And when the Indians were sleeping, the mischievous Fairies came creeping in, and Leelinau waking, heard their low laughter in the dark. They rustled about, and hid the fisherman's paddle, and plucked the feathers from the headdress of the hunter, and carried away nuts and fruit. And in the morning Leelinau saw their tiny footprints in the sand dunes by the lake. And so it happened summer after summer.

When the long, cold winter nights came, the mother sat by the fire and told tales of Fairyland; how deep under the ground all were warm, and the flowers bloomed, and the Fairy birds sang, and the Little People feasted and rejoiced. And Leelinau's heart filled with longing to be in Fairyland. And so it happened winter after winter.

Now, on a summer day, a brave came to woo Leelinau. Her mother dressed her for the marriage. She bound her hair with sweet grass, and put her best garments on her, and led her out to the wedding feast. And the braves and squaws and the youths and maidens of the Chippewa, for miles around, came to the feast. But Leelinau sighed and wept, and begged that she might go alone to the pine grove before she became a bride. Her mother said, "Yes," so at evening time Leelinau decked her hair with flowers, and filled her arms with tassels of the pine trees. Then she hastened to the grove.

The darkness fell and Leelinau did not return. The moon arose and shed its white beams on the lake, but the maiden did not come. The bridegroom and guests went to search for her. They wandered through the grove, and they sought up and down the shore, but in vain! Leelinau was gone, and had left forever the upper world.

And no one had seen her go, except one poor fisher lad who was paddling his canoe near the land. He had watched her wander through the grove, and dancing with a bright Fairy Chief whose green plumes nodded high above his head. And then together they had vanished from his sight. And Leelinau the Fairy Girl was never seen again on the shore of Lake Superior.

Every time you pay three cents for postage of a letter that formerly went for two charge the difference to the Kaiser.

Every time you have a reminder that this war is costing you something, charge it to the Kaiser.

You will have many reminders. There will be increased taxes on incomes, on cigars, on liquors, on gasolene, on a hundred and one different things.

But pay without grudging, without complaint. Pay cheerfully, blithely, graciously, thankfully You will be paying that you may be free, that your children and your children's children may be free.

You will be paying that democracy shall not wither from the earth.

Father of Famous Naturalist.

John Miner, sr., father of the famous Jack Miner—friend and student of the feathered folk—has passed away in his 89th year. Mr. Miner was a native of Leicestershire, England, and came to this continent in 1853, and first engaged in the adventuresome life of the whale fisheries before treking to the State of Ohio, where he married Ann Broadwell, who predeceased him June 17, 1914. He came to Canada in 1872, and settled on what is now the home of his son "Jack" Miner, and known as "Wild Goose Preserve" at Kingsville. He is survived by five daughters and four sons. A sister, Mrs. Capell, of Grafton, Ohio, also survives him, and is in her 92nd year.

Maple Syrup.

On an average, it takes 43 3-7 gallons (imperial measure) of sap, as taken from maple trees, to make 1 gallon of syrup (imperial) weighing 13 lbs. 2 oz., which is the correct weight for syrup—(if lighter it is apt to sour, and heavier it crystalizes). This probably varies from year to year, and during different parts of the season, but on an average this is about correct.

A Northern Garden.

In 1877 Alexander Mackenzie told of seeing a fine kitchen garden at the old fort near the mouth of the Athabasca River. Melons and cucumbers, started in hot houses, ripen in that country, and potatoes are grown as far north as Fort Good Hope, close to the Polar Circle.

OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION.

Cardinal Gibbons Sees Hypocrisy As Result.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 27.—Herbert C. Hoover, prospective National Food Administrator, had a long conference with Cardinal Gibbons at the Cardinal's residence, on the plans for the solution of the food problem. Cardinal Gibbons afterwards commented as follows:

"I do not believe in the national prohibition of light wines and beer. I am of the opinion that such a law could not be enforced. I am opposed to any State-wide or nation-wide prohibition measures. The law of this kind interferes with the personal liberty and rights of the people, and creates hypocrisy on the part of the public."

WANT TO REBUILD

Gemmel and Co. Ask Special Permit From City

Gemmel and Co. wish to rebuild their building on Charlotte Street, and they wish to use nine inch walls in making the structure higher. This is contrary to the city regulation, so they made application to the council last evening for permission to proceed.

The council will deal with the matter on Tuesday evening after City Engineer Parsons has made a report on the condition of the old walls.

WAS ON RIGHT OF WAY

Mr. A. E. Dixon appeared before the City Council last night in reference to getting a settlement on behalf of the Edward Green Estate of the encroachment of the property on the old Government reserve. It appears that Mr. Green constructed some buildings without first having a right idea of where the reservation started, and later it was found that all the filling in that Mr. Green had done was on the right of way.

The matter was left in the hand of the city solicitor and the city engineer to report on Tuesday night next.

GEN. SIR SAM HUGHES IN ROLE OF GOOD SAMARITAN

Administered First and Later Aid to Party of Autoists Who Came to Grief Near Minden.

Mr. and Mrs. Sibley, Newmarket, and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mount Albert, figured in a motor car accident about four miles from Minden on Monday. General Sir Sam Hughes, Miss Aileen Hughes, Mr. W. E. Reesor, of Lindsay, Mr. Bingham, of Toronto, and Mr. Mulholland, Toronto, administered first aid to the injured, righted the car, and set the party on their way again. The serious side of the accident was a broken hip, sustained by Mrs. Sibley, and a badly wrecked auto top.

It appears that the party were motoring to a friend's near Haliburton, all parties being well up in years and the driver a man of seventy summers. When about half way between Miner's Bay and Minden (at the head of Gull Lake) the driver came to a bad hill. He succeeded in almost reaching the top on high gear, but apparently finding the car would go no higher on high gear he endeavored to shift into low. He was not quick enough and the car commenced to back down hill. Mr. Sibley jammed on the foot brake, but in his excitement utterly forgot to apply the emergency brake. For fifty feet or more the car careened backwards down the slope, canted into the ditch and turned turtle, the four occupants being pinned underneath. It was in this condition that they were found by General Hughes, who succeeded in administering first aid to the aged lady, and then continued on to Miner's Bay, where he secured the aid of Messrs. Reesor and Bingham (who are summering at the bay).

On returning to the scene of the accident it was found that Mr. Fred. Mulholland of Toronto had conveyed the injured lady to Minden, where a broken hip was attended to. The other three occupants of the car had succeeded in extricating themselves, and were not in the least injured; in fact were partaking of a lunch on the roadside. Mr. Reesor superintended the uprighting of the Overland, when it was found that but for a bent fender and a wrecked top the car was otherwise uninjured. The party piled in and continued on to Minden to pick up Mrs. Sibley, afterwards returning to their home in Newmarket.

A curious coincidence in connection with the happening was the story of the older man, to the effect that a year ago he suffered a similar accident, when his machine dropped over a twenty-foot embankment.

What the Society Sends.

Six parcels of food and 26 lbs. of bread are sent every month to every Canadian prisoner of war. The parcels alone cost three pounds, or calculating roughly in Canadian coinage fifteen dollars for each man.

The society pledges itself that these parcels are faithfully despatched, but it is beyond the power of the society to guarantee that every man receives them all.

We know that these parcels are all that stand between our men and starvation, and even at the risk of feeding a few Germans through the stealing of parcels, there must not be the least slackening on our part in the sending of them. We must be able to look those who are spared to return to the home land in the face, feeling satisfied in our own hearts that we strained every effort to feed and sustain them while in exile.

Few realize the great financial strain it is upon our local society every month, the sending of $500 to feed and keep life in our own Peterborough men who fought for us.

The society has made few appeals to the public, apart from its monthly subscribers, feeling assured that every one who realizes the tremendous magnitude and splendid character of the work being carried on not only by the National Society but by the local branch, would if able to do so, be moved to help generously. For all the world has gone so sorely awry these days, there still exists in human nature great depths of love and generosity, whose depths have only to be sounded and stirred by true and noble emotions and realization of the requirements of our work for all the financial aid we need to be forthcoming.

Premier Martin was elected in Regina city by a majority of 926 over his opponent, Brig.-General Embury, Hon. J. A. Calder is leading in Saltcoats constituency by 200, and the remaining polls promise to increase that lead. In Lost Mountain constituency, S. J. Latta, Liberal, has a majority of 624 in twelve polls out of forty-one, and his strongest support is still to be heard from. W. G. Robinson, the Liberal candidate in the district of Francis, is 75 votes behind his Independent opponent, M. Brennan, but twenty-seven polls are still to be heard from in that riding.

The total vote, including for the first time in a regular Provincial election the ballots marked by the women of Saskatchewan, was very large, and its numbers will far exceed the record of any previous election. Owing to this additional representation in the electorate of Saskatchewan the returns are slow in reaching Regina and it will likely be a day or two before the exact results will be known.

All Labor, Independent and Non-Partisan League candidates were defeated.

TWO WAYS TO ACQUIRE AN ESTATE

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family, and yourself maybe, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

TWO WAYS TO BEQUEATH AN ESTATE

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape at court. Requires court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator—you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of court proceedings—no expense of court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

A TALE OF TWO CITIEC

True to the old life itself is the ancient London street which figures largely as a setting for the tremendous super de luxe William Fox photoplay production "A Tale of Two Cities," in which William Farnum plays the dual role of Charles Darnay and Sidney Carton.

Even to the roughly paved roadway fringed with the picturesque houses of "ye olden times," fidelity to detail is exact. One of the dwellings, a typical inn, is "The Nag's Head," atmospheric to a marked degree, and exactly as described by Dickens, even to the sign which warns all citizens of the good town of London that stages for Dover leave at ten and two

There is the Old Bailey, His Majesty's gaol; here Tellson's banking house; over yonder St. Cuthbert Lodge, where the mellow traveller might wax a degree or so mellower and roar with his tankard of "musty." And over it all, enveloping everything, is the atmosphere which Dickens pictures scores of years ago —the old apple woman with her little stand; the children; the riff-raff of the streets; marching soldiers in scarlet; bawling hostlers.

Old London itself come to life, to live again for just a while upon the screen. At the Royal Theatre tonight and tomorrow.

COUNCIL FINALLY DECIDES TO GIVE $300 TO EACH BAND

Division on 50-50 Basis is Carried by Vote 6 to 3—Ald. Worth Praises S.A. Band, and Work of Adj. and Mrs. McElhiney.

The City Council decided the division of the Band appropriation last night when the bylaws were passed splitting the $600.00 upon a 50-50 basis.

Mayor Duffus left the voting on any of the bylaws open to the wish of the aldermen, but Ald. Saunders thought that it was just as well to settle it as the bands would like to know where they were at as soon as possible. He was in favor of the appropriation being divided $300.00 each. He had not forgotten that the 57th Band had not played in the King Edward Park last year on a date that had been agreed on.

Mayor Duffus had written both bands regarding playing on Dominion Day but had not heard from either as yet.

Ald. McIntyre was not in favor of considering the matter when Ald. Stratton was absent in Toronto. It was not fair.

Ald. Smith referred to the 57th Band not playing in the Park last Friday evening and disappointing hundreds of the citizens.

Ald. Dobbin asked if it was not possible for the bands to get an increase in their appropriation so that a more uniform division could be made.

Mayor Duffus pointed out that the increase made in the salaries of the firemen, the purchase of a motor truck for the Board of Works and the building of a storage tank for the road oil were all extras that had not been provided for in the appropriations. It was wrong for anyone to suggest an increase on this item. The grant to the 57th Band had been cut down gradually year by year. Their military grant was cut off and the Band had to depend on the members for its upkeep. They had played in different parts of the province and were a credit to the city. He had nothing to say against the S. A. Band but it was necessary for the city to have a band for all occasions. Last year when the city was economizing he had suggested that only one band be considered but he had not pressed the idea as it might be construed as coming from him.

Ald. Dobbin was ready to accept the Mayor's idea and vote the $600 to the 57th.

Ald. Weir thought that was the extreme.

Ald. Duncan was very much disappointed in the action of the Band in not showing up at the park last Friday.

Ald. Langford was favorable to the Salvation Army but would divide the grant the same as last year. The 57th Band was really the citizens band while the other was a sectarian organization. The 57th was well thought of all over the country and was always one of the bands picked to play at the Toronto Exhibition. The Salvation Army band had really cut into the 57th grant.

Ald. Smith suggested that the Bands play alternate nights and the number of nights played cut down but Mayor Duffus thought that that idea would not help the bands any.

Ald. Worth pointed out that the Salvation Army band had done a great deal for the city. The members were always ready to turn out while the 57th was hard to get. He also referred to the failure of the 57th Band to play at the park last Friday.

Ald. Weir thought that the Salvation Army Band was part of the advertising used to draw attention to that organization. They would play whether they got a grant or not.

Ald. Worth replied by saying that the Salvation Army was doing a great deal of good the world over. The money given to them was well spent and he lauded the good work of Adjutant and Mrs. McElheney in the city.

Ald. McIntyre was not satisfied to vote on the bylaw and if it came to a vote he would pair off with Ald Stratton.

Ald. Weir moved in an amendment to the bylaw that the grants be divided by giving the 57th. $400 and the S. A. $200. The amendment was lost on the following division.

Not voting—Ald. McIntyre. Ald. Stratton was absent.

Both bylaws then received their third readings and were duly signed and sealed.

How Coal Operators Hold up Public

Make War Time an Excuse for Charging Top Notch Prices.

WASHINGTON, June 27. — That American coal operators are milking the consumer of great sums of money under cover of "war conditions" was the statement in effect made to the Senate inter-state commerce committee by C. M. Moderwell, of Chicago, member of the coal committee of the Council of National Defence, and until recently associated with the United Coal Mining Co. of Illinois.

Moderwell declared that in Illinois the cost of producing coal has increased only about 50 cents a ton, while operators increased prices from $2.50 to $5 a ton, and from $4.50 to $8 a ton. He said operators are taking advantage of the demand by hoisting prices. He added that all mines are producing about 60 per cent. of capacity. To help combat the impending coal shortage the Forest Service today announced a campaign to induce everybody to use wood wherever possible, especially in the West. Low rates will be made on all timber available in the national forests, free fuel being given to those who will cut and haul it.

War Veterans Are

and a general talk on the events of next Monday followed.

Mr. Denne explained that the Motor League members were arranging to take the War Veterans to the grounds in autos, and that the parade would leave the Market Square at one o'clock, and after circling the main streets would proceed to the exhibition grounds.

Mayor Duffus explained the council's views regarding the admission of all the dependents of the men who had gone overseas.

Ald. Duncan and Worth expressed themselves very strongly on this matter. Both of them thought everyone should be recognized.

Sergt. Victor did not think that the returned men expected free admission to the grounds for their families. It was for a good cause, and they could well afford to pay 25 cents or more for admission. They wanted the dependents of the men overseas looked after principally, and he was aware that this had been attended to by Ald. Dobbin.

Council Grants $100.00

The Mayor and Aldermen finally decided, with the appoval of the committee in charge, to make a grant of $100.00 towards the demonstration in lieu of the loss of revenue caused by the free admission of all dependents. How the admission will be accompanied was left with Ald. Dobbin to arrange, notice of which will be given later.

It was also arranged that the formal reception of the city to the men who have returned from the front will be held at the exhibition ground at two o'clock in the afternoon. Short addresses will be arranged for by Mayor Duffus.

Veterans to Parade

The Great War Veterans. The Veterans of '66 as well as the Veterans of other wars will meet in the morning at an hour to be designated by Colonel Walker and make a parade of the city to the Park where short addresses appropriate to the occasion will be made.

Capt. J. H. Burnham, M. P., notified Mayor Duffus that he would be home for the celebration and will address the gathering both morning and in the afternoon.

The arrangements for the sports at the Exhibition Grounds are complete and all the committee hope for is favorable consideration from the Weather Man.

There will be band concerts in both parks in the evening.

Airplanes Expected

An effort will be made to have one or two of the Royal Flying Corps from Deseronto fly to the city for the day. In their trial spins they come as far north as Rice Lake, and it would be an easy matter for them to come here. It would be a great event if Vernon Castle should take it into his head to arrive in one of the flights himself.

All that is necessary now is for the citizens to "Hop in and boost."

JUST LET THEM ALONE.

Leonard Construction Co. Likely to Repair the Streets.

Alderman Saunders drew the attention of the Council last night to the possible danger to the Romaine street sewer by reason of the heavy motor trucks of the Quaker Oats Co going over it.

Alderman Dobbin remarked that Brock street was fast going to pieces owing to the unusually heavy loads being carried by the motor trucks.

Alderman Smith thought that the company might put Brock street in as good shape as they did the roads of North Monaghan, over which their lorries drive.

NEW TEXT BOOKS FOR USE NEXT YEAR.

In the text book regulations just issued by the Ontario Department of Education the following books will not be used in the high schools of collegiates after midsummer, 1918: O.H.S. Reader, Grammar, Physical Geography, French Reader, German Grammar or Reader, and the second course in bookkeeping. The children's Story of the War was recommended in 1915 for use in the Public and Separate schools, but as the publishers have since raised their prices from 8 to 12 cents per monthly volume, the publication is no longer recommended by the Minister.

YOUR CHANCE—THE WEST IS CALLING

Homeseekers' Excursions to Western Canada at low fares, via Canadian Pacific each Tuesday until October 30th, inclusive. Particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or W. B Howard, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

YOU ASk US:

Are the right boys and young men being reached by the Young Men's Christian Association?

AND WE ANSWER:

Yes — Yes — Yes!

Your boy is being made better by the "Y."

And the boy of your neighbor, as well.

And the boy and young man whose home is elsewhere and who, therefore, needs the "Y."

And the boy who is poor — denied by fate or fortune what many other boys have through no fault of theirs, and yet what every boy should have — the best possible chance to become a MAN and a citizen.

But who is the right boy?

He is the boy that the "Y." can help.

It doesn't matter who his father is or what his father does.

The thing of importance is the boy himself.

The "Y." helps his body to become strong, to resist disease, to become lithe and graceful.

The "Y." helps to shape and harden a boy's will — to take away from him irresolution and timidity. The "Y." gives courage and sets a boy right in relation to his fellows.

The "Y." takes up the slack in a boy's time, fills the vacancy in his life. The "Y." diminishes tendencies to evil speaking and thinking and doing. It keeps a boy from drifting and slipping backwards.

The "Y." puts VIM and VIGOR into a boy — helps him to live and speak clean.

Mothers and fathers and friends of boys in Peterborough — thank God for the "Y."

THE RIGHT BOY? Your boy—your neighbor's boy—he is the boy who needs the "Y." and for whom the "Y." exists. An the "Y." can get him and hold him safe — with your help!

Peterborough's boys — are they not worth

$10,000?

What Will You Take for Your Boy?

New Building By-law Before The Council

Bulky Document Will Be Taken Up By Committee.

City Engineer Parsons informed the City Council last night that he had prepared a building bylaw for the city, and that it covered 200 typewritten pages.

Mayor Duffus was in favor of a strict building bylaw from a fire standpoint, and thought that at an early date that a committee should be appointed to consider.

Ald. Duncan was in favor of having a number of the leading contractors and builders on the committee

Copies of the proposed regulation will be prepared and passed around for the consideration of those interested, and then the council will hear the recommendations and decide.

RAILWAYS HOLD UP SHIPMENTS

DEALERS NOT TO BLAME FOR DELAY IN RECEIVING COAL.

The coal situation as it effects Peterboro was up before the City Council last night, and Mayor Duffus explained that he had received word from City Solicitor Gordon that the railway board had considered the city's bylaw, and he would have their decision ready for the council at the meeting next Tuesday.

The president of the company that has agreed to supply the city with coal will telegraph Ald. Dobbin today as to the result of his mission to the coal fields.

Ald. Worth was of the opinion that the coal dealers were not to blame. He had bought a car of coal in Toronto over two weeks ago and it had been between Toronto and Peterboro ever since. The railways are causing all the trouble.

Ald. Smith was of the opinion that the Canadian Government should arrange for a coal supply from the U. S. Government the same as other countries were doing.

Mayor Duffus was strongly of the opinion that the Government could relieve the situation if they took immediate action.

Porches Will Be Allowed To Stand

Provided Mr. Goodwill Complies With Certain Conditions.

The City Council last night decided that if Mr. Goodwill will cover the floors and roof of the back porches to his building on Water Street that they will agree to allow the fixtures to stand. It is also understood that the paint used in the finish is to be the best fire-proof paint that can be got.

It was explained to the council that the contractor had gone ahead with the work of erecting the porches without any idea that he was violating the building law. The same man had built the porches on other buildings within a block or two of the Goodwill Building without any trouble After this decision had been reached a resolution was passed that in future a plan and a copy of the specifications of all buildings or alterations shall first be submitted to the city engineer before a permit to build is issued.

RAILING FOR FOOTBRIDGE.

William Hamilton Co To Get Contract For $625.

Chairman Weir of the Board of Works submitted to the City Council last night two tenders for the iron pipe railing for the C.P.R. foot bridge and decided to accept the offer of the William Hamilton Co. at $625.00 delivered at the bridge, the city to erect it themselves. The other tender was from White and Ackford for $765.00, erected.

The Dominion Millers' Association recommended to the board of grain supervisors that Canada should adopt war flour.

SCRAP METAL IS HIGHER PIG IRON IS SCARCE

In its summary of the iron, steel, metal and machinery markets for the week ending June 26, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, Toronto, makes the following observations:—

The abnormal conditions in the steel industry in the States continue to be reflected in Canada. As predicted last week, prices of a number of steel products have advanced, including iron and steel bars, plates, shapes, black, blue-annealed and galvanized sheets, Canada plates, wire and wire products. Consumers, anxious to obtain steel, are paying fancy prices and are thus assisting materially in the upward movement. The shortage of steel is becoming more acute, causing considerable inconvenience to consumers who are getting behind in their work, owing to their inability to get material on time. The Canadian mills are booked up for at least six months and their output is largely being absorbed for war purposes, thus private customers have to rely on United States mills for a considerable proportion of their requirements. Extraordinary prices are being paid for ship plates and shapes, and some mills are refusing business, so heavy is the demand. Domestic foundry pig-irons are still off the market and no prices are being quoted. In the States pig-iron prices are still climbing and the end is not in sight. The situation in the market is unsatisfactory owing to the heavy demand and scarcity of pig-iron. Prices of coke are also advancing and production does not increase, although the demand is heavier. There is no change in the coal situation, but the outlook is improving. Prices of non-ferrous metals are unchanged from last week. The markets are dull with business practically at a standstill, as both producers and consumers are awaiting developments pending definite action on the part of the American Government. The scrap metal market is also dull and featureless. Consumers are staying out of the market hoping for lower prices which does not appear probable, owing to the scarcity of scrap and tendency to higher prices for all metals. The situation in the machine tool market is much the same as last week. Prices continue to advance and deliveries are getting more backward.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEETS

The North Monaghan Council held their meeting in the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday evening, June 23rd, 1917. All the members were present, with Reeve Rye occupying the chair.

The minutes of the last two meetings were read and confirmed.

A communication from G. N. Gordon was read re John Armstrong, asking for a ditch opposite lot 6, concession 9, that it be cleaned out; also asking that a ditch opposite lot 3, concession 9, be cleaned out.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by M. Dobbin, that the brush cut out of the way of the grader and thrown into the ditch opposite lot 6, concession 9, be removed from said ditch by the road commissioner.

Moved by Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Henry, that the road commissioner for Road Division No. 6 locate places in his division for piling gravel or crushed stone for repair work, and to deliver to the said places a sufficient quantity.

The following bills were presented for payment:

J. W. Fitzgerald, surveying the east end of Braidwood Avenue and taking evidence, $24.70.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Bell, that these bills be passed and paid.

Moved by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Williams, that Private James Houghton's application for permission to build a boat house on the Government reserve on the river be granted.

Also that each boat house owner pay a nominal rental of 25c each per annum.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the clerk be paid a salary of $320 per annum.

The following session of allowances and salaries were then directed to be made:

H. B. Rye, one half-year's sessional allowance, $20.00; J. H. Bell, for same purpose, $15.00; T. Henry, $15.00; J. A. Williams, $15.00; R. A. Dobbin, $15.00; Bert Sanderson, one half-year's salary for assessing, $75.00; Bruce Johnston, one half-year's salary as clerk, $160.00; W. H. Bradburn, one half-year's salary as treasurer, $80.00.

Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Williams, that Foster Moncrief be paid $5.68 for man and team putting in culvert on gravel road.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the next meeting be held at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, July 9th, 1917, at 2 p.m.

The meeting then adjourned.

SOME FISHING LORE

Natural Bait Best as a Rule to Attract the Finny Fellows

One of my great fads in fishing has been that natural bait, to be obtained in field or wood or water, is the proper lure to use in fishing, writes Hugh S. Fullerton, the well known sporting authority. One knows, of course, the commoner baits, such as frog, minnow, and the common angle worm, but they are not always at hand.

For black bass use medium or small frogs for casting, or a large shiner, a piece of pork rind cut to size of a minnow. All are good. I have a theory that the bass has not the keen eyesight and discrimination of trout, landlocked salmon or the great northern pike. For these fish the larger frogs are best.

In fishing I always draw the first fish I catch of any species and examine the contents to see the nature of the stuff they are feeding upon. Many fish change diet with the season, eating other fish, water bugs, worms, etc., for a time, then feeding upon grasses and even the slimy mud on water plants. At seasons when they are on a vegetarian diet fishing is poor.

For late winter and early spring fishing, or fishing through ice I use dough bait. The fish are hungry at that time and in deep water and strike ravenously. My favorite bait is the black-headed grub so often found under the bark of rotting stumps and trees.

Using dough bait I often catch yellow perch, crappie or silver bass, and removing the eyes find them one of the most effective of baits. The eyes seem to attract all varieties of fish.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

ALLIES WON TWO OUT OF THREE

One of the most exciting Five Pin matches yet played took place last night at the Water Street Alleys, when the Allies took two out of the three games from the C. G. E.

Holladay for the Allies had high single score for the evening with a 230 count, and also was high for the three games, with a total of 452. For the C. G. E. Earley had high single game of 149 and high three games with a total of 430. Following is the score:

BASEBALL

RUBE BENTON'S BIRTHDAY

To begin with his name isn't Rube at all. He is Mr. J. Benton, pitcher for the New York National League club, also sometimes referred to as the Giants. And he's a darn good pitcher, too, b'gosh. But that isn't the question that's before the house just now. Rube will to-morrow celebrate his twenty-seventh birthday, and the Giants and friends—there are very many of them despite all reports to the contrary—will gather around him and wish him many happy returns of the day. Rube was born in Clinton, N.C., June 27th, 1890. His first appearance in baseball was with a Lakeland, Fla., semi-professional team. That was in 1909. In the following year he was drafted to the Macon club, which sold him to the Cincinnati National League team later in the season for $3,500. He played with that club during 1911, when he was sold conditionally to the Chattanooga club of the Southern League. The Reds, however, recalled him, and he played with them until 1915. On August 25 of that year he was sold to Pittsburg, but four days later transferred to the New York team on a writ of error. He has been playing with the Giants ever since. His effectiveness as a pitcher has increased with each season, and so has his popularity with the fans.

BASEBALL ALPHABET

R—stands for Rally that often comes late;
You plead for some hits and then patiently wait.
The batter obeys knocks one into the stand

When it comes to fielding you've got to hand it to the White Sox. If these same gentlemen will look to their batting and do a little better in that very necessary branch of the game, there may be a nice pennant hanging in their back yard at the end of the season.

And then there's old Peck, known as Mr. Peckinpaugh when he has his street clothes on. He certainly is a ne plus ultra, nonpareil, par excellence shortstop this year, and in conjunction with Baker and Hendry is doing the heavy playing for the Yankees.

Hans Wagner's importance to the Pirates is seen more clearly every day. He seems to steady the whole team, for one thing, and then, for another, ask the man who takes in the money at the gate, and he'll tell you that Hans is a big drawing card.

One of the surprises of the season is Bert Niehoff. He had practically no training this spring, because he refused to go south on account of a hitch in matters of salary. Despite this fact he is playing a star game. So you see, it all depends upon the individual.

If ever a man was proud over what he considered a find, it's Hughie Jennings, the find in his case being Carrol Jones, a young pitcher. Jennings is convinced that Jones has the makings of a star moundsman in him. Where have we heard that line of stuff before?

Grouchy Gus says: "Money makes the mare go, but many a mare has made the money go; and then, on the other hand many a mare has brought the money back; and then, sometimes, that is to say, nevertheless—well, it's always dull on a rainy day, isn't it? Yes."

The fear is growing that Smoky Joe Wood will never be able to pitch again. The old strain that recently came back will not disappear, and Wood is, of course, disconsolate. He has already made it known that if his pitching days are over he will consider his contract void and will refuse to take a cent of his salary. Physicians who have been observing the former star moundsman declare that he should not have been permitted to pitch more than one or possibly two innings at practice and so gradually work himself into the game again, instead of undertaking to pitch an entire game, as he did when he finally developed anew his old arm trouble. Lee Fohl feels very kindly towards Wood, whom he credits with having broken in many a young pitcher. So it looks as if Wood will be kept on the salary list even if he can't pitch.

Bill Byron once said to McGraw:
"You were chased out of Baltimaw."
This McGraw resented,
And Byron repented
When he hit Muggy's fist with his jaw.

PUGILISTIC ANNALS

1905. — Jack Johnson outpointed Jack Munroe in one of the liveliest six-round bouts ever seen in Philadelphia.

Hans Wagner Not the Honus of Old

PITTSBURG, June 26. — Hans Wagner is not the Honus of the old. In a recent game with the Giants three of the four blows that the great Wagner made were of the scratch variety and two bases were pilfered in the ninth inning when two were out and no attention was paid to Hans as he jogged from base to base. Wagner is back again, but only in contour does he resemble the Wagner of old.

This does not mean that the veteran has reached the age where his actions are pitiful. He was such a great player that he probably could retragrade another 40 per cent, and still hold his place in the big show. Stationed at third, where he hasn't as much ground to cover as he would have in the short field, and where he doesn't want to work as hard as he would have to work at first base. Wagner will shut off many a hit with those long arms and enormous paws of his and his bat, though no longer as powerful as of old, will probably prove a valuable weapon on more than one occasion ere the season draws to a close.

"I thought I could quit," he says siply, "but I soon found that I couldn't. I found that I couldn't sit quietly at home and read the box scores and so I have come back."

He is paid $10,000 a season by the management.

More than $50,000 will be contributed by London citizens by voluntary subscription to the Tuberculous Soldiers' Sanitarium at Byron.

Four men, two on each side of Carmine street in the lower west side of Manhattan, emptied their automatic pistols at one another. The bullets wounded a man, a woman and two children. All of the "gangsters" escaped.

Robert S. Walsh, a strike leader, took $500 in marked money to call off a strike at the Cresson-Morris Works in Philadelphia, engaged in cannon making. He was immediately arrested and the detectaphone will figure in his trial.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

HARVEY—DAVIDSON.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. James Davidson, 568 Park street, this afternoon when the Rev. Robt. Pogue united in marriage her daughter Miss Lillian Davidson, and Mr. Joseph Henry Harvey of Toronto. There were a number of the immediate friends and relatives present.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey left on the afternoon C.P.R. express for a honeymoon trip and on their return will reside in Toronto.

Mrs. Claude Rogers left the city to-day to spend a few days in her cottage at Stoney Lake.

The members of the St. John's Women's Auxiliary held their annual picnic at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Weller Street. There was a large attendance of the older members, and all enjoyed toe hospitality of their hostess in place of going to Jackson Park, where their outing had been held in former years.

Mr. Hal Crane and Mr. Beaufort Belcher have been successful in passing their entrance examinations to the Royal Military College. Both were students at the local collegiate.

Miss B. M. Philp, of McDonald College, Que., is visiting in the city.

Mr. W. D. Lee, of Millbrook, was in the city last evening.

Mr. H. S. Pisey, of La Chute, Que., is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. H. A. Middleton and party from Lindsay motored to the city last night.

Mr. C. M. Leonard, of the Leonard Construction Co., Chicago, is in the city.

Mr. J. A. Spellman, of Hastings, was in the city to-day.

Mr. Thomas Morrow, of Port Hope, is in the city.

The ladies of the Peterboro Health Association are calling on their friends with membership tickets and tickets of admission to the exhibition grounds on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Fraser, of Hamilton, were in the city this morning.

Mr. J. M. Marcus, of Albany, N.Y., is stopping at the Empress.

Congratulations to Miss Olive Johnston upon passing the A.T.C.M. piano examination at the Toronto Conservatory of Music. Miss Johnston is a pupil of Mr. Frank Welsman, of Toronto.

Lieut. Romeyn Stevenson, formerly of the 93rd, and now attached to the R. F. C., is at present in the Cilchester military hospital suffering from a painful wound on the leg, which he received in the Hun raid on England June 5. Lieut. Stevenson was acting as observer with a young Australian pilot. They were the first up, and at a height of 15,000 feet met the Hun squadron, who opened fire on them. They remained in the fight until their engine was knocked out and they were forced down. Lieut. Stevenson owes his life to the fact that he was not strapped in. The machine in descending struck the hanger, throwing him a distance of fifty yards. It then struck the ground, turned upside down, and the engine crashed back over the head of the pilot and landed in the observer's cockpit. The pilot was so badly injured that he has since died. The Huns lost ten airplanes in the raid.

The engagement is announced of Delphine Anne (Dell) Baker, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Baker, to Mr. Leo Egan Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers, both of Lindsay. The marriage will take place July 17th.

Mrs. James Ross of Peterborough, announces the engagement of her daughter, Georgia Logie, to Dr. J. J. Craig, of Bowmanville, the marriage to take place quietly early in July.

Mr. Peever Leaves For Home in London

Large Party of Friends Accompany Pastor and Family to the Depot.

Rev. R. G. Peever and family left this morning for their new home in London, taking the C. P. R. at 7.30. They will reach London some time this afternoon. A large number of friends, both in and outside the congregation of George Street Church, escorted Mr. and Mrs. Peever to the station and there took final leave of them. There were fifteen or more autos, which were filled with representatives of the board of trustees, the official board, the Epworth League and other of the church societies.

TRINITY CHOIR HAVEANOUTING TO GLADHALKEN

SPLENDID AFTERNOON ENJOYED BY MEMBERS AT STONEY LAKE.

Trinity choir were entertained to a very enjoyable outing yesterday afternoon when the members took the afternoon train to Lakefield and then proceeded to Mr. John Crane's summer home, "Gladhalken," Stoney Lake, where a real picnic lunch was partaken of by the thirty-five members of the party. After enjoying the beauties of the island for a while the party proceeded to South Beach, where supper was enjoyed. Friends with motor cars arrived in the latter part of the evening, and a splendid ride home was the result.

A feature of the afternoon's fun was a baseball game between teams selected by Messrs. F. W. Skitch and John Crane. That the score was juggled by the umpire is the opinion of Mr. Crane, who claims a victory, by two to one, for his side. The twirling of the two batteries, Miss Greta Giles and Miss Clara Petthick, was something wonderful.

OBITUARY

MARGUERITE STEPHENSON.

Marguerite, aged 19 months, only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. Stephenson, 310 Edinburgh street, died Monday, after a brief illness. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN MASON

Eliza Brown, wife of John Mason, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. William Nill, of the 9th line of Cavan, early this morning. She had been living in Cavan for about four months, having previously resided at Roseneath. She was 73 years of age, and is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Nill, of Cavan, and Mrs. Margrett, of Toronto, and two sons, Walter, of Roseneath, and John, of Bailleboro.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. D. Thompson, of Hastings, assisted by Rev. Mr. Clark.

THREE MONTHS FOR HAGGART

CONVICTED OF KEEPING A DISORDERLY HOUSE ON GEORGE STREET.

Three months in the County Jail was the sentence meted out by Police Magistrate Dumble this morning to James Haggart on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, while his co-defendant, Mrs. Edith Hinkley was allowed out on suspended sentence upon promising to go at once to her husband in Detroit. The woman is the mother of one of the women who were sent to the Mercer Reformatory yesterday and has been living with Haggart at 255 George street.

Mrs. Annie Deline told a story of immoral doings in the house, as well as stories of gambling games that were indulged in by several local men.

The names of the parties who used the place for immoral purposes are in the hands of the authorities and if they are not prosecuted they will at least be under the surveillance of the officers.

A young girl who was found in the house at the time the officers made the raid was allowed out on suspended sentence.

There are, of course, those in the city who are ready to assert that the soldiers wives are better off today than when their husbands enlisted. That is a narrow view to take. win the war than to win the next general election.

The referendum would allow the slackers to determine our policy at the front and give undue power to the province where most of the slackers reside.

No mater which way the referendum went, it is unlikely that the Liberals, if returned to power, would pass the conscription act.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the bulk of his followers, who are opposed to conscription, might form a government that would do for the millennium, but not one able to face Armageddon.

If organized labor opposes conscription, it is probably because the present bill aims only to conscript man power.

The government should impose an income tax that will hurt, cut out patronage, especially in military finances, remove all tariff duties from food and fuel and make every man wearing khaki earn his pay.

I shall support this measure on its second reading and I shall vote against the referendum.

CONTRIBUTIONS PASS $7000 MARK IN Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN

Nearly $3000 is to be Made up To-day---Workers Are Meeting With Encouraging Success and Are Well Received by Citizens Everywhere.

Tuesday night's total ....$ 5,237
Last night's total 7,041
Total objective 10,000

A considerable number of possible large contributors yet to be seen and many smaller ones.

The foregoing statement tells in brief the net result up to last night of the Y.M.C.A. special campaign for funds which was launched on Tuesday and which is expected to close tonight. The workers are delighted with the reception they are receiving. Several possible large contributors are out of the city and the executive committee have kept the telephone and telegraph wires busy with the result that several important decisions are likely to be received today or this evening. In the meantime the small contributors are responding generously and willingly and in a manner that is delighting the faithful workers who are sacrificing their own business interests in order that the good work may be carried on to a successful conclusion.

Some Contributions.

Yesterday's subscriptions, composed very largely of small amounts, reached the very satisfactory total of $1,804.69. The largest contribution was $500 from those always good and dependable friends of the association, the Misses Dickson sisters. It was much appreciated. The next largest subscription was one of $100 from the Henry Hope & Sons Company. A few subscriptions came in at $50, practically all the rest being for $25 or less. One worker reported that a man standing on the street and looking up at the Y.M.C.A. streamer hanging across George street asked what the campaign was for. On being told he remarked that that was a good cause and he wanted to help it along and he handed over a dollar.

Workers Much Encouraged.

At the worker's luncheon held last evening for the reporting of results much enthusiasm was shown and numerous incidents of the canvass were told. One report that was received from practically all was that the people are ready to give as far as their means permit and thus it is easy to canvass them. Some complimentary things are being said about the advertising campaign that has been conducted. It evidently has given light on the work of the "Y" to a number of people and influenced them in the making of their contributions.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, manager of the De Laval Company, which has contributed $250, said that when he wrote to the president of his company recommending the making of a contribution he received back a most sympathetic letter approving of the giving of a contribution and speaking in the highest terms of the splendid work the "Y" is doing. The president's own son has given up a course in college to enlist with the United States naval corps and when his father visited the training quarters recently he was surprised to find that the Y. M. C. A. already had their tents up and were engaged in looking after the welfare of his son and the many other young men as well.

One lady in making her contribution said that as soon as the "Y" will improve its swimming pool so as to ensure a better and more frequent supply of water she would give an extra $100. A manufacturing firm said that as soon as the pool was enlarged they would give $200. While the soldiers were in the city the privilege of using the swimming pool free, which was extended to them, was one of the most appreciated features of the work of the association.

Send in Your Subscriptions.

In spite of the fact that a large staff of workers is at work it seems evident that it is going to be practically impossible for them to recall the people who would like to contribute before the campaign closes. Should there be any who are unintentionally overlooked they are asked to send in their contributions, no matter how small or large, to the association or hand them to any of the workers whom they may happen to see. It is likely to be nip and tuck as to whether the $10,000 mark will be passed and therefore every little will help and a considerable number of little lifts, especially with a few larger ones thrown in, soon helps to make a big total.

Here's hoping the "Y" reaches its total and passes it by a nice margin.

CHASTISED BOY CAUGHT TARTAR

HENRY KELLETT SPOKE OUT OF TURN IN POOLROOM.

Henry Kellett undertook to be a corrector of the morals of the youth of the city and while in a pool room on Simcoe street, himself enjoying a pipe of tobacco, he reprimanded a young man for smoking a cigarett. This was where Kellett spoke out of his turn. The young fellow while he looked about 12 was entitled to vote, and a sharp answer to Kellett "To mind his own business" was forthcoming and Kellett took it on himself to take the offender to the Police Station. Later on the old young man returned to the pool room and when he attempted to enter was stopped by Kellett and slapped once or twice. "Mousie" as the old young man is called, immediately proceeded to the police and a summons was taken out for Kellett.

At the Police Court this morning both sides of the case were heard. Kellett admitted that he had been fooled in the age of the plaintiff but wanted to chastise him for smoking cigarettes and using bad language.

Magistrate Dumble was anxious to find under what authority the defendant undertook to be a corrector of public morals even if the offenders were under age. It was plainly a case of uncalled for interference on Kellett's part. If he had not liked the conduct of frequenters of the pool room, he should have got out and gone on his way.

The magistrate fined Kellett $2.00 as a warning to not interfere in future.

WILL MOVE FOR AN ELECTION

NATIONALIST TO DO SO IF HOIST AMENDMENT IS LOST.

OTTAWA, June 28.—Mr. J. A. Barrette, Nationalist-Conservative member for Berthier, the mover of the amendment to the amendment calling for a Parliamentary six months' hoist to the conscription bill, stated that, in event of the defeat of his proposal, he will immediately move another amendment to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's referendum amnedment, demanding a general election before the bill is further proceeded with, on the ground that the present Parliament is a moribund Parliament, and no longer enjoys the confidence of the Canadian electors. This action may further prolong debate, and delay the passing of the bill.

The Assaulting Troops Were Composed of Men From Four Provinces in Dominion---Are Step Nearer to Lens.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Army Headquarters in France, June 28.—A further phase of the long struggle for the recovery of Lens from the German invader was reached early this morning when the enemy's front line, protecting Avion, a suburb of the city, was captured by storming waves which went forward under the protection of a concentration of artillery fire on that part of Avion immediately behind the German lines. The assaulting troops were composed of men from British Columbia, Manitoba, Central Ontario and Nova Scotia.

By this morning's advance the British line has been carried forward to within a mile of the centre of Lens. Canadians have been greatly heartened by the successes gained during the past few days at a relatively small cost and this morning's advance, which involved the crossing of open ground sloping up to Avion and the village of Leauvette, near the Souches River, met with opposition of a serious nature at only one point where a combination of machine gun fire and uncut wire delayed some of the Manitoba men. The attack was not intended to be pressed home at this particular point because the ground specially favored the enemy, so no great harm was done.

The men to the east and west of the Manitobians having reached their own objectives, at once began to bomb the enemy out of portions of trenches held by him in the centre. When this despatch was sent few Germans were left on this part of the line. On the extreme left of the two mile front along which the attack was made Nova Scotians pushed their way up the Lens-Arras road to the village of Leauvette. Here they came into contact with the enemy and took a number of prisoners.

At the other end of the line east of the railway track enemy dugouts were bombed. Their occupants belonged to the crack Prussian Guards Corps and Fifth Guard Grenadiers who refused in most cases to come out and surrender. One officer and twenty-one men of the Grenadiers decided that discretion was the better part of valor. Others are believed to be still alive in the dugouts which will be thoroughly explored after the ground won is consolidated.

At daybreak our aeroplanes flying low over Avion saw very few Germans there. Craters which recently were made by mine explosions at the cross roads are now seriously hindering them in bringing up troops from Lens for counter attacks. The enemy's guns have been shelling our communication trenches but our heaviest are now taking them on with good results.

HOT TIME ON FRENCH FRONT.

PARIS, June 28.—Artillery fighting was particularly active last night in the regions of Hurtebise Monument and Mount Carnillet. A German attack against salient of Wattweiler, northeast of Thann was repulsed. The enemy left behind several dead, including the body of an officer. Patrol engagements near Fliery and Besonvaux enabled us to take prisoners. It has now been established that an Albatross, attacked by one of our airplanes on Monday, fell within the enemy lines east of Gratreuil. Yesterday an Albatross was brought down southeast of Morenvilliers.

CORPORAL HALL KILLED.

PARIS, June 28.—Corporal James Hall, of Colfax, Iowa, who wrote "Kitchener's Mob," is believed to have been killed in an encounter with seven German airplanes. He joined the American aviation squadron after being wounded in the British army and discharged.

NO EXTENSION SAY LIBERALS

EVEN THOSE WHO FAVOR CONSCRIPTION WILL INSIST ON ELECTION.

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, June 28. — It is now pretty well settled that the Extension of Parliament Bill will be resisted to the utmost when it comes up. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when questioned by a speaker in the debate yesterday, admitted it. Many of those who have so spectacularly decided to vote for conscription have intimated that they will not commit again the blunder of a year ago by voting for an extension.

This is considered by the Government as inconsistent. The Government's plan is, however, now broad and fair, and it is not expected that the country will disapprove it.

ALEXANDER OF GREECE IS FRIENDLY TO ENTENTE POWERS.

ATHENS, June 28.—The resignation of Premier Zaimis was occasioned by his decision that he could not assume responsibility for convocation of the parliament of May 31st, 1915, which King Constantine dissolved. M. Jonnart, diplomatic representative of the Allies, demanded the assembling of this parliament, in which M. Venizelos had a majority. In resigning, M. Zaimis announced that King Alexander was willing to comply with all the demands of the Entente.

AIRSHIPS BUSY AGAINST TURKS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

BRITISH AIRSHIP DESTROYS FOE CRAFT FOUR MILES IN AIR

Highest Altitude at Which Aviators Have Yet Engaged in Combat---Hun Pilot and Observer Fall 20,000 Feet When the Attack Begins.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, June 28.—In an aerial duel at probably the greatest altitude at which aviators have fought, nearly four miles, a triplane today pursued an enemy two seated Aviatik and worsted its crew. When the Aviatik spotted the triplane it sought safety by climbing upward. The triplane went after it. At a height of twenty thousand feet the pilot of the enemy machine either fell or jumped from it and disappeared at the mouth of the first burst of fire from the gun of the pursuing airplane.

The observer was then seen to get out upon the tail of the machine but he lost his hold and he too in a few moment fell headlong to earth. Finally the machine was seen to turn its nose down and after falling nearly four miles crashed into the earth.

CAPT. CALLAGHAN KILLED WHEN AIRSHIP WENT WILD

Gallant Soldier Meets Sudden Death at Camp Borden.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

CAMP BORDEN, June 28.—Capt. Dan Callaghan, of the Royal Flying Corps, was killed last night when the airplane in which he was starting a trip to Toronto with Pte. Francis of Victoria, struck a tree while rising and crashed to the ground. The engine struck Callaghan on the back of the head, pinning him to the earth. Francis suffered a broken leg and minor injuries but is resting easy.

Callaghan had been at the front from the beginning of the war until detailed to Toronto. He came to the camp here in connection with wireless installations and intended returning by train.

Operators Will Reduce Price of Coal $1·50 a Ton at Mines

WASHINGTON, June 28 — An immediate general reduction of one dollar to a dollar and a half per ton in the price of coal at the mines was agreed upon here today by representatives of the coal operators. This reduction is expected to be followed by a still further decrease in price after an investigation into the cost of mining coal.

SIR HERBERT AMES SAYS ELECTION IS NECESSARY

Head of Patriotic Fund Believes That Alone Will Preserve Peace in Canada.

OTTAWA, June 28.—Interest in the conscription debate saged a trifle yesterday. Several of the speeches were in French, but free from any sensational features. Mr. Gauvreau, Liberal member for Temiscouatta, Mr. Seguin, Liberal member for L'Assomption, and Mr. Boulay, Conservative member for Rimouski, declared themselves against conscription. On the other hand, Frank Carvell, Liberal member for Carleton, N.B., came out against the referendum, and for conscription. He said he had been an unsparing critic of the government, but had nothing to take back. He would still follow Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and hoped soon to follow him to victory, but he could not agree with him on the subject of conscription.

Speeches in support of the government and the conscription measure were made by Sir Herbert Ames and Dr. Edwards, Conservative member for Frontenac. Mr. Devlin, Liberal member for Wright, opposed conscription and declared himself in favor of the referendum. He said coercion

WILL NOT SEIZE CANADA'S WHEAT

BONAR LAW SAYS PROPOSITION HAS BEEN ABANDONED.

LONDON, June 28. — In the House of Commons Major Hunt asked Bonar Law whether, in view of the fact that the Australian Government had commandeered the wheat for the use of the Empire and that there was an estimated exportable surplus of 80 million bushels in Canada, he would say if the Canadian Government had been asked to act in the same way as the Australian Government or would make a request to them to act likewise.

Bonar Law replied that the question of wheat supply from Canada has been discussed with the Canadian Government, but it was not proposed to adopt the suggestion for the same system of control, as it was not suitable, in view of the geographical differences between Canada and Australia

Sir Herbert Ames believes an el- would fail in Canada as it had failed in Ireland.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1917

CARING FOR SOLDIERS' DEPENDENTS.

IT IS EVIDENT THAT the Government has in mind some plan to increase the compensation allowed soldiers, or at least to make some more liberal allowance to the dependents these men have left behind them. The Premier has already announced that a bill granting more generous pensions to disabled veterans and to the widows and children of those who have lost their lives, will be introduced at this session of Parliament. The blanks that have been sent to the dependents of soldiers to be filled up and returned to Ottawa is another indication that something is to be done to improve the circumstances of those whoes supporters have entered the service of the Empire.

When the war broke out there was industrial depression in this country. Work was scarce and wages were low. The pay set for soldiers at that time and the separation allowance granted their families appeared generous, especially when compared with the compensation of Britain's fighting forces. But what may have been an ample allowance three years ago is no longer adequate when the increased cost of living is taken into account.

There has been an agitation for the past year in favor of more pay for the soldiers. Just what form the increase should take has not been decided upon, but one method that would certainly meet with popular approval would be to increase the allowances made by the Government to the dependents. The Patriotic Fund, being local in its scope, is a separate question entirely. The matter of maintenance allowance is one which comes within the jurisdiction of the Government.

The soldiers, boarded, clothed and medically treated as they are, do not feel the high cost of living as the civilians do, but the married men in the ranks would, it is certain, be unanimous for more help for their families. But increased pay for the soldiers would mean that more of it would be assigned to their friends at home.

Every man who enlisted lessened the competition in the labor market and made the situation better for the workers who stayed at home. They left for overseas on the understanding that their families would not be allowed to suffer during their absence. The separation allowance was really a part of their wages, so that the dependents they leave behind them are in no sense the wards of a public charity. If these men had shirked their duty, as so many others have done, they would be earning more wages and would find steadier employment than at the time of enlistment, and this fact should not be lost sight of by those who contend that the average soldier's family is better off than in the time of peace.

The great objection to the voluntary system has always been that married men were enlisting more readily than those who were single. Every such recruit meant another charge on the Government and on the Patriotic Fund. When the selective draft goes into force this difficulty will be obviated and only those who have no dependents will be included in the first call. That will not only equalize the burden, but it will put the Government in a position to do better by the dependents, who are the real sufferers by the war, both in a material sense and in the other sacrifices that they have made.

Conscription of the wealth of the country is on the way. The Government has pledged itself to such a policy, and the necessity for increased war funds is becoming more and more apparent. If there is to be an increased expenditure of money derived from those best able to spare it, one purpose to which it can be applied is caring for those who are making the real personal sacrifices.

THE LESSON FROM SASKATCHEWAN.

WHEN CHARGES OF CORRUPTION were made against the members of the Legislature in Saskatchewan the Government appointed a Royal Commission to investigate. The result was that cases of graft were brought home to five private members of the party and these are now serving prison sentences. No member of the Government was detected in any wrong-doing.

The party in power faced the people after it had purged itself of the Jonahs whose presence had threatened it with disaster. There was no attempt made to shield or apologize for the guilty. The result was that the Liberal party goes back to power with a stronger majority than ever.

The lesson is easily read. In Manitoba, in New Brunswick and in British Columbia, where the grafters were retained in spite of the protests of the people, the party that was responsible for their immunity from prosecution was all but wiped out of existence. The people refuse longer to stand for graft in high places, and the result of the election in Saskatchewan should serve as an object lesson for political parties, whether provincial or federal.

OVER PROOF MEDICINES.

THE OTHER DAY two young men from a neighboring town were fined in the local police court for drunkenness. It transpired that while on their way to this city they stopped off at a town on the way and purchased ginger wine in a drug store. Indulging freely in that decoction landed them in the police court.

Had the young men become intoxicated according to the regulation formula they would have been required to tell from whom they had secured their liquor, and the officials would have set out to land the man who furnished it. tI seems, however, that no action is taken against druggists who handle such beverages, although ginger wine is recognized as an intoxicant.

The members of the Ontario Council of Medicine took up at a recent meeting in Toronto the consideration of patent medicines. They have decided to ask the Government to prohibit the sale of any such preparation that contains over five per cent. alcohol.

It must be said that the doctors are ready to allow the druggists considerable latitude in this matter. The beer that was put out of business by the Ontario Temperance Act rarely was charged with more than six per cent. alcohol. The modern patent medicine, that the doctors would allow on sale, is but a trifle milder than the beverage to which the temperance people objected. Medicine that contains five per cent. of alcohol is twice as effective, as an intoxicant, as the two and a half per cent. beer that the standard hotelkeepers and other dealers are permitted to handle under the Temperance Act. The bibulous are likely to patronize the drug stores rather than the hotels where restrictions on sales are so severe and where the dealer is liable to a heavy penalty if a test shows that what he sells is a fraction above the percentage allowed by law.

If druggists are permitted to sell so-called medicines that contain five per cent. alcohol it is easy to see that the operation of the Ontario Temperance Act will be to a large exent nullified. Not every druggist, it is true, would handle such preparations or sell them indiscriminately, even if he did keep them in stock, but there are, unfortunately, men in every line who care more for the money it is possible to make than for the honor of their profession.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH.

REALIZING THAT direct opposition to Sir Robert Borden's Compulsory Service Bill would be fatal to the party in all the provinces except Quebec, Liberals have adopted the catch-cry "Conscription of Wealth" in an effort to stay the stampede of Liberals throughout the country to the support of Sir Robert Borden. This, the latest of their catch-words, is adopted apparently on the assumption that the people of Canada are ignorant of the fact that the Borden Governmen has been and is now conscripting the wealth of the country in no gentle manner. This fact was pointed out by r. W. S. Middlebro, Conservative whip, in the House of Commons the other day when he read an official statement showing the huge war tax being paid by twenty-two of the leading business firms of Canada.

The total tax paid by the twenty-two firms during 1915 was $5,296,321.30, and the total tax anticipated per year from the same firms on the basis of the 1917 amendment is $11,101,402.97.

The above figures completely refute the charge that wealth is not being conscripted and prove that the latest Liberal catch-cry has been adopted merely as a cheap political trick. In fact, prominent Liberals have complained that the Borden Government is conscripting wealth too harshly and that capital to the extent of fifteen million dollars has been kept out of the country as a result. So there you are.

Various other vigorous measures along the line of conscription of wealth which the Borden Government has already taken might be cited. These include:

The appointment of a Fuel Controller, who already threatens the taking over of some western mines and their operation by a Government commission.

The appointment of a Grain Commissioner representative of all classes in the population, with complete authority over the distribution and prices of grain.

The appointment of a Food Controller with dictatorial powers with respect to the transportation, storage and prices of food commodities.

The restriction of Canadian paper exports and the fixing of an arbitrary price at which the mills must furnish white paper to the Canadian publishers.

Conscription of Labor.

(Hamilton Herald.)

Talking of conscription, we have yet to learn of any proposal in this country for the conscription of labor. But why should not labor be conscripted as well as other useful things? There is plenty of potential labor going to waste, unutilized for any useful purpose.

Not a Fair Statement.

(Toronto News.)

Mr. Proudfoot says that French-Canadians have not been approached by men of their own race and religion with an appeal to recruit. Is that a fair statement? They have been urged to enlist by Cardinal Begin, Mgr. Bruchesi, other clerical leaders, Colonel Blondin, Gen. Lessard, Major Grothe and Capt. Papineau.

NOT FOR MR. TODHUNTER

"Mr. Pennypacker left word for you, Mr. Todhunter," announced the landlady, "that he has a new car, and is going for a drive this evening, and would like to have you go along with him."

"Mr. Penypacker doubtless means well and his heart is unquestionably in the right place, Mrs. Jiggers," said the star boarder, "but I don't fall for an invitation of that sort. If he comes around after he has driven a car for three months I may consider his invitation, but I have lived and suffered too long not to be wary of the new car owner.

"You will remember that Mr. Hornblower bought a new car last fall, and the first thing he did was to invite me to go along for a delightful ride in the gloaming. You wil recall how I went forth in all the pride of my glorious manhood, and how I came home, a few hours later, looking like something left over from a rummage sale. Well do I recollect, my dear Mrs. Jiggers, how you burst into a passion of tears when you beheld me.

"Mr. Hornblower really thought he was going to show me a good time. It was his first car, and the third time he ever rode in it. He hadn't mastered all the little details of its management, and he knew no better than to run the car about eight miles in second speed. This heated up the engine so that the water in the radiator was boiling. Mr. Hornblower saw the steam flying around and heard the water humming and buzzing, and suspected there was something wrong.

"He asked me if I wouldn't be kind enough to step out and take the screw cap off the radiator to let the water cool off. He didn't know any better. Neither did I, Mrs. Jiggers. I am an accomplished man and have most of the arts at my fingers' ends, but I haven't had much experience with motor cars and don't expect to have until they are selling at 75 cents on the instalment plan.

"So I stepped out and removed the cap from the radiator and immediately a geyser overwhelmed me. About seventeen gallons of red hot water, all thick with rust and grease, shot up into the air and then came down on me.

"I was wearing a new suit, with boiled linen and other expensive trimmings, at the time. I was dolled up to such an extent that the women everywhere turned to look after me. You may, therefore, imagine my emotions when I stood there in the middle of the road with dark brown water dripping off me.

"I have always taken pride in being a good sport. My first impulse was to drag Mr. Hornblower out of his car and make a hole in the ground with his head, but I saw that he was shocked and grieved beyond expression, so I braced up and said that a trifle like that couldn't disturb my sunny spirit. I took my seat and we started for home.

"Mr. Hornblower felt so bad over the disaster that his eyes filled with tears and he couldn't see where he was going, which explains why he ran the car off the culvert and into a mudhole. I was the first to go into the mudhole, and then the car landed on me and pinned me down where I wouldn't miss any of the rich, juicy mud, and I stayed there about three days, while Hornblower was hunting help. If you recall these stirring events, Mrs. Jiggers, it is idle to assure you that the man who takes me riding with him has to have a chauffeur's diploma hanging against the windshield."

MONEY FOR YOU AND THE ARMY

Put money where it will help your country. Incidentally you can help yourself. The War Savings Certificates not only provide a channel through which your saving can be utilized for the prosecution of the war, they are a splendid investment. You can purchase the certificates in three amounts. Interest is at the rate of over 5 per cent. You get your money back plus interest at the end of three years. For $21.50 the Government will pay out $25.00 at the end of that time; for $43.00—$50.00; and for $86.00, $100.00. You have only to go to your nearest money order post office or bank for the certificates. The Government registers each certificate in your name at Ottawa. You cannot lose it. You are protected in every possible way. The nation is giving you that protection, that safe investment, that splendid return on your dollars because it needs them. Buy its certificates and help in the struggle for victory. The army is fighting for you. Give it funds to go on fighting.

Wit and Wisdom

The Absent Minded Editor.

"Now I've done it!" moans the absent-minded editor.

"Done what?" asks the interested friend.

"My best girl sent me a box of cigars for Christmas, and as I already had received five boxes I sent them back to her with a note of regret saying that they were not returned for lack of merit, but because we were already supplied with plenty of such material."

Not in That Hall.

The local bigwig's presence in the chair at an entertainment was desired, and two of the organizers waited upon him with a deferential request. The required promise was duly obtained. "You may rely upon me," said the big man. "Friday, the 25th, in the parish room. It's quite an unsectarian affair, I suppose?" "Bless your 'eart, sir," came the reply, "the place was lime washed only last week. You won't find nothing of the kind on the premises."

Identified It.

It was seen hobbling down a flight of steps, slashed and torn to shreds. Barely enough was left to hold the shreds together. It was a pitiable sight. So curiosity was aroused.

"What are you?" it was asked, "and how came you in such horrible condition?"

"I am a reputation," the wreck replied, "and I have just been released from a female bridge party.'

Greater Than Orpheus.

"Dad," said the 8 year old of the family, "here's a book that says that Orpheus was such a fine musician that he made trees and stones move."

"Son," said father, solemnly, "your sister Bess has Orpheus beaten. Her piano playing has made twenty families move out of this building in the last three months."

Talked Like It.

A north of Ireland orator in a Scottish county constituency sought to ingratiate himself with his audience at the outset thus:

"Gentlemen, I am an Irishman. I am proud to be an Irishman, but I am not ashamed to admit that I have a drop of Scotch in me."

And for fully a minute he could not understand what the uproar was about.

A DAILY NOVELETTE

(By author of "The Hidden Spring in the Old River Bed," "The End of a Perfect Jay," "Forty Thousand Leaks Under the Sink," "Down and Out; or, a Trip in the Subway," "Nevertheless but Alwaysthemore.")

It was toward the end of the close of the last act on the last night of Shakespeare's "Shaming of the True" when Birdie Jay, the leading lady, fell from her perch in the dried apple tree with dismay, for her eyes had suddenly peered through the tree upon the table where she kept her dizzy diamond-studed purse.

"My diamonds!" she screamed as she burst into the room, tearful and trembling. "Ten superb diamonds! They have been stolen with my handbag!"

"Oh, don't let a trifle like that worry you," soothingly remarked the theatrical manager.

"But there was a dollar bill in the bag, too!" sobbed the leading lady.

"Oh, that's different!" he remarked gravely. "Quite different. I'll send for a detective at once!"

A Grafonola on Your Vacation

Many-a-time while you are at your summer cottage, far from your favorite musical and other entertaining features, you'll thank us for suggesting this best-of-all means for evening recreation. Here's a genuine Grafonola at an insignificant cost that can be depended upon to give the same enjoyment a larger and more costly instrument would, which is easily portable and may be carried without inconvenience.

The Grafonola illustrated here is a model that embodies the most important Columbia features, possessing the musical tone qualities that those features unite to produce. Handsome design, quartered oak case, with noiseless spring motor, plays two records at one winding, has speed regulator, start and stop device, tone control shutters, nickel-plated metal parts, etc., etc. A Grafonola that anyone would be proud to possess.

Here's a Fine Proposition

You May Buy it on Very Easy Terms

Bring this Grafonola back in good condition any time before October next and trade it in for any larger Grafonola and you will be allowed the full purchase price.

Or, if you already own an instrument, you may select Columbia Records to the value of $17.50 upon return of the Grafonola as before mentioned.

T. A. EDISON WILL ATTEND CONVENTION IN NEW YORK

Thousand Music Dealers Expected to be Present—Oscar of the Waldorf and Metropolitan Divas Will Enhance Brilliancy—40 Papers on Retail Topics, Supplemented by Question Box.

At a time when the country is expected to be at the height of its war preparations, one thousand Edison dealers will meet at the Waldorf Astoria and raise the cry that music in the home is more necessary today than ever. Coming as it does about the middle of next month the National convention of Edison dealers will serve to emphasize the sustaining, stimulating and sturdy part played to the colors. Many speakers will point out the strong influence recreations of folk songs and patriotic airs have had in appealing to the manhood of American boys. The convention will be held on July 12 and 13 in the grand ballroom of New York's most famous hotel, the Waldorf-Astoria.

Personal testimony by owners of New Edisons will be one of the features of the convention to be held at the Waldorf. In a series of talks the owners of instruments will tell what they know and think of Mr. Edison's favorite invention.

From the time W. D. Wilmot, of Fall River, Mass., a veteran Edisonian, opens the convention, it will be absolutely under the control and direction of the dealers. Every section of the country will be represented. Forty papers have been prepared by prominent merchants, and the reading of these papers will be followed by general discussion. The varying problems of the phonograph business will be treated from every point of view.

Artists from the Metropolitan Opera Company will be guests of Mr. Edison himself, who is expected to attend both the convention and the banquet.

Many of the dealers, at the end of the convention Friday afternoon, will complete arrangements for the visit to the Edison Laboratories in Orange on Saturday.

Among the papers to be given by Edison dealers will be one: "How I use 'Along Broadway'" a monthly journal published by the Edison Co. and mailed to New Edison owners and others. This paper will be given by Mr. J. M. Greene, of the J. M Greene Music Co., Charlotte Street, who are the only licensed representatives for all the immediate counties, with branches at Lindsay, Belleville, Kingston, and Madoc.

WILL BE UNION-MADE

Executive Office D. A. Carey, of the International Musicians' Union, was advised by the chief officers of the organization that the Government of the Unted States had given the contract for all musical instruments for military bands to the Boston Musical Instrument Co., a strictly union establishment

EVERYONE A MUSICIAN

The acquirement of a musical education is, or should be, comparatively easy, not only because of the smallness of the musical vocabulary (consisting of only 88 tones), but also because of the universality of its notation.

The present system of musical notation, though perhaps not perfect has this great advantage, namely, it is the same all over the civilized world, so that when one learns it in Canada, the musical thoughts of France, Spain, Germany, Italy, or Russia, are equally accessible.

A child learns to read English easily and well during the first six years of his school life (from age six to twelve); he might just as easily learn during the same time to ready fearlessly and well the universal language of music.

We are all born with ears and they are formed for hearing as the eye is for seeing; they are, moreover, capable of hearing far more and better than they are accustomed to doing. We cary thef about with us everywhere, but we pay very little attention to them. We are only just beginning to learn what the normal ear is capable of in the matter of positive pitch for instance; that is, ability to recognize and name musical tones.

The lay public has been accustomed to consider positive pitch as a gift wrapt in the exclusive tissue of genius and doled out only to the ultra-musical. One who can enter a room where a musician is singing or playing, and say, "He is singing high C or baritone B," has hitherto been looked upon as a prodigy.

This is by no means necessarily true. By proper training this power may be acquired, speaking very conservatively by 80 per cent. of normal children. Children who have been thought to be lacking in musical ability, some of them apparently stone-deaf, are able, after a few months of training, to sing "centre C" on demand, and to recognize it when it is played or sung, and they soon become equally familiar with other musical tones.

Some children will, of course, not acquire positive pitch as quickly as will others. There are children who do not so easily learn to wrte English from dictation as do others; but we do not therefore allow them to give up, and say that they cannot be taught.

The motive for learning musical notation must be for the purpose of freeing the child by giving him the means of expressing his own ideas on paper as well as givng him pleasure in reading easily and joyfully the thoughts of others.

A child who has made his own reverie or dream has the keenest appreciation of a "real composer." There are times when every human being feels the need of a language beyond the power of words. Air is a necessity, but how many regard music as a necessity? It has been considered merely as an accomplishment. How much more it might be?

If you will tell me why some dinners taste better to you than other dinners, I will tell you why Edison Diamond Disc Records always sound better than all other disc records. Come in and listen. J. M. Greene Music Co., Charlotte street.

NEW MATERIAL FOR THE COMPOSER

Despite the fact that the Indian themes have had no such potent influence upon folk music as have the Negro tunes or spirituals, their importance cannot be overlooked. With the important discovery of as many as 1,100 Indian songs comes the possibility of their furnishing a new source of inspiration for the composer. With this continent a melting-pot of all nations, with little in music to point to as really its own, this fund of new material may serve as the basis for the strictly occidental music of the future.

SONG AND VIOLIN RECITAL.

The song and violin recital, under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., in the Conservatory of Music Hall tomorrow and Saturday evenings, should attract large audiences. Wilmot Goodwin, the song soloist, is an operatic star of note, with a baritone voice of wonderful range and charm. Miss Florence Austin, the violinist, has exceptional technique and purity of tone, and was the first American girl to win the first prize of the Royal Conservatory of Liege, Belgium, for her solo work. Thse will be musical events no lovers of song and violin can afford to miss. And the proceeds are in aid of prisonres of war in Germany.

WORDS, NOT MUSIC OF RAGTIME VULGAR

"Ragtime is not essentially vulgar, though its text and harmonic sequence sometimes may be. The Negro himself is most sorrowful that he is thought the producer of vulgar music. No Negro has ever written to his music words to which anyone could take exception. Where vulgarity occurs in songs attributed to colored men, it is invariably some white man who has superimposed it. Furthermore, one must acknowledge the Negro's sense of Poetry.

CONSERVATORY ORCHESTRA

The closing recital of the Conservatory Orchestra proved an evening of revelation to relatives and friends of the members in attendance. This talented musical organization is maintaining and advancing its well-known high standard of quality and efficiency under the tuition of Mr. Rupert Gliddon, and promises to reach an enviable height in the standing of Ontario's premier orchestras.

If you will tell me why some men's voices sound more true than others, I will tell you why Edison Diamond Discs sound more true. J. M. Greene Music Co'. Charlotte street.

MR. ALLAN'S PUPILS

The recital this week by Mr. Allan's pupils, in St. Paul's Hall, reflected the fullest measure of credit on both pupils and tutor. The various numbers offered revealed very commendable talent in training and gratifying aptness on the part of the students. Mr. Allan is to be congratulated on the fruits of his tuition, and the young folk under his instruction may well rejoice in so capable a master.

The past two weeks has seen many recitals by pupils of Peterborough music teachers—song and instrumental—in preparation for the summer holidays. They have all been gratifying successes, and demonstrated in a forceful manner the growing influence of music on the home and social life of this community; to say nothing of a no small field of talent in evidence from which might be selected promising candidates for a professional career.

AN AFTERMATH.

One aftermath of the recent formal opening of the new Heintzman Hall, corner of George and Hunter streets, is an increased demand for Ye Olde Firme's pianos—grand and upright—and big business in victrolas, sonoras and records.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, June 28.—There passed away at his home in Asphodel on Saturday morning after a lingering illness, Mr. Michael Walsh, in his 73rd year. The funeral was held on Monday morning and was very largely attended. Service was held in the R. C. Church after which interment was made in the R. C. Cemetery. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his widow, several sons and daughters, who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

The citizens are looking forward to a grand celebration on Dominion Day and nothing is being spared to insure a good program of sports.

Last Friday evening in the Town Hall the music loving public had the pleasure of listening to Miss Isolde Menges, one of the most cultured artists on the violin today. She is expected to give a second entertainment on the evening of Monday, July 2nd.

The anniversary services in connection with the Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday last. Rev. Russel McGillivray of Warkworth was expected to preach at both services, but, owing to illness, was unable to be present. However, the pulpit was ably filled by Rev. A. Thomson, a young man of ability, who gave excellent addresses at both services. Special music was given by the choir, suited to the occasion.

Mr. Jas. O'Reilly, of Percy, last week received the intelligence that his son, Pte. C. H. O'Reilly had been wounded and was dangerously ill in the hospital in France. His many friends here are hoping for good news from him in the near future.

Reeve Fowlds has returned from Cobourg where he has been attending County Council.

The Anglican Church held their annual excursion to Peterboro on Thursday last per steamer Geneva. Quite a crowd took advantage of the sail and report an enjoyable outing.

The lacrosse game played here last week between Norwood Juveniles and Hasting's Juveniles was quite interesting and resulted in 5-4 in favor of the home team.

Born, on Wednesday, June 13, in Percy, to Mr. and Mrs. John Armour, a son (Stanley Roy).

Mrs. Jas. Dickie and Master Gordon have returned from a pleasant visit with friends in Campbellford.

Rev. D. A. Thomson occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church at Warkworth on Sunday last.

Mrs. Hart, of Havelock, spent Sunday with friends in town.

You Are Paying For It Anyway

YOU have a hard day. Weary, nerves frazzled, you reach home.

Nothing would suit you better than to stay right home.

But you go out.

You go to the cabaret. You eat when you don't want to eat. You are away from home when you want to be at home.

You try to satisfy your music hunger with a hand-out around the corner. That helps a little. What you really want, though, is a music feast in your own home.

In shirt sleeves, downright comfort, your own piano or player piano or talking machine and the world of music from which to choose the music to fit your mood.

And don't think you can't have a piano or player piano or talking machine in your home. You're entitled to one. You're paying for it anyway. Yes, paying for it—but not getting it.

That once or twice each week that you go music-hunting costs as much, maybe more, than it would cost to own an instrument.

A really good piano or player piano or talking machine can be purchased at a very reasonable price and the payments can be so divided that your music-hunting money will more than take care of them.

CHILD'S SEVERE STOMACH TROUBLE

Harriston, Ont., Father says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved his Child's Life.

Mr Corby, Harriston P.O., Ont., writes: "Our little girl was weak from birth, and though we tried doctors' medicine and other things she got no better. She just lay in her cot and cried, and neighbors all said we could not save her. The doctors said she had stomach trouble, and that he chances were small, yet Dr Cassell's Tablets cured her. They have been worth their weight in gold to us, for we were just giving up hope of saving our little daughter. I don't think there is any other medicine for children like Dr Cassell's Tablets. Publish this letter if you like; it may help others as the Tablets helped us."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 M'Caul Street, Toronto.

G.T.R. FIREMAN NOW IN FRANCE WON PROMOTION

SERGT. BABER GETS MILITARY MEDAL FOR SERVICES RENDERED.

Mrs. A. Baber, of Lindsay, has received a letter from her husband, Sergt A. Baber, France, in which he states that he has recently been awarded the Military Medal, and was also promoted from corporal to Sergeant. On his return from the front trenches the major in charge of his section informed him of his promotion and also of the fact that he had been recommended for the Military Medal, although he states he does not know why he was merited this distinction.

Sergt. Baber is a former G.T.R. fireman and enlisted in Lindsay for overseas service. He went with the 38th Batt. to Bermuda, and from there to France. His many friends will be glad to learn that his record as a soldier has merited such honor and distinction.

Sergt. Baber, in his letter, also mentions that Harry Lee, another Grand Trunk fireman, has also been recommended for the Military Medal.

There is a small army of former Grand Trunk men on the Western front, and every now and then word is received of promotions and honors being accorded them for distinguished service.

THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC

George St. Sunday School at Nicholls Oval on Friday Afternoon.

The annual picnic of George St. Methodist Church Sunday school will be held at Nicholls Oval Friday afternoon commencing at 3 o'clock. There will be games and races in the afternoon, and immediately after tea at 6:30 the children will all be taken for an automobile ride in the country. All the members and friends of the school are cordially invited to come and bring their baskets and enjoy the afternoon with the children.

There is not a factory in the United States engaged in the manufacture of automobiles, or parts of automobiles, it is stated in Washington, that will not be called upon by the officials of the government to divert either their products or their activities from their present uses to the manufacture of aircraft.

SOME PATENT MEDICINES CHARGED WITH ALCOHOL

Members of Ontario Medical Council Object to all Preparations That Contain More Than Five Per Cent.

TORONTO, June 28.—At the Ontario Medical Council Dr. Brodie introduced the question of patent and proprietary medicines that, he said, are being sold in the Province containing a large percentage of alcohol. He moved that the council forward a written request to the Provincial Government asking for the prohibition of such medicines that contained more than five per cent. alcohol

Dr. Ferguson seconded the motion, and mentioned that as coroner he had had to preside over cases of fatalities due to the use of these medicines.

Correspondence was read that had passed between the Registrar and the Atorney-General and the board of License Commissioners with reference to the charges against the London doctors for alleged excessive prescription of alcohol. Dr. Hamilton moved and Dr. Kellam seconded that the stenographer's notes of the discussion be sent to the newspapers as fitting material for editorial comment on the subject of prohibition.

At the suggestion of the president, Dr. Crane, further discussion of Dr. Brodie's motion was postponed till to-morrow.

Frequent menton was made of an article that had appeared in the editorial columns of a Toronto paper asking that the Medical Council take disciplinary action where doctors where proven to have abused their privileges in the prescribing of alcohol.

A motion to restrain unqualified men from doing radiograph work as detrimental to the public welfare, and that legislation should be secured to that end was proposed by Dr. Kellam and carried.

Sir James Grant proposed and Dr. T. S. Farncombe seconded that the Medical Council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario desired to place on record their appreciation of the temperance legislation of the Hon. Sir William Hearst and the Government of Ontario, and that it was the opinion of the council that such legislation would materially advance the best interests of Ontario, the premier province, and that it would afford the council pleasure to note like action on the temperance movement in the entire Dominion.

SENATOR CORBY LEFT MILLION TO BE DIVIDED

Charities, Employes and Public Institutions Are Provided For.

BELLEVILLE, June 27. — The estate of the late Senator Harry Corby will, it is estimated, exceed one million dollars. Bequests in the will include: $20,000, interest of which is to be distributed to the city poor each Christmas by the Y. W.C.A.: $20,000, interest of which goes to purchase books for the public library; $5,000 for civic swimming baths; $5,000 to the General Hospital; $2,000 for a memorial window in St. Thomas' Church and a sum not to exceed $5,000 for a family monument. All his real and personal estate in Belleville go to his wife. Certain bonds are to be conveyed, one-half to her and one-half to his three daughters. The balance of his securities are to be converted into cash and reinvested in municipal bonds and first mortgages on improved real estate, and the income therefrom for ten years be devoted as follows: One-half to the wife and the rest equally to the daughters, and after ten years the estate is to be divided in the same proportion.

Besides bequests to his brother, sisters and nephews, he leaves $10,000 to Mr. A. I. Bird, formerly head of his office staff, and $2,000 to Wm. Pascoe, a former employe.

KEEP OFF THE TRACKS

Nearly a Score Fined For Trespassing On C.P.R.

"Short cuts cost $2.00," This was the experience of about twenty of the residents of the city who appeared before the police magistrate this morning on a charge of trespassing on the tracks of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co.

Some days ago this company's workmen found some obstructions placed on the track and Constable Greenham was instructed to come to Peterboro and prosecute anyone found trespassing on the tracks or property of the company. His catch was a big one, and unless this acts as a warning to the numerous habitual offenders another trap will be laid at an early date for them.

Magistrate Dumble made it quite clear that he will back up the company in their "Safety first" regulations.

Three Men Are Fined For Failing To Settle

D. Gordon, Roy Patterson, and J. H. Burns were summoned to appear before the police magistrate this morning for failure to pay their poll tax.

They all entered pleas of "Guilty" and were assessed $2.60 in addition to having to pay $5.00 to the tax collector.

There are a number of other delinquents, and the names are being handed to the police department every day. Save money and pay up

ALL VETERANS WILL PARADE

OLD SOLDIERS TO GATHER AT THE ARMORIES AT 9:30 MONDAY.

The 50th anniversary of confederation will be celebrated in Peterboro by the veterans of the great war, the veterans of '66 as well as the veterans of other wars on Monday next The arrangements are that at 9.30 the morning of the 2nd all the veterans, the military units, the public bodies, the Peterboro Association, which includes all the citizens of the city, will meet at the Armouries and after assembling will form into procession and after traversing the main streets will return to Central Park where addresses will be delivered appropriate to the anniversary. The citizens generally are asked to bear this in mind.

Mrs. Vincent Astor and Miss Ethel M. B. Harriman, daughter of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, have sailed for France to serve as war nurses. Both young women completed intensive courses in training a few days before sailing.

Carrying a Red Cross message, Katherine Stinson has flown to Washington, covering the 670 miles from Buffalo in two days.

"Give us locomotives, and we will give you military success," declares Prof. Lomonossoff, Railroad Minister with the Russian mission.

FARMERS' CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN PETERBORO

Prominent Men in Organized Farmer's Movement at Public Library Hall, Saturday July 7---Luncheon for Business Men Likely

Arrangements have been completed for the holding of a district convention of the United Farmers of Ontario in the Public Library Hall, Peterborough, on Saturday afternoon, July 7. This is the first convention of the kind to be held in the city.

During the past few years this movement has been making great progress in Ontario and now has over ten thousand members. There are a large number of local clubs in the vicinity of Peterborough and adjoining counties. These were consulted as to whether or not they would like to see a convention held in Peterborough and so many replied favorably that a convention has accordingly been arranged. The speakers will include Mr. R. H. Halbert, of Melanchton, President, and Mr. J. J. Morrison, Secretary, of the United Farmers of Ontario, and Mr. John Kennedy, Vice President of the Grain Growers' Grain Company, Winnipeg, and a director of the Home Bank of Canada. Mr. Kennedy is considered to be one of the most able speakers in the farmers' movement in western Canada and is the vice president of a farmers company that does many millions of dollars worth of business a year and which last year showed profits of over half a million dollars.

The object of the Peterborough convention is to enable the farmers in the vicinity of Peterborough to meet with leaders in the farmers' movement and become better acquainted with the farmers' platform. While several hundred delegates attended the annual meeting in Toronto at which this platform was adopted, there were thousands of farmers who were unable to attend and who desire to know more about it. To meet this situation the provincial officers have arranged for the holding of nine district conventions at central points throughout the province. It is expected that it will be one of the largest gatherings of its kind ever held in the city. It is possible that a business men's luncheon may be put on in one of the hotels at noon in order to give our city men a chance to meet Mr. Kennedy. If so, only a few tickets will be sold as accommodation will be limited.

Mr. Thomas D. Ruston, inspector of the Children's Aid Society, at Belleville, was in the city this morning for the purpose of taking charge of the children of Mrs. Annie Deline, who were placed in charge of the local branch by Police Magistrate Dumble.

Mrs. Deline belonged to Hastings County, and if the children had been kept at the Children's Shelter here the cost of maintenance would have been chargeable to Hastings.

A CHANCE FOR THOSE GOING WEST

Homeseekers' excursions to Western Canada at low fares, via Canadian Pacific, each Tuesday until October 30th inclusive. Particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or W. B. Howard, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET

A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveller with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with up-to-date equipment unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars—in a word, everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

A police or fireman chauffeur has no more right to exceed the speed laws than a private driver, stated a Los Angeles judge in a $25,000 action for injuries.

HORSES AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 28.—At the British inspection at the Horse Exchange at the Union Stock Yards this week, Mr. R. L. Fenwick, horse inspector, accepted 55 out of the 90 submitted. He also secured 57 at the Repository and 62 at McGregor's. Mr. Fenwick expressed himself as well pleased with his purchases. The French government did not operate last week. Rejects from the British inspection to the number of 23 were sold by auction on Wednesday at the Union Stock Yards, and the balance of twelve were disposed of by private sale. The ones sold by auction brought from $100 to $150.

The carlot trade was good this week, two or three carloads having been shipped to Montreal and to Quebec City, and two to the Canadian West. The city trade too was very fair, mostly, however, in wagon and peddlers' horses. The prices last week showed little change to the week previous, heavy draught horses, 5 to 8 years old, sound, 1,450 pounds and up, sold at from $180 to $225; lighter draught horses, 5 to 8 years old and sound, 1,250 to 1,450 pounds, $145 to $180; drivers, $130 to $170; serviceably sound blocks, $80 to $135.

PETERBORO CHEESE BOARD.

The Peterboro Cheese Board will meet next Wednesday for the semi-monthly sale. Peterboro has so far received the highest price in Ontario for its cheese.

This Good Old Remedy

isn't just a purgative. Quite the contrary.

It makes purgatives unnecessary by keeping the liver lively.

Take small doses regularly—a larger dose only if you're sure you need it.

That's been the rule of hearty, sprightly, happy folks for 50 years.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

N.B.—Unauthorised publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

The steamship Tidewater, recently built for the coastwise coal-carrying trade, was sold at Boston to representatives of the Italian Government for $2,600,000 which is nearly five times her cost price. The vessel, with a carrying capacity of 8,700 tons, was launched at Camden, N.J., in January.

LONGBOAT IS WINNER.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, June 28. — Sports held by the army with which the Canadian corps is connected resulted in the rediscovery of Tom Longboat, the famous Canadian Indian runner. In a three-mile cross-country race Longboat romped home well in advance of some of the most famous British and Canadian runners, without even extending himself. He had a great reception from his regimental comrades. The tug-of-war competitions were won by a British Columbia battalion and the Canadian heavy artillery, with the English infantry and artillery teams in second place. The British won the artillery drive easily, a Canadian battery taking second place.

MISSED THE BOAT

Hastings Girl Caused Parents Much Anxiety

Miss Jean Overly, of Hastings, arrived in the city yesterday on the steamer, "Stoney Lake," with the Methodist picnic. In her wanderings round the city she forgot that the boat left at 4 p.m., and her father and mother were caused a considerable amount of worry and anxiety by her non-appearance at the boat

Mrs. Overly proceeued to to Hastings while the father waited over to hunt up his daughter Later on in the evening she was located at the home of a friend in the north end of the city.

Patrick Cavanagh, 16 years old, and Josept Timlin, 12 years old, of North Scranton, were electrocuted when they scampered up a pole while playing tag, and came in contact with a heavily charged wire.

"LET THERE BE LIGHT," PUBLIC SAY AND COUNCIL RESPONDS

Work of Improving Street Illumination Delayed for Lack of Material Now Going Forward---Trees Are Obstacles.

Delayed for want of materials the Utilities Commission have now got to work on the many alterations and additions to the street lighting as asked for by the residents and passed for sanction by the council.

Despite the generaly accepted idea that the council is almost impervious to these requests for additional light, and that the members, especially those living in the well-lighted districts, are rather indifferent to the claims of the ratepayers on the outside, the council is just as solicituous that all streets, within reason, shall have light. One incessant bother is the growth of trees. A district or street that may have been fairly lighed four years ago is now in a state of gloom because of the growth of the foliage. To remedy this the old arc lamps are being replaced by the incandescent lamp where at all practicable. The taking over of the Otonabee Co.'s line facilitates this work as it avoids duplication of lines in localities served in the past by the lines of that company.

On Parnell Street

A practical instance of the rejuvinated system can be looked at on Parnell Street. Here was a thoroughfare lighted by an arc lamp at the crossing of Park Street. Then at the other end, which, by the way, is a "dead" end, there was an old arc lamp stuck up on a pole, shedding about as much light as the North Star, and not nearly as respectable looking. About equal in illuminating power to a switch signal lamp or other inoffensive luminary. This has been all done away with. Ten or twelve bulb lamps have been scattered along the street, and the result is great. People of the district are pleased. Residents can come out of their houses at any old time of night and easily recognize neighbors. This street had been all torn up with the planting along its length of a sewer, and was as rough as the rock roads to Dublin. Now the citizens wishing to cross the thoroughfare to borrow a grist of clothes pins and a trifle of baking soda may do so in confidence and security.

It is understood that the claims and allowances for lights will have almost prompt attention. Things are on the move. A little patience will remedy the defects. Lines men have to be trained. Not every man can do the work. There are just so many to handle it, and you cannot go out and get them, same as the accepted view that one may step out of the house any spring morning and pick a poet off the nearest tree.

So soon as other localities are lighted that are now benighted some satisfaction will prevail. But the outlying districts will have careful attention. Nothing else is the aim and endeavor of the council, no matter what the kickers and fault-finders may aver.

IN FAVOR OF AN ELECTION

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, June 28.—Sir Herbert Ames, Conservative member for Centre Montreal and head of the Patriotic Fund for Canada said in the course of his speech on the Laurier amendment last night that he was in favor of an election in order to preserve peace in Canada and put the whole power of the people behind a measure dealing so intimately with their personal liberties. He was strongly in favor of the Borden policy of national reorganization and conscription.

This statement, taken in conjunction with the threat of a strike from the higher quaters in Quebec, is thought to leave the Borden government no alternative.

A press correspondent says that opinion in favor of having the electors put the lid on for the good of Canada and the war, now and for the future, is becoming stronger.

ENEMY RAIDS ARE REPULSED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, June 28.—Official statement: German attacks south of the Cojeul river were repulsed by the British last night, the war office announces. During the night the enemy's artillery heavily bombarded our positions in the neighborhood of Fontaine les Croisilles, says the statement. Hostile attacks against our advanced position south of Cojeul River were successfully repulsed. A German raiding party entered our trenches last night east of Vermelles. It was at once ejected. One of our men is missing.

FOE LOOK FOR NEW OFFENSIVE

MILITARY EXPERTS SAY ALLIES ARE PLANNING ANOTHER DRIVE.

COPENHAGEN, June 28. — German military writers, with enlightenment furnished to them by the war press bureau, express the opinion that the British are preparing a new offensive, but Field Marshal Haig's tactics in striking now here and now there along the British front leave them in uncertainty as to the section on which the blow will fall.

Dunkirk Bombed War Office Says

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, June 28. — German heavy long range batteries yesterday bombarded the Anglo-French fortified port of Dunkirk with visible effect, says an official statement issued today by the war department. In retaliation, Entente artillery bombarded the German occupied town of Ostend in Belgium, but the statement adds the shells did no military damage.

A. G. MACKAY RE-ELECTED

His Conservative Opponent Will Likely Lose His Deposit

EDMONTON, Alta., June 28.—A. G. Mackay, former Liberal leader in Ontario, was re-elected for the Athabasca division of Alberta, having with three polls to be heard from, a majortiy of 387 over his Conservative opponent, A. F. Fugl.

It is not expected that the polls to be heard from will save Fugl from losing his deposit

Sir Herbert Ames

Elaborate Sarcasm.

Dr. Edwards alluded facetiously to the demand for conscription of wealth, and suggested that a committee might be selected from the Liberal members on that subject. Mr. Carvell, he said, would know how to get money out of hay. Mr. Oliver out of royalties on coal mines, Mr. Turriff out of timber limits, and Mr. Pugsley out of overdrafts. The doctor thought it would also be a good idea to put a tax on titles. Every knight should come across with five hundred thousand dollars, as all the knighthoods were now going to millionaires. The newly created lords and barons should pay at least a million dollars, but he did not favor a tax on honorary colonels, at any rate not over a dollar a colonel. So long as this government permitted Armand Lavergne to be a colonel, he thought every decent man in the country with the title of honorary colonel would feel like handing it back to the government. Dr. Edwards closed with an earnest appeal for the prompt passing of the conscription bill without waiting for a referendum.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things—and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

STANDARD TIME FOR UNCLE SAM

NEW ORDER WILL NOT GO INTO EFFECT TILL NEXT YEAR.

WASHINGTON, June 28. — The daylight saving law sponsored by Senator Calder of New York was passed by the Senate without roll call. It will not go into effect until next year.

The measure provides that time be moved forward one hour on the last Sunday of April in each year and set back to the original time on the last Sunday in September. All clocks in the nation, under the act passed yesterday, would be advanced from 2 o'clock to 3 o'clock on the date fixed in April, and remain one hour in advance until the end of September, when they would return to normal time.

HARVEY FARMER HAS NEW DOSE FOR POTATO BUGS

Says Coal Oil is Surer, Safer and Cleaner Shot Than Paris Green—A Pointer for Amateur Gardeners.

Strolling into the drug store to buy a portion of Paris Green, with which to assault the bugs climbing over the foliage of the Irish Cobbler potatoes, a man standing at the counter offered advice. His advice born of experience.

The man was Mr. James Wilson, of Harvey Township. He owns a farm that displays two silos. No one silo is entitled to respect. Two absolutely clinch the argument. That man's advice and suggestion is worth considering, for if it wasn't he wouldn't have two silos. That is a philosophical deduction that is apparent. It spells success.

Mr. Wilson says that coal oil is over fifty per cent more destructive and efficient. His experience was gained in this way. Someone had been coal oiling the household watering can, and left some in the can. He was preparing to give the early bug—this was last season—a dose of deterrent, filled up the can with water and was going to insert the Paris Green when he noticed the oil. Decided, as the can was full of perfectly good water, to sprinkle it on, at any rate. When he started to administer the green solution he commenced at another part of the patch, and did not finish that evening. When coming to that part of the patch a night or two afterwards, that had been oiled he found no bugs in evidence; all had keeled over. He experimented further and decided that the remedy was excellent. Of course, like the bottles one gets from the doctor, the solution needs to be well shaken before taken.

Greater production people, of which just now there be many, may well try this idea of the oil remedy, and note results. The decoction is cleanly to use, always handy and safe. Besides, it won't mess up the family irrigation can, and that is worth considering, when flowers have to be watered from the same vessel.

CARTER MAY BE THE MAN

Is On Trial At Stratford For Alleged False Pretences

Chief Thompson has received communications from the police departments of Stratford and Belleville in reference to the man Carter, who is awaiting trial at Stratford on a charge of obtaining under false pretences different shipment of goods.

GERMANS SUITS MADE OF PAPER

SOLDIERS' SUITS SHOW THE EMPIRE'S DIRE STRAITS.

LONDON, June 28. — Striking evidence of the growing straits of the German army, a high official informed your correspondent, was obtained recently from captured prisoners. Their clothing excited curiosity from its appearance, so it was analyzed. It was discovered that the officers are now wearing woven cloth of leather fibre, and enlisted men uniforms of paper fibre. It is evident that such clothing is entirely unsuited to the rigors of a winter campaign ift he war lasts that long.

GREECE BREAKS WITH GERMANY

GERMANS PREPARE TO LEAVE LENS, FORCED OUT BY HEAVY FIRE AND SUFFOCATING GAS

French Correspondents Say That That Foe Will Desert Entire Mining Region and Fall Back on New Defences---Fierce Assaults Made in Vain Against French Positions.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, June 29.—Correspondents of Paris newspapers on the British front think the Germans have decided to evacuate Lens and the whole mining basin. The Journal correspondent says the town is swept by an infernal bombardment and shrouded in clouds of asphyxiating gas which have overwhelmed the enemy who is quitting the town, leaving his wrecked defences, to slip away to fresh quarters in the Drocourt Queant line.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT.

PARIS, June 29.—The enemy showed very great activity on the Aisne front during the night. Violent bombardments were followed by severe attacks in the region of Cerny, southeast of Corbeny, and northwest of Rheims. All his efforts were broken up by our fire or nullified by counter attacks, and our positions were maintained. Fighting was particularly heavy in the region of Cerny, where the enemy made several attacks at two points on our front. Northeast of the Village of Cerny enemy detachments succeeded in gaining a footing in our first line. They were driven out by energetic counter attack by our troops, leaving numerous bodies on the ground. We took prisoners.

On the left bank of the Meuse, the Verdun front, artillery fighting yesterday was extremely intense in the region of Avocourt wood and Hill 304. Violent bombardment with guns of large calibre was directed against our positions and was followed at 6.30 in the evening by a powerful attack delivered by special German assaulting troops on a front of two kilometres west of Hill 304.

Our effectively directed fire disorganized the attack, which enabled the Germans to gain a footing at some points in our first line. A new attack at 3.45 this morning on our positions west of Hill 304 was repulsed completely.

FRENCH VESSELS LOST.

PARIS, June 29.—Two French merchantmen over sixteen hundred tons and three under that tonnage were sunk during the week ending last Sunday.

CAPT. BURNHAM SENDS $50 TO REVIEW FOR BAND FUND

Wants Money Divided Between Two Bands so That Park Concerts May be Continued ---57th Regiment Band Quits.

Capt. Burnham, M.P., sent to The Review this morning a cheque for $50 to be added to the $600 set aside by Council and divided equally between the two bands of the city. Capt. Burnham is desirous that his contribution be divided on the same basis and that $25 be given to each band as an inducement to them to continue their weekly concerts in the park. The cheque sent by Capt. Burnham has been disposed of by The Review in accordance with the wishes of the donor.

Capt. Burnham says that while other organizations in the city appear to be able to get anything they ask for in the way of financial assistance, while the rich are deprived of no luxuries, it would be too bad to deny the masses the pleasure they have always taken in the weekly musical programs in the park. Hence his contribution.

The Review has received the following communication, which explains itself:

PARK CONCERTS DISCONTINUED

Editor Review: As the City Council has practically signified by its recent action in reducing our annual grant to a sum which is utterly inadequate for our requirements, that they do not desire a continuance of our Friday night concerts, we bow with the best grace we can command to their verdict.

It is not without feelings of deepest regret that we announce the discontinuance of these concerts, which have provided such a source of pleasure to thousands of our citizens, and can assure our friends and the public generally that nothing short of the direct necessity has compelled this action.

The new year may probably give us aldermen with broader viewpoints and less susceptibility to cheap and petty ward politics. When this time arrives we hope to resume our concerts, and in the meantime will retain our organization to the best of our ability.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
57TH REGT. BAND.

A CONFEDERATION STAMP.

It has been decided to issue a special stamp to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Confederation. There will not likely be a series, but only a three cent stamp. The exact design has not yet been settled so that the stamp will not be ready for Dominion Day. It will be issued sometime in July.

FOUGHT THEIR WAY INCH BY INCH THROUGH AVION

Canadians Made Fresh Attack on Village Last Night.

THE SECOND IN 24 HOURS

Terrific Artillery Action Veils Scene With a Dense Cloud of Smoke.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, June 29. — Fighting their way forward amid a labyrinth of ruined houses over which the smoke of battle hung densely, the Canadians at sundown last night were more than half way through Avion. The attack, which was the second in 24 hours, was made in conjunction with the British troops, all of whom reached their objectives. On the north our hold upon Reservoir Hill was made absolute by the gallant advance of the British soldiers, who went forward without check, despite heavy enemy shelling.

The German trenches on the eastern side were occupied within half an hour after the attack began. Throughout the day there had been incessant artillery activity. The Germans kept Coulotte and Lens-Arras road under shrapnel fire throughout the afternoon, evidently to make difficult the assemblage of troops for a further advance into Avion. Their former front line on the outskirts of Avion, was also hammered with high explosives, and considerably damaged. Our guns did much counter-battery work to the east of Lens, where most of the enemy's guns are now located.

There was comparative calm for a short time before seven o'clock. When the appointed time came, on a front of many miles from the Scarpe to a point well to the north of the Souchez River, hundreds of guns opened in a terrific cannonade. Soon Reservoir Hill, Lens itself, Avion and the region to the south were hidden behind almost on impenetrable veil of smoke from bursting shells. Amid this the infantry, who had remained inactive throughout the day, amid the grueling fire, went forward.

GREECE IS NOW ON ALLIES' SIDE

NO DECLARATION OF WAR, BUT DIPLOMATS WILL BE RECALLED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ATHENS, JUNE 29. — Though war is not yet declared, the Greek Government considers a state of war exists since its advent to power yesterday. The recall of the Greek diplomatic representatives accredited to the Central Powers and their Allies is imminent.

MR. HANNA URGES ECONOMY IN USE OF FOODSTUFFS

Controller Issues a Word of Warning to Canadian People.

SAVING IS MOST ESSENTIAL

OTTAWA, June 29.—In a statement just issued Hon. W. J. Hanna, the newly-appointed food controller, reviews the food situation in Canada, emphasizes the need of the allies, urges economy and the prevention of waste in food and bespeaks whole-hearted public co-operation.

"Food conservation is essential to win the war," the controller concludes.

Mr. Hanna's statement in part reads:

"The outstanding fact of the food situation, which it is imperative that every citizen of Canada should realize at once is that Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and their European allies are wholly unable to supply the allied armies at the front and on the way. For nearly three years their man-power has been engaged in the direct work of war and in some cases large areas of their most productive lands have been over run by the enemy. Their food shortage and the food to supply the armies of Canada and the United States must be wholly provided from this side of the Atlantic. The supply must also be sufficient to cover losses at sea. Australia, New Zealand, the Argentine Republic, and other countries are not now available to relieve the situation because of their remoteness and the shortage of tonnage.

"The crop of storeable foods grown in Canada and the United States suitable for shipment overseas threatens to be entirely inadequate to meet the demand unless the whole people determine by every means in their power to make up the shortage. Every individual is under a direct obligation to assist in rationing the allied forces. There must be national co-operation to provide the necessary supplies.

"Time and investigation will be required to determine the best means of assuring adequate rations for the Canadian divisions and the allied nations and armies. But these are some measures that are so obviously right that we ask that they be adopted at once and that the men and women of the Dominion pledge themselves to their observance.

PLACES FOR VETERANS.

OTTAWA, June 29.—Accordmg o a return tabled in the Commons, 3,693 returned soldiers have been placed either permanently or temporarily in the Federal service.

LABOR MEMBER WARNS PREMIER OF NEW DANGER

Union Men Will Call Universal Strike if Conscription Is Enforced.

DEMAND A REFERENDUM.

More Liberals Break With Their Leader and Support the Bill.

OTTAWA, June 29 — Alphonse Verville, Liberal-Labor member for Maisonneuve, purporting to speak for organized labor warned the government that the passage of the conscription bill would be the signal for a universal strike in Canada. He said the working men of the country insisted upon a referendum. He considered the production of food and supplies more important than the sending of more soldiers to the front, and declared that the reserves of man power for military purposes had been exhausted. In the United States and Great Britain alike, he said, organized labor had been consulted, but in Canada it had been ignored by the government. Mederic Martin, Mayor of Montreal, and Liberal member for St. Mary's division, went further, and told the government that when they passed the conscription bill they would enter the realm of civil war.

Neely Leaves Laurier

On the other hand, David Neely, Liberal member for Humboldt, who has several thousand Germans in the constituency, made a vigorous speech in favor of conscription and against the referendum.

He described himself as still being an admired of Sir Wilfrid Laurier but in the same breath expressed his surprise that any man would stand up in the house of commons and oppose, or delay, sending reinforcements to the front.

Only less notable was the excellent speech delivered by William G. Welchel, Conservative member for North Waterloo, who came out strongly for conscription and opposed the referendum. He said he was the only member of the house of German parentage, but he was none the less devoted to the cause of the allies, and so was the German-Canadian constituency which he represented.

Dr. J. L. Chabot, the French Canadian Conservative member for the city of Ottawa, supported the policy of the government, while Dr. Eugene Pacquet, for many years Conservative member for L'Islet, announced that he would vote for the referendum.

BRITISH TROOPS CAPTURE FRONT POSITION AND ARE IN POSSESSION OF AVION

Prisoners and Machine Guns Captured and Progress Made Toward Lens---Hostile Raiding Parties Repulsed and More Trenches Taken --- What is Planned in Germany.

(By Associated Press.)

British Headquarters in France, June 29. — Fighting is more intense in the vicinity of Lens. The British made a brilliant attack last night during a blinding rain and thunderstorm on a number of southwesterly suburbs, including Avion. All first objectives were gained, and the indications are that the British are still pushing forward today. Nearly two hundred prisoners have already been collected in cages, and more are reported on the way back from the front; also a number of machine guns are reported taken. Fighting took place in and out among fragments of ruined buildings, Collierie Pit, derricks, and the usual litter of a mining settlement. The bombardment which preceded the attack was carried out on Friday on a wide front and was of but slightly less intensity than those which preceded some of the great actions on the British front.

BRITISH HOLD AVION.

LONDON, June 29.—Early last night we attacked and captured the enemy's forward position on a front of about two thousand yards south and west of Oppy. The whole of our objectives were gained and a number of prisoners and machine guns taken. Our troops continue to gain ground on a wide front south of the Souchese River and have entered Avion. A further number of prisoners and six machine guns have been captured in this area. A hostile raiding party was repulsed during the night north of Cherisy. We successfully raided enemy trenches south-east of Loos.

GAS ATTACK FAILS.

PETROGRAD, June 29.—A war office statement issued last night says: In the direction of Kovel the enemy emitted gas waves which the wind dissipated before they reached our trenches. South of Brzczany the enemy attacked our advanced trenches and showered hand grenades on the defenders who retired after taking some prisoners. In the region of Kuropataiki and Chibain the enemy directed intense artillery bombardment on our trenches.

GERMAN PRESS GAGGED.

LONDON, June 29. — Dispatches from Rotterdam says it is inferred there in view of the gagging of the German press that something dramatic has happened or is about to happen in Germany. The press is declared to be completely muzzled. Belief is expressed in Holland that next week's meeting of the Reichstag may produce startling developments.

A WORD FROM BERLIN.

BERLIN, June 29.—German forces yesterday captured French positions on the Malancourt road, on the west bank of the Meuse in the Verdun sector, over a width of 2,000 yards and to a depth of 500 yards, says an official statement issued today.

Today Germans stormed 300-yard-wide French positions in Avocourt Wood. More than 550 prisoners fell into German hands at both points.

"Y" CAMPAIGNERS REPORT ANOTHER GOOD DAY'S WORK

Total Contributions Last Night Amounted to $8466 and Canvass Continued Today to Reach the Objective of $10,000.

Previously reported	$7041
Thursday's report	1425
Total to date	8466

The results of the Y.M.C.A. campaign to date is most encouraging. Although the objective of $10,000 is not entirely in hand, the team workers are so confident of ultimate success that they are to give another day's time to calling on those who have not already subscribed. In fact a number of the teams agreed to underwrite a certain proportion of the balance needed. It was found that a number of large prospective gifts had not yet been reported on and that quite a few of the regular subscribers were out of town and could not be solicited until their return. Every one is optimistic as to the final result being a complete victory. It now remains for the friends who are willing to assist and who may not yet have subscribed to co-operate by sending in their gifts by mail or phone, so that Friday may see the objective fully reached.

Do Not Want To Be Overlooked.

Yesterday's experience was quite similar to the preceding days in that many persons called at the Y.M.C.A. personally or phoned their subscription. One physician called to leave $10 because he was too busy to see the solicitors when they called at his office. A phone message from a good lady who was out of town the day before was to the effect that she did not want to be overlooked as she had $50 to give the "Y". Another lady called to leave a subscription for her husband who was away and whom she knew would want to be on the list. This is the kind of spirit to insure success and speaks well for the place the association has in the hearts of our citizens.

If you have not yet subscribed fill out this pledge and send to the Y.M.C.A. or The Review:

ALL SHOULD CELEBRATE CANADA'S JUBILEE

Editor Review: Kindly permit me to use your columns to ask the citizens to heartily co-operate to make the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Confederation a great success on Monday next.

The Great War Veterans, the Veterans of '66, the military units and members of all the public bodies, including the City Council, the Board of Education, the Separate School Board, the City Trust, the Utilities Commission, the Board of Health, the Central Charity Board, and also the Trades Unions and the Greater Peterborough Association, which includes all citizens, are asked to meet at the Armories at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. A procession will be formed and proceed through the principal streets, and return to Central Park, where addresses will be delivered on Confederation, its history and benefits. This part of the day's proceedings will especially emphasize the subject of Confederation, and all Canadians, native or by adoption, should take a keen interest in them.

In the afternoon the special reception to the Great War Veterans will be held at the Exhibition Grounds. The motor car parade will take place at 1 o'clock, and the Motor League, which has charge of the feature, wishes all motor car owners to have their cars at the Market Square at that hour, when the procession will be formed, which will take the Great War Veterans to the grounds. I hope that all car owners will assist in this feature of the day's program, and unite in the parade with flags on their cars. The reception to the Veterans will take place upon the arrival of the procession at the grounds, and it is urged that the citizens be present in large numbers to honor the Veterans, to whom too much honor cannot be given. Following the reception the program of sports prepared by the Public Holidays Committee of the Greater Peterborough Association will be carried out.

All citizens should unite in the celebration of this day, to honor the veterans, to celebrate the half century of Confederation, and to make the day a successful one for Peterborough. Unity will do it, and unity is asked for — hearty, public-spirited co-operation.

Yours very truly,
JOS. J. DUFFUS,
Mayor.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1917

FUEL RELIEF IN SIGHT.

WHEN THE CONSUMERS in the United States demanded an investigation into the high price of coal, they got it, the federal commission taking the matter up with the mine operators. The investigation has already had result, and the price of coal at the mouth of the mines is to be reduced in price from $1 to $1.50 a ton, according to quality. That means a corresponding reduction in price to the householder, and other reductions, especially in the cost of transportation, are in prospect. Altogether the change means a saving of millions of dollars to the people of the United States, and the householders in Canada will share in the benefits.

The American Government will probably take over the control of the coal output for the duration of the war. At least there will be a closer official espionage over the operation of the mines and the transportation of fuel than there has ever been, if not actual state ownership.

In the meantime the idea of using electricity for heating purposes is being developed in the United States, and the scientific journals over there are devoting columns of space to the subject. One of the greatest obstacles to the successful operation of electric heating is that during the winter months the tax on the capacity of a public heating plant would be heavy, while in the summer months there would not be enough used to pay to keep the plant in operation. How to overcome this difficulty is the problem.

In some parts of the United States where irrigation is required as an aid to agriculture, on account of the lack of rain in the summer, electric plants have been established in towns large enough to warrant the outlay. These plants are used for heating during the winter months and for operating the irrigating works in the summer.

In a town in Dakota another experiment along these lines is under way. An electric heating plant is being put in. There is no irrigation required in that part of the state, but the plant is to be used for the manufatcure of fertilizer during the summer, a commodity that will be sold at cost to the farmers, and which it is expected will increase production by at least fifty per cent.

What the basic substance contained in the fertilizer is appears to be a secret, but the vitalising element is nitrogen, which is extracted from the air by electricity. There is at Niagara Falls, on this side of the river, a plant engaged in the manufacture of fertiliser by electricity for the American market exclusively.

The Electric World, in its latest issue, has a long article by an electric expert showing the advantages that would follow the general use of electricity as a fuel. It would not only save millions of dollars yearly to the country if once got in proper working order, but would release an army of men now engaged in the mining and transportation of coal for other lines of industry. The World takes the stand that the scarcity of labor is the most serious problem before the country today, and that it is likely to hold that place for years to come.

WHAT WAS THE MOTIVE?

A WORTHY CITIZEN, whiling away an idle hour in a local poolroom, and smoking as he loitered, espied what he regarded as a youth of tender years, solacing himself with a cigarette. Acting on impulse, the self-appointed guardian of the morals of youth struck the cigarette from the mouth of the young man and proceeded to read him a lecture on the folly of his conduct. This naturally was resented, when the policeman for the moment dragged the young fellow to the station and delivered him up to justice.

It was the citizen's little mistake, a case of premature explosion. The young fellow, so far as years were concerned, was entitled to do himself all the harm he chose by driving coffin nails into his system. Subsequently, away from the shadow of the station, the argument was renewed, and the result was that the officious gentleman was himself landed before the magistrate and fined for assault.

The victim of his own zeal will have difficulty in convincing the general public that he acted in this matter from the highest motives and that his only object was to save the young man from a lingering death. The impression will not down that it was simply another case of jealousy and that, like so many of his kind, he is averse to seeing the rising generation assume the functions and privileges of grown-up men. It was an example of precept without practice, something that is militating against the inculcation of morality into the make-up of growing children.

The officious citizen has had his lesson at an outlay of $3 and costs. Whatever his object may have been, he is now in a position to sympathise with the benevolent citizen who, in the interests of harmony, interferes with a strenuous dog fight on the street corner.

SUCH FAITH AS CHILDREN HAVE.

THE CHRISTIAN GUARDIAN appears to have blind and childlike faith in humanity. It says, as will be shown by a perusal of an extract from an editorial published in another column, that if the Government decides to conscript wealth, everything will be easy. Citizens will gladly and of their own accord surrender their gold and their silver, their houses and their lands, to create a fund for carrying on the war.

It seems almost cruel to say anything that would shatter such confidence in the devoted and unselfish patriotism of mankind. But any man of the world knows that The Guardian is off in its reckoning. When wealth is conscripted, there will be infinitely more difficulty in enforcing the law than will be met with in putting into successful operation the Act conscripting manhood itself. Some men may volunteer to avoid the draft, but the majority will probably hang back until they are forced to go. The tax dodger will be always with us, no matter what form the conscription of wealth may take, for, after all, the law which enforces the payment of taxes is only a modified form of the legislation that is now being forced upon the attention of Parliament. Actual experience in this country and elsewhere has demonstrated that of all taxes, that placed on incomes and on wealth in the abstract, if business profits can be so regarded, is the most difficult of all to collect. Even our judges have fought the provincial income tax to the last ditch that courts have dug for their protection.

The Guardian should be guided in its conclusions in this matter by an illustrious example of the selfishness of the rich that has been before the world for two thousand years. When a certain young ruler, he of the open countenance and high ideals, asked the Master what he should do to inherit eternal life, the outward observance of a law was an easy matter for him. When, however, another conditon was imposed and he was told to sell all that he had and give the money to the poor, he went away sorrowing, for he had great possessions.

Human nature has not changed so much in twenty centuries. This country is full of men today who will urge a strict compliance with and a rigid enforcement of the conscription law, and yet will try to dodge the tax collector when a levy is made on their own money or lands.

FIGHTING CONSCRIPTION.

MR. TANCREDE MARSIL, the Quebec anti-conscription agitator, speaking at an anti-conscription meeting in Hochelaga Ward, Montreal, on Friday, the 16th instant, said:

> "We only have one country, and that country is not France, it is not England, it is Canada. Before ruining our country we will take the means to defend it. You who fell on the battlefield of 1837-38! You Chenier! Let your great soul inspire us and show us the path of honor and love for our country!"

Mr. Tancrete Marsil has founded the "League of the Sons of Liberty," with the object of fighting conscription. In an article announcing this foundation, on Saturday last, the 15th, he says:

> "'The League of the Sons of Liberty' is a necessity of the present hour. What we now lack in Quebec is the union of all energies and thoughts in order to direct them towards a common object. I apply first to the young men because they will be first to go under the Borden iniquitous law. Let us be united. Let us feel that we are fighting for one and the same idea. Let us show the exploiters that we are a dangerous power to them. The object of this league is not only to fight conscription but all ministerial measures which lead to it, either directly or indirectly."

"La Liberte," Mr. Marsil's paper, states that Armand Lavergne was one of the first to join this league.

Mr. Athanase David, K.C., M.L.A., is a son of Senator David, who is well known as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's bosom friend. On Thursday, the 14th instant, he held a meeting at Terrebonne, the shire town of the county of the same name, which he represents in the Quebec Legislature. Speaking against conscription, he said:

> "We cannot blame the English-born Canadians who have always placed the interests of their country above those of Canada if, in order to save England, they wish to have a bankrupt Canada, for their greatest dream will then be realized; they will go back home to spend the remaining years of their lives. As to us, for whom no country is waiting, we have at most nothing but sentiments of admiration, of sincere admiration, for France. We do not admit any duty except the obligation to devote our whole energy and power to the greatness and glory of Canada, and much as we are loyal to the British Crown and respect her flag, this will only be the case as long as our country has not grown wings large enough to take its flight and occupy the rank which its destiny has reserved for it. . .
> "It is high time that we in the Province of Quebec cease being the scapegoats and the Turk's heads of English Canada."

NOTES AND COMMENT.

ALAS, FOR POLITICS, what bunk is worked off in your more or less sacred name!

• • • •

• • • •

WHY NOT CONSCRIPT wealth when war prices have done as much for the children's bread?

• • • •

MUCH WOULD BE forgiven if the bolters in Parliament would voice their change of faith in fewer words.

• • • •

EVEN IN THE MATTER of athletes the Canadian soldiers are able to produce the best to be found at the front.

• • • •

FOOD CONTROLLER HANNA asks the public to cooperate in economizing food. Let the rich answer in the affirmative and it will be unanimous.

• • • •

CNOSCRIPTION may yet become a national obsession. There are those in Peterborough who would even conscript the cigarette of the poolroom habitue.

• • • •

IN OPEN FIGHTING, whether in the air, on land or on sea, the German is outclassed. All his so-called victories now are confined to his murderous subs.

• • • •

THE PARTISAN may desert his party in a pinch, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier is in a position to realize, but no hen has yet been induced to lay a cold storage egg.

• • • •

THE NEWSPAPER that attempts to divert public attention from the main duty of the hour by harping on the conscription of wealth, already assured, is simply playing at the old politcal game.

• • • •

A TORONTO PAPER says that Ontario is not a hater of the tongue or creed of Quebec. Then some of the papers in the Queen City have been grossly misunderstood, but perhaps they have been agitating all these years merely as a diversion.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH AS A CHURCH PAPER SEES IT

(Christian Guardian)

The plea is made that along with the conscription of manhood there should go conscription of wealth, and it is urged that in all justice the first should not take place without some guarantee of the second. So far as this plea is simply a subterfuge to delay or avoid conscription of manhood we have no sympathy with it, but so far as it is based upon justice and equity it demands consideration.

But what does it mean? To some it is a very indefinite thing, which may mean little or nothing; but to others it has a very clear and distinct meaning. It means, in the first place, the conscription of war profits. Men argue that while these war years may be profitable to them, yet we must consider that they are only helping to wipe out the deficits of proceeding years. But this argument cannot be accepted as valid. It does not seem just, nor right, nor patriotic, that these terrible war years should be used to turn an unprofitable business into a profitable one, and we have a right to urge that excess war profits be taken over entirely for the country's needs.

To us it is a sad and lamentable fact to note the increase during these years of pleasure, automobiles and such like things. Surely this is not the way to win the war, or to prepare for the stern days which lie ahead. The man who in these days increases luxurious living and rolls up a large bank account belongs to a type of citizen of whom patriotism is ashamed. Better far the lad who left a $3,000 position to fight at $1.10 a day, and who now sleeps his long last sleep on Vimy Ridge, or he who wrote home the other day that his chum at home had had an increase in salary which should have been his own; but he added, "After all, I would sooner be here in France than in his place."

When we face these facts we find it hard to agree with Col. Thomas Cantley, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, when he told the members of that organization last week, in Winnipeg, that the manufacturer who had made money in munitions had "earned" it. To us it seems that today no true patriot in Canada can righteously "earn" more than a decent living. All else belongs to our country in its hour of need.

And conscription of wealth means even more than this. We cannot get away from the fact that if the country has a right to bid its sons give up their business, sunder their dearestest home ties, and face mutilation, disablement and death upon the battle-field, it has an infinitely greater right to take from any man 25 per cent., or 50 per cent., or even 100 per cent., of his accumulated wealth. So far we have touched only excess war profits, we have not even touched income, and, above all, we have not touched capital; but there is no escaping from the reasoning that the country which claims the right to order its sons to the battle-field has a very much greater right, if need be, to take over a portion of the wealth of its citizens. This means much. It means the right to take over part, or all, of the capital of our banks, our railways, and our great manufacturing corporations, as well as the capital of our wealthy individual citizens. Such a thing has never been done, but the logic is inescapable, and capital is surely a much less sacred thing than life.

This is what conscription of wealth means. Are we prepared for it? There is a general impression abroad that while our poor men freely give themselves or their sons, our rich men would never consent to surrender their property. We cannot agree with this view. We believe that patriotism runs through all ranks alike, and we believe that if tomorrow the Canadian Government found it necessary to conscript the wealth of our people, with few exceptions we should find men willing to surrender houses and lands, stocks and bonds, and all the treasures which constitute our wealth, and to surrender them just as freely and gladly as our brave boys have surrendered their noble young lives.

Wit and Wisdom

Percy—Poets are born, not made.
Pearl—I know, poor dear! I wasn't blaming you.

Billington—I understand his wife has money.
Stillington—He understands it, also.

"He's the meanest man living!"
"How so?"
"I told him that I bossed my wife, and he went and told her!"

"Is it necessary to enclose stamps?" asked the poet.
"More necessary even than to enclose poetry," responded the experienced author.

Mrs. Eager—Did Jane ever say anything to you about me?"
Mrs. Stinger—No, never. If Jane can't say anything good of a person, she never says anything.

"Did your husband use to write you poetry before you were married?"
"No; but he used to write me what we both thought was poetry."

"My dear, I wish you wouldn't be so very positive about everything. Remember, there are always two sides to every question."
"Well," answered her affectionate husband, "that's no reason why you should always be on the wrong side!"

Aunt—Won't you have another piece of cake, Tommy?
Tommy—No, thank you.
Aunt—You seem to be suffering from loss of appetite.
Tommy—It isn't loss of appetite. What I'm suffering from is politeness.

Mrs. Smith—Who is that woman you just bowed to?
Mrs. Jones—Oh, she's my next-door neighbor.
Mrs. Smith—But she didn't return your bow.
Mrs. Jones—No; she never returns anything.

He was of a benevolent disposition, and when, on his way home from business the other day, he met the young son of one of his neighbours bearing every indication of having been in a recent battle he said:

"Tommy, I'm very sorry to see you with a black eye."

But Tommy answered: "You go home and be sorry for your own little boy: he's got two!"

A carpenter, sent to make some repairs to a house, entered the apartment of the mistress of the house with his mate, and as he did so he heard her call to her servant:

"Jane, see that my new jewel-case is locked at once!"

Thereupon the carpenter removed his watch and chain and, handing them to his assistant, said, quite audibly:

"Bill, take these back to the shop! It seems this house isn't safe."

ODDS AND ENDS FROM THE AMERICAN PRESS

The Making of an Artiste.

(Kentucky Illuminator.)

Miss Phoebe Tibbets is one of the most accomplished and versatile belles in the whole county and Green Bay is justly proud of her. After establishing her reputation as the most divine of concertina players, whose beauty of soul has charmed many, she has taken up the study of that difficult instrument the trombone. Her many admirers predict that she will develop into a great artiste.

A Test of Temperament.

(Kansas City Star.)

It takes a buoyant temperament for a man to cheerfully replant his corn in June and not blame the disaster on the Lord or his wife.

Blue Ridge Consolation.

(Soden Corres. Newville Times-Star)

How was it, Lottie, when you were making that dress, that you got things hind end foremost? Now, listen, if all mistakes were haystacks, every poor man's cow would have plenty.

Introducing New Comers to a Michigan Town.

(Meara News.)

The Purdys, who moved into the Skeels greenhouse on the boulevard, have three children, a dog named Buster and a big yellow cat named Jerry. The dog chewed up an old hat and a new overcoat.

ATTRACTIVE DINING CAR SERVICE

Probably nothing helps more to make a railway journey really enjoyable than a visit to the "Dining Car," especially if it be a Canadian Pacific Dining Car, where the passenger is assured of the highest form of efficiency in the culinary art; the choicest provisions that the market affords prepared on the scientific principle known as "Dietetic Blending."

Your favorite dish, as you like it, may be enjoyed at reasonable cost, amidst ideal surroundings, while travelling on the Canadian Pacific.

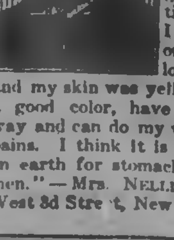
When you meet an obstacle use it as a stepping stone.

DYSPEPSIA OF WOMEN

Special Treatment Required.

Many women suffer from a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms are similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines usually prescribed do not restore the patient's normal condition.

There seems to be a kind of dyspepsia caused by derangement of the female organism. While this appears to be the same as ordinary indigestion it can be relieved only by a medicine which, besides acting as a stomach tonic, is good for female ailments. Read what such a medicine did for Mrs. Williams:—



She says:—"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with dyspepsia and bearing down pains in my back and sides, and after my meals my stomach would bloat up till I could scarcely get my breath. At times I was so weak I could hardly stand on my feet and I looked hollow-eyed and my skin was yellow. Now I have a good color, have gained in every way and can do my work without any pains. I think it is the best medicine on earth for stomach troubles of women."—Mrs. NELLIE WILLIAMS, 81 West 3d Street, New Albany, Ind.

THE HOUSEKEEPERS' GUIDE

Making the Kitchen Comfortable

Efficient housekeeping: Roomy kitchens, with big sunny windows filled with blooming plants and opening toward all out doors and comfortable rocking chairs, are nearly obsolete. Kitchen comfort nowadays means something very different from what it did when the kitchen was a living room and dining room as well as cook shop.

When we hear lectures or read about home interests much is said about "lost motion" or "economy of effort" which, after all is said and written, is merely up-to-date convenience.

No doubt active, nervous people with a quantity of condensed energy have a hard time running the engines of their home affairs without some one to direct them. They run out of fuel and their steam or motive power is gone. An architect must come in to say, "No wonder you are all run down and your house out of gear. Things are too old fashioned here. Everybody has their house remodeled in these days and their kitchens made smaller." As soon as somebody mentions "everybody," everyone wants to be in the procession and modern convenience gives place to old-fashioned comfort. Let 'em whisper a word—all these reformatory, scientific, hygenic, water cure, sanitation kitchen doctors do not always practice what they preach nor always take their own medicine.

The size of a kitchen has little to do with the comfort of the room. The number of steps one takes depends on the arrangement of the furniture and the utensils most often needed. Concentration of resources give an advantage of position. For instance: all the baking articles may be kept together, for they are used together and putting them away together is merely a habit.

It makes no difference if the most capable efficiency expert in the country plans your house with reference to saving you and your help steps, if you do not use your own brains to save your strength.

"Lost motion" is a phrase that looks well and sounds impressive when used to tell how perplexity and trouble result from not having things in their places. Tom Sawyer's aunt expressed it quite as neatly as any twentieth century writer when she said: "Tom, what you don't have in your head you must have in your heels." If you must go to the basement for anything, consider if there is something to be carried down or something to be attended to other than the special duty you are bent on. If you must go upstairs accomplish as much as you can on that trip. A little program, in your mind, of things to be done, gets you through the day with half the fatigue you would feel if you did everything at random, just as it occurred.

This is the most practical way to systematize your household duties and is the right method to teach your children when they put their belongings away or "help mother" at the household tasks. It is better to use common sense ways with what you have than to improve to reach new standards and be like the man who introduced so much system into his business that he had to shut up shop in order to look after his card indexes and accounts.

Breakfast.

Parsley Omelet — Beat yolks of three eggs, add a teaspoon of melted butter, two-thirds of tablespoon flour, two-thirds cup of milk, a little salt. Beat whites very stiff and pour over. Add a tablespoon of chopped parsley, the yolks of the eggs. Heat a buttered spider and cook three tablespoons of mixture at a time. Cook slowly.

Luncheon.

Tomatoes a la Indian—Cut rounds bread and saute in butter until brown on both sides. Cut firm tomatoes in thick slices, two for each person. Cut a good sized green pepper into strips, dip in boiling water and drop into ice water. Wipe tomatoes, fry in hot butter. Lay a slice each on each slice bread. Season well, sprinkle with pepper and cover with another slice tomato, garnish with hard cooked yolk of eggs put through ricer with little parsley.

Dinner.

Asparagus Italian — Cut tender parts of two bunches asparagus into short lengths and set to boil till tender. Take up, drain and put into saucepan with three tablespoons of melted butter, few drops lemon juice, sprinkling of red pepper and salt. Let get thoroughly hot. Take up and serve on slices of fried bread.

Cheese Salad—Mince green peppers fine and mix thoroughly with neuchatel cheese, allowing one pepper to each cheese. Moisten with cream dressing and mould into small balls. Pile the balls on a bed of lettuce and serve with a French dressing.

HAM TIMBALES.

Put one cupful of milk and one cupful of bread crumbs into a saucepan and stir over the fire until a smooth paste is formed. Add one cupful of chopped, cooked ham, three tablespoonfuls of butter, the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and season with salt and pepper. Fill buttered molds two-thirds full of the mixture, cover with buttered paper, put into a pan, and bake in a moderate oven till firm. Turn out on a plater and garnish with hard-boiled eggs.

SOUR CREAM BISCUITS.

Mix and sift 3 cups of sifted flour with 4 teaspoons of baking powder and 1 teaspoon of salt; work in 3 tablespoons of shortening, and moisten with about 1 cup of sour cream in which 1-2 teaspoon of soda has been dissolved. Knead slightly, cut and pat into shape, and bake in a quick oven.

TO CLEAN STRAW.

Gasoline will not clean straw. Go to any drug store and get some salts of lemon; put a teaspoonful of the powder into a pint bowl of lukewarm water, then with a nail brush scrub the straw. Rinse with clear water and allow it to dry in the shade.

Any amount of preparations sold for cleaning straw hats, but above is cheap and reliable. If the straw is burnt, don't expect to make it white again.

MEAT PIE.

One cup of chopped cold meat, 2 cups of cold mashed potato, 1 cup of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Mix together. Cook half a dozen onions 15 minutes in boiling water, remove from fire, salt, pepper, and butter to taste. Chop and add to the other ingredients. Make a rich biscuit dough, roll out and line deep dish. Fill with the mixture and bake till brown.

Mrs. Malaprop Tells About It

Oh, yes, Miss Missem, we had a most hinjoyous time at Mrs. Matem's Garden Party. The Matems' back yard enjoins the river; there is only one row of houses between and you can smell the mud quite plain and the singing of the musheeters is lovely; and the hatmosphere is most embracing. So we all had fiery consuming apetites, specially that Bill Jones. He had six helpings of boiled ham; really I was most ashamed to take another helping myself, although I only had four. But that ham was good. Mrs. Matem got it at Paskins Store, and she only paid 29c a pound for it. And those sweet mustard pickles was magnificent, only Bill Jones sat in the dish and so there wasn't enough to go round, and he got the biggest share 'cause nobody else would eat 'em after he had picked 'em off he pants.

After supper, Mr. Matem got the fellows what wasn't too full to help him Paris Green his pertaters, and we ladies went and give 'em good advice. And you ought to 'eve seen those bugs curl up. That is awful good Paris Green Paskins sells. Why, those bugs started to sing "Now I lay me down to die" as soon as they saw the package. Well, I felt so empty-like after workin' so hard that I had to go and get a snack, so I got a dish of cream custard with apricots, and it was so delopshus that I felt like more, only I didn't like to be greedy, seein' as I had 'ad five helpins. Mrs. Matem says Paskins only charges 15c a tin for the custard and 15c a pound for the apricot. Well, everybody had a most endurable time, time. But Bill Jones made himself sick eatin' chocolates, and I ain't surprised, 'cause they had a new kind with a sort of soft crisp fillin' with nuts, and Mrs. Matem says Paskins only asks 35c a pound for them.

Eh! Where is Paskins?

Lawks! I thought everybody knew. It's that store on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer with the nice plants and ferns outside.

Eh! Oh, yes; they are on the Phone. It's 317.

A PEACE WOULD MEAN DISASTER

IF WAR ENDED BEFORE OBJECT OF THE ALLIES WAS ATTAINED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

GLASGOW, June 29. — Discussing the question of peace today, Premier Lloyd George said if the war should be concluded a single hour before the Allied Powers reached the end which they set out to attain at the beginning of hostilities, it would be the greatest disaster that ever befell mankind.

The Premier said Russia would regain her strength at a bound and become mightier than ever. The distractions postponed complete victory, but made victory more sure and more complete than ever and of a higher quality.

CAPES AND BICYCLES

Curiously enough, the cape is one of the articles which came in with the bicycling pastime, and has needed very little alteration in pattern since. Many have tried various novel forms of weather protection awheel, but most have at last returned to the primitive cape as the simplest and best. It is by no manner of means an ideal garment, for to undertake a lengthy journey swathed in a macintosh cape is not to encourage one's temper to a cheerful mood; but we have nothing to beat it, nor is there known any method to improve the design. True, there are too many of the "skimp" kind about.

Removing Dirt From Autos

Grease or oil is a hard thing to get off an automobile body, particularly if it has had a chance to dry. If necessary either gasoline or kerosene may be used to remove such deposits, but gasoline is the most advisable as it evaporates quickly, and therefore will not collect dust. Road tar that has not been allowed to dry can be removed by local applications of a mixture of lards or butter with a small quantity of salt. Take a small amount of it on the finger and rub it on the tar spot lightly so that there will be no scratching. This should loosen the tar and allow it to be washed off immediately.

Female Emigrants

As a result of the restrictions on the emigration of males of military age from the United Kingdom, the emigrant parties which now leave Dublin twice a week are largely composed of young women and children. They are setting out from that port at the rate of about one hundred a week, the majority bound for the United States. Many who hoped to settle down in the States are returning, denied admission for a variety of reasons.

MRS. MULOCK TO GET ALIMONY

COURT ORDERS HUSBAND TO PAY HER $3000 A MONTH.

TORONTO, June 29.—Master-in-Ordinary Mr. George Alcorn, to whom was relegated the duty of fixing the amount of alimony to be paid by Cawthra Mulock to his wife, Mrs. Adele Baldwin Mulock, following a judgment in the courts in the wife's favor on April 30th, yesterday issued his report at Osgoode Hall. The Master-in-Ordinary finds that the defendant should pay plaintiff $3,000 per month and that the latter give credit to her husband as against this amount all the income she might receive from her marriage settlement, which is to be credited against the next payments due. Mrs. Mulock is also asked to give credit in like manner for any income which she may receive as dividends or otherwise upon 1,160 shares of stock in the Eastern Construction Company, now held by her, or any moneys or securities substituted therefor.

FACTIONS ARE EVEN IN SENATE

THE NEW APPOINTMENTS GIVE THE PARTIES 39 MEMBERS EACH.

OTTAWA, June 29.—Lieut.-Col. Geo. W. Fowler, M.P. for King's and Albert, New Brunswick, who is now overseas with a battalion which he raised in his own Province, has been appointed to the Senate, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Baird. His appointment creates another vacancy in the Commons membership, bringing the total number of vacancies up to 21. The Senate standing is now 39 Liberals and 39 Conservatives, with nine vacancies still to fill. The remaining vacancies, it is expected, will be filled within the next few days.

The Government has also appointed Gilbert W. Ganong, ex-M.P. for Charlotte, N.B., to succeed Hon. Josiah Wood as Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick. Mr. Ganong was a member of the Commons from 190[illegible] to 1908. He is a member of the confectionery firm of Ganong Bros., St. Stephen, N.B.

German military writers, with enlightment furnished to them by the War Press Bureau, express the opinion that the British are preparing a new offensive, but don't know where. All agree that no serious French offensive is to be expected.

Save the Food and Serve the Empire !

The Average Canadian Family Wastes Enough to Feed a Soldier

"The Kitchen must help as well as the Workshop and the Trenches"
Lloyd George.

INTELLIGENT economy in the kitchen can do much to prevent the threatened world famine—can counteract the effect of high prices—and can replace growing debt with systematic saving.

Careful investigations show that before the war the average British family wasted 25% of their food—and we Canadians were even more extravagant.

This waste is not in a few big things, but in many little ones, each, we used to think, too small to bother about—such as careless peeling of vegetables and fruit—failure to make good use of dripping and "left-overs"—and such others as will occur to every thrifty housekeeper.

For the Empire's sake as well as your own, hunt up and cut out these leaks ! You'll be helping to relieve the food shortage—saving your own money—and putting yourself in a position to buy Canadian War Savings Certificates and help win the war.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post-Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% Interest. Should you need it, you can get your money back at any time.

A REAL HOLD-UP

The quietude of Lindsay has been disturbed by a report of an alleged hold-up on one of its main thoroughfares, and so far the police have only a suspicion as to who the guilty parties are.

Two young men with their lady friends were, it is said, stopped by two soldiers at a late hour on Tuesday night and a demand made for money.

The parties so accosted have given Chief Short no particulars, but constable Parks, it is said, was notified of the affair at once, and made investigation.

Two members of the Arsenal Guard who are in the County Jail for remaining off duty are mentioned in connection with the affair.

Light and Power will be shut off on Sunday morning, July 1st from 6 to 8 a.m., for repairs.

ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Edgar Alcombrack Held for Hearing on $500 Bail.

Edgar Alcombrack was charged before Acting Police Magistrate H. Rush with having on Wednesday committed an indecent assault on a young girl in Nicholls Park, and at the request of Crown Attorney Hatton the case was enlarged until next Thursday.

On Wednesday evening last the caretaker of the park reported to the police that he had frightened a fellow away who had tried to abuse a young girl at the park, and after getting a good description of the fellow and later on obtaining a statement from the intended victim, the police went on a chase which resulted in the arrest.

At the police court the defendant refused to plead or elect through his counsel, G. N. Gordon. The prisoner was admitted to bail of $500.

Many a man's fish stories are arbitrarily limited by the spread of his arms.

OBITUARY

ROBERT P. PAYNE.

Mr. Robert Payne, a well known and highly respected resident of Dummer, passed away after a very short illness on Saturday, June 23, 1917, at his home, lot 16 con. 4, Dummer.

The late Mr. Payne was born Jan. 1, 1871, on lot 18, con. 3, Dummer, where he resided till his marriage to Miss Bessie Hurr of Southwold, England, May, 1906, when he moved to his late home, always following the occupation of farming.

He was popular with all who knew him and the news of his death was received with deep sorrow by a large circle of friends.

He was a Methodist in religion being a member of Bethel Church on Warsaw circuit.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife and four children: Hanlan, Verna, Winnifred and Vivian; also his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Payne of Lakefield, and two brothers, Wm. A. Payne of Smith Tp., and Jacob H. Payne of Lakefield, also one sister, Mrs. Everett Garbutt of Dummer.

The funeral services conducted by Rev. Mr. Clare of Warsaw were held at the home on Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. and thence to the family plot in Warsaw cemetery, followed by a very large number of friends.

MRS. NORMAN McCONKEY

Maud Elliot, beloved wife of Mr. Norman McConkey, of Lot 18, Con. 10, of Smith, died at noon to-day after a very short illness. It was only a few days ago that she took sick, and despite the best medical care and attention, never rallied. Surviving her are her husband, three daughters and two sons. Mr. Josept Elliot, of Smith, is the father of the deceased. Mrs. McConkey was a member of the Bridgnorth Methodist Church.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon from the family residence to the Bridgnorth Cemetery. Funeral services by Rev. Gladstone McKee.

No Daylight Saving Until Next Year

BILL PROPOSED BY SIR GEORGE FOSTER TO BE HELD UP.

OTTAWA, June 29. — The daylight saving scheme which Sir George Foster has introduced into Parliament will not likely be effective this year. It is still in the embryonic stage. The bill has been presented and given a formal first reading, but it has never been discussed on the merits or advanced further. Like other measures it must give place to conscription. As it is a summer time proposition, and very uncertain as to the date of being adopted, there seems little chance of it being put in operation this year, assuming that the bill does get the approval of the House and Senate.

In the United States the daylight saving bill, amended to take effect next year, passed the Senate without discusion, and was sent to the house. Under the bill all timepieces will be turned forward one hour, beginning the last Sunday in April, and continuing until the last Sunday in September.

CAMERON WILL ALL GOES TO SON; WIDOW OBJECTS

CASE NOW BEING HEARD IN LINDSAY PROBATE COURT.

The Cameron will case came up before his Honor Judge McMillian in Lindsay yesterday, the principal witness heard being Mr. Jno. Cunnings, of Oakwood, who had drawn up two or more wills for the late Archibald Cameron, of Oakwood.

It appears that the major part of the estate was left to the one son, Mr. John Cameron, of Oakwood, and the widow of the deceased and grandchildren have entered suit to have the will annulled or upset.

Amongst the prominent witnesses and counsels in court were: Dr. Jukes Johnston, Chief Coroner, Toronto; Dr. Clarke, head of the Toronto General Hospital; Mr. Hartley Dewart, K.C., Toronto, who is acting as counsel for Miss Clare Brett Martin, who is interested in the case. The latter lady is one of the few lady lawyers in Ontario, and it might be stated that she graduated the same years as Mr. L. V. O'Connor, Lindsay. Mr. O'Connor is solicitor with the executors, and will give evidence. Mr A. M. Fulton acting as his counsel.

Mr. T. Stewart represents the widow and grandchildren, and had drawn up a will for the deceased also. A daughter of the deceased, who resides in British Columbia, had a will made by her father, which will also play an important part in the case.

The estate is valued at from $30,000 to $40,000.

PLIGHT OF THE OFFICERS WHO ARE NOW IN ENGLAND

Why so Many Commanders of Broken up Battalions Find it Necessary to Return to Canada.

(Douglas S. Robertson in Toronto Telegram).

LONDON, June 12.—England contains many dissatisfied Canadian officers to-day, and no doubt many have arrived in Canada with grievances. These are the senior officers, who, there being no vacancies for them, have under the now more stringently enforced regulations, either to revert to lieutenancies or go home.

It does seem hard, and it is hard, that captains, majors and lieutenant-colonels who have recruited enthusiastically in Canada, and rallied thousands of men to the colors should on arrival find themselves in such plight. Many a colonel has told me his story. After gathering what he deemed with proper pride "one of the finest battalions in Canada" about him, spent much of his own hard cash on it, learned to know his men personally, and generally put his whole soul into the work, he is told that his battalion must be broken up for drafts, and stands broken-heartedly by as company after company is sent off to reinforce other regiments.

"—And No Place To Go."

As for himself, failing some job at the base, there is only one finale. After a brief sojourn in England, perhaps a two weeks' tour of the front, if he be lucky, and a taste of the real thing in the trenches, he must go home. A leutenant-colonel cannot become a subaltern.

With the majors it is scarcely less hard. A lieutenancy is no small step down in pay, and for married men with families a positive financial barrier forbids the reversion. Majors, too, are generally on the elderly side for lieutenants' work. So they, too, unless one of the rare base jobs comes their way, must, after an interval, take ship back to Canada.

For captains there is less excuse. Most of them are youthful enough for subaltern duties, though in the case of captains with families the consequent reduction in pay is also a serious matter.

Would Revert To Fight

"They put it up to me," declared a Toronto captain not long over with a battalion which had been broken up. "They told me I would have to revert to lieutenant or go home. Well, I told them that I would revert if they could assure me that I would be sent to France at once, but they couldn't. Now, scores of lieutenants are waiting to go over, and some have been waiting months. I guess I will go home. I can't afford the long reduction in pay." This captain is a young married man with a wife and two children.

Hard To Go Back Home

"Just picture me going back to Canada, back to the town where I recruited a battalion, and facing the mothers whose sons they thought would be under me at the front! What am I to tell these people? What will they think of me for not going to France?" Such was the lament of one lieutenant-colonel I talked to. A major with a family, a school teacher who works hard for his living, is another example. Financial reasons make it impossible for this man to revert. And yet he hates to return to his home town and be upbraided as a slacker. These are examples. Many of these officers deserve sympathy. And yet surely at this late day they must have known what was likely to be their fate. For long past almost every new battalion has been broken up and its senior officers preforce stranded.

Be Considerate

Canadians should be considerate, at least, of these older officers, who are returning. Don't be critical until you know the exact circumstances. To tell of colonels and even majors going to the front as privates is absurd, and people who argue thus don't know how nonsensical their contentions sound to those in the trenches.

Finally, remember that spry young fellows are what they want out in France as lieutenants. And who are beter suited for the job than the scores of Canadian boys in France rising from the ranks every week to don Sam Brownes?

THEIR ANNUAL OUTING.

St. John's Choir Held Picnic At Burleigh.

The annual outing of St. John's choir was to Burleigh Falls yesterday when about a hundred choirsters and friends boarded the "Stony Lake" at 8.30 a.m. and enjoyed a trip to Burleigh. The committee in charge, Warden W. F. Johnson, Mr. H. W. Morphet, and Mr. R. J. Devey had made excellent arrangements for the comfort of the party, assisted by the weather man who contributed a beautiful day.

Mine host and Mrs. Darcy provided a dainty luncheon, excellently served, and Coleman Bros. did equally well with the supper served on board on the return trip.

Mr. Harry Long sprung a surprise on the party by handing round baskets of Northern Spy apples, a gift greatly enjoyed.

After exploring the beautiful scenes around Burleigh, fishing and snapshotting, the choir gathered on the verandah of the hotel and sang 'The Marvellous Work" from Haydn's "Creation." The races were held at Young's Point, most of the contestants winning prizes, which included a canoe, a frying pan, and a coal scuttle, (all glass).

The large number present of the 'Greek Slave" company furnished many numbers of that delightful opera, and with other singing and dancing there was not a dull moment in the holiday. Hearty thanks and cheers were given for the committee, the caterers, and to Captain Scollard and crew, a delightful day ending with the singing of the National Anthem.

NAME CLEARED.

In Tuesday's Review a report of the police court proceedings referred to a man named Dennis Sullivan being fined. This was not Mr. Dennis Sullivan who lives at 267 Bethune street.

MILLBROOK

(Special Correspondence.)

Mrs. Bruce Parker was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Wood, at Peterborough on Saturday.

Messrs. Oscar McGill and William Douglas shipped nine cars of cattle from Cavan last week.

Canon Allen received official notice from Ottawa that his son, Pte. Tom Allen, previously reported as wounded, had succumbed to his injuries. We join in extending sympathy to the bereaved parents.

Died, in Cavan, on June 23, Mary Larmer, relict of the late R. P. Lowry, aged 90 years. The remains were taken to Newcastle, interment being made at Bonehead cemetery.

A strawberry festival will be held on the grounds of the Methodist Church at Baillieboro on Thursday, July 5. Supper from 5 to 8 p.m., after which an excellent program of vocal and instrumental music, with Mr. Asa Huycke, of Peterborough, taking part, addresses by local ministers, and recitations, will be rendered. The Millbrook Methodist orchestra will be present.

Messrs. Bert and Fenton Perry of Rochester were visiting their cousin, Mrs. James Howden, last week.

Miss Florence McIndoo of Centreville was a guest of the Misses Lila and Stella Pethick on Tuesday.

About one hundred of the members of the Junior and Senior Leagues of the Methodist church gathered on the Mansion grounds Thursday afternoon of last week for their annual picnic. Everybody entered heartily into the games and races. Refreshments were served, and the leagues realized over four dollars from the sale of ice cream, candy, etc.

Last Monday evening the meeting of the League was in charge of the citizenship committee. Rev. W. H. Higgs gave an address and Miss Stella Hetherington a piano solo, both of which were much enjoyed. The League will close for the months of July and August.

Mr. T. Collins of Peterborough was in town on Tuesday.

The Orangemen of Cavan District will attend Divine service at the Methodist church next Sunday night, when Rev. Mr. Higgs will preach.

The service in the Presbyterian Church will commence at 7:30 p.m. instead of 7 next Sunday, and until further notice.

Charged with calling a party of United States soldiers and sailors "a bunch of bums," George Hock fifty-six years old, a hotel and bath house proprietor at Coney Island, was held in $1,000 bail. "The charge against you is bordering on treason," declared Magistrate Voorhees.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency) Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

BICYCLE RACES ARRANGED FOR MONDAY'S CELEBRATION

Toronto Riders of Note Will Take Part in Principal Events---Valuable Prizes Offered and Ladies Invited to Turn Out.

The bicycle races on Monday are sure to be a success. Over a score of Canada's best amateurs are coming for the races at the Exhibition grounds. Herb Macdonald, Bicycle Club of Toronto has named fifteen starters in the five-mile open and two mile handicap.

Doc Morton, the fastest amateur short distance rider in Canada and a member of the Macdonald Club, is among them. Little Jack Macdonald, 10 years old, with the smallest racing bicycle ever built will accompany the Toronto party.

A special car will be attached to the C.P.R. train, due to arrive Monday a.m. at 11.30 and will be met by a delegation of Peterborough cyclists. St. Onge, the Montreal rider, and former trick cyclist is already here, having arrived last night. Harry Richard, C.W.A. official, will arrive Monday a.m. to act as referee. Bicycle Bill Grachal, the big bicycle booster is coming from Ottawa. Mr. George Brayden, of Weston Ont., the noted touring cyclist will act as one of the officials. Peterborough fans are to be treated to regular bicycle races. Ever since the London, Ont., races on Empire Day, where bicycle racing certainly had a come-back and the Peterborough racers were first announced, riders have been training, and now it is up to the public to encourage this wonderful sport. The Health Society have been presented with some fine prizes for the races and it is hoped we will be favoured with good weather. The Swift Cycle Club, of Toronto, have entered four of their crack riders; the Salem Club three riders, and the Classic Club, of Toronto fame, two entries. Together with the Toronto riders the boys from Peterborough and vicinity will make up a fine field of riders. There has been a two-mile race for Peterborough boys of 18 years and under added to the list of events, making three bicycle races on the card. Fred St. Onge, the former trick cyclist, now a traveller from the house of A. E. Bregent, of Montreal, who presented the $50.00 bicycle will do his tramp bicycle act on the track in front of the Grand Stand.

The following Toronto riders will positively start in the big five-mile open race and two-mile handicap:

Swift Cycle Club — Jas. Martin, Neal Russell, Tom Ford, Roy Hunter.

Entries for the races, which are held under C.W.A. sanction, positively close Saturday evening. Entries can be made at C. R. Bank's Garage.

Another big bicycle race, a "Tour around Peterborough," headed by Fred St. Onge, of Montreal, will start from Bank's Garage Saturday evening at 7 p.m.—slow race, just a social ride—all riders of bicycles invited. At the recent Montreal race 417 riders turned out. Lady cyclists are cordially invited to join in the ring. Ride a bicycle!

With the addition of a gold watch which has been donated as First Prize in the two-mile handicap open race, it has necessitated the re-arranging of the prize list as follows:

Five-mile open—First: Pope bicycle, valued at $50.00, presented by A. E. Bregent, Montreal; second, scarf pin; third, pair of Dunlop bicycle tires.

Two-mile handicap, open — First prize, gold watch; second prize, scarf pin; third prize, bag of flour.

The arrival in Brazilian waters of an American Pacific fleet squadron, comanded by Rear-Admiral William Caperton, reveals that the American navy has taken over the responsibility for the patrol of that region against German raiders.

TWO WAYS TO ACQUIRE AN ESTATE

1 - By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family, and yourself maybe, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2 - By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

TWO WAYS TO BEQUEATH AN ESTATE

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape at court. Requires court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator—you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of court proceedings—no expense of court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

Which is the SAFER and BETTER Way to Bequeath an Estate?

IS NOW PROPRIETOR AND EDITOR OF PEMBROKE STANDARD.

Mr. Thomas W. Whalley, formerly managing director of The Review, recently purchased the Pembroke Standard, a live weekly, and the paper was issued for the first time last Wednesday under his management. The Standard was founded in 1867, so that it celebrates its fiftieth anniversary the same year as the nation itself. It is a Conservative organ, and this week's issue takes up the cudgels vigorously in favor of conscription. Mr. J. F. C. Whalley, formerly editorial writer on The Review, has an excellent historical sketch of the confederation of the Canadian Provinces in 1867.

Morning Sittings Urged

Sir Robert Borden moved that after next Tuesday there be morning sittings of the house. Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that the date be postponed until after the close of the conscription debate. Sir Robert said the government were very anxious to facilitate business, and for this reason he was introducing the proposal. He asked if the Liberal would give any idea when the debate might finish. Sir Wilfrid promised to let him know to-morrow, and on that understanding the motion was dropped.

You Are Paying For It Anyway

YOU have a hard day. Weary, nerves frazzled, you reach home.

Nothing would suit you better than to stay right home.

But you go out.

You go to the cabaret. You eat when you don't want to eat. You are away from home when you want to be at home.

You try to satisfy your music hunger with a hand-out around the corner. That helps a little. What you really want, though, is a music feast in your own home.

In shirt sleeves, downright comfort, your own piano or player piano or talking machine and the world of music from which to choose the music to fit your mood.

And don't think you can't have a piano or player piano or talking machine in your home. You're entitled to one. You're paying for it anyway. Yes, paying for it—but not getting it.

That once or twice each week that you go music-hunting costs as much, maybe more, than it would cost to own an instrument.

A really good piano or player piano or talking machine can be purchased at a very reasonable price and the payments can be so divided that your music-hunting money will more than take care of them.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK C.N. EXPRESS

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT IS LIBERAL WITH GRANTS TO AID TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

Will Pay For All Equipment and Defray Half Cost of Instruction--Principal Sprague of Hamilton Addresses Representative Meeting at Collegiate Institute.

There is a demand in Peterborough for a technical school. It comes from the most influential and representatives residents of the city, including the business men and the manufacturers. The members of the Board of Education are in favor of it. Ways and means and the probable cost are the first considerations.

The Industrial Committee have control of this matter, but the members must be supported by popular sentiment. The different departments of the Board of Trade have declared for a technical school and have forwarded resolutions to the School Board.

It has been suggested that the city start in a modest way by purchasing a site and erecting a building sufficient for present needs at a probable cost of $50,000, this to be added to as the necessity arises. The building would be erected in accordance with plans suggested by the Department of Education. This is the heaviest cost connected with the venture, as the Government is liberal in allowances for such schools. The Government will pay for the equipment of such a building, forty per cent. of it the first year and the balance in three equal annual instalments.

The Government will pay half the cost of instruction. Peterborough under such an arrangement could have a staff of teachers in a technical school receiving $10,000 a year, and of this amount the taxpayers would be called on to put up only $5000.

The operating expenses, such as lights and heating, would alone be borne by the people of this city.

There are 3,000 school children in Peterborough. Of these, fully 90 per cent., or 2,700, leave school before they are 16 years old. It is for the special benefit of this majority that the technical school is designed. It is a benefit planned for the masses, not for a chosen few. It is the children of the poor who will profit most.

Technical instruction is now regarded as the most valuable of all educations. Besides this, it is the least costly to the taxpayer, as the Government grants are more liberal in this than in any other department.

The above points were clearly brought out by Mr. Geo. L. Sprague, principal of the Hamilton Technical School, in his address at the Collegiate Institute last night. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Board of Trade, and Mr. J. J. Turner, president of that organization, presided. The gathering was not large as numbers go, but it was representative, and the audience was interested, as shown by the discussion that followed the address. In his address introducing the speaker of the evening, Mr. Turner said the necessity for technical schools was more urgent than ever by reason of the war, in order to replace the excellent type of manhood that is being sacrificed daily.

Principal Sprague dwelt on the 90 per cent. of pupils who leave school before the age of 16 and who go to work without any idea of what they are best fitted by Nature to undertake. These are the children the technical school is designed to reach. Passing the Entrance examination is of little practical aid. One year in a technical school is what such children require.

The technical school has no quarrel with organized labor. Labor unions and the educational authorities work together in Hamilton. In some cases the apprentices—those in the printing offices especially are required to spend half a day each week in the technical schools.

The Returned Soldiers.

Special care is taken of the returned soldiers. A large percentage of the men now at the front will be unable to take up their former line of work when they come back, and must be provided for. A Hamilton blacksmith who enlisted was gassed, and cannot follow his former calling. He is being trained in the machine shop.

Another who is now suffering from heart trouble, was a stationary engineer, and it is no longer safe for him to work among machinery. Another, a civil engineer, was wounded in the thigh, and this prevents him from following his profession. All these are in the technical school taking up some line at which they will be able to earn a living.

At the request of Mr. J. J. Hartley, president of the Trades Council, Principal Sprague went extensively into the cost of a technical school, and the facts cited above were brought out.

Mr. Turner suggested that the old West Ward School building be used as a start for a technical school, but the general opinion seemed to be that that building is inadequate even for a beginning.

Mr. G. O. Cameron believed that the city should not be satisfied with too modest a start, but should aim high. A number of questions asked by the audience were fully answered. London is at present spending $160,000 in building a school for technical training.

On motion of Mr. E. W. Breyfogle and Mr. J. J. Hartley, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Principal Sprague for his admirable address.

PLAYGROUNDS TO BE OPENED ON TUESDAY

LABOR ACCEPTS THE PROMISE

IS SATISFIED WITH PLEDGE THAT WEALTH WILL BE CONSCRIPTED.

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, June 30.—Yesterday was characterized by a dramatic presentation by French members of a large number of petitions duly authenticated and from a large number of parishes. This has become a daily practice in the House just before the orders of the day are called, especially since they now expect to get little assistance from Labor which appears to be satisfied, at any rate for the present with the Finance Minister's assurance that wealth will be conscripted as well as labor. The French mayor of Montreal made a fiery appeal towards the closing hours of the evening session.

Sir Herbert Ames's reference to the possibility of an election is taken as coming from higher up and is having a quieting effect.

MR. WEARING TO SPEAK

Mr. Joseph Wearing will deliver a short adress on Confederation at the morning service in Murray Street Baptist Church to-morrow.

KNOX CHURCH.

At the service in Knox Church tomorrow evening, a temporary honor roll of the men of the congregation who have enlisted will be on view for the first time. This fact will doubtless be of interest to the whole congregation.

ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK C.N. TRAIN AT BELLEVILLE

Switch Was Broken and Stones Placed on Track Sir William Mackenzie and Other Notables on Board But all Escape Injury.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

TORONTO, June 30. — The Canadian Northern Express from Ottawa for Toronto was derailed near Thurlow, five miles east of Belleville, at 3.35 this morning and it appears that an attempt had been made to wreck the train. Some damage to rolling stock resulted and the scene was one of picturesque destruction but nobody suffered the smallest injury.

Sir William Mackenzie, president of the railway, in his private car was on the rear of the train, but his sleep was not disturbed. The train carried a large number of other prominent people, including Wm. Weichel, H. B. Morphy, Hugh Clark and E. N. Lewis, members of Parliament, Sir John Aird Erwood and Z. A. Lash of Toronto.

The derailment was caused by an open switch and it was the opinion of those who examined the track that there had been an attempt to wreck the train.

"The evidence is conclusive," said E. R. Wood, "that it was deliberate. The switch lock was broken off with a stone and carried away and stones were placed between the rails of the switch to ensure it remaining open.

ENGLAND WILL NOT LET PEOPLE SUFFER HUNGER

PREMIER PROMISES THAT PRICE OF BREAD WILL BE KEPT DOWN.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, June 30.—In a speech at Dundee to-day, Premier Lloyd George said if necessary the Government would resort to the Exchequer in order that the price of bread should be within the means of the bulk of the people. So far, the Premier said, the people had to bear no privations. Men restricted in their luxuries should not give themselves the airs of men who were enduring tortures.

Sunday Morning Dominion Day

It has been suggested that in view of our 50th Dominion Day falling on Sunday this year, and that since this outstanding anniversary comes at a time when our fair Dominion is engaged in the most terrible war and the most righteous war that has ever demanded the resources of the christian world, that on the morning of July 1st, every man, woman and child in Peterborough should be found and that nothing but illness or the most unusual conditions should prevent this great day from witnessing the entire population at prayer and worship.

IN THE HOUSE OF GOD

CANADA MUST NOT FALTER IN TIME OF STRESS

Stirring Appeal to Canadians Issued by Premier Borden.

MUST GUARD HERITAGE.

Nation's Part in the War Such as Its Founders Would Have Wished.

OTTAWA, June 30. — "Let us with resolute spirit so maintain our purpose and our effort that in this last and greatest chapter of humanity's striving and triumph it shall be recorded of Canada that as at the first she never hesitated, so to the end she never faltered."

With the above inspiring words Sir Robert Borden concludes a message to the people of the Dominion of Canada on the occasion of its semi-centennial. The Premier reviews the growth of the country in the fifty years which have elapsed since Confederation and refers to the great problems with which the country is faced in its fiftieth anniversary. The Premier's message reads:

"Amid the welter and horror of a war which devastates civilization, we pause for a moment to consider the Canada of half a century ago and the Canada of today. Much has been added to us; our boundaries have been vastly extended so as to embrace half a continent; our population has nearly trebled; there has been a measurable development of our resources; we have grown enormously in production, commerce and wealth; facilities of communication and transportation have been provided beyond all anticipation; the general conditions of life and the standards of living have been conspicuously raised. Education facilities have been greatly enlarged. In all these and many other incidents of the world's progress Canada has more than held her own.

"All this is impressive, but still more inspiring is the thought that during the half century which now draws to a close Canada has come to a fuller knowledge of her heritage and of the responsibility which it entails, to a clearer consciousness of national purpose, to a firmer confidence in her destiny.

"In greatness of any nation rests in the last analysis upon the character of its people as exemplified in their ideals and by their capacity for sacrifice and devotion in fulfilling the national purpose. Judged by this unfailing test, Canada stands unashamed before the world. In 1866, the year before our Confederation was born, Prussia snatched from Austria the hegemony of the German states and took her first step along the awful path that has led her to the relentless issue which she forced upon humanity three years ago. Her challenge to civilization and human freedom is being answered beyond the seas by the free democracies of the world. Among them Canada has worthily taken her place and proudly borne her part. Thus would they have wished it who in 1867 laid the foundation of our liberties. Let us with resolute spirit so maintain our progress and our effort that in this last and greatest chapter of humanity's striving and triumph it shall be recorded of Canada that as at the first she never hesitated, so at the end she never faltered."

FRESH GERMAN TROOPS WIPED OUT BY FRENCH

ALMOST ANNIHILATED.

Advanced Along Line of Nearly Two Miles to Meet Disaster.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, June 30.—The war office announces the Germans resumed their violent attack on the Verdun front west of Dead Man's Hill last night. Picked German troops advanced on a sector of one and three fourths miles and were almost annihilated by the French.

The Germans penetrated the first French line over the entire front attacked but were driven out excepting the western slope of Dead Man's Hill. The French made a counter attack west of Hill 304 and took back most of the trenches lost on Thursday.

On the Aisne front the Germans attacked northeast of Cerny employing burning liquid. They occupied a salient after the defense had been levelled by shell fire but were repulsed elsewhere.

STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYES WILL DEMAND MORE WAGES

Request for More Pay to be Heard Before Sir Adam Beck Next Week---Men Are Well Organized.

When a man first gets a job on the local street railway he gets eighteen cents an hour whether he works on the front or the rear of a car and is allowed to work only eight hours a day. This brings his daily earnings up to $1.44 or $8.64 cents a week, not an excessive scale when the price of fuel and food are considered. But there is chance for advancement. If a man faithfully serves six years at that rate he will be paid as high as twenty five cents an hour for a ten-hour day. He will also be allowed one suit of uniform a year.

The rate of pay was low when the street railway was a private concern and when the property was taken over a year or more ago by the Hydro Electric Commission the employes were hopeful that something would be done. The Commission, however, has not done anything beyond raising the pay of the senior employes from twentytwo and a- half to twenty-five cents an hour.

The street railway men are well organized and are affiliated with the Trades and Labor Councils. Organizer St. Clair of Toronto was in the city this week to look over the situation and confer with the Union. The decision to ask for a raise was unanimous and the request of the men will be laid before Sir Adam Beck in Toronto next week.

The street railway employes in London have recently been organized and they too are after the Hydro Commission for more pay. Their case will be presented at the same time as that of the local men it heard by the Commission.

Potatoes which recently sold in New York at $1 a barrel have dropped as low as $1.

BRITISH ADVANCE ON 4 MILE FRONT CLOSER TO LENS

Strongly Organized Defensive Systems Captured From Germans and Troops Reach All Objectives With Slight Loss---Hostile Raiding Parties Repulsed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, June 30.—Additional information now available confirms the success of our recent operations in the neighborhood of Lens. Besides the captures of prisoners and machine guns already reported an important advance has been made on a total front of about four miles to a depth of over a mile. As a result of our attacks a series of strongly organized systems on both banks of the River Souchez covering the town of Lens has been captured. Our troops have gained the whole of their objectives on each occasion with slight loss while inflicting considerable casualties on the enemy. Positions of great strength and tactical and stragetic importance have thus passed into our hands. Hostile raiding party was repulsed during the night northwest of Gouzeaucourt.

FRENCH CRUISER MINED.

PARIS, June 30.—It was officially announced last night that the French cruiser Kleber, on a voyage from Africa to Brest, struck a mine near that port on Wednesday and sank with three officers and thirty-five men.

U. S. TROOPS IN FRANCE.

PARIS, June 30.—A delayed announcement dated Wednesday says the first expedioitnary unit of American troops under Major-General Sibert, arrived safely at a French port.

SUB. LEAVES SPAIN.

PARIS, June 30.—A semi-official note from Madrid says a German submarine which took refuge in Cadiz left yesterday escorted outside territorial waters by Spanish torpedo boats, the German government having guaranteed the sub. would proceed direct to a German port without performing any act of war.

MORE MONEY FOR HUNS.

BERLIN, June 30. — The Reichstag next week will be asked to approve the authorization of a new war credit of fifteen billion marks, making a total war appropriation to date of ninety-four billion marks.

ACTIVITIES IN THE EAST.

BERLIN, June 30. — Russian activity in East Galicia, says today's German official statement, indicates that attacks are intended. A strong Russian destructive fire, the German general staff reports, has been maintained from the Lemberg-Brody railway to the south of Brzezany.

LOCAL NORMAL SCHOOL EXAMS

The final examinations of the Normal Schools at Hamilton, London, North Bay, Ottawa Peterboro, Stratford, and Toronto were held on May 30 to June 7. The names of the successful students at Peterboro, with certificates obtained, appears below:

The certificates of the successful candidates and the marks of those unsuccessful will be forwarded in due course to the addresses reported to the Department of Education. Permanent second-class certificates will be issued to those of the successful Grade A candidates who have taught successfully for at least two years on a professional certificate and are 21 years of age, and interim second-class certificates to all other successful candidates. Candidates who have not succeeded in making the necessary standing for second-class certificates, but whose marks bring them within the provision of section 34 (3) of the Normal School syllabus, will be awarded limited third class certificates, valid for five years, and upon passing the final examination within two years thereafterwill be awarded second-class certificates. These latter candidates will be informed individually of the groups upon which they must rewrite.

Those candidates who have failed at this examination will be required to attend another session, but they may enter at he re-opening in January and take the examination in June.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1917

FIFTY YEARS AFTER.

FIFTY YEARS AGO there were five disunited provinces in Canada, all more or less at odds with each other. The two older divisions, Ontario and Quebec, had been in a legislative union for years, each with the same number of members, the meetings of Parliament to be held in alternate years in Toronto and Quebec. This union failed to work out satisfactorily. The same racial and religious differences that exist today marked a wide chasm between the two people in the fifties. There was jealousy and continual bickering. Whatever the political complexion of the several legislative delegations, however the members differed among themselves, those from one province always stood against those from the other on all important public questions. The result was one deadlock after another and legislative stagnation. The country was making no progress. Lacking anything like cohesion, the new British possessions on this side of the Atlantic were in a state of chronic unrest.

It is little wonder that in those days there arose a class of citizens who openly advocated annexation with the United States as Canada's only hope of temporal salvation. But the troublous times that preceded Confederation developed a hardy and patriotic brand of statesmanship just as a great war or anything else in the way of a national upheaval brings the best leaders in a country to the front. Canada had big men in those days, men who sank all their own personal interests for the good of the land of their adoption. A quality of statesmanship was exhibited that is painfully lacking at Ottawa today, when at a time of danger compared to which that of the ante-Confederation days was inconsequential, men in places of influence are playing the political game to the limit.

Sir John Macdonald with the talent for leadership that was his distinguishing characteristic, naturally took a front place in the negotiations that led up to the federal union. George Brown, the leader of the Reform party, was his personal as well as political opponent, but these men forgot their own differences of opinion, and, though they had not for years exchanged a word except in debate, they dined together, travelled together and spoke on the same platform, all for the good of the cause which both were convinced was right. Once the object in view was attained, it was every man to his political tent again. The old hostile relations were resumed.

From the distance of fifty years it must be concluded that Confederation, for which the statesmen of those times labored so long and so arduously, has worked out successfully. But no scheme of statesmanship yet devised by mortal man has ever been absolutely perfect. There are terms in the various clauses of the B. N. A. Act which experience has shown would be the better of amendment. There have always been objections to a federal form of government, a fact recognized by the United States and by any other nation where it has been introduced. It is not always easy to locate the line where the federal authority is supposed to end and where that of the province or state begins. Conflicts between the two authorities are apparently unavoidable, no matter how clearly they may be defined. The past fifty years has demonstrated at least one truth. The various provinces are jealous of their rights and will tolerate no encroachments upon these by the powers higher up.

Before consenting to Confederation Quebec insisted on favorable terms, which were eventually conceded. But every province outside of Ontario appeared to have its price. That insisted upon by the Maritime Provinces was the construction of the Intercolonial Railway, an enterprise which was for years a steady drain upon the resources of the Dominion. When British Columbia a few years later joined the federal family, the condition exacted was the building of a line of railway across thousands of miles of unsettled prairie to form an eastern outlet for the province by the Pacific.

The B. N. A. Act will always remain as a source of endless litigation. Clear as the provisions appeared to be at the time the document was finally adopted, points of controversy are continually arising. On any pretext an appeal can be carried to the Privy Council from the Canadian courts, and it is the man or the corporation with means who has the best chance to win out in any dispute that may arise. This is one particular in which the Act would appear to require amendment. The ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada should in all cases be made final.

A BARREL OF RED HERRING.

SOME NEWSPAPERS are satisfied with keeping a single red herring in stock to draw across the trail of popular opinion, while others again maintain a whole barrel on hand. The Examiner, for instance. That paper cannot discuss the Conscription Bill without attempting to break down the force of the Government's contention by dragging in the side issue of the conscription of wealth. It is still the custom to place the horse in front of the cart instead of reversing their positions.

The Examiner draws on the barrel of red herring again when it refers to the subject of technical schools. It refuses to be satisfied unless penny banks are fastened upon our educational system. Penny banks or nothing appears to be its slogan.

The Examiner should get its ear close to the ground. The demand for a technical school in Peterborough is voiced by the best and most influential section of the citizens. Business men of all classes, including the manufacturers, are behind it. The proposition has the support of the Greater Peterborough Association. There has been no such demand for an educational fad such as the installation of penny banks. The cry for such an innovation originated with our contemporary and its voice has been heard alone like that of someone who has lost his way in the wilderness.

ATTEND CHURCH TOMORROW.

THERE ARE RESIDENTS of this city who were at church fifty years ago and who will be in their places again tomorrow. Others who would like to be there will be prevented by illness. An appeal published on the first page of this paper today urges everyone who is able to attend the service in some place of worship tomorrow, to return thanks for the progress that Canada has made in the last half century and to join in petitions for a successful conclusion of the present cruel war.

Every man, woman and child in the city who is able should respond to this appeal. Let every church member be a home missionary for the day and induce at least one other to attend church. Those who are infirm should be assisted to the services, and every auto in the city should be used to get out the worshippers. Few of those alive today can hope to see the close of another half century. Such an occasion as tomorrow offers will present itself again in the lives of only a small number, and the chance accorded should not be missed. The call to worship should meet with a unanimous response.

GO TO CHURCH TOMORROW.

WHEN DOCTORS AGREE.

THE MEMBERS of the Ontario Medical Council finally agreed to ask the Government to prohibit the sale of patent medicines that contain more than two and a half per cent. alcohol. It was at first suggested that the standard should be maintained at five per cent., but it was held by the majority that the patent medicines handled by druggists should contain no more "punch" than the beer the sale of which is prohibited under the Canada Temperance Act.

The doctors recognised that in some varieties of medicines the necessity existed for a higher percentage of alcohol as a preservative. In such cases they ask that the decoction be so medicated that it be rendered so unpalatable that no one will care to indulge in it as a regular beverage.

The doctors of this province are eternally asking the Government for something, and the majority of the requests preferred are designed to improve the condition of the medical profession and to safeguard the public health, or at least that is invariably the reason urged. The other day they asked for legislation to prohibit irregular practitioners from treating patients and to forbid the publication of the advertisements of such professionals. It appears that one of these—chiro-practitioners, we believe, is the technical term by which they are designated—treated a patient in St. Thomas who was afflicted with typhoid fever, and unfortunately lost his case.

It is nothing unusual for a sick man to die, even in St. Thomas. Doctors to whose college standing and certificates of qualification no objection can be taken, have lost patients whose afflition was nothing less serious than typhoid fever. When a doctor of recognised standing loses a case, there is seldom a demand on the part of the other members of the profession that he be drummed out of the ranks.

It is just barely possible that some legislation is necessary to preserve the gullible and ignorant from quacks. It is just as possible that there is legislation required, as well, to curb the ambitions of the regular practitioners in the interest of public safety. Not one physician in ten these days is content to be a mere healer. He aspires to be a surgeon, to use the knife and explore the mysteries of the human anatomy, so fearfully and wonderfully made. Small cases that pay an ordinary fee are beneath them. Nothing suffices but an operation which affords a big financial reward as well as opportunities for investigation. How would the doctors like it if the Government passed a law providing that no operation be performed by other than expert surgeons? Many a man now without an apendix would be in possession today of all the equipment conferred upon him by Nature, if such a law were in existence and rigidly enforced. Others less fortunate, those who have been deprived of some of their interior existence and rigidly enforced. Others less fortunate than those who have been deprived of some of their interior economy would still be on the sunny side of the earth's surface.

The doctors do not always agree among themselves. Sometimes a member of the profession "peaches on his pals" as they say in the underworld. Only a few days ago a prominent medical official in Toronto deplored the tendency, that appears to be growing, to shoulder upon Heaven itself responsibilities for the mistakes of the doctors. A physician fails to make the correct diagnosis and to apply the proper remedies; the surgeon's knife slips; and in any of these cases the result is the same. The patient dies, and at the funeral the mourning relatives patiently bow to what they are taught to believe is the inevitable. Even the minister, unwittingly, no doubt, becomes a party to the deception when he reads that part of the service which speaks of the Lord taking away what He has given.

From earliest times man has been attempting to shirk responsibility. Adam blamed Eve for leading him into his first act of disobedience. When the mother of mankind was charged with the offence she endeavored to pass the responsibility to the serpent. Human nature is the same today as it was when our first parents reveled among the fruits and flowers in the Garden of Eden. And doctors are as human as the rest of mankind, even though they are constantly calling upon the Government for some act of legislation to strengthen them in their profession.

ANOTHER ILLUSTRATION of the marvels of the English language. The Huns cannot back up the Canadians, but the Dominion Government has it in its power to do so.

EQUAL FOOD, THEN EQUAL PAY

In the busy financial district of a large city women work side by side with men. For such women as a class is claimed equal pay with men on the ground of equal efficiency. In that same district are two high class restaurants, one mainly for men, the other mainly for women. Both are filled at lunch, one with clerks, business men, men of affairs, the other with women who work with these men. Since a restaurant is made by its patronage a menu taken from each of these places may throw some light on the claim of equal efficiency.

The menu for the men is made up of fourteen substantial meat orders—steaks, chops, etc.; seventeen plain vegetables — asparagus, peas, spinach and such; fourteen oyster and clam orders. The "special today" dishes are equally hearty—clam chowder, bass, baked shad, sweetbreads and asparagus, steak and string beans, roast pork and apple sauce, minced beef and French peas, new asparagus, artichokes and hearts of lettuce. The desserts are old fashioned short cake, strawberries and cream, baked apples, stewed rhubarb, pie.

The main dishes on the menu from the women's lunch place are clam broth, bouillon, creamed chicken on toast, lobster Newburg, macaroni and chicken pie, chicken patty, club sandwich, six kinds of salad, thirteen kinds of sandwiches, bread and buttered toast, brown bread, muffins, ten desserts which are mixed dishes, besides four kinds of ice cream and five kinds of cake.

By comparison it is clear that, to men, doubtless because of what they demand, are offered plain substantials, and the possibility of choosing a meat balanced with protein, starches, sugars and fats from simple meats, vegetables and desserts. To the women is given esthetic service, dainty portions, much flavouring, mixing and very much sweetening to tempt appetite.

Again, for the men are provided body building food and the bulk necessary to stimulate intestinal action and elimination. For the feminine preference is spread over-abundantly mere fattening and energy making materials, some eighteen desserts, fussy made dishes, highly sweetened, highly concentrated, starchy, pasty, creamed and oiled. Such foods are fat building.

No woman on such a diet can compete with a well fed man! These menus, compared, turn the efficiency argument in favor of the male sex. Unless woman does justice to her body and her brain through her stomach, renews her used up tissues and enriches her blood stream by correct eating, she will certainly be incapable of equal work and so undeserving of equal pay.

TROUBLE IN HIRING A MAID

"You are looking for a maid, are you not, Mrs. Robinson?" asked the lady who lives on Dickson Street.

"If you know a young woman who will condescend to supervise my housework I would be pleased to get her name," said Mrs. Robinson.

"Dear me!" exclaimed her friend. "I thought you wanted to hire somebody, not to be hired."

"I've had experience," replied Mrs. Robinson, "so I've changed my ways.

"At one time I interviewed seven girls. The first one was neat, but weighed about 200 pounds. She approached me with: 'How much do you pay? Do I have two days a week off? Residence or flat? Oh, a residence! No, thank you. I can't take your place. I'm too heavy to be trotting up and down stairs.

"The next one was an old maid type with a creaky voice. She started with: 'Do you happen to have a reference from your former maid? No? Why, that's funny. You know, the girls today are not like they used to be; they always require references.' She strutted away, leaving me speechless.

"Next came a middle aged woman. I was placing all my hopes on her, when, after asking about twenty questions, she asked: 'Have you any children?' I told her I had three 'What kind?' she asked bluntly.

"'Boys,' I said, proudly.

"'That's too bad. Maybe if they were girls I'd consider your proposition. But boys!' She threw up her hands. Leaving me, she added: 'If you send them to a boarding school, let me know.'

"I was bereft of words. But I knew it would be no use to eulogise my boys to her—both of voting age

"Well, I waited for an hour, and in came a refined looking woman.

"After cross-examining me she decided to take the place. She was willing to take care of our summer cottage from May until September. I purchased her ticket to the country and sent it to her. My family and I arrived a few days before she did, as I thought it best to have the place looking presentable so she wouldn't pick up and leave. You know how a country home looks after the winter.

"Well, along came Millie at the appointed time, carrying a dainty leather case. After ushering her into the parlor she looked around and asked:

"'Has the piano arrived yet?' I explained to her that we didn't have a piano in the country because the talking machine was easier to ship.

"'That surprises me and puts me out greatly,' she said, 'for I have to practise at least two hours every day. I'm sorry I can't stay under these conditions.' She arranged her music in her case and left. Do you wonder that I am meek and humble in the face of this dilemma?"

Wit and Wisdom

A Slow Process.

"I couldn't attend your luncheon dear, because it rained."

"Why, it stopped raining an hour before the time."

"Yes, but by that time I had made up my mind not to go."

Queer Fish.

The married man is a queer fish.
You can dispute it if you wish.
We'd better let it go at that,
Hot water is his habitat.

Visit of the Laundress.

"Say, where's the missus?"

"She's upstairs washing her face."

"Then tell her she had better come down and see the laundress who's barefacing her wash."

Described.

"Pa, what is a patriot?"

"A patriot, my boy, is one who thinks more of his country than he does of his personal comfort."

Some Task.

"I attended a convention of ladies. Dropped in, that is."

"Find it interesting?"

"Very much so. I especially enjoyed watching the chairman's frantic efforts to hold ladies to 15 minutes on agreed allotment of two minutes to each speaker."

Waste, Not Stingy.

"If you kiss me I shall call auntie."

"Well, I guess I can spare her a little kiss, too."

Desipte High Prices.

"War prices," said Mayor Mitchell at a luncheon in New York, "will scarcely stop our rich gourmands from over-eating."

"No, despite war prices, the pauper will continue to worry over his next meal, and the millionaire over his last."

Can't Fail.

If you'd succeed,
This adage mind:
First find your work,
Then work your find.

The Reason.

"So your son has volunteered. Why didn't he wait for the selective-conscription bill to go into effect?"

"We have always advised him to avoid all drafts."

The Story We'll Tell.

"Anyhow we can change the story to our children a little."

"What do you mean?"

"We can tell them that when we were married I was making $75 a week and we had a hard time of it to get along at that."

When a woman plans to do anything out of the ordinary she always wonders what the neighbors will say.

If lovers were wise they would save at least two-thirds of the tender things they say to each other before marriage and ladle them out after the honeymoon.

MOTHERS OF FRANCE

The tragedy that is war and the glory that is courage are the dominant notes of "Mothers of France," the master picture to be shown at the Royal Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

It is a stirring picture, most of it you see through a mist of tears, because it reaches down to the simple emotions stirred up by human suffering and up to the greater emotions which are the heritage of a courageous people.

Sarah Bernhardt so wonderfully typifies the indomitable courage of her country women that there could not conceivably be another choice for the role. It will make better men and women of all who see it.

The St. Louis Browns have a new pet now in the person of Sothoron, the California pitcher, who is delivering the goods for them in fine shape.

It is becoming increasingly hard to find hard hitters. Uncle Sam is going to monopolize them for the present, as he has some important work for them to do. However, if there are a few husky young men about who think they can hit a ball and would like to try their luck at it, let them apply at once to President Rickey of the Cardinals. He needs them badly in his business.

Here comes Guy Morton. Watch him. It took a mighty long time for his pitching arm to get in working order, but be now seems to have achieved that happy circumstance. Incidentally, hats off to Lee Fohl, who nursed Morton along patiently and carefully, for the ultimate benefit of the Clevelands.

They've got a lively pitcher on the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League, in the person of Malls, formerly on the pitching staff of the Robins.

Tom Needham has certainly put the pep inti the newark Bears. The other team of the International League will certainly have to get after them if the pennant is to be kept out of Newark. However, if the Bears can keep up their pace they certainly deserve to take home the bunting.

Grouchy Gus says: "Even though the czar and king of Greece have been deposed, that is no sign the world is getting democratic. They've got three umpires on the New York ball grounds now."

No veteran of the diamond ever received a greater honor than did Joe Hornung at the Polo Grounds in New York the other day. It was Joe's birthday, and the day was set aside for him by the management. To the younger fans Joe Hornung's name doesn't mean much, but the od-timers remember the days when Joe sent a thrill through them by his spectacular and excellent playing. At the present time Joe is a special policeman at the ball grounds and has just celebrated his 60th birthday. He was at one time left-fielder for the Giants, and for many years before that was one of the stars of the old Boston club. Among the records he holds is one of six stolen bases in a game at Pittsburg in 1890. He first played with the National League in 1878, and was one of its star players until 1892. He then went to the minor leagues and in 1896 and 1897 was a National League umpire. Then he officiated in the same capacity for other leagues, and finally for college teams. Hornung has the distinction of having been identified with baseball for forty-seven consecutive seasons, as player, manager, umpire and employe. He dates his record in the game back to 1870, when he was water-boy and bat-tender for the Utica club, and probably holds the record for length of service in the game.

GOTCH-PARR WRESTLING MATCH

Frank Gotch has defeated a lot of good men in his long career, but perhaps the hardest battle he ever fought was that against Jim Parr, the English catch-as-catch-can wrestler, at Buffalo, thirteen years ago to-day. After the bout the Iowa farmer declared that Parr was the speediest and most scientific rough and tumble wrestler he had ever met. A big crowd gathered in Buffalo to see the combat, and hundreds of wrestling fans from Canada were present to cheer the Britisher. Gotch had the advantage of weight by about a dozen pounds, and he needed it, together with all his strength and cleverness in the engagement with the Englishman, who had been victorious in a thousand bouts on the mat. Parr mixed things from the very start. He tried his famous scissors hold, which had brought him victory so often, but every time he found himself flying over Gotch's head. It was fifty minutes of furious combat before Parr was pinned to the mat by a half-nelson and toe hold. Then they went at it again. Parr, with unbroken spirit, rushed the American, who had to give ground. He sent Gotch to the mat but was unable to hold him there. The next minute Gotch was on top and Par down on the mat. A scissors in the body, after twenty-eight minutes, won the victory for the American. Parr was a thorough sportsman and made no excuses, admitting that the best man had won. His game, clever battle and his attitude in defeat won the respect of the entire audience, and the cheers and applause were as much for the vanquished as they were for the victor.

The Braves are worried. Hank Gowdy will very likely retire from the game on July 15, and start "doing his bit," for Hank has enlisted; and then what'll the poor Braves do, with only one catcher? That one catcher is Tragresser, who isn't doing as well as he might.

The Cardinals and Browns have lost an old team-mate through the death at St. Louis recently of "Wee Willie" Sudhof.

One of the reasons for Connie Mack's success is that he tries new combinations until he finds one that works. He has been trying out a new man, Bradshaw, out on the second sack, and if he makes good, the job is his. Meanwhile Mack's eye is always focused on the pitching staff, and this has shown great improvement lately.

What in the world has happened to Eddie Plank? Evidently age is telling on him, for his standing is lower than it ever has been since he entered the big leagues. Up to a short time ago he had turned in only one victory this season.

Many of the great men now making history in the world are enthusiastic devotees of boxing. They do not necessarily wear the gloves themselves, but they certainly enjoy a bout. When King George V of England was the "Sailor Prince" with no thought of succeeding to the throne, he refereed many a boxing match in the navy, of which he was such a popular member. He even hung up small purses for the members of the crews who came out victor in the bouts. The Prince of Wales is also fond of the sport, and on one occasion attended a show at the National Sporting club. Theodore Roosevelt, of course, is considerable of a boxing fan, and can handle his fists mighty well. Mike Donovan, the former middleweight champion, used to be Teddy's instructor at the White House when T.R. was president. Senator la Follette, man of peace though he is, knows how to box very well. He took it up several years ago, to reduce weight. So the name, "Fighting Bob," may not have been bestowed upon him for nothing.

ENTRIES FOR BICYCLE RACES CLOSE TONIGHT AT BANK'S GARAGE

Special Race for Boys Under 18 To Be a Feature—Crack Toronto Riders to Perform.

Entries for Monday's bicycle races close tonight. With the big field of out-of-town riders and the local boys already entered, some fine sport is anticipated.

A special race of two miles for boys under 18 years of age has been added to the program. This will give Peterborough boys a chance to show their friends how fast they can pedal.

The Exhibition track has been put in shape for the occasion. Roland Denne, Charlie Banks and Fred St. Onge say the track is in fine shape for speed. These three enthusiasts have inspected the track and are satisfied that Peterborough will uphold its name for having the fastest half mile track in Canada.

With Doc. Morton, Fred McCarthy, Jimmie Martin and Norman Webster and the rest of the Toronto cracks time will certainly be annihilated. The bicycle has come back.

The manufacturers are contributing generously in the way of prizes for these events. Now it is up to the public to show their approval. It is to be hoped Monday will find a big crowd at these races. The prizes include a gold watch, a $50.00 bicycle and other useful articles.

Fred St. Onge, now a traveller for A. E. Bregent of Montreal, the biggest jobber of bicycles in Canada, has kindly volunteered his services and will do his tramp bicycle act on the track in front of the grand stand. This will be his first performance on a race track since July 1st, 1898, when he appeared at the opening of Queen's Park in Montreal. St. Onge will surely hand the boys a laugh. Now then, this is the last call. Don't miss the bicycle races. St. Onge and the Athletic events, Monday, at Exhibition Park.

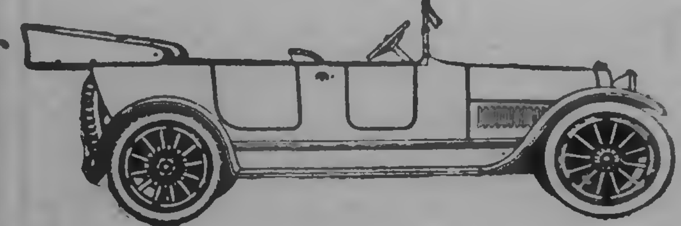
BOARD OF TRADE TO TAKE PART

The Peterborough Board of Trade will take part in the parade Monday morning.

When a man chalenges comparison he has a fight against big odds.

Studebaker
Established 1852



Road-Conquering Power

Power—and plenty of reserve power—is absolutely necessary in the car built for Canadian service. Not merely "claimed" horse-power—but actual, usable road horse-power.

In the Studebaker FOUR at $1375 the owner is sure of full forty horse-power, and in the SIX at $1685 full fifty horse-power—reserve power for all the exigencies of crowded traffic, steep hills and rough, heavy roads.

In ratio of power to weight the Studebaker is probably the most powerful car on the market.

Because of the perfect balance of the chassis it is a common occurrence for owners to get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles from a single set of tires.

Come in and see the new Series 18 Studebaker cars. Examine them carefully—ride in them—drive them. Let us convince you that to equal the Studebaker in power—or any other essential of good motor car construction—you have to pay hundreds of dollars more.

WOMEN WILL USE THE FRANCHISE

WORK FOR W.C.T.U. TO DO EVEN WITH PROHIBITION IN FORCE.

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Wednesday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., Mrs. C. H. Shield in the chair. There was a very good attendance and reports were presented by the officers of the various departments of their work during the past year. Mrs. Wilson Taylor took the chair during the election of officers. The following ladies were elected to office:

Mrs. C. H. Shield, President.
Mrs. (Dr.) Morrison, 1st Vice.
Mrs. K. P. Ellis. 2nd Vice.
Mrs. J. F. Thornton, 3rd Vice.
Mrs. H. A. Fife, Recording Secretary.
Mrs. J. S. Knapman. Assistant R. S.
Mrs. A. E. Micks. Treasurer.
Mrs. A. A. Goodfellow, Corresponding Secretary.

Mrs. Taylor earnestly requested the Union not to think because we have prohibition, there was nothing else to do. Now that women have the franchise, the W.C.T.U. was the best place for women to learn how to use it.

It was decided not to hold any more meetings until September.

THE BLESSING OF A HEALTHY BODY

Has Not Had An Hour's Sickness Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

MR. MARRIOTT

73 Lees Ave., Ottawa, Ont.,
August 9th, 1915.

"I think it my duty to tell you what "Fruit-a-tives" has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel run-down and tired, and suffered very much from Liver and Kidney Trouble. Having read of "Fruit-a-tives", I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 3½ years past, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using "Fruit-a-tives", and I know now what I haven't known for a good many years—that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain".

LESLIE STEVENS TELLS STORY OF MAJ. SUTCLIFFE

SAW LINDSAY OFFICER GO DOWN IN AN AIR BATTLE.

Flight Lieut. Leslie Stevens, formerly of Lindsay, on duty in France with the Royal Flying Air Service, in a letter to his mother, gives some details of the death of Major Charles Sutcliffe. Incidentally Lieut. Stevens mentions a thrilling air battle in which he was engaged. His letter is as follows:

No. 6 Squadron. R.N.A.S., B.E.F.,
France, June 9th.

"I suppose you will have heard by summer weather there by now. It has been very warm here, beautiful weather, too good for our jobs, for we have to work too hard.

"I supose you will have heard by the time this reaches you that Charlie Sutcliffe is missing, or something. Well, I could tell you all about it, but I can't, as you know. He was out with us that morning. We had a tremendous fight, and I saw Charlie go down in a spin, but couldn't follow him all the way. Too many Huns after me. During the scrap I shot down the Hun Flight Commander. Hope to have a chance to tell you about it sometime.

"At present I am all in. Had a doctor to see me yesterday and am going to take a rest for a while, so don't worry over me. Write soon. Love to all."

A MUSICAL COMBINATION OF EXCEPTIONAL MERIT

Florence Austin, Violinist, Wilmot Goodwin, Baritone, and Samuel Quincy, Pianist, Play and Sing Their Way Into the Favor of a Large and Responsing Audience.

The first of the two Goodwin recitals, under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., attracted a large and enthusiastically responsive audience in the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening. Miss Austin, violinist, Wilmot Goodwin, baritone, and Samuel Quincy, pianist, make an exceptionally pleasing trio of advanced musical talent capable of holding the interest and winning the favor of critical and fastidious audiences. With exceptionally skillful manipulation of the bow, thrilling enterpretation in rich baritone voice of the works of famous composers, and great artistic skill at the piano, these three offer a concert program well "worth while" a second night.

The hall last night resounded again and again with the demonstrative applaudits of a delighted audience, whose applause was only held in bounds by the advertised fact that no encores would be given. From the opening Rhapsodie by Mr. Quincy to the singing of God Save the King, led by Mr. Goodwin. An atmosphere of joyous and strengthening melody prevailed to the unalloyed pleasure of all present, and tonight will unquestionably prove a second success for this last of the two splendid cycles.

Florence Austin.

This charming violinist gave highly artistic numbers from Galtee, Tartine, Boccherini, A. Walter Kramer, Mossart, Musin and Saraste, with all of which her audience were entranced. They were each magnificently rendered, and her beautiful menuet all but seduced her audience into indulging in the charming and graceful dance so popular in refined circles of the early Victorian age. She possesses wonderful technique and commendable purity of tone, which together with marvellous dexterity and versatility in expressing the works of great music masters, captivates her critics.

Wilmot Goodwin

was heard to delightful advantage in artistic creations by Purcell, Campbell-Tipton, Guonod, Tschaikowsky, Cadman, Searle and Haynes. Also a new patriotic song entitled "My Boy," which, sung with intense magnetic feeling, elicited prolonged and demonstrative applause. Another number which held his audience in breathless interest was "Love's Old Sweet Song," a piece beautifully rendered, full of irresistible pathos and intelligent expression. Mr. Goodwin reaches the heart with his powerful baritone voice of considerable flexibility, and admirably controlled. His songs are full of warmth, temperament and vigor.

Samuel H Quincy

played his way into the admiration of the audience in his splendid accompaniment to voice and violin. He also rendered three solos, from Chopin, Schuman and Paderewski, in which he proved himself a finished pianist of no mean order of merit. His "Night Piece" was a seductive lullaby showing marvellous delicacy of touch, while his "Caprice" carried all present with him through varied measures of intoxicating melody. His technique commends itself to the most critical, and the numbers he gave last night revealed appealing vibrancy and exceptional dynamic shading.

Mr. Quincy's work was considerably enhanced by the Heintzman upright piano supplied for this occasion by Mr. B. H. Britton, the company's local manager.

Do as Mr. Gard

Mr. Anson A. Gard, the well known Littérateur of Ottawa, called the Wandering Yankee, says in an unsolicited testimonial for ZUTOO Tablets:

"Zutoo Tablets stop my headaches so completely that I do not mind having them any more."

No need for any one to suffer from headache if they do as Mr. Gard does and take Zutoo

DOMINION DAY AT ALL SAINTS'.

Both services at All Saints' Church on Dominion Day will be of a patriotic nature. The boys and girls of the Sunday school will attend the morning service in a body and join in the special patriotic music, while the rector's address will be particularly for young people. The parents of the children are urged to be present at this service, which will be followed by a celebration of the Holy Communion.

At the evening service the rector will read the names of those from All Saints' who are defending the liberty of Canada in the great war, and will preach a sermon appropriate to Dominion Day.

Let every member of the congregation set apart the day for congregational thanksgiving and intercession in accord with this serious hour in our national history.

THREE TRAMPS ABROAD.

Were Arrested For Stealing Ride on C. P. R.

Arthur Gowdrau, Reserco Desgaridens, and Alfred Ledoc, tried to make their way from Montreal on the C. P. R. train without paying their fare and without the permission of an officer of the company. They were unfortunate to come under the gaze of C.P.R. Constable Greenham who placed them under arrest and brought them to the police station here.

They were arranged before Magistrate Rush this morning and at the request of Chief Thompson were remanded for a week in order that their past history may be inquired into. The local police thought that there must be something wrong when three young men should be tramping it, with work so plentiful. They will have a chance to help trim the garden at Castle Nesbitt.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

DOES THE SUN BOTHER YOUR EYES?

If you wear ordinary clear glasses, and find trouble from the reflection on a very bright day, investigate Dr. Fowler's special lenses for the protection of weak eyes. They appear as clear as the usual lens, but have a slight color in them that checks the direct sun's rays and is very soothing to the eye.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES TIGHE.

Eliza J. Stewart. wife of Mr. James Tighe, 284 Roger street, died this morning after an illness of some duration. She was born in Donegal, Ireland, seventy-three years ago and came to Canada about 55 years ago and settled in Peterboro. Surviving her are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. R. Maniece of Peterboro and Mrs. Abraham of Detroit, and three sons, Messrs. John of Detroit, Hugh of Anoca, Minn., and Walter of Minneapolis, who will have the sympathy of the community in the loss of a faithful wife and loving mother. Mrs. Tighe was an ardent member of the Church of England.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. White of St. Luke's.

EBELYN KENNEDY

Evelyn Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Kennedy, died at the family residence, 521 Reid St., this morning after an illness of about four weeks. She is survived by her parents and one sister, Ethel.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

In addition to the usual musical service the Olympic Male Quartette (Messrs. Edward Jones, Harold Jones, Thomas Wood, and Asa Huycke) will sing a setting of Sargeant's thrilling "Watchman? What of the Night?" This is probably one of the finest sacred male quartettes written. Mr. Asa Huycke will also sing "It is Enough" from Elijah. These special numbers will be well worth hearing. Visitors to the city will be welcome.

57th REGT. CHAPTER I.O.D.E.

The monthly meeting of the 57th Regt. Chapter, I.O.D.E., presided over by the Regent, Mrs. Walker, was held in the Y'W.C.A. Thursday afternoon.

A very interesting report of the National annual meeting of the I. O. D. E. recently held in Victoria, was sent by the Chapter's representative, Mrs. Hazen Ritchie.

Miss Flora Davidson submitted the report of the tea room. This was a most encouraging one.

Mrs. Sharpe reported that 49 visits had been made during the month.

The report of the knitting committee is as follows:

Since last meeting on May 31, 54 pairs of socks have been sent overseas.

Pte. Allen C. Sharpe, 2nd Battalion, 17 pairs.

Drummer Jas. Carr, 52nd Battalion. 17 pairs.

Signaller Wm. Cumming, 3rd Battery. 17 pairs.

Pte. Iyburn, Pte. Smith, Pte. Geo. Whitehouse, 1 pair each.

Letters acknowledging receipt of socks received from:

Pte. A. H. Daniel, 14 C.M.R.

Q.M.S. Gordon. 2nd Bttalion.

Canadian War Contingent Association. 126 pairs.

Driver Ernest Hamlin, 3rd Div. Amn. Column.

Gunner W. C. Dunford, A.A.A. Battery.

One hundred and one pairs of socks have been received and five spindles of wool purchased. Your committee wishes to thank the Women's Teacher's Guild for a donation of nine pairs.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. COTTRELL, Convenor.

It was also reported that the public school children of the city had during the month of May collected over $260 toward the mile of pennies. This splendid work on the part of the children is very much appreciated by the Chapter. As a considerable number of the holders still remain to be filled, the Chapter hopes that its members and friends will endeavor to fill these as soon as possible.

A donation of fifty dollars each was given to the Prisoners of War Fund and the Military Y.M.C.A.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

BOWNESS—HARBOUR

A very interesting and pretty wedding was solemnised on Wednesday morning, June 27th, by the Rev. Canon Smith, at St. James' Church, Hull, when Annie Mildred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Harbour, of Creekside, Hull was united in marriage to Albert Owen, son of the late Geo. A. and Mrs. Bowness, of Bolton, Eng. The church was beautifully decorated, and the bride entered on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march.

The bride looked charming in her travelling costume of navy blue taffeta silk with white embroidered Georgette crepe blouse and wore a white leghorn hat and corsage bouquet of American beauty roses. Miss Muriel Davies, daughter of Dr. T. B. Davies, attended the bride and wore a champagne crepe de chene gown with white Milan hat and carried a shower bouquet of tea roses. The groom's brother, Mr. Frank Bowness, of Peterboro, Ont., acted as best man.

WEBER—REAZIN.

A very quiet wedding took place at Whitby when Miss Grace Reazin, daughter of Mrs. H. Reazin, Lindsay, was united in marriage to Mr. F. C. Weber, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. Hare, Ph.D., Principal Emeritus of the Ontario Ladies' College.

Mr. and Mrs. Weber will reside at 353 Downie street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Mulley of St. Catharines announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian Grace, to George Harper Buchanan of Peterborough. The marriage will take place early in July.

Mr. Allen Campbell, of Toronto, is spending the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Campbell, Hunter street.

Mr. R. J. Park and Miss Sarah Dickson, of Toronto, are visiting Mrs. A. H. Stratton, 373 Park street.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. King, the of Trinity Church, who have arrived new organist and soloist respectively from Goderich, will reside at 346 Simcoe street.

The Goderich Star says: On Sunday evening last, after evening service, Mr. and Mrs. George H. King were presented with a handsome silver tea service suitably engraved, by the members of the choir of North street Methodist church, as a parting gift on the eve of their departure for Peterborough. The presentation was made by Miss Ada McClinton and Mr. King made a suitable reply. Mr. and Mrs. King have had a warm spot in the hearts of the congregation and of the townspeople generally and their departure the beginning of this week leaves a vacancy in musical and social circles that will be much felt. Last Sunday Mrs. King contributed a solo at both morning and evening services at North street church.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. McDonald have gone to Chicago where they will visit at the home of Mr. Robert Stuart.

Mr. Charles Robertson, City Solicitor for Preston, Ont., is spending the week-end the guest of Mrs. H. D. Robertson, 566 Gilmour street.

HALF CENTURY OF NATIONHOOD

A TOWN 50 YEARS AGO A STURDY CITY TODAY

How Peterborough Has Grown Since Confederation--Well Paved and Lighted Streets---Natural Advantages Should Make it one of Leading Centres in Ontario.

Peterborough Then and Now

Fifty years ago Peterborough was a town with about 5000 population. It is now one of the leading manufacturing cities in the Dominion with nearly twenty-five thousand patriotic, contented and prosperous people. And the best, everybody believes, is yet to come. The future has greater things in store for the city than anything the past has brought to it.

Peterborough's boast is not alone of her manufacturing industries. This city has school buildings and a system of education second to none in the Dominion.

Peterborough ranks high as a musical centre and has a military band that has brought fame to the city the country over.

The supervision of all street improvement work is under the control of the City Engineer, with a street superintendent in charge.

The wires of the telephone companies are underground in the business section of the city, and the power lines are underground on the chief business streets. The telegraph wires are overhead.

There are 48.62 miles of roadways in the city, 9.5 per cent. of which are permanently paved. There are 30 miles of macadam or gravel roadways, the majority of which receive a treatment of oil annually. The remaining 14 miles are unimproved roadways.

The cost for cleaning the 4.62 miles of paved streets is approximately $21 per day intermittently, or 25 cents per thousand square yards. $5.545 was expended in 1915 on cleaning the paved streets in the city, exclusive of snow removal. The cost of cleaning roadways is borne by the City from the general funds.

A water sprinkler is constantly on the paved streets, those in the business section being flushed three to five times a week, by means of a hose attached to a water cart. The cost is borne by the City from the general funds.

Approximately 17 miles of macadam roadways, at an average width of 22 feet, are treated annually with a 40 per cent. asphaltic oil, $3.858 being expended in 1915 on this work, which was paid from the general funds.

The majority of the roadways received a treatment, 1-5 of a gallon per square yard. The oil in 1915 varied in cost from 5¼ cents to 6½ cents a gallon f.o.b. Peterborough.

The width of the roadway on the chief business street is 44 feet between curbs, others varying from 36 to 40 feet. Those on residential streets, vary in width from 24 to 38 feet between curbs. The majority of the residential streets, built of gravel or stone, are 30 to 36 feet in width between sidewalks. It is proposed to narrow these roadways before commencing the construction of pavements.

The majority of the unimproved roadways are graded and shaped annually, the yearly expenditure approximating $2.000, which is borne by the City from the general funds. Repairs to macadam and gravel roadways amount to approximately $4.000 a year.

All street paving is paid for as local improvement according to frontage. The City pays 40 per cent. of the cost and all intersections, the remaining 60 per cent. being paid by the property owners on a frontage basis. A flankage allowance of 60 feet on 120 feet and over is allowed on corner lots and one-half the flankage on lots under 120 feet.

Debentures for paving are issued for 10 years and for sidewalks 20 years. There is a 5-year guarantee on asphaltic concrete pavements, a bond equal to 20 per cent. of the contract price being held for this purpose.

The enlistment in the overseas forces from Peterborough is the second highest in Canada in proportion to population.

Peterborough is situated in almost exactly the centre of the population of Canada, one-half being east and the other half west of this city.

Peterborough has direct railway connection with all parts of the Dominion and is on the direct all-rail and rail and water routes to the Northwest.

The Trent waterway will this year give water communication with Lake Ontario and in a couple of years with the Georgian Bay.

Hydro-electric power is delivered to the factories at a rate as cheap as any and cheaper than in almost every other municipality. Actual results show that ten-hour power has been delivered at the rate of $13.44 per h. p. per year.

The net debt of Peterborough is the second lowest per head of population of all the cities of Ontario, the lowest being $11.74 lower than in Peterborough and the highest $423.18 higher.

The taxes collected for municipal purposes is the third lowest of the cities of Ontario, the lowest being 61 cents lower than here and the highest $31.34 higher.

The combined municipal and school rate in Peterborough is the sixth lowest in Ontario, the lowest being 11.85 lower and the highest $33.76 higher.

Educational facilities in Peterborough are unsurpassed.

The summer resorts, easily accessible from Peterborough, are among the most attractive and beautiful in the world.

Some Possibilities.

A national highway from Holland's Landing, which means Toronto, to Ottawa by way of Peterborough, thus placing this city on two national highways.

A radial railway to Lake Ontario which will bring to Peterborough a large number of people who have not now railway facilities, and will connect the city with the railways running along the front.

An electric railway to the north, connecting Peterborough with the territory to the north and giving quick communication with the summer resorts.

Upon the completion of the Canada Central Railway, to be constructed from Montreal to the Georgian Bay, north of Stoney Lake, the continuance of the electric railway to connect with it will place Peterborough on another great railway.

A united effort by all in this district will accomplish these.

FIRST DOMINION DAY EVER CELEBRATED IN PETERBORO

Canada's Entry Into Sisterhood of Nations Hailed With Ringing of Bells, and Crash of Firearms---Military Parade, Horse Races and Cricket Match Afforded Entertainment for Large Crowd.

Canada's first Dominion Day, fifty years ago, fell on a Monday, and was duly celebrated in Peterborough, but with less display and enthusiasm than that which marked the holiday on the Queen's birthday. Even then the town was of a military spirit and the parade of the troops in uniform was one of the features. A number of the citizens sat up to watch the new Confederation in, and as soon as the clock struck 12 Bedlam broke loose. All the church bells and the one in the town hall were set in motion. W. Helm's small cannon was pressed into service, and split the air with its raucous roars. Small firearms of all descriptions added to the din. The mellow tones of the bells seemed to call for peace on earth and good will toward all men. The cannon and rifles blared defiance to all alien enemies as well as to the anti-Confederationists and annexationists.

THE MILITARY PARADE.

The red coats of the volunteers began to appear about 10 o'clock, and the battalion was drawn up in the Market Square under the command of Col. R. Poole, Major John Kennedy and Major E. Leigh. These gentlemen as well as Adjt. W. N. Kennedy, and Dr. Kincaid, surgeon of the battalion, were mounted on horseback and, in appropriate uniform, presented a highly martial appearance.

All the companies in the battalion with the exception of Lakefield's, were represented in the parade, those from Norwood and Hastings making an especially creditable appearance both in numbers and discipline. After going through various manoeuvres on the Market Square, the battalion marched to the cricket grounds, where the drill was repeated. After that the soldiers returned to the Market Square, where they were drawn up in two long lines. Three rounds of blank cartridge were fired, the shots being discharged separately from end to end of the lines. Then cheers were given for the Queen, the new Dominion and Col. Poole, after which the men were dismissed, having put in three hours of strenuous duty in the heat and dust. Some of them had travelled over twenty miles on foot to take part in the exercises.

THE NEW BAND.

The new battalion band was present, and although not fully organized, played a number of martial airs in a manner which showed that, while young, the organisation was proficient.

The Races.

The big event of the day were the horse races held on the Driving Park of the Peterborough Turf Club on the river bank just below Ashburnham. The judges were Charles Stapleton, Joe Walton and William Staples, the latter of Millbrook. H. Calcutt, the secretary of the club, acted as clerk of the course.

The first was a running race for $25, open to green horses. This was won by Molly Bawn, owned by W. Armstrong, with Mr. Sherwood's Jenny Lind second.

The big trotting event of the day for a purse of $100 and no end of side bets, was won by Prince, owned by W. Grimshaw, after three heats had been trotted to decide the winner. A large amount of money changed hands on this event."

The races were called on account of darkness, and the rest of the program was run off on the following day.

A Cricket Match.

While the races were in progress on Dominion Day a cricket match was played on the Ashburnham grounds between the military and the civilians. A good deal of interest was taken in the game. The Soldiers had been the victors on two previous occasions, but the wearisome drill of the morning had left them fatigued, and they fell before the Civilians by a score of 154-54.

The day passed off in an orderly and pleasant manner and good feeling prevailed among those who took part in the grat celebration that marked the natal day of a confederated Canada.

The Cost of Living in 1867.

Living was a different proposition in those days. Wages may have been comparatively low, but the price of necessaries was in proportion as a glance at the market reports will show.

Flour was $9 a barrel, wheat $1.50 a bushel, barley 45c, peas 55c, oats 30c, potatoes 20c a bushel, pork $6 a hundred, beef $6.25, butter 12c a pound, eggs 9c a dozen, wood $2 a cord and hay $9 a ton.

PETERBOROUGH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago today the population of Peterborough was 4.250. The assessed value of real estate in the town was $949,160.

The amount of incomes subject to taxation was $64.600.

Personal property valued at $178,200. The total assessment was $1,191,960. W. H. Scott was mayor.

J. H. Dixon, W. Toole, and W. H. Wrighton were the aldermen for the North Ward.

James Stevenson, John Doherty and W. Patterson, Jr., represented the Centre Ward in the Town Council.

W. Cluxton, S. Dickson, and W. N. Kennedy were the East Ward Aldermen. E. Burnham, W. Cluxton and Thomas Leonard represented the South Ward.

James Stratton was superintendent of Schools.

William Arnott was chief of police.

E. C. Hill offered to lease the market hall at $100 a year for ten years.

A bylaw to issue debentures for $16,000 for a new town hall was defeated.

The late D. G. Hatton, appointed in 1871, was Peterborough's first police magistrate.

CANADA BEFORE AND SINCE JULY 1, 1867

Growth of National Spirit and Resources During Past Fifty Years—Provinces Narrow and Isolated Before Confederation—Canada in the Great War.

July 1st, 1917, marks the jubilee of Canada's nationhood. On July 1st, 1867, the British North America Act went into effect and the Dominion started on its wonderful career. It is difficult to realize that only fifty years ago there was no Dominion; but, in its place a group of small and comparatively unimportant British colonies. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island were then separate, sparsely settled colonies, intent upon their own local problems, and having little intercourse with the rest of British North America. The Province of Canada was better settled and more important, but the great North-West was only a vast wilderness, still under the control of the Hudson's Bay Company. A few missionaries, traders, and settlers were there, but the whole white population did not exceed 20,000 in number. Still farther west, many thousands of miners had been attracted to British Columbia, by the discovery, in 1857, of gold in the bed of the Fraser River, but, after the first rush was over, only a few thousand remained, and the white population of the colony was barely 12,000 in 1861. It is not very surprising, therefore, that a member of the British Parliament declared a few years earlier that the whole colony was not worth £20,000.

The Dominion of Canada, as it appears on present-day maps, is not the Dominion of Canada created in 1867 by the British North America Act. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, when they entered Confederation, had the same area as they have to-day, but Ontario and Quebec were then much smaller than they are at present. In fact, in 1867, they had no definite northern boundaries, as the rough country to the north was little known, and the disputes about boundaries had not yet begun. The areas in 1867 of Ontario and Quebec are usually given as 121,000 and 210,000 square miles. Add to these areas those of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, 21,000 square miles and 28,000 square miles respectively, and we obtain the total area of the new Dominion of Canada, which was about 280,000 square miles. As Canada today has an area of 3,729,000 square miles, or almost ten times the area of the Dominion at Confederation, it is evident that her growth in area has quite kept pace with her development in other directions.

"Greater Canada" of Future

The chief areas of British North America, not included in the original Dominion, were Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island on the east, and British Columbia on the west; Rupert's Land, a vast territory around Hudson Bay with no distinct boundaries; the Bermudas, the British West Indies, and Honduras. It seems appropriate that in this semi-centennial year proposals are being publicly made looking to the inclusion of at least Newfoundland, the British West Indies and the Bahamas in a Greater Canada, which would thus become an empire in itself while continuing a part of the far-flung British Empire.

The Twentieth Century is, indeed, Canada's. It does not need the eye of a prophet to see that in the very near future Canada's population will be trebled or quadrupled. The temperate regions of the earth have few vacant places, the tropical practically none. Yet the [illegible] of the earth continue

THE REVIEW 50 YEARS AGO

The first number of The Review was published in 1853, and it had a successful career as a weekly for a quarter of a century, branching out into a daily in 1878. At the time of Confederation, fifty years ago, it was of four pages, eight columns to the page, and every inch of it was filled with red hot editorials, spicy and well-written local news and live advertisements. Two of the men at that time on the staff are still residents of Peterborough, Wm. Cowie, who, in 1867, was head of the bookbinding department, and W. M. Menzie, who was foreman of the composing room. Mr Cowie had the honor of conducting the most flourishing bindery between Toronto and Ottawa, and did the official work for not only Peterborough County, but for the surrounding municipalities. When Peterborough County officials decided to divide the work, the Review bindery was closed and Mr. Cowie spent some time working at his trade in New York until conditions in his home town regulated themselves.

At the time of Confederation Robert Romaine was proprietor of The Review, and Col. Poole, head of the Peterborough Rangers, was editor. The Conservative party and the Fathers of Confederation never had a more loyal journalistic supporter than this paper. Whenever an anti raised his head, The Review was ready with a club, and the annexationists of that day were its especial abhorrence. The selection of candidates to represent the riding in Parliament was at this time half a century ago the burning question before the people. A special correspondent, signing himself "Legion," supplied the news from Ottawa, and his summing up of the situation would do credit to any newspaer representative at the Capital today.

Fifty years ago Peterborough was a town of about five thousand inhabitants, but the advertising columns of The Review were filled with the announcements of firms that certainly appeared to have the true spirit of enterprise and to be convinced of the power of the printing press to get them before the people. There were none of the firms of today in business then under their present names, although some have sprung up upon the solid foundations that were so carefully laid in the early days.

Eight lawyers had their business cards in The Review. Of these, only one, Magistrate Dumble, is still on deck today. C. A. Weller and D. G. Hatton, the latter the father of G. W. Hatton, crown attorney, were in partnership, with offices at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. Mr. Dumble was so well known that he did not deem it necessary to publish the street and number at which he could be found.

Saloons, hotels and liquor stores were almost beyond computation, and drinking was the outstanding social evil. Charlotte street was known as "Hell street" from the number of drinking places to be found on it, and the ructions that were so common, especially when the lumberjacks left for the woods in the fall and came down again in the spring, on which occasions they practically owned the town, the constable being helpless to preserve even an appearance of order. Some of the liquor dealers advertised that no wet goods would be sold on credit. Cash or farm produce was essential to effect a deal.

Peterborough was well supplied with churches in those days, and three of the Protestant congregations, George Street, St. Paul's and St. Andrew's, were then in existence, the two latter fixing upon 1822 as the first year of their existence.

For years George Stethem & Co. kept on George street a hardware store, known as "The Sign of the Cross Cut Saw." The saw that advertised the place for years is now prized as a relic by Walter J. English, of The Review staff.

MARKET PRICES

There was a large upstairs market this morning and prices were much easier than last week. Eggs were plentiful and sold at 35 to 36 cents generally while the buyers in quantity were only paying 33c.

Butter was also more plentiful and sold all the way from 38 to 40 cents. There were a few odd lots sold at 37c.

Fowl of the barnyard hen variety were very conspicuous and prices took a great drop as compared with a few weeks ago. Some of the farmer ladies were real angry that their discards from the flock did not bring higher prices.

A few old turkeys offered did not as a result were sold at a very low find very many anxious buyers and price.

There have been a noticeable absence of spring chickens on the market this season.

QUICK AND SANITARY

Is Peterborough Creamery's New Bottle-Washing Machine.

A visit to the Peterborough Creamery on Aylmer street is a revelation in regard to the machinery and care involved in assuring absolutely pure and sanitary products, whether it be milk, cream, butter or ice-cream. No pains or expense are spared to live up to the reputation of this institution for positively safeguarding its patrons against contact with infectious germs, and the management have met with phenomenal success. The latest addition to this creamery of model cleanliness is a new DeLaval power bottle washer installed at a cost of $750. The bottles enter it at one end, and emerge from the other as clean and sweet as the day they were blown in the glass factory. This is the latest, quickets, and above all most sanitary method of cleaning milk and cream bottles, and offers a service in keeping with the policy of "safety first" adopted and thoroughly lived up to, no matter what the cost, at the Peterborough Creamery.

HIGH TAXES THIS YEAR

Orillia's County rate this year is almost double what it has been in any previous year, and is three times what it was before the war. Orillia must raise for county purposes this year no less a sum than $25,000 which will require a levy of 7.2 mills taxes on the dollar. For the same purposes Barrie will raise this year $24,601, and Collingwood $21,245. These three towns will pay a fifth of the entire taxes of the county.

GOES OVER ROUTE OF PROPOSED RADIAL

Mr. J. N. Stanley, engineer for the Hydro-Electric Comission, Toronto, passed through Lindsay yesterday on his way to Coboconk and Minden, where he will meet Sir Sam Hughes and go over the territory contemplated to be served and used by the proposed electric railway between Coboconk and Minden. It was expected that the chief engineer, Mr. Gaby, would be along also, but he was unable to make the trip.

Those interested in the welfare of the scheme will be pleased to know that the visit of the deputation to Toronto recenly is bearing fruit.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot serve a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

to increase and multiply. The southern parts of Western Canada, Southern Siberia, certain parts of South America, South Africa, and Australia are but sparsely peopled at present, yet all are eminently suited for settlement by white races. And of all these countries it would seem as if Canada would be first to receive the great tides of emigration. She appears to be better prepared and better fitted to receive them. This prospective rapid development of Canada demands the careful organization and utilization of her wonderful material resources.

After Fifty Years

Since the outbreak of the Great War Canada has made rapid strides as a manufacturing country. In spite of great agricultural and mineral resources, almost one half (46%) of her people dwell in urban centres. Ontario and Quebec practically monopolize the manufacturing industries of the Dominion. The value of manufactured products of these provinces for 1911 were: Ontario, $579,810,225, Quebec, $350,901,656, out of a total value for the Dominion of $1,165,975,639. Canada used to be a debtor nation, that is, the value of her imports exceeded that of her exports. This state of affairs is now reversed, and the balance of trade is no longer against her. For example, Canada's trade for the fiscal year of 1915-16 reached a total of $1,424,000,000. Exports amounted to a total of $741,000,000, distributed as follows: Manufactures, $242,000,000; Agricultural products, 250,000,000; Animal products, $102,000,000; Minerals, $66,000,000; Lumber, $51,000,000; and Fish, $22,000,000. Imports were valued at $507,000,000, of which $289,000,000 were dutiable goods and $218,000,000 free goods.

But the commercial and manufacturing aspects are the least in which the Great War has affected Canada. While immigration—in recent decades a prime factor in the national life—has ceased, the nation has made great efforts towards the maintenance of the productivity of its various basic industries—agriculture, mining, lumbering and fishing—and has given great numbers of its sons to the fighting forces, thus giving the answer to the statesmen who foretold that Canada would desert the Empire in time of danger. This expectation of Germany has been falsified, and the fifty years of Canada's national life furnish a wonderful example of the triumph of faith which inspired the Fathers of Confederation and the public men of the Mother Country in the sixties.

The final step towards Confederation was taken when a conference was held in 1866 in London, between British and Canadian statesmen. The result of their work was the British North America Act, which passed the British House practically unopposed, and came into force July 1st, 1867. The Act provided that Canada (Upper and Lower), Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick should be united under one federal government, but that each should manage its purely local affairs. The united country was to be called the Dominion of Canada, and henceforth Upper and Lower Canada were to be known as Ontario and Quebec. It is interesting to note that the first [illegible] country was "Kingdom of Canada." This did not mean an independent kingdom, but an auxiliary one, with the monarch of England at its head. The term "Dominion" was substituted, lest the word "kingdom" might offend the Republican susceptibilities of our American neighbours!

The New Constitution

A Governor-General to represent the sovereign of Great Britain was to be appointed for five years. Each province was to have a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Governor-General in-Council for five years. The functions of Governors were to call, prorogue, and dissolve parliaments, to choose councillors, to assent to measures passed by Parliament, and to exercise a general care over the interests of the country. The real governing power was left to the councillors, whom the Governor or Lieutenant-Governor should choose from the party in majority in the House of Commons or Assembly. This, of course, is the principle of Responsible Government.

The Dominion Parliament was to consist of two houses, the Senate and the House of Commons. The Senate was to have 72 members: 24 from Ontario, 24 from Quebec, and 24 from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick combined. The Senators were to be appointed for life by the Governor-General. A Senator must be at least thirty years of age, and must be possessed of at least $4,000 worth of property. The Senate's functions are identical with those of the British House of Lords prior to 1911. The House of Commons was to be elected by the people. With respect to its membership, the principle of representation by population was adopted. Quebec was taken as the standard and given 65 members, while the numbers from the other provinces were to bear the same relation to their populations that 65 did to the population of Quebec.

Provinces and Powers

The Provincial Parliaments were to be similar to that of the Dominion, except that it was left optional whether a province should or should not have a Senate. To avoid confusion, the old names, Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly were to be the official names of the provincial houses. The duration of the Dominion Parliament was fixed at five years, that of the Provincial Parliaments at four years. All parliaments were to meet once a year. The seat of the Dominion Government was to be Ottawa; the provincial seats were: Ontario, Toronto; Quebec, Quebec; Nova Scotia, Halifax; New Brunswick, Fredericton.

The Dominion Parliament was to have control of the general affairs of the country. Such were: regulation of trade, postal system, public debt and borrowing money on public credit, military and naval matters, navigation, fisheries, currency and coinage, banks, bankruptcy, Indian affairs, naturalization of aliens, customs, marriage and divorce, public works, railways, criminal law, commercial law, etc. The Dominion Parliament was also given power to disallow Provincial Acts. The Provincial Parliaments were given power over di- Parliaments were given power over direct taxation within the province, borrowing of money on provincial credit, management of public lands, timber, etc., licenses, public works within the province, civil and property rights, provincial courts, prisons and imprisonment, enforcement of the law of the province, [illegible]tion, municipal institutions, and generally of all matters of a local or private nature within the province.

Other important provisions of the Act were: There should be absolutely free trade between the provinces of Canada. Money bills must originate in the House of Commons. In Parliamentary debates either the English or French language might be used, and proceedings must be recorded in both. The construction of the Intercolonial Railway was to be commenced within six months. It was also provided that other provinces might be admitted at any time.

Compared with United States

It is often said that our constitution is a direct copy of that of the United States. This is untrue in some very important respects. In the United States the central government receives its power from the "Sovereign States" within clearly defined limits. Everything which the states did not specially part with at the outset, is jealously guarded. Thus, theoretically, it is a very slender thread which binds a state to the union, and it was largely this centrifugal force which caused the American Civil War. The framers of the British North America Act took warning from the weak points in the American scheme. The provinces ceded all their powers to the Crown, and received back such measures of self-government as their representatives [illegible] agreed upon as [illegible] us, judges are not elected by popular vote as in the [illegible] but are appointed by the Governor-in-Council for life, and thus are not dependent "on the caprice of the people of a province for their nomination and retention in office." It is enough to say that Confederation has fulfilled the expectations of its most sanguine advocates. The Act stands to-day as on July 1st, 1867, except that several new provinces have been admitted—an added proof of the advantages of union.

Period Preceding 1867

After the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1841, the united Province of Canada made rapid progress. The population rose from 1,100,000 in 1841 to 2,507,657 in 1861; and yet, in comparison with what they are to-day, the chief cities were still small. Montreal had only 90,323 inhabitants in 1861, Toronto 44,821, Hamilton 19,096, and London 11,555. On the other hand, many of the villages and some of the towns were far larger and more prosperous than they are now.

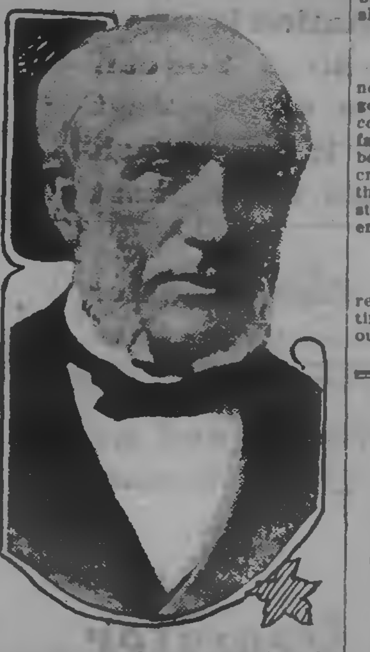
In the period just before Confederation most of the people of Canada were engaged in agriculture and lumbering. Grain was grown more extensively then than now, and many parts of central and southern Canada still contained great pine forests. Moreover, the operation of the Reciprocity Treaty created a very large and lucrative trade with the United States in the products of the farm and the forest. Much of the grain and lumber was carried by water, and as a result many an Ontario harbour on Lake Erie and Lake Ontario was then a very busy point of departure for sailing vessels and steamers engaged in this export trade. At the same time the valley of the Ottawa produced an immense quantity of squared timber, most of which was exported to Europe. On the other hand, manufacturing was confined almost exclusively to the supplying of local needs, and little attempt was made to export manufactured goods.

In the fifteen years before Confederation a very wonderful development in railways took place in Canada. The first railway in the country, the sixteen-mile line between Laprairie and St. Johns, L.C., had been opened in 1836, but in 1851 there was not yet a single mile of railway track in Upper Canada. In the following years, however, development was rapid, and, by 1865, 2,148½ miles were built and in use.

Union Followed Progress

In the Maritime Provinces railways had made little progress, and in 1865 New Brunswick had only 196 miles, and Nova Scotia only 93. Even after the construction of all these railways, colonization roads, built through the bush by the government, continued to be very important for giving access to those parts of the country not to be reached by the railways, and for encouraging settlement. In 1863 there were seven of these roads in Upper Canada, and five in Lower Canada.

As would be indicated by the activity of the Canadian Government in building colonization roads, great efforts were being made to induce im- Canada. Government publications declared that 7,000,000 acres of crown lands were surveyed and open for sale, at from thirty cents to one dollar per acre. In 1841, 24,587 immigrants arrived in Canada, but of these 10,000 proceeded to the United States. The remainder settled in the following districts: Western part of Upper Canada, 9,500; Ottawa District, 1,544; Eastern Canada, 1,500; Gaspe, 400; and Unknown, 943. Total, 13,887. Upper and Lower Canada, in the period just before Confederation, and, indeed, for years after that, were making the same appeal to the European immigrant that is now being made by our great Western Provinces. In many parts of the country settlers were hewing homes out of the forest, and meeting many of the same difficulties that had been encountered eighty years earlier by the United Empire Loyalists.



HON. GEORGE BROWN, Macdonald's political opponent but faithful coadjutor in creating the Confederation.

Breathing Bad Air

You cannot keep in good health if you breathe bad air either in your sleeping rooms, your living rooms or work room.

Many persons who would be shocked at the thought of bathing in water that had been used by another, fill their lungs freely with air that is loaded with filth and disease from many persons in a public hall or conveyance, with no feeling of repugnance. There is far more danger in breathing bad air than in bathing the skin in soiled water.

Blowouts A Bad Sign

A motor tire should wear out and not blow out. When an otherwise good casing must be discarded on account of blowouts, it means that the fabric is not as durable as it should be. The fact that inner liners increase the usefulness of a tire means that the fabric foundation is not as strong as it should be usually weakened by abuse.

Ventilating a Room

The secret of good ventilation is to renew the air in a room at least three times each hour, day and night, without creating a draught.

Baby's Own Tablets of Great Value

Mrs. J. A. Lagace, Ste. Perpetue, Que., writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets have been of great value to me and I would strongly recommend them to other mothers." Thousands of other mothers says the same thing. They have become convinced through actual use of the Tablets that nothing can equal them in regulating the bowels and stomach; driving out constipation and indigestion; breaking up colds and simple fevers; expelling worms and curing colic. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Day's Business at a Glance

At the close of the day can you tell at once how much business you have done during the day? Or have you to delve through books and in your cash drawer for an hour before you find out.

If your store is equipped with a National Cash Register you can know at night or at any time during the day just what Business has been like.

A National Cash Register makes a proper record of cash sales. Of charge sales. When customers pay on account a record is made. When you pay money out the National Cash Register forces a record. Goods sent C.O.D. or on approval are accounted for. A complete record of the transaction made by each of your clerks is made. All this information is printed by the Register on the Detail-Strip. You can see at at once just where you stand. Just how much money should be in your cash drawer. Which clerk has made the highest sales.

ALL SHOULD CELEBRATE CANADA'S JUBILEE

Editor Review: Kindly permit me to use your columns to ask the citizens to heartily co-operate to make the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Confederation a great success on Monday next.

The Great War Veterans, the Veterans of '66, the military units and members of all the public bodies, including the City Council, the Board of Education, the Separate School Board, the City Trust, the Utilities Commission, the Board of Health, the Central Charity Board, and also the Trades Unions and the Greater Peterborough Association, which includes all citizens, are asked to meet at the Armories at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. A procession will be formed and proceed through the principal streets, and return to Central Park, where addresses will be delivered on Confederation, its history and benefits. This part of the day's proceedings will especially emphasise the subject of Confederation, and all Canadians, native or by adoption, should take a keen interest in them.

In the afternoon the special reception to the Great War Veterans will be held at the Exhibition Grounds. The motor car parade will take place at 1 o'clock, and the Motor League, which has charge of the feature, wishes all motor car owners to have their cars at the Market Square at that hour, when the procession will be formed, which will take the Great War Veterans to the grounds. I hope that all car owners will assist in this feature of the day's program, and unite in the parade with flags on their cars. The reception to the Veterans will take place upon the arrival of the procession at the grounds, and it is urged that the citizens be present in large numbers to honor the Veterans, to whom too much honor cannot be given. Following the reception the program of sports prepared by the Public Holidays Committee of the Greater Peterborough Association will be carried out.

All citizens should unite in the celebration of this day, to honor the veterans, to celebrate the half century of Confederation, and to make the day a successful one for Peterborough. Unity will do it, and unity is asked for — hearty, public-spirited co-operation.

Yours very truly,
JOS. J. DUFFUS,
Mayor.

THE COAL SHORTAGE

THE anticipated shortage in hard coal affecting thousands of Canadian homes may become a reality next winter if consumers delay their orders to the dealers till fall.

This is the opinion of railway men who say that while they are doing everything possible to assist Mr. C. A. Magrath, Controller of Canadian Fuel Supply, the co-operation of the consumer also is necessary to meet an undoubtedly serious situation.

The hard coal used in the east for the average furnace is imported from the United States, and the problem of supply is largely a problem of transportation. Owing to the shortage of labor and a very hard winter the Canadian Railways last year faced a severe congestion of traffic which was accentuated during the winter months by the demand for furnace coal.

In order to prevent if possible a similar condition next season, the railways are concentrating every effort on the supply of coal carrying equipment. The Canadian Pacific for instance, has decided to adapt at once and concentrate a considerable portion of additional freight equipment for coal haulage, increasing its capacity during the next six months by cars capable of hauling over a million additional tons during that period. It is withdrawing a large number of cars from other services in adapting other types of cars, and has just put into force a new rule under which every foreign coal car is at once returned empty to the mines for fresh coal instead of being delayed by loading with return freight, although this move means added expense.

Within a few days the coal merchants will thus have prospect of rapid deliveries but unless consumers co-operate by giving their orders to the merchants now for their winter supplies, then unloading cars quickly, the congestion experienced last winter will be accentuated and prices may rise to unheard of heights. Consumers are also recommended to be exceptionally careful in the use of coal, avoiding waste and burning wood where possible. The merchants themselves are also being asked to co-operate by having cars loaded to the maximum capacity and by promptly unloading the cars as soon as received, thus releasing them for further service.

The situation apparently is more serious in the East than in the West, owing to the accepted use of box cars in the latter territory. The supply of the open cars required in the east is, however, limited, and unless deliveries are spread more than they have been over the summer months by the recommended co-operation of consumers, the approaching winter will come with tragic force upon the Canadians in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

The coal according to Mr. Magrath, is available. The cars, according to the railways, are coming but will carry the coal only if the orders are known before winter puts on the brakes.

ACCIDENT ON C.P.R. NO ONE WAS INJURED

A wreck or run-off on the C.P.R., in tme Dunsford yards on Thursday is believed to have been caused by some persons tampering with the switch, as it was noticed that the switch lock had been tinkered with.

The accident happened about 3.30 o'clock as the afternoon train from Bobcaygeon was rolling along at a fair rate of speed, and the wonder is that no person was injured. The huge engine left the rails, and rolled over on its side into the ditch, carrying with it two cars. Engineer La Barr and his fireman, George Phillips were not in the least hurt. Conductor Bott was in charge of the train.

Traffic was held up for several hours, the auxiliary crew from Havelock workng on the job all night.

Strenuous Work Soon Tells on You

When worry is added to overwork men soon become the victims of nervous exhaustion—neurasthenia — the doctors call it. Some have no reserve strength in their systems to bear the strain; others overtax what strength they have. If you find that you are nervous, and not sure of yourself, that you sleep badly, and wake up tired and aching, your nerves are out of order. Other signs are inability to take proper interest in your work; your appetite is fickle; your back feels weak, and you are greatly depressed in spirits. One or more of these signs mean that you should take prompt steps to stop mischief by nourishing the nerves with the food they thrive on, namely the rich, red blood made by Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These pills have cured thousands of cases of nervous disorder, including nervous prostration, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance and partial paralysis. Here is an example. Mr. P. H. Callan, a well known business man in Coleman, P.E.I., says: "I owe my present health, if not life itself, to Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I had always been an active man, and when I began to run down in health paid little attention to it as I thought it only a temporary weakness. As time passed, however, I found myself growing worse, and consulted a doctor, who said that I was not only badly run down, but that my nervous system was badly shattered. I lost flesh, my appetite was poor. I slept badly and notwithstanding the doctor's treatment grew so weak that I had to leave my business and was confined to the house. Time went on and I was steadily growing weaker, and my friends were all greatly alarmed for my condition. In this condition I was strongly recommended to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the doctor's medicine was not helping me I decided to do so. By the time I had used three boxes I could tell that they were helping me. When I had taken eight boxes of the pills I felt able to attend to my business again, and people were surprised to see me out. I continued the use of the pills until I had taken twelve boxes, by which time I was feeling as well as ever I did, and was being congratulated by all my friends on my full restoration to health. I feel now that if I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the outset I would not only have saved much money spent in doctor's bills, but would have had renewed health sooner. I cannot speak too highly of this medicine, and would recommend it to every man who feels weak, nervous or run down."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MR. HATTON IS ALLOWED FEES

FOR PROSECUTING LIQUOR CASES BROUGHT BY CHIEF OF POLICE.

The City Finance Committee met yesterday afternoon and besides passing the regular monthly accounts dealt with the following matters that had been referred to the members for action.

The annual grant of $10.00 to the Dominion Tactile Press, a publication for the benefit of the blind, was approved of.

The City Trust Commissioners wrote offering to assist in reaching a solution of the difficulty regarding the deficiency caused in selling city debentures. Mayor Duffus and Ald. Stratton were appointed to confer with the Commissioners.

The City Solicitor was instructed to prepare bylaws legalising the grants to the Peterboro Horticultural Socety and to the Exhibition Board.

The request of H. Gardner for a share of the city's printing was received, as it is a custom of all municipalities to give all their business to offices where newspapers are published.

City Treasurer Adams presented regular monthly statement for the receipts and payments of the city since the first of the year.

The claim of H. McCannon for services rendered in securing options for the city, amounting to $25.00 was recommended for payment.

Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuted several cases for infractions of the Ontario Temperance Act, in which the city got the fines. The amount of fees asked was $38.50, and as the city had collected over $200.00 by reason of services he had given, the committee ordered the account to be paid.

LET LAMBS GROW UP

Plans which are expected to add 1,000,000 sheep to the total of breeding stock and to increase annual output of wool by 7,000,000 pounds were agreed to yesterday by representatives of every large packing concern located in Chicago, meeting in conjunction with the national sheep and wool bureau and the United States Department of Agriculture. The details of the agreement based on saving ewe lambs from slaughter are to be worked out by the packers and railroads.

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET

A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveller with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with up-to-date equipment unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars—in a word, everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

Germans are informed officially that rations of fat next winter will be less than the scanty allowance of fifty grams weekly last winter, and that therefore marmalade, preserves, etc., must be substituted.

In the Asiago plateau zone of the Austro-Italian theatre the Austrian artillery has hammered to pieces positions taken recently by the Italians and re-occupied them. The fighting was on Monte Ortigara.

'RUSSIANS RESUME OFFENSIVE

GERMAN SOLDIERS' LAST HOPE IS TO BE CAPTURED ELSE THEY WILL GO MAD

Extracts From Letter Dated "From a Shell Hole in Hell" Show Desperate Condition of Kaiser's Warriors --- Are Helpless Against the British.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON July 3. Extracts from a German soldier's letter found at Messines Ridge are given by Reuter's correspondent. The letter is dated "From a shell hole in Hell." "We crouch together in holes awaiting our doom" says the writer. "With dead piled up around, all night we lie with gas masks on as the British fire gas shells. So far our division, composed of three regiments, has lost thirty-four hundred men in barely three months. We are quite helpless against the British. These big British shells would break any line. Our artillery dare not fire in the day time owing to the great activity of the British airmen. We all hope to be taken prisoners, otherwise we shall go mad."

HUNS SUFFER FROM FRENCH

PARIS, July 3.—After renewed bombardment the Germans at about .30 last night began a series of violent attacks on the trenches we had recaptured on both sides of the Ailes-Paissy road. Severe fighting continued throughout the night, resulting in the complete check of the enemy. We maintained all our positions. Two attacks on small French posts further west were repulsed with ease.

On the left bank of the Meuse (the Verdun front) artillery fighting became very violent toward night in the sector between Hill 304 and Avocourt Wood.

At about 2.30 this morning the Germans attacked on a front of five hundred metres at south-east corner of the wood. Their vain assaults were broken up by our fire, and the enemy, unable to approach our lines, did not renew their effort. In raids on the German lines in Champagne we blew up a blockhouse of the enemy. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

T.A.S. ANNUAL PICNIC AS USUAL A GREAT SUCCESS

Two Boats Required to Carry Crowds to Park---57th Band Furnished Music---List of Prize Winners.

The T. A. S. picnic yesterday was as usual a great success. The fine weather together with the reputation for providing a good day's entertainment at the park brought out a host of friends of the society. Many of the citizens took advantage of the sail down the river per steamers "Manita" and "Rainbow" and stopped at the park to enjoy a good dinner which is always served by the ladies of St. Peter's Parish.

The entertainment consisted of a long list of sports in which both old and young participated. Some of the events were on land and the others were of an aquatic nature but no matter what it was there were plenty of competitors and lots of interest. These events were under the care of James McMartin and William Hatrick.

The music for the day was furnished by the 57th Band under the leadership of Lieut. Glidden, and was certainly delightful.

On every hand Father Phelan and the committee in charge were congratulated for the splendid success of the picnic of Canada's Jubilee.

During the day several very prominent visitors paid a visit to the park and enjoyed the outing. Among them were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Dr. Kehoe, Father McGuire of Ennismore, Father Meaher of Lakefield, and others from the outside besides the clergy resident in the city.

The ladies in charge of the fish pond did a thriving business all day and got rid of the many articles that were so generously contributed for the occasion and the ladies in charge wish to thank the donors for their contributions.

220 yd. race—1. McMartin; 2, O'Connell.

High jump—1. McMartin; 2, Hatrick.

Standing broad jump—1, Lynch; 2. Hatrick.

Running broad jump—1, Heffernan; 2, Hatrick.

Running hop. step and jump—1, Hatrick; 2. Heffernan.

Putting shot—1, O'Connor; 2, Canniff.

DOMINION DAY AT THE FRONT

ALL THAT WAS LACKING WERE GIRLS AND ICE CREAM.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, July 3. — The Dominion Day sports were most successful. The weather was that of a cloudless July day. There were baseball and football championship games, tugs-of-war and foot races between teams representing the various divisions. A Pierrot show in the open drew a great audience. It was a flawless day, but for the absence of girls and ice cream.

The U. S. Government has spent another $15,000,000 on copper, this time at 25 cents a pound.

WILSON WIRES GOOD WISHES

CONGRATULATIONS WERE SENT TO GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

OTTAWA, July 3. — President Wilson's Confederation message to the Governor-General reads:

"At this time, when the ties between the Canadian people and my countrymen are made even stronger by association in the common cause of human freedom, I offer my cordial congratulation on the half century anniversary and foundation of the Dominion of Canada."

VETERANS, CADETS, CIVIC OFFICIALS AND LABOR REPRESENTATIVES JOIN IN PARADE

Jubilee Celebration of Canada's Nationhood Marked by Patriotic Display---Speeches in Central Park Note Progress Made Dur-Fifty Years of Confederation---Col. Johnston Down on Snobbery in the Army.

Peterborough appropriately and strenuously celebrated the 50th Anniversary of Confederation yesterday by demonstrations both morning, afternoon and evening.

Shortly after nine o'clock the first signs that something was on tap could be noticed up around the Armories and it was not long before the school cadets were gathered, followed soon after by a few of the veterans of '66 while the 57th C.E.F. officers and men were getting ready in the rooms. At the Barrie Building on George street the Great War Veterans assembled and when all of them had reported the march to the Armories was started. They were in charge of Sergt. Victor and marching at the rear were Lieutenants-Colonels Joseph Mills, Charles H. Ackerman and T. J. Johnston.

When everything was in readiness the 57th Band marched out the east exit and soon the procession started to the strains of "The Soldiers of the King." The war veterans led and in the line up were marching the City Council, the Veterans of '66, the officers of the Trades and Labor Council, the 57th C.E.F. company under Lt.-Col. Walker, Major Duffus, Captains Watt and Lech and Lieutenants Quinn and McElderry. The school cadets followed while at the rear was the wagon with a huge log on it advertising the "Woodmen of the World."

The County officials, some of the veterans and others followed in automobiles. The streets of the centre of the city were paraded and their was a large crowd of the citizens out to greet the veterans as they passed along.

The Mayor's Address.

At Central Park those in the parade surrounded the band stand and soon Mayor Duffus called for order and made the opening address as follows:

Officers, Non-Com. Officers and Men, Ladies and Gentlemen:—Early last week we received word that the Government, and particularly the Militia Department, desired us to hold in addition to other demonstrations, a military parade on Dominion Day and by the kind cooperation of Col. Walker, the officer commanding, we at once got under way this magnificent parade and demonstration.

On behalf of the O. C. and on behalf of my colleagues and myself I desire to express my very sincere thanks for the interest and assistance you have given us and without which it would not have been a success.

Many times since war broke out we have heard it said that but for a few soldiers in uniform other than those who have friends enlisted one would scarcely know that a war was in progress. However, having regard to the fact that on our national holiday in years gone by we have seen parade the streets of Peterborough from one thousand to fifteen hundred soldiers and that on an important occasion of this nature we only have a mere handful, it is truly significant that a great war is going on within the British Empire and to those who have friends away it must bring a longing wish that the war had been ended and that they were back to take part in this memorable occasion.

Upwards of fifty years ago we find that emminment statesmen were faithfully battling with the problem of a United Canada.

Long and bitter at times was the struggle, causing many and long the sessions of Parliament. Numerous were the conferences, both here and abroad. Eloquent were the speeches. Important were the suggestions. great men broke away from their party and submitted to the opinions of oth-

Twenty Negroes Killed and 150 Houses Burned in Illinois.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Illinois, July 3. --Fifteen hundred National Guardsmen have taken charge of the city, and the situation is comparatively calm following a night of rioting in which at least twenty negroes were killed, approximately three hundred persons injured, and 150 negro houses burned. Besides the destruction of negro cottages incendiary fires during the night destroyed the Broadway Theatre and one hundred loaded freight cars.

CHINA IS ONCE MORE AN EMPIRE

YOUTHFUL RULER PLACED IN PALACE AND PRESIDENT RESIGNS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PEKIN, July 3. — China is once again, at least temporarily, an empire. Early Sunday Hsuan Tung, the boy emperor, was taken into the imperial palace under the protection of General Chang Hsun and placed on the throne. Chang Hsun then sent delegates to President Li Yuan Hung to demand his resignation. Strict order is being maintained.

CHARGED WITH SELLING BOOZE

MRS. SIMS' CASE WILL BE HEARD IN POLICE COURT.

Mrs. Sims, who resides at 259 Charlotte street, was charged before Acting Magistrate Harry Rush this morning with having sold liquor illegally at her residence. A plea of "Not guilty" was entered, and at the request of Chief Thompson the case was enlarged until tomorrow morning. The police paid a visit to the premises Sunday night and found a few persons there who admitted having had liquid refreshments. A young man who was found in the house was charged with drinking in an illegal place. He will get his trial tomorrow.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS ARE IN EXCELLENT SPIRITS AND FIGHT VIGOROUSLY

Petrograd Masses Join in Celebrating First Victory of Russian Arms Since the Revolution---Over Six Thousand Prisoners and Many Guns Captured.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, July 3.—According to news received by the Government the offensive on the south-western front is dveloping in an absolutely favorable manner. The latest telegrams to the War Ministry agree that the soldiers are in excellent spirits, and the Ministry authorizes the statement that preparaions as regards munitions and equipment are in better shape than in any preceding period of the war. Crowds of enthusiastic citizens marched through the streets to-day carrying portraits of Kerensky and Brussiloff, while others thronged the sidewalk and filled the balconies and windows cheering and waving flags and handkerchiefs in celebration of the first victory of the Russian arms on the western front since the revolution.

6,000 MORE PRISONERS TAKEN.

The new Russian offensive has resulted in the capture of six thousand more prisoners. The Russians are advancing towards Zlochoff, Galicia, the War Offices announces.

21 Guns Captured

Twenty-one guns and several mine-throwers were captured. Prisoners continue to be brought in. The number of prisoners taken in the fighting south-east of Brzezany on Sunday is given as fifty-three officers and 2200 men.

Russian troops have occupied the Galician villages of Presovce, Zboroff and Korshiduv. Austro-German forces have retreated westward across the Little Stripa river.

RAILWAY COMPANY KNEW TRACK WAR DEFECTIVE

Emergency Car Sent to Scene too Late to Prevent Tragedy at Niagara Falls.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., July 3. --It was admitted today by Inspector Creightong of the Great Gorge Route that a warning of the washout was given Sunday before the car plunged into the river. Assistant Supt. Piper received a telephone call and immediately despatched an emergency car to the Gorge but it arrived too late. This was a quicker method, the inspector claimed, than getting the power house and having the power shut off.

The crew of another car reported at the barns that the track weakened afterwards occurred.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, JULY 3, 1917

COST OF A TECHNICAL SCHOOL.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION no longer requires academic arguments to support it. The proposition to establish an industrial school in this city is supported by all the best and most influential elements in the community. The heaviest taxpayers in the city are behind it. The only aspect of the question that calls for debate is the matter of cost, and after the public meeting at the Collegiate Institute the other night a careful estimate was submitted as to the necessary outlay.

The first expense would be in connection with a new building. London is preparing to expend $160,000 for a new technical school. An outlay of not more than one-fourth of that amount would suffice for Peterborough in the way of a beginning.

When the school was ready for opening the Government would provide the equipment, this to be paid for in four years.

Half the cost of instruction would be defrayed by the Department. It is estimated that a technical school in operation in this city would not cost the ratepayers more than $5000 a year, including the interest on the original investment.

What class of children would derive the most benefit from such an institution? This, too, has been explained in detail. Statistics show that of the 3,000 school children in Peterborough, not more than 250 will ever avail themselves of the advantages of the Collegiate, an expensive institution maintained without a murmur for the benefit of the few.

About 2,700 of the present school population will leave school to help earn their own living before they are 16 years of age. It is for this majority that the technical school is designed. For them one year of industrial training will be of vastly more practical value than two years [illegible] more in the Collegiate. When [illegible] raduates of the technical school [illegible] ady to enter the industrial [illegible] y will know just what line [illegible] nd will not be obliged [illegible] three years of the [illegible] d of their lives [illegible] settled in [illegible] that [illegible] peo- [illegible] severest mental strain upon those who faithfully follow it. There is probably not one teacher in Peterborough today who would be willing to see their summer's rest cut in two, even if they were granted a corresponding increase in their compensation.

Some special course such as Mr. Sprague suggests might, however, be established. The school children should not be left entirely to such oversight as the parents are able to maintain for two months of the year. Public-spirited ladies in Peterborough had some such idea in mind when they established the playgrounds that were opened at two of the schools today. The idea of a public playground is one that is capable of further development.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

THE GLOBE SAYS that the price of coal has fallen at the pit mouth, but it opines that as the men who own the coal also own the railways and other distributing enterprises, they are willing to take their profits through other channels.

This is hardly a fair conclusion. The corporations may be powerful, but they are less so than the United States Government, which does not hesitate to deal with them face to face. The same force that has compelled the operators to reduce the first cost of coal can also regulate the transportation and the distribution. There is every reason to hope that the cut of $1.50 a ton on the higher grades at the mines will mean just that much saving on every ton of American fuel consumed in Canada next winter.

NO MORE AID TO RAILWAYS.

THE STRATFORD Board of Trade has drawn up a resolution which will be forwarded to the Government, protesting against the granting of any further financial aid to the railways. It is evident, as a Toronto exchange says, that the people are tired of the old arrangement by which they have been deluded and relieved of their money.

Capt. Burnham, in his address in the park yesterday, showed that he has noted the change in the sentiments of the Canadian people when he said that politically they are becoming independent. They are no longer slaves to prejudice or victims [illegible] all sorts and conditions of men. [illegible] Canadian public are beginning [illegible] their own thinking. They are [illegible] han ever inclined to insist that [illegible] standard be set up in pub- [illegible] in private business and that [illegible] sums be voted out of the [illegible] treasury unless there is ade- [illegible] eturn in prospect. All the [illegible] that have been granted the [illegible] railways that are again [illegible] aid was not sufficient to [illegible] from bankruptcy. If the [illegible] t is eventually obliged to [illegible] the roads, a course that [illegible] that is left, it will be in [illegible] n of the man in private [illegible] forecloses a mortgage on [illegible] pon which he has ad- [illegible] ey many times in excess [illegible] l value.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

BEFORE QUEBEC starts anything serious it should be reminded that one war at a time is enough.

THE BEST holiday society note of all — The Canadian troops are on a protracted visit to several Lens outposts.

NEXT YEAR'S INCOME of many a young man will depend on whether or not he is caught in the drag-net of conscription.

THE RECRUIT who complains of his rations is promptly drummed out of the army that they are raising in the United States.

CONSIDERING the price, a potato race these days has all the excitement of a scramble for the possession of diamonds.

THE AVERAGE newspaper that invites the Government to conscript all its profits in excess of seven per cent. is certainly playing a safe game.

THE BANGS of the 80's are once more to be popular among the fair sex, but there will be no cause for complaint unless the old-time bustle, too, is resurrected.

WHAT PARLIAMENT is doing may not be visible to the naked eye of the consumer, but what it is saying continues to be the burning question of the hour.

THE ATHLETIC SPORTS at Exhibition Park yesterday demonstrated the fact that the sturdy youths of this city are not only good winners but, what is more sportsmanlike than all, know how to lose gracefully.

* * *

EVERY TIME the returned soldiers registered an appearance yesterday they drew a cheer from the crowd. All the world still loves a hero, and the reception given the veterans yesterday indicates their standing with the people when the war is over.

Wit and Wisdom

The Reason

The learned counsel in the great will case literally beamed with joy. Here was a witness who was everything a witness should be.

"I congratulate you, sir," he said enthusiastically. "Your memory for detail does you infinite credit. And on behalf of the numerous relatives of the testator in court, I should like to thank you for the very flattering, though none the less truthful, description that you have just given of that esteemed gentleman who is now, alas! no more."

"I presume," continued the learned counsel, "that you were very intimate with the testator during his lifetime?"

The witness hesitated and blushed crimson sed. "N-n-o," he answered, lamely. "In fact, I never saw him in my life."

"But really, sir," cried the barrister in surprise. "I fail to see how you could give such an accurate and flattering description of him if you never saw him."

The witness gave a very sickly smile.

"Perhaps you will understand better," he said, "when I tell you that I married his widow."

As Pants the Hart

With a view to propitiating his captors, an obese prisoner handed over his watch and a mouth organ to four men of the Bleakshire regiment. Difficulties arose when it came to dividing the spoil, but an inspiration helped them out.

"Look here," said one of the lucky men, "let me have the mouth organ, and I'll give up all claim to a share in the ticker. Then, 'ow would be if I played you something the nearest, or shall I play some-tune it is takes the watch?"

This was agreed to and the musician did play something and he played that something pretty badly. Then came the guessing.

"None of you is right," declared the instrumentalist, "Is it to be the nearest, or shall I play something else?"

"Nearest," came the chorus.

"Tobbins takes it, then," was the verdict. "He was a long way the highest. 'Beer, Glorious beer' wasn't arf a bad guess; I was playin' 'As pants the 'art for cooling streams.'"

Not An Expert

Annie, a Slav washerwoman, who works one day a week in a certain south side home, seems to have an ear for music, even if she does possess no technical knowledge on the subject.

In the home a few days since, a piano tuner spent about six hours trying to put the instrument into condition again.

The laundry of the home is directly under the living room in which the tuner was performing his monotonous task.

When Annie came up after her day's work was done she said to her employer:

"You know man in parlor?"

"Yes, Annie."

"Well, I want to tell you one thing. I no like to hear him. He rotten piano player."

EDITOR'S MAIL

HE HAS WITHDRAWN IT.

Editor Review: We ladies hope that Mr. Burnham will see fit to withdraw his resignation. He is too honorable a man to lose. Party politics are doomed and we must have men above reproach. He is in every sense a "win the war" representative and at the next election the "woman vote' alone will elect him.

A WOMAN VOTER.

Gannon's Narrows.

Editor Review: We understand that a number of disgruntled politicians are at work to have another Conservative convention. Has "German gold" got in its work in Peterboro? Let me tell you it can never reach the country districts. We stand for straightforward men in this crisis, and in Capt. Burnham we have the essence of purity—a man who acts as his conscience dictates, regardless of small politics.

We know the politicians at the back of this move. Had it not been for them we would have had a representative in Toronto on the Government side.

What Others Say

Impossible to Reconcile Them
(Hamilton Herald)

It is recalled that Sir Wilfrid Laurier speaking at Montreal last December, said that "the fate of Canada will depend on the happy or unhappy issue of the terrible conflict." And yet Sir Wilfrid now says that "there never was any danger of invasion of Canada on the part of Germany." Possibly the Liberal Leader can reconcile these two statements but it is not easy to do so.

Individual Rights
(E. W. Howe's Monthly)

We are always talking of the rights of the individual. But unless the individual has picked up a little sense, is willing to work a little and look out for himself a little, he has no rights.

Must Emerge From Cloud
(Hamilton Spectator)

Evidences of the sinister influence at work in Quebec were shown by Hon. A. Sevigny, in his reference to those of his countrymen in New England. There, according to newspaper report, they "exceed all other elements of the population for the figures of enlistments." Whatever the source of this racial cleavage, Quebec owes it to her splendid traditions to emerge from the cloud that at present envelops them.

Laurier and Liberty
(Sarnia Canadian)

Hon. Geo. P. Graham proudly boasts that Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave his followers full permission to vote according to the dictates of their own consciences on the conscription bill. Who after this will say that Canada is not a land of liberty?

A Needed Arrangement
(Ohio State Journal)

If Mr. Edison were not so busy with the submarine policy we should write and ask him if he couldn't devise some way of arranging Congress as the honest farmer does his potatoes—so that the larger ones would always be on top.

Clerical Conscription
(Toronto News)

No wonder the Methodists favor conscription. They have the selective draft in the stationing committee.

Bicycle Races and Other Games at Exhibition Park

The crowd at the Exhibition Park yesterday afternoon was larger than the most sanguine of the members of the committee ever hoped for. The day was ideal in every particular, and long before the hour for the opening of the program the ticket sellers were busy getting rid of their rolls of tickets.

The Motor League, under the direction of Mr. Fred Roy, had their cars on hand at the Market Square and shortly after 1 o'clock the cars containing the Great War Veterans and their friends were lined up, and, headed by the two immense motor trucks of the Quaker Oats Co. with the Salvation Army Band, paraded the streets to the grounds, where the parade came to a stop in the centre of the track, after making a tour in front of the grand stand.

It was the intention of Mayor Duffus to hold a formal reception to the returned soldiers, but it was thought better by the committee to defer it until a future occasion, as the bicycle races were already under way.

The ladies of the Peterborough Health Association had refreshment booths here and there through the grounds, and they did a good business all the afternoon, in fact some of them running out of supplies an hour before the close of the sports.

It was one grand afternoon and the members of the Greater Peterborough Association feel proud of the success of their first venture in giving the citizens some form of entertainment for the holiday.

The manner in which the different sporting events were run off reflects not a little credit on the officials in charge. Each event was run off as scheduled and the patience of the crowd was not taxed in the least at any one moment.

The bicycle races were a great attraction and Harry Richards and "Uncle Bill" Gralish, assisted by Starter "Bill" Lytle, were at all times ready to please the enthusiasts. There was one feature about the bicycle races that commended itself to all—Mr. Richards did not allow the riders to loaf, and each had to take his position at each lap. Mr. Charlie Banks, the local bicycle enthusiast, was backed by Mr. St. Onge, and both deserved great praise for the advertising they did to make the celebration such a success.

Never for a moment from the time that a Dominion Day celebration was agreed upon did the tireless Banks and St. Onge fail to keep before the fast riders the fact that Peterborough was going to have a real bicycle day, and they came to it, and all went to their homes more than satisfied.

The Tramp on a Wheel.

Mr. St. Onge sprung a real feature in his famous tramp bicycle act, and the way it was sprung on the track as well as the crowd was really good. When a local officer attempted to chase the alleged tramp off the track and he ran off with the bicycle and took a tumbleheadfirst, the crowd thought something sensational was on tap, and necks were stretched so as not to miss any of the excitement. When some of Mr. St. Onge's specialties were attempted and finally pulled off, hundreds of kodaks were levelled at the comedian. This was one of the best stunts that has been pulled off in many a day and brought recollections to a number of old-timers of the good old bicycle days of years ago.

The Prize Winners.

The bicycle races were under the sanction of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association and their rules governed. The results were as follows:

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. Lowery, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

ers. thus overcoming stubborn opposition and supporting the elements of success for the purpose of solving a problem of national interest to this country, the outcome of which was confederation and that Canada came to mean not the survival of antiquated ideas, but the blessings of a well ordered civilization embodying three things—a workable plan of government, triumphant unification of the provinces and the preservation of the ties that bind us to the motherland, and the cherished principles of democracy, freedom and justice.

We are met to celebrate the golden jubilee of Confederation, the fiftieth anniversary of the day that brought Canada into organized being—the day when we laid the foundation of the Great Dominion of Canada as it exists today. When we contrast the immnse area of Canada as it was fifty years ago, we see the change. Then Canada consisted of two or three groups of puny provinces, each hoeing its own row in its own little way. They were like separate countries, unconnected by common interests and unconnected by railways or other means of intercourse. Now they are bound together with links of steel—three lines of railway from ocean to ocean, a magnificent system of canals, and provided with all the material conveniences of progress.

Confederation has helped do all that has made Canada what Canada is today. We owe it to Confederation that Canada today stands first among the Dominions of the Empire, that we have grown to the point where we are the factors in the triumph of the greatest world war in the world's history. We owe much to our statesmen, to our captains of industry, to our men of commerce, but the greatest glory we can boast of, the glory that throws the whitest light on the golden jubilee of Confederation, comes from th heroic exploits and splendid fighting of Canadians in the battle front in Europe. They are fighting to preserve our country, that its future may be as great as our unbounded resources, our unlimited expanse of fruitful soil, and the spirit and enterprise of the people will make it. What our soldiers have done, the spirit of united effort, the spirit of doing things, they have shown, is a lesson to us. We are called upon to work together in harmony of sentiment and effort, to do our share in helping realize the splendid future that the first fifty years of Confederation shows that we can accomplish.

In natural resources we surpass many other countries. For example we control 90 per cent of the total output of the world. We have the largest potential water powers in the world. The largest of fresh water lakes in the world. Our banking system is the soundest in the world. At the Paris exposition our educational system took the grand prize. We surpass nearly all other countries in many other pursuits, such as fishery, agriculture and dairying, forestry and numerous others.

It is a time to arm and to farm. It is a time for all to save and to serve. It is a time for many who have not as yet done so to hang up the fiddle and the bow and take down the shovel and the hoe.

In all this Peterborough has had her share — has had her share in what has been done all over Canada. The past half century Peterborough has grown from the village stage to the proportions of a great and prosperous city. Fifty years ago Peterborough was principally a place on the map of Ontario. Now she is a living, thriving force in the industrial, commercial and civic life of the province. Fifty years ago Peterborough's industrial forces were represented by two or three foundries and machine shops, and a few blacksmith shops. We have today the most important group of great manufacturing industries in the province. We have the finest array of churchs, the best school buildings, the finest shops, the most and most beautiful parks and the best all round civic equipment, in awter works, electric works, sewer system and street pavements, of any city of our size in the Dominion.

That is what fifty years of Confederation, coupled with the enterprise, public spirit and civic ambition of the people have done for Peterborough, and it is to the people we look to see that the pace is kept up, that the progress continues, and it is encouraging to note that we shall be equal to the task. Never in the fifty years of Confederation have the people been so united, so enthusiastic in working for the betterment and upbuilding of Peterborough than they are at this present moment, and if we continue to pull together, to work in harmony and in double harness, as citizens loyal to the town, and, above all, loyal to each other, those who may live to see the century of Confederation, will see a ten-times greater Peterborough and a ten times greater Canada. It all depends under Divine Providence, whether this shall be—it all depends upon you and me, and those who come after us, whether or not this shall come to pass. If we and those who will take our places do our bit; do our best, as patriotic Canadians, as citizens of Peterborough, loyal to our home town and loyal to each other; if we work together, in harmony and with one purpose, (the good of our common country) and the good of our neighbors; if we work in national, civic and personal harmony, then the accomplishments of the past half century will be but as a skirmish compared to the great battle of progress Canada and Peterborough will win in the fifty years to come.

In conclusion let one express the hope that the terrible conflict which has rent so many sorrowing hearts, which has dotted the fields of France and Flanders with soldiers' graves, which has caused the rivers to flow with blood, murdered innocent women and children, destroyed magnificent towns and villages, we may be moved with a desire to throw our petty differences, selfish partizan ideas into a melting pot out of which will come a great Empire, policy of unity, tolerance and efficiency.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., strongly endorsed the sentiments expressed by the Mayor. He hoped for a greater Peterborough in the future. He referred to the fact that 50 years ago there were no electric lights or telephones and it was hard to tell what would be seen fifty years hence.

Great credit was given to the Canadian soldiers for their deeds at the front and Mr. Gillespie pointed out that for generations to come the bravery of the men would be told of in history.

Labor's Progress in Fifty Years.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, president of the Trades and Labor Council, was glad to be present and speak a few words of gratitude to the brave boys who had shouldered a rifle and had gone to France and Flanders to fight for the liberty of the world. He had been in Peterborough fifty years ago and gave a short account of what had transpired in those back days. He hoped that his descendents would be here to celebrate fifty years hence. The great unity that existed at the present time between capital and labor as compared in the olden days was referred to and the splendid progress of the Labor Unions dwelt on.

A True Soldier of Democracy.

Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, commanding officer of the 93rd Battalion, C. E.F., was loudly cheered when he started to address the gathering. The advancement made in military matters as compared with those existing in '66 was explained, and Col. Johnston was very strongly of the opinion that there was better training done in Canada than in the English camps. He derided the order of things in England which forbade an officer to walk on the street with a private. There should be no such distinction. In Canada he hoped to soon see matters improve so that there would be less red tape or "tangle-pleased to see the country surround-foot" as it was now called. He was pleased to see the country surrounding Peterborough so prosperous and remarked that never before were the prospects for a good crop so good.

Judge Huycke and History.

Judge Huycke was greeted warmly when he was called upon to address the assembly. He spoke of the terrible cloud of war which now was over us. A brief review of the early history of Canada when the Dominion was made up of four or five scattered provinces each one of them being jealous of the progress of the other. He carefully went over the gradual development of the Dominion in every department and after referring to the entry of the United States into the great war told of the desertion of Canada by slackers who had gone to the other side and he hoped that the United States would keep them there.

Some Notes of Progress.

The closing speech of the day was made by Capt. J. H. Burnham who spoke in part as follows:

Looking over the record and experiences of those living in 1867 we find a great change since that date, both socially and mechanically, and even indeed, in the interpretation of the Scriptures, and therefore religiously, but most of all, nationally. Socially there is no longer the promiscuous, uncertain and therefore frequently omitted system of aid to the unfortunate and unhappy that existed in the old time. Gradually the idea of the dignity of manhood and womanhood and the love of childhood has developed out of the old social class-order and it is now accounted very weak for a young man to accept the patronage or the bounty either of the public or of private citizens, when if he were a real man he would show it by helping others, not himself.

That young man who is brought up to the belief that it is not so much what he can do for others as what they can do for him, is on the road to rui nno matter what his surroundings are. The man who is greater than he who taketh a city is still the only real man. The rest are in some way either wards, weaklings or dependents. The combination of all departments of national life to better the general condition has been the most notable advance since 1867.

Privilege is passing. We are rapidly advancing to the idea of giving every man and woman an honest, fair chance, and of lending a hand to help the young, the weak and the old over the hard places in the road. These are the chief developments in our social order.

Nationally, it is but necessary to point to our soldiers and to France and Flanders. Our greatest history is written there.

Politically, people are very largely independent. They are no longer slaves to prejudices or victims of all sorts and conditions of men. The Children's Aid Society has done a good work throughout Canada. Woman has emerged from her seclusion, or perhaps, exclusion, and now takes her equal part in the whole social order. Merit and capability play a part impossible to them sixty years ago. People are more free in every way, even in their manners, which however, is a blemish, but about the only one.

AFTER THE WAR WHAT?

Where You Cannot Prophesy— PREPARE !

NOT even the best-informed man in government or business circles dares to attempt a prophecy of conditions after the war. We hope for the best—meantime wise men are preparing now for anything.

How?

By regulating their expenditures according to their actual needs rather than by their prosperity—by husbanding the surplus—and by investing to the limit in Canadian War Loans that help so much to maintain present prosperity.

Money saved and loaned to Canada by Canadians is a twofold safeguard for the future. The lenders will benefit directly from the excellent interest return and absolute security—and indirectly because the interest thus kept in Canada will help to keep business good after the war.

Canadian War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, repayable in three years. At the purchase prices of $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, they yield over 5% interest. Buy them at any Bank or Money Order Post Office.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's stepsister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. Lowery, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

ers, thus overcoming stubborn opposition and supporting the elements of success for the purpose of solving a problem of national interest to this country, the outcome of which was confederation and that Canada came to mean not the survival of antiquated ideas, but the blessings of a well ordered civilization embodying three things—a workable plan of government, triumphant unification of the provinces and the preservation of the ties that bind us to the motherland, and the cherished principles of democracy, freedom and justice.

We are met to celebrate the golden jubilee of Confederation, the fiftieth anniversary of the day that brought Canada into organized being—the day when we laid the foundation of the Great Dominion of Canada as it exists today. When we contrast the immense area of Canada as it was fifty years ago, we see the change. Then Canada consisted of two or three groups of puny provinces, each hoeing its own row in its own little way. They were like separate countries, unconnected by common interests and unconnected by railways or other means of intercourse. Now they are bound together with links of steel—three lines of railway from ocean to ocean, a magnificent system of canals, and provided with all the material conveniences of progress.

Confederation has helped do all that has made Canada what Canada is today. We owe it to Confederation that Canada today stands first among the Dominions of the Empire, that we have grown to the point where we are the factors in the triumph of the greatest world war in the world's history. We owe much to our statesmen, to our captains of industry, to our men of commerce, but the greatest glory we can boast of, the glory that throws the whitest light on the golden jubilee of Confederation, comes from th heroic exploits and splendid fighting of Canadians in the battle front in Europe. They are fighting to preserve our country, that its future may be as great as our unbounded resources, our unlimited expanse of fruitful soil, and the spirit and enterprise of the people will make it. What our soldiers have done, the spirit of united effort, the spirit of doing things, they have shown, is a lesson to us. We are called upon to work together in harmony of sentiment and effort, to do our share in helping realize the splendid future that the first fifty years of Confederation shows that we can accomplish.

In natural resources we surpass many other countries. For example we control 90 per cent of the total output of the world. We have the largest potential water powers in the world. The largest of fresh water lakes in the world. Our banking system is the soundest in the world. At the Paris exposition our educational system took the grand prize. We surpass nearly all other countries in many other pursuits, such as fishery, agriculture and dairying, forestry and numerous others.

It is a time to arm and to farm. It is a time for all to save and to serve. It is a time for many who have not as yet done so to hang up the fiddle and the bow and take down the shovel and the hoe.

In all this Peterborough has had her share — has had her share in what has been done all over Canada. The past half century Peterborough has grown from the village stage to the proportions of a great and prosperous city. Fifty years ago Peterborough was principally a place on the map of Ontario. Now she is a living, thriving force in the industrial, commercial and civic life of the province. Fifty years ago Peterborough's industrial forces were represented by two or three foundries and machine shops, and a few blacksmith shops. We have today the most important group of great manufacturing industries in the province. We have the finest array of churchs, the best school buildings, the finest shops, the most and most beautiful parks and the best all round civic equipment, in awter works, electric works, sewer system and street pavements, of any city of our size in the Dominion.

That is what fifty years of Confederation, coupled with the enterprise, public spirit and civic ambition of the people have done for Peterborough, and it is to the people we look to see that the pace is kept up, that the progress continues, and it is encouraging to note that we shall be equal to the task. Never in the fifty years of Confederation have the people been so united, so enthusiastic in working for the betterment and upbuilding of Peterborough than they are at this present moment, and if we continue to pull together, to work in harmony and in double harness, as citizens loyal to the town, and, above all, loyal to each other, those who may live to see the century of Confederation, will see a ten-times greater Peterborough and a ten times greater Canada. It all depends under Divine Providence, whether this shall be—it all depends upon you and me, and those who come after us, whether or not this shall come to pass. If we and those who will take our places do our bit; do our best, as patriotic Canadians, as citizens of Peterborough, loyal to our home town and loyal to each other; if we work together, in harmony and with one purpose, (the good of our common country) and the good of our neighbors; if we work in national, civic and personal harmony, then the accomplishments of the past half century will be but as a skirmish compared to the great battle of progress Canada and Peterborough will win in the fifty years to come.

In conclusion let one express the hope that the terrible conflict which has rent so many sorrowing hearts, which has dotted the fields of France and Flanders with soldiers' graves, which has caused the rivers to flow with blood, murdered innocent women and children, destroyed magnificent towns and villages, we may be moved with a desire to throw our petty differences, selfish partizan ideas into a melting pot out of which will come a great Empire, policy of unity, tolerance and efficiency.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., strongly endorsed the sentiments expressed by the Mayor. He hoped for a greater Peterborough in the future. He referred to the fact that 50 years ago there were no electric lights or telephones and it was hard to tell what would be seen fifty years hence. Great credit was given to the Canadian soldiers for their deeds at the front and Mr. Gillespie pointed out that for generations to come the bravery of the men would be told of in history.

Labor's Progress in Fifty Years.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, president of the Trades and Labor Council, was glad to be present and speak a few words of gratitude to the brave boys who had shouldered a rifle and had gone to France and Flanders to fight for the liberty of the world. He had been in Peterborough fifty years ago and gave a short account of what had transpired in those back days. He hoped that his descendents would be here to celebrate fifty years hence. The great unity that existed at the present time between capital and labor as compared in the olden days was referred to and the splendid progress of the Labor Unions dwelt on.

A True Soldier of Democracy.

Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, commanding officer of the 93rd Battalion, C. E.F., was loudly cheered when he started to address the gathering. The advancement made in military matters as compared with those existing in '66 was explained, and Col. Johnston was very strongly of the opinion that there was better training done in Canada than in the English camps. He derided the order of things in England which forbade an officer to walk on the street with a private. There should be no such distinction. In Canada he hoped to soon see matters improve so that there would be less red tape or "tangle-pleased to see the country surround-foot" as it was now called. He was pleased to see the country surrounding Peterborough so prosperous and remarked that never before were the prospects for a good crop so good.

Judge Huycke and History.

Judge Huycke was greeted warmly when he was called upon to address the assembly. He spoke of the terrible cloud of war which now was over us. A brief review of the early history of Canada when the Dominion was made up of four or five scattered provinces each one of them being jealous of the progress of the other. The closing speech of the day was made by Capt. J. H. Burnham who spoke in part as follows:

TWO LONG YEARS HE SUFFERED

"Fruit-a-tives" Made Him Feel As If Walking On Air

Orillia, Ont., Nov. 28th. 1914.

"For over two years, I was troubled with Constipation, Drowsiness, Lack of Appetite and Headaches. One day I saw your sign which read "Fruit-a-tives make you feel like walking on air." This appealed to me, so I decided to try a box. In a very short time, I began to feel better, and now I feel fine. I have a good appetite, relish everything I eat, and the Headaches are gone entirely. I recommend this pleasant fruit medicine to all my friends".

ELLIOT'S

THREE DAYS OF HISTORY

Chief Events That Transpired in the Outer World During the Holiday.

Saturday night's report says the British made further progress during the day south of Lens, captured a further portion of the enemy's trench system and a few prisoners. Ten German airplanes were disposed Friday and one British machine is missing.

Saturday night's report from Paris says German attacks north of St. Quentin were all repulsed.

The Berlin report from army head quarters, Saturday, says there was nothing important on the west front.

Unofficial German sources report Von Hindenburg has again, in a wireless message, offered an armistice to Russia, this time during the election of the Russian constitutional convention delegates. No confirmation is offered.

Sunday report says the British captured German defences on a half mile front along the north bank of the Souchez River, southwest and west of Lens.

Sergt. Bassett, a distinguished French war correspondent, was killed by a rifle bullet while watching the British operations. He is the first journalist to be killed during the present war.

Eighty-seven German merchant vessels, seized in American ports at the outbreak of the war, were turned over by President Wilson to the shipping board. Fourteen others are already in the possession of the navy department.

General headquarters reports Russian infantry attacks along the upper Stripa which "broke down under our destructive fire."

An Austrian official report says Russian artillery fire became very intense in the neighborhood of Brzczany and Konichy. A Russian infantry attack near Koninchy broke down.

Sunday Evening Bulletin.

It is reported that the Great Gorge car with fifty passengers jumped the track this afternoon and went into the rapids. No details as yet.

French and German troops were engaged in lively fighting last night west of Dead Man's Hill on the Verdun sector. One position changed hands five times and was finally abandoned by both sides.

Enemy attacks on the French Fort of Avocourt, on the Aisne and Champagne front were repulsed.

Monday Morning Bulletin.

Eleven dead bodies were recovered and many missing from car which went into the Rapids Sunday. No Canadians were on car.

Attacks by the Russians on the Galician front were the most extensive since the revolution.

The British captured 8,686 prisoners and 67 cannon during June. The capture of Lens cannot be long delayed.

Monday Evening Bulletin.

The German official statement issued today says that the Galician village of Koniuchy was lost yesterday to the Russians. The German general staff says the Russian losses surpassed any measur hitherto known. Some Russian units, it reports, were entirely dispersed.

A statement from Petrograd says: On Sunday we captured on the Russian Galician front nine officers and 1700 Germans, Austrians and Turks. Some of our detachments sustained severe losses, especially of officers. Altogether on Sunday we took prisoners 1730 officers and more than ten thousand soldiers. We also captured seven guns and seven machine guns.

NEW PASTOR AT GEORGE STREET PREACHES HIS FIRST SERMONS

Rev. Amos J. Thomas Was Greeted by Large Congregations Both Morning and Evening.

The congregation at George Street Church turned out in large numbers at both morning and evening services last Sunday, in spite of the unfavorable weather to greet their new pastor, Rev. Amos J. Thomas, who comes to them from London. In the evening the pastor took for his subject; "Our debt to the Dominion." After referring to Confederation and the splendid progress of the past fifty years, and the bright prospects for the future, he declared "that when we think of the future of our country it is with fear as well as hope, for the destiny of a nation depends not on its climatic conditions, its natural resources, its broad domains, but on the character of its people."

We ask too frequently: What has ths country done for me? Rather should we enquire: What do I owe this fair land?

Reference was made to several obligations which rest upon the Canadian citizen and as these were being emphasized the following statements were made:—

"Canada owes her assistance to the motherland which has been her protector and defender. For the sake of Canada itself Canadians should be ready to do their share in this tremendous struggle. The defeat of Britain means our defeat."

"We must not halt with men and money and everything we can give until the flag of peace and victory waves over the blood-stained fields of Europe."

"A nation of weaklings can never be great and prosperous."

"It does not need an invading army to overcome a nation, for vice, iniquity, and immorality are as destructive as any armed foe."

"A nation that does not hold sacred the marriage tie and the bonds of its home will surely sink into ruin and decay."

"The press of this country is rendering a valuable service in nation-building by bringing before its people not only their national achievements but their present problems and responsibilities."

"We need a community, a civic, a national spirit. When every Canadian becomes as much concerned in the common welfare as in his personal prosperity, we are on the eve of great achievements."

"The best asset of any nation is its godly men and women. Patriotism and religion go hand in hand."

REV. AMOS J. THOMAS

The new pastor who comes from London to the George Street Methodist Church

OBITUARY

MRS. SAMUEL JOHNSTON

Margaret A. Erskine, widow of the late Samuel Johnston, died at the residence of her son, Mr. Geo. W. Johnston, on Sunday, after an illness of some duration. She was born in the township of Otonabee eighty-six years ago and was one of the oldest residents of the county. She is survived by two sons, Messrs. Thomas W., of Rochester, and Mr. Geo. W., of this city.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the residence of her son, 528 Weller street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., of Trinity Methodist Church.

JOHN JAMES MAGEE.

John James Magee, Lot 2, Concession 21, Township of Emily, died at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday morning after an extended illness. He was born in Emily 55 years ago and is survived by his wife and one son, Frank, who lives at home. Mrs. F. Fowler of Smith is a sister, and the three brothers are Messrs. Fred., George and Walter, all of Emily.

The funeral took place this afternoon to Omemee Cemetery.

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW BIG INCREASE.

The Customs House returns for the last month show a great increase over the same month last year. The returns for the month of June, 1916, were $57.504.69, and for the month just closed they were $73.527.89. This is an increase of over $16,000 for one month.

MOTHERS OF FRANCE, TONIGHT.

The Royal Theatre was crowded to the doors yesterday, when the thrilling story of war's tragedy and the courage of French women, so sensationally told in "Mothers of France" was thrillingly thrown on the screen. Hundreds were turned away for lack of room. Tonight will be the last chance to see this wonderful picture and intending visitors to the Royal should be on hand early.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Board of Education will hold its regular monthly meeting at 7.45 this evening.

CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council will meet in regular session this evening at 8 o'clock.

AN ENJOYABLE TRIP TO STONY LAKE

The Ancient Order of Foresters excursion to Mt. Julian and Burleigh yesterday was a great success from every point of view. The steamer Stony Lake carried all that the Government allowed and a few of the late arrivals had to go by other boats or by the railway.

The party thoroughly enjoyed themselves and joined with the officers of the order in extending a hearty vote of thanks to Captain Scollard and his crew for kindness and attention.

This was the fastest trip that the Stony Lake ever made to Mount Julian with an excursion from Peterborough.

EMPLOYEES' HOLIDAY ANNEX

WEDNESDAY, JULY 4th

Tenth Annual Employees' Holiday Annex To-morrow

Store Closed All Day, Thursday, July 5th

As has been our custom for the last nine years we are making the first Thursday in July a "Whole Day Off" for our employees—and the store will not be open for business. This means two days business in one and we have planned a Record Breaking Annex Event. For months the Annex buyers have been preparing and the result is a collection of many brand new lines at price reductions that bring them below to-day's actual cost of manufacture. Visit the Annex frequently on Wednesday and come for all the Time Limit Sales. Annex parcels will be delivered on Friday and Saturday.

WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are busy and whose bowels are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

One pill at bedtime, regularly. Larger dose if there's a suspicion of biliousness or constipation.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

It's a Cinch.

The outfield is an easy job.
The men just stand around
And wait to pick flies from the air.
Or rollers from the ground.

Jack Barry deserves a great big medal for his patience. He's hanging on to pitcher George Foster despite the fact that the latter has been lame in his business wing for quite some time. Barry hopes that George will get over it soon and the latter, if he does, will no doubt show his appreciation by putting forth his very best foot, and also his very best arm.

One of the niftiest little players in the big leagues today is Everett Scott, shortstop of the Red Sox. It takes an express train going sixty miles an hour to get by Everett and if it comes to a pinch, he'd even take a chance on stopping that.

Just a minute ago we mentioned Jack Barry. Now we're going to mention him again. There was a time when that gentleman could hardly be disturbed from just pursuing the even tenor of his ways. He just said nothing and sawed wood. That was when he was playing with the Athletics. Now, however, its very different. Managers have to say something once in a while and Jack is certainly there when it comes to expressing his opinion, which he is doing quite frequently.

Is Loo Magee booked for the tall timbers? That's the question the fans are asking themselves these days. Lee is warming the bench and the rumor will not down that when the season ends, Magee's connection with the Yankees will also terminate.

Grouchy Gus Says:

"They've rejected two boxers who wanted to enlist. What's the matter? Did they think that their broken noses wouldn't be able to smell the poisoned gasses quick enough?"

Connie Mack has gathered into the Athletic fold a young man whom everybody considered a certain winner. That young man is Captain Murphy of the Dartmouth baseball team and he is going to get his chance at the end of the present college year. Murphy has done star catching for the past two years. In fact that institution has never had a better backstop than the new Athletic recruit. He can throw like a wizard, swat like a whale and uses his head as well as his hands and feet.

Did ever you hear of Moran?
His first name is Frank. He's the man
That enters the ring.
Who can lick anything
We've seen him and know that he can.

What Once Was.

In happier times this is regatta week at Henley. Naturally that great event will be omitted this year, as it has been since the war broke out. But formerly the first week in July saw Hanley, fifty miles from London, crowded with people from the cities all over England. Henley has been the shrine for oarsmen since 1820, when Oxford rowed a famous race against Cambridge. The regatta has been repeated every year since a few years after that event. Weeks before the opening date the town council meets and discusses plans for entertaining the great throngs that assemble for the occasion. Storekeepers lay in new materials and, as they are all alike the world over, they promptly raise their prices. The streets are decorated with garlands and banners and what not. The Henley regatta is above all a society event and Dukes and Lords are as plentiful as pickaninies in Alabama. Chief interest, next to the men who will actually take part in the events of the week, is centred in those who have rowed in other years. Fathers who have been heroes of the regatta are walking with sons who are all primed for their first venture with the oars. And the variety of color is almost bewildering. The women wear their gayest frocks while the various rowing clubs are represented by coats of various colors worn by the men. When the town clock strikes ten the rush for the river begins. Punts, rowboats and every other kind of small vessel start in a race for a good place along the course. Once well situated, they remain there throughout the day. And the Englishman, as usual, takes his well beloved tea pot with him in his boat, for he simply can't do without that, you know. And so they wait until the race begins, when the tea is forgotten for the moment in the greater excitement of watching the crews flash by. When the race is over everybody seeks lodgings and waits for the events of the next day, when the routine is repeated.

Today in Pugilistic Annals.

1899—Kid Lavigne, the French-Canadian, who was the second man to hold the lightweight championship of the world, lost his title to Frank Erne at Buffalo.

1911—Packey McFarland knocked out Young Ahearn in eight rounds at Albany, N.Y.

TWO SPLENDID TROTTING EVENTS HELD AT EXHIBITION PARK

Lindsay Horse, Dan D., Won the 2.15 Race and Sedelia, the 2.30 Event, all in Straight Heats.

Horse racing still remains a sport fit for kings, especially when it is kept free from the evils of the betting ring and the manipulation of camp followers. The two trotting events at Exhibition Park yesterday were popular features of the afternoon's entertainment and no better sample of the sport was ever offered anywhere.

Dr. J. A. Sinclair of Cannington, one of the leading horsemen of the day, acted as starting judge, an office that he has filled here on previous meets and always to the satisfaction of all concerned. Those associated with him as judges were Harry Winch and J. M. Brookes, while R. J. Monroe held the watch in the different heats.

There were two local horses in the 2.15 Class, Frank Montgomery's Jim Direct and Dr. T. Johnston's beautiful black mare, Susie Hal. The other entries were Herman Wengar, owned by R. Elmhurst of Keene; Montaloo, owned by T. Hodgins of Burnt River and Dan D. the property of C. O'Brien of Lindsay. The horse from the town on the Scugog won the race in three straight heats but in every trial had a fight at the finish, the horse from Burnt River being his closest rival. Susie Hal finished outside the money and Jim Direct saved his entrance fee. The third and closing heat of this race was a splendid exhibition of speed, the horses making the double circuit without a skip or a break, the very poetry of equine motion. The time made was 2.19¼, 2.19½ and 2.19¼.

The 2 30 Race.

There were three entries in the 2.30 event. T. Herrington's Princey, R. Elmhurst's Sedelia and Jack Brookes, owned by J. Dimsdale of Keene. The local horse was by all odds the fastest of the trio but acted badly coming up to the wire time after time with all four feet off the ground. In the first heat he was a bad third. In the second he started far in the rear on a nod from his driver and drew steadily up on the leaders all the way around. In the third he looked like a winner but just as he collared the Dimsdale horse for second place he went into the air again and lost many lengths before he could strike his gait again. He drew up on Sedelia and took second place only a length behind the leader. The time made in this race was 2.40, 2.31½ and 2.40. Jack Brookes took third money. In the final heat Mr. Herrington complained to the judges that the driver of Jack Brookes had struck Princey with his whip when they came together and forced him into a break but the protest was not allowed.

The track at Exhibition Park still maintained its reputation as one of the best half mile circuits in the country.

WINNIPEG MAN CURED

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved Him Nervous Breakdown.

Mr. G. C. Inman, 320 Harcourt St., Sturgeon Creek, Winnipeg, for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada, says, "I was terribly rundown and weak. I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat. My nerves were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. Everything pointed to a nervous breakdown. Then I got Dr. Cassell's Tablets. The first result was that I could sleep, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back."

Mr. Inman is now in England, managing the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 M'Caul Street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. Beware of imitations said to contain hypophosphites. The composition of Dr. Cassell's Tablets is known only to the proprietors, and no imitation can ever be the same.

George Street Choir Holds Annual Outing

Enjoyable Time Spent Down the River at Various Points Yesterday.

The annual picnic and excursion of George Street Methodist Church was held yesterday down the river. It was one of the most enjoyable and successful outings that the choir has ever held. In fact, the beautiful weather combined with the trip down the river and the picnic features will make it an event to be long remembered by the choir.

The choristers left Rye's boathouse at 9 a.m. proceeding in launches down to Thompson's Landing. An exceedingly tempting and bountiful repast had been arranged for at the nearby farm of Mr. Finney. All did more than full justice to the ample fare. At the conclusion a very sincere and hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Finney and family for the trouble to which they had gone in preparing such an excellent meal.

Sports were held following the luncheon at which much ability in the athletic line was displayed by both the ladies and gentlemen. The following events were hotly contested:

Ladies' nail-driving contest—Winner, Mrs. W. H. Cunningham.

Ladies' race—Miss Mignon Telgmann.

Men's 100 yards—Mr. Edwin Jones.

Men's sewing contest—Mr. C. S. Thompson.

The star event of the day was a tug-of-war between two teams of ladies.

At the conclusion of the sports the return journey was begun, arriving at Wallace's Point in time for a picnic luncheon. After an hour or so spent here the rest of the journey was completed.

The choir feel very much indebted for such a splendid outing to the committee in charge, consisting of Mrs. Rehill, Miss Lilian Hill, Messrs. W. H. Cunningham and E. Walton; also to Messrs. J. H. Renwick, H. B. Rye, Asa Huycke and H. Allan for the use of their launches.

Two professors at the University of California grappled with a spy emerging from a room where experiments were being made for the War Departemnt. He escaped, but dropped blue prints of important apparatus.

Volunteers for the regular army are hard to get in Boston. "You're as yellow as a box of lemons," declared one recruiter at a big open-air meeting, but the youth of the Hub will apparently wait to be drafted.

Francis E. Millet was arrested in St. Louis after repeatedly calling up munition plants to enquire "if the explosion had occurred." He may hold the key to widespread operations of German plotters through the Middle West.

A government bureau in the Phi[illegible] [illegible] supply a dearth of native food fish in certain waters by importing Chinese carp.

Coal lost informer years by the washing process is being dredged from Pennsylvania rivers at a rate of about 250,000 tons annually.

Miss Helen Benson couldn't induce a Hudson river captain to stop his boat when she opened an important telegram. She jumped overboard in a natty bathing suit, was rescued, and transferred to a boat returning to New York.

Formation of "bantam regiments" into regular organizations to be sent to the front, comprising a personnel of men under the size and weight conventionally required by recruiting boards is urged in a letter to the War Department. The department will not form such regiments, but the 5' 4" regulation will be flexibly applied.

A HIGHLAND RESORT

Many of the returned wounded officers of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces are sojourning and recuperating their strength at the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, 2000 feet above the level of the sea, this delightful spot is just the place to regain health, and the inn offers most comfortable accommodation at reasonable rates. Splendid fishing, good boating, billiards, lovely walks are some of its attractions. An illustrated publication telling all about it sent free on request. C. E. Horning, Grand Trunk Railway, Union Station, Toronto.

THURSDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

The merchants of Peterborough will observe Thursday afternoon as a half holiday during the months of July and August. All citizens interested are asked to get their orders in as early as possible on Thursday Mornings, as the stores will close sharp at noon.

The top of an English inventor's crutch is made of a piece of heavy rubber tubing and the sides are made parallel and inserted into a rocker.

"Russia is fighting blindly," says President Alan R. Hawler, of the Aero Club of America. He recommends to the American Government the building of 20,000 battleplanes and the training of 5,000 American aviators for the Russian front immediately.

TWO WAYS TO ACQUIRE AN ESTATE

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family, and yourself maybe, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

TWO WAYS TO BEQUEATH AN ESTATE

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape at court. Requires court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator—you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of court proceedings—no expense of court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

Which is the SAFER and BETTER Way to Bequeath an Estate?

EIGHT PERSONS KILLED WHEN HUN AIRCRAFT BOMB HARWICH

Enemy Formation Was Broken up by Local Defenses---Raid Lasted Only Few Minutes British Drop Bombs on Bruges and on Ammunition Depots.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 4. — A squadron of twelve to fourteen enemy airplanes attacked Harwich from a northeasterly direction at five minutes past seven this morning. A number of bombs were dropped, and latest reports state that eight persons were killed and twenty injured. Only slight material damage was done.

Fire was opened from the aircraft defences, and the enemy's formation was broken up, although low-lying clouds rendered visibility very bod. The raiders were also engaged by British aircraft from a neighboring station. After dropping their bombs the enemy turned seaward, the whole raid occupying only a few minutes.

BRUGES BOMBED.

LONDON, July 4. — An official statement says that during Monday night and Tuesday morning naval airplanes dropped several tons of bombs on the docks at Bruges and on ammunition depots at Lichtervelde, 16 miles from Bruges. All the machines returned safely.

ARTILLERY STILL ACTIVE.

LONDON, July 4. — The British official statement issued today concerning military operations in northern France says: "There is nothing to report except considerable artillery activity on both sides at numerous points of the front."

Complaints Re Street Car Service

Car No. 16 of the Peterborough Radial Railway is in such bad order that the noise it makes on its daily trips to the west end of Charlotte street grates on the nerves of the residents. It has even woke people up over on Gilmour street.

At the Council meeting last evening Ald. Duncan brought the complaints up before the council and the Hydro Electric Commission will be asked to remedy the trouble at once. Ald. Stratton also complained of the great speed of the cars on Park street in the early morning and in the late evening. This will also be embodied in the letter to the Commission. Mayor Duffus was not in favor of interfering with the regular speed of the car during th day as the officials were trying to give a good service to the residents of that section.

RESERVES JUDGMENT.

Mrs. Sims' Case is Heard in the Police Court.

Police Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment this morning in a charge against Mrs. Sims for a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act. The evidence of Sergt. Reid, P. C. Blade and License Inspector Stewart was taken. A large number of empty "Scotch" bottles that were found on the premises were placed in evidence by the prosecution.

Sergt. Reid stated that he had received a number of complaints about drunken men coming out of the defendant's residence.

RUSSIANS TAKE OVER 18,000 PRISONERS SINCE SUNDAY

Large Number of Guns Also Captured in New Offensive—German Submarine Warfare Showed Decrease Last Week.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PETROGRAD, July 4. — In the fighting Sunday and Monday three hundred officers, eighteen thousand men, twenty-nine guns and thirty-three machine guns were captured by Russians, the war office announces.

A despatch from Berlin says the Russians made further attacks in the region of Brzezany yesterday but were unable to advance.

SUB WARFARE FALLS OFF.

LONDON, July 4.—Von Hindenburg's prediction on his return from the Austrian headquarters that Germany's enemies would be forced to make peace in the not too distant future if the Germans held their ground until the submarine had done its work will receive a prompt and convincing reply in the weekly figures of the sinking of vessels when they are issued tomorrow. The total will be the smallest in several weeks. The conclusion has been reached that it is impossible for the submarines to maintain an average of sinkings which will have an appreciable effect on the overseas communication of the Allies.

The weekly shipping summary issued today shows fifteen British merchant ships of more than sixteen hundred tons were sunk and five vessels of less than that tonnage. Eleven fishing vessel also were lost.

The forecasts that the summary of British shipping losses by submarines and mines covering lest week would show the smallest number of sinkings in many weeks were verified by actual figures. A total of twenty merchant ships were sunk compared with 28 the previous week and 32 for each of two weeks preceding.

It is probable that the heavy falling off in tonnage sent to the bottom is emphasized by the fact that, in contrast wth fifteen vessels of more than sixteen hundred tons now reported sunk, the sinking of twenty-one vessels in this class was announced last week, 27 the week previous, and 22 the week before that. It is not until the report of June 3 is reached that figures as low as those for the current week are encountered. In the height of the destructive sudmarine campaign in April forty large vessels were sunk in one week and thirty-eight in another, and the total of large and small vessels reached 55 in the week ended April 21.

DONE TO DEATH WITH OWN CLUB

NEW YORK POLICEMAN IS KILLED BY FORMER PUGILIST.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, July 4.—Patrolman John Flood was found murdered yesterday afternoon in the apartments of Mrs. James O'Connor, aged 26, who has been living apart from her husband several years. The woman's story is that a former pugilist, who had been annoying her with his attentions, had followed her into her apartments and she called in Flood to eject him, meanwhile going herself into the courtyard. Later she and the janitor went into the apartments and found Flood beaten to death with his own club and an ax.

CITY WILL WAIT ON COMMISSION

CITY TRUST TO BE ASKED TO SAVE ISSUE OF DEBENTURES.

When the bylaw to authorise the signing of an agreement in regard to the purchase of the motor truck for the Fire Department came up for consideration at the council meeting last night Mayor Duffus asked if it were not possible to complete the purchase wthout the issue for debentures. He understood that the City Trust had a considerable amount of surplus funds which they might be induced to hand over to the council for this purpose, and this would permit the purchase of the pumper, for which the manufacturers asked. He understood that the Commision would meet on Thursday, and suggested a small committee to wait on them.

This idea met with general approval and the committee reported progress on the bylaw.

Ald. Stratton and the Mayor will wait on the Commissioners.

BOY BROKE HIS ARM.

While Playing Ball on Central School Grounds.

While playing ball at the Central School the young son of Mr. Alex. Irwin, 352 Water street, fell over a log and sustained an ugly fracture of the arm. The doctor's bill is $31 for setting the fracture and the hospital expenses were $11. The father asks assistance from the Board of Education to settle these accounts. The boy is one of the most promising pupils in school and the family has had a hard time of it during the past few months on account of the illness of the father.

The Board of Education took the matter up last night. It is a new proposition and it was finally decided to refer the question to the Property Committee.

PLEADS "NOT GUILTY."

Dr. Fredericks Charged with Breach of Dentistry Act.

Dr. Fredericks was charged before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning with a breach of the Dental Act. The specific complaint was that "On the 28th of June he did falsely represent or use the title, to wit, Dr. Fredericks, representing that he is a graduate of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario, contrary to the Dentistry Act."

The defendant entered a plea of "Not guilty," and an adjournment was asked and granted until next Monday morning.

COALITION IS YET POSSIBLE AT CAPITAL

Union Government May Be Formed By Premier This Week.

LABOR WILL BE INCLUDED

Liberals Who Favor the Draft Will Also Be Taken Into the New Cabinet.

OTTAWA, July 4. — Union Government will, it is reported, be accomplished this week or not at all. It is believed the Prime Minister's desire is to bring into the Government representatives of the conscriptionist element in the Conservative and Liberal parties and among the grain growers and organized labor.

Representatives from the Liberal party, if union government is accomplished, will be both from the present members of the party in the Commons and from among leading Liberals throughout Canada.

The first vote on conscription—that on the Barrette amendment calling for the six months' hoist—will not come in till late Thursday night. This will be followed by a division on the referendum measure, and if there is no further discusion the ouse will divide on the second reading. The bill will immediately be taken up in committee, and will have precedence over all other legislation until sanctioned by the Commons.

423,858 MEN ARE NOW UNDER ARMS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA July 4. — Up to July 1 the total enrolment in Canada for overseas was 423,858. For the last two weeks of June the total enrolment was 2,258, as against 3,392 in the preceding fortnight. By districts the enrolments were: Toronto 620; Ottawa-Kingston, 452; British Columbia, 298; Manitoba, 264; London, 222; Montreal, 197; Maritime Provinces, 157; Saskatchewan, 76; Alberta, 51; Quebec, 20.

OFFERED TO PERPETUATE NAME OF ALD. McINTYRE

Ald. Smith Would Convert Babb's Lane Into a Monument for the Representative From the North Ward.

Ever since the suggestion was made to change the name of Babb's Lane to a street Ald. Fcintyre has been a strong supporter of retaining he name "Babb."

Last night at the Council meeting a bylaw was introduced to sanction the changing of the name from Babb's Lane to Babb Street. The first reading was passed, and when in committee of the whole on the second reading Ald. Dobbin thought that a more gentle sounding name than Babb Street should be given it. He suggested Bradburn Street, and on a four to five division this change was made in committee.

When the bylaw was called for the third reading the alderman from the North Ward was still determined to fight for Babb Street, and he raised a point of order that changing the name of a street required a two-thirds vote of all the council and City Solicitor Solicitor Gordon stated that this was correct.

Fayor Duffus ruled the point well taken and declared the bylaw lost.

Later on Ald. Smith asked that the bylaw be reconsidered, and then moved that Babb's Lane be called McIntyre Street. This fell in with Ald. Stratton's idea, but again the point of order was raised and the motion was lost.

It will remain Babb's Lane until a full meeting of the council.

The vote on changing the name to Bradburn was: For Bradburn St: Ald. Dobbin, Stratton, Duncan, Weir, Smith. Against: Ald. Saunders, Langford, McIntyre and the Mayor.

OTTAWA REFERS TO NEW INCOME TAX IN THE UNITED STATES.

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, July 4.—The Ottawa Journal (Con.) this morning speaking of the conscription of wealth says editorially: "The United States War Revenue Bill reported by the Senate yesterday proposes to raise five hundred millions by a tax on incomes. The Journal hopes that this item has not escaped the attention of Sir Thomas White and that it will result in hastening the fulfilment of his promise to introduce an incom tax in Canada.

SHIPYARD MEN OUT ON STRIKE

OTHERS REFUSE TO QUIT UNTIL GOV'T WORK IS FINISHED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, July 4.—Twenty-five hundred shipyard workers are on strike for higher wages and labor leaders predict the number will increase unless the employers grant the demands. Many of the twelve thousand men employed in the shipbuilding plants decline to join the strikers announcing they will finish all Government work despite the orders of union leaders.

FATHER OF NOTABLES IS DEAD IN ENGLAND

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, July 4.—Colonel William Cornwallis West, a rich land proprietor, died today aged eighty-two. He was the husband of the mixed up in an army scandal and noted Mrs. Cornwallis West, recently father of the Duchess of Westminster and Princess Henry of Pless.

Powerful Attack Directed Along Extensive Front Meets With no Result But Heavy Losses to Enemy---Repulse Was Complete ---Artillery Still Active.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, July 4.—Yesterday the Germans undertook a powerful offensive action which was prolonged all night against all our positions north of Jouy as far as to the east of the Californie Plateau. On this long front they made violent attacks repeatedly with large numbers of their special assaulting troops. Their efforts were directed principally east of the Froidmont farm west and southwest of Cerny, north of Ailles and also against the Californie Plateau.

The repulse of the enemy was complete and his losses were very heavy especially in the region of Cerny and on the Californie Plateau. His main assaults were almost entirely routed by our fire. At certain points where the Germans were able to gain a footing at the first shock, victorious counter attacks drove them back and they were not able to hold a single metre of our positions.

Surprise attacks against our small posts in the sectors of Sapigneul and Vauquois were repulsed. Artillery was very active in the region of Hill 304 (Verdun front).

BYLAW FOR CIVIC COAL YARD BEFORE COUNCIL

Passes Second Reading and is Referred to Railway Board for Approval.

The following bylaws were given the required number of readings and signed and sealed at the council meeting last night:—

Granting $850.00 to the Peterboro Horticultural Society.

Granting $600.00 to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition.

Authorising the borrowing of $10,000 for the completion of the purchase of the Peterboro Light and Power Company.

Authorising the issuing of $280,000 of Debentures for the building of the overhead bridge to Ashburnham and the Hazlitt Street bridge. This bylaw had to be passed last night in order to comply with the law. The council is required to pass a bylaw within six weeks after it has been approved of by a vote of the people.

The amended garbage bylaw was approved of requiring the garbage to be placed ont to the street line.

The bylaw to build cement sidewalks on Walkerfield Avenue, Park Street, Sophia Street, Monaghan Road, Dublin Street, Douro Street and Chamberlain Street under the Local Improvement Act, was passed.

The bylaw authorising the issue of Debentures to the amount of $35,000 for the purpose of a municipal coal yard was given the two necessary readings and will be sent to the Railway Board for approval before it finaly becomes law.

PREDICT SHORT LIFE FOR NEW EMPIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

SHANGHAI, July 4. — Chinese newspapers are practically unanimous in denouncing the restoration of the Mancho dynasty. They predict it will be short lived, saying the whole country will rise against Emperor Hsun Tung and General Chang Hsun.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETED FOR BIG FARMERS CONVENTION

Will Convene at Public Library Hall Saturday Afternoon—Good Speakers Expected.

So many farmers' clubs in this district have replied favorably to the suggestion that the District Convention of the United Farmers of Ontario should be held in Peterborough next Saturday, July 7th, that arrangements for the convention have been completed. Members of the Omemee Farmers' Club are talking of visiting Peterborough in a body, and other clubs from the counties of Durham, Victoria, Peterborough and probably Northumberland and Hastings will be represented. The speakers will include Mr. John Kennedy of the Grain Growers Grain Co., Winnipeg, who is also director of the Home Bank of Canada; Mr. R. H. Helbert, President, and Mr. J. J. Morrison, Secretary of the United Farmers' of Ontario, which now has 10,000 members in Ontario, Mr. A. C. O'Brien, auditor of the United Farmers' Co-operative Co., Limited, a company which has only been organized within the last three years and did a business last year of half a million dollars and which during the first five months of this year has done over half a million dollars worth of business. This statement indicates how rapidly the farmers' movement is taking root in Ontario.

The main object of the convention is to give farmers of this vicinity a chance to become more familiar with the farmers' platform, which was adopted at the last annual convention of the association held in Toronto. The convention will open at two o'clock in the Public Library Hall. It will be open to all the farmers of this vicinity who care to attend.

At noon a luncheon will be served in the Empress Hotel in honor of Mr. John Kennedy, to which some of our leading business men have been invited to attend. In Western Canada the farmers and business interests have formed a joint organization known as the Council of Agriculture and Commerce, which holds frequent sessions and thus helps to keep farming and agricultural interests in closer touch with one another. Mr. Kennedy has been in close touch with these movements and has something of interest to say to our local business men.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1917

THE OUTSIDE PRINT SHOP.

AN ENTERPRISING job printer in an outside city has offered the City Council cut rates for the printing of the voters' list, and as a mark of courtesy, as we take it, his proposition has been referred to the finance committee instead of being merely marked "received" and relegated to the civic archives.

The cheapest job, either in printing or anything else, is not necessarily the most satisfactory. The members of the Peterborough Presbytery are in a position to bear us out in this contention. Last spring an outside firm offered to do their official printing at a saving of $7—or was it $9?—a year, and the members of the Presbytery, with an eye to economy, accepted the terms. The minutes of the spring meeting were, accordingly, printed by an outsider.

A week or more ago the Presbytery was due to meet again in this city. Only a handful of the members turned out. The city ministers knew nothing about the session until it was in progress here. Even the Moderator would have been absent but for the lucky chance that induced another member to call for him on his way to Peterborough.

The reason for this confusion was that a mistake or an omission had occurred in the printing of the official proceedings by the outside firm that had got the work by cutting prices.

A saving of seven or even nine dollars in a year did not mean much to so wealthy a body as the Presbyterian Church in this ditrict. It did, however, mean something to the workingmen in this city and to the prosperity of this community itself. It means something, too, to the outsiders who do the actual work at a lower compensation than that which prevails here.

Peterborough can never grow, it will never become greater in the sense designed by the public-spirited members of the new Association now so active in promoting the welfare of all departments of the city, while any individual or organization is constantly dragging the outside market for something cheap, the quality not being considered so much as the price.

MR. McGRAW A WELCHER.

"MUGGSY" McGRAW, manager of the New York baseball team, slugged an umpire who could not see a play eye to eye with himself and was fined $500 by President Tener of the league. Then Mr. McGraw lost his head again and said to the newspapers certain things concerning the head of the league, which were regarded as lese majeste. For this he was suspended indefinitely.

Then Mr. McGraw had recourse to a policy much in favor among politicians, baseball managers and other magnates, when, after having themselves interviewed by the newspapers, they find that the sulphuric utterances are likely to get them into trouble. He repudiated what the newspapers said, and charged it up to journalistic imagination. For this retraction his penalty was removed.

But the newspaper men refused to be made the goat. They offer to prove that the manager said just what the newspapers reported him as saying, and the case is to be reopened. The chances are that Mr. McGraw will be shown up as a welcher as well as a gentleman of uncertain temper.

The modern newspaper is daily exposed to such dangers as Mr. McGraw has thrust upon the press of the country that records his daily doings. To be safe, no journal should interview a public man on any important question unless in the presence of reliable witnesses or by otherwise safeguarding itself. The man who repudiates an interview outright is no worse than the shifty individual who goes back on his own public utterance because his exact words have not been exactly reproduced, no matter how fairly his meaning has been represented.

THE DOOM OF PARTY POLITICS.

WE AGREE WITH our fair correspondent from Gannon's Narrows, who, in a letter to The Review yesterday, ventured the assertion that party politics in Canada is doomed. The change, or reform, however, is slow, as all earthly improvement usually are. When a member of Parliament opposes his party on any public question, he is hailed by the one side as a hero, and as a bolter, a recalcitrant, by the former allies whom he deserts. He is suspected, if not openly accused, of playing a variation of the old game. Just what he has up his sleeve is the question that arises. When a newspaper betrays a tendency to independence of views, it, too, is included in the same category as the man who shows a disposition to kick himself free from the entangling harness that binds him to the band wagon.

Party politics is certainly doomed, but many a public man will go down in the crash before the system itself is annihilated, a man who will truly make himself a martyr to duty as he sees it.

THE SOLDIER'S WAGES.

THE ORILLIA PACKET refers to the attorney in St. Thomas who recently advocated the conscription of wealth for the purpose of adding to the compensation of Canadian soldiers. The Packet takes vigorous issue with this proposition, saying that it is dangerous as calculated to breed discontent among the men in the trenches, who, The Packet truly says, are better paid than any men in the Allied army and are well cared for by the Government.

There has been for some time an agitation in favor of more pay for the soldiers. This does not necessarily mean that the men actually in the trenches should receive more spending money. So far as heard from, the soldiers themselves have never preferred such a request. The idea in raising the soldier's pay is to provide more generous support for his dependents at home. If he has no one looking to him for assistance, a portion of his pay can be retained in Canada to form a fund which will serve to give him another start in life when he is dicharged.

When the single man who spends two or three years in the service is discharged he finds himself, financially, just where he was when he enlisted. He has to begin life all over again, and has lost the most valuable period of his existence, a sacrifice to his country. The man who returns to his family is in the same position. While he was serving his Empire the industrial world has gone past him.

The soldiers themselves are as well off today, financially, as they were at the beginning of the war, as all their wants are provided. The increase in the cost of living does not affect hem. As much cannot be said for their families at home. The Packet will be ready to admit that the allowance, adequate three years ago, is no longer so. The spectacle of the widow or the mother of a soldier making sacrifices to purchase a mourning garb for her martyred husband or son should bring home the truth to those who set up the claim that the soldier's dependents are amply provided for.

If a man enlists in the British navy from this country he is allowed $1.10 a day, but 85 cents a day is retained out of this to be paid to him in a lump sum when he is discharged. Why could not some such system be applied to the men who fight on land?

The Government appears to have under consideration a plan to increase the allowance to soldiers' families. If this is done, what better method of raising money for the purpose could be devised then by conscripting the wealth of those for whom the soldiers are making the sacrifices? Everyone understands, or should appreciate, the devoted and unselfish patriotism of the defenders of Canada. They are not mercenaries fighting for wages. But if the men themselves suffer, it is hardly necessary to require that their helpless women and children be called upon to bear the burden of privations with them.

Conscription Without Referendum

The problem of conscription has come to Canada in the form of a question as to whether or not we shall send supports to our men who have volunteered and are fighting in France. To that question there can, of course, be only one answer. Few men would make the bald admission to themselves that they are willing to desert the men at the front. But to some the issue may be clouded by the suggestion that conscription for overseas is a new principle, and that a referendum should be taken before enacting it. Even, however, if conscription for overseas were a new principle, which it is not, and even if the referendum were a regular part of the Constitution of Canada, which it is not, the practical and insurmountable objection to a referendum is that it in effect denies the request of the men at the front for help by postponing that help till too late. The people of Great Britain, who are a democratic but practical people, adopted conscription without a referendum. The people of the United States, who are a democratic, but also a practical people, adopted conscription without a referendum. If it was not essential in the case of these two great democratic countries why should it be necessary in Canada? It is in fact far less necessary in Canad because in Canada conscription is not a new principle but a principle which has been embodied in our statute law almost ever since Confederation, and was re-enacted by the Laurier Government in 1904 and 1906. If anyone doubts this let him look at Section 69 of Chapter 41 of the Revised Statutes of Canada and he will find that "the Governor-in-Council may place the militia on active service anywhere in Canada, and also beyond Canada, for the defence thereof, at any time when it appears advisable so to do by reason of emergency."

But even if the principle were not already written down in black and white in our statutes it would not follow that a referendum is necessary or desirable. Every Constitution must be interpreted in the light of common sense. The Constitution was made for the State, and not the State for the Constitution, and a construction which would let the State perish in order to save the Constitution is one that must be rejected by all sane minds. The obligation to preserve the State is antecedent to and is pre-supposed by any Constitution.

Further, the referendum is not only a part of the British Constitution, but is repugnant to the principles on which the British Constitution is founded, namely, the responsibility of ministers to Parliament, and of Parliament to the people. The British Constitution does not contemplate that a Government shall shirk its duty by forcing the public to pass upon a measure to which the Government and Parliament are not committed. The chosen representatives of the people, with their special knowledge, must take responsibility for all measures enacted, leaving it to the public to judge them by their record as a whole.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE WAR

Alertness by day, more intense alertness by night—that is the atmosphere of the Headquarters Signal Office on the war front. Reasonably safe in their dugout twenty feet beneath the ground, the signallers seek constant touch with the front line trenches. Messages have to be flashed to this command and to that, important information must be conveyed to such an officer in charge of an important sector. More important still, messages are coming in over wires from "out there" and all these messages flying back and forth must be carefully docketed and checked. Outside the machine guns may be sending their death-dealing hail of bullets, explosions from the heavier enemy pieces may rock the earth, but the signallers must attend to their business without paying any attention to these disturbances. Wires must constantly be tested lest communication is interrupted, and that might prove disastrous. For that reason there is a constant buzzing and flicking of telegraph signals. To a civilian all these confusing noises might be bewildering but the men of iron nerve who sit at the keys, sending and receiving, attend to their duties with a calmness which might lead one to believe that they were operating a small wire out of some little quiet town along a railroad siding. An acetylene trench lamp is the only means of illuminating the signal headquarters dugout. When that goes out, after some very heavy explosion above, there is inky darkness and a fumbling for matches by all hands until the lamp is relit. Then everything goes along smoothly until the lamp goes out once more, when the same performance is repeated. Its a wierd existance underneath the ground that the signallers lead and it is no place for a man who hasn't his wits about him at all hours of the day and night.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THIS IS THE GLORIOUS Fourth in the United States, and the eagle shrieks as it never did before.

THEN AGAIN, the members of Parliament are paid to stay in their places and endure the agonies of debate.

ISN'T THERE SOME other sin of omission or commission that can be charged up to the Street Railway Company?

* * *

IT MUST HAVE BEEN the big penitentiary at Kingston that brought Kingston its fame as a place where labor is cheap.

* * *

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN says that the judiciary should be kept from the slime of party politics. Yes, and the emoluments that go with it.

* * *

THE MEMBERS of Parliament themselves are evidently weary of the debate on conscription, and in this they have the sympathy of the long-suffering public.

THE BOY WHO DIDN'T PASS.

There's a lump arising in his throat and tears stream down his face;
He wandered from his playmates, for he doesn't want to hear
Their shouts of merry laughter since the world has lost its cheer.
He has sipped the cup of sorrow, he has drained the bitter glass.
And his heart is fairly breaking; he's the boy who didn't pass.

In the apple tree the robin sings a cheery little song,
But he doesn't seem to hear it, showing plainly something's wrong;
Comes his faithful little spaniel for a romp and bit of play,
But the troubled little fellow sternly bids him go away,
And alone he sits in sorrow, with his hair a tangled mass,
And his eyes are red with weeping; he's the boy who didn't pass.

Oh, you who boast a laughing son, and speak of him as bright,
And you who love a little girl who comes to you tonight
With smiling eyes and dancing feet, with honors from her school,
Turn to that lonely boy who thinks he is a fool,
And take him kindly by the hand, the dullest in the class;
He is the one who most needs love—the boy who didn't pass.

HISTORIC EVENTS OF JULY 4th.

This is Uncle Sam's birthday and he is being congratulated on that happy event by all the world, with the exception of a certain stretch in Central Europe. But he is doing very well, thank you, without the good wishes of that region. While July 4th is the most important date in American history, that day has played an important role generally in the march of events. For instance, it was on this date in the year 1754 that Col. George Washington, who had then not yet become the father of his country, suffered his first defeat in war. He was then only twenty-two years old. He surrendered his small army and Fort Necessity on that July morning to the French, who had attacked him with superior numbers. He received all the honors of war, being permitted to ing and drums beating. It was on march from the fort with colors fly- July fourth, 1846, that the independence of California was declared. California was then Mexican territory.

A revolution was started by a party of fourteen Americans who captured Sonoma and declared war against Mexico. They needed a flag and not daring to use that of the United States, set about making one, not out of an old petticoat, as has sometimes been said. Instead they procured a Mexican scarf of unbleached linen, a yard wide and five feet long. Along the bottom they sewed a strip of red flannel and in the left upperhand corner they painted a star with red ink. The middle of the flag was occupied by a grizzly bear, beneath which were the words "California Republic." The temporary government thus set up is known in history as the Bear Flag Republic. The grizzly bear was rather crudely drawn, and the Mexicans said it was a pig, calling the flag the pig flag. On the fourth of July, 1826, Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States and author of the Declaration of Independence, died, at the age of eighty-three, just fifty years after the signing of that historic document. James Monroe also died on the fourth of July, at the age of seventy-three.

Wit and Wisdom

Another on Pat.

An Irishman out of employment applied at some works for a job. To get to the office he was taken up by the lift which left him at the floor on which the office was situated, and then it ascended further.

On Pat's coming out of the offices he went to where he got off the lift, stepped out and fell to the bottom. When he got up again he went to the men that were working in the yard.

"Faith, I have only a half crown left, but I will give it to the first man that will tell me who took that staircase away."

A Contest of Vision.

An Englishman, Irishman and Scotchman once went into a tower to decide who could see the farthest through a telescope.

The Englishman, who looked first, declared he could see the minute hand on the clock four or five miles away.

"I can see the minute hand of the same clock moving," said the Scotchman.

Pat stood in amazemeent listening to his comrades. When he looked through the telescope he was seen to smile.

"Faith," he said, "if I don't see the same clock striking, sure I do."

What He Needed.

Mr. Jones arrived home late the other evening, after dining well but not wisely.

He took up his hair brush, on the back of which was a mirror, in order to see if his face was very flushed. By mistake he held the bristly side toward himself.

"Gracious!" he cried. "No wonder every one stared at me. Don't I want a shave!"

The Reason.

A quack doctor was holding forth his medicines to a rural audience.

"Yes, gentlemen," he said. "I have sold these pills for twenty-five years, and never heard a word of complaint. Now, what does that prove?"

Voice in crowd:

"That dead men tell no tales."

Poor Algernon.

Algernon (after being accepted)—"Have you ever loved before?"

Angelo—"No; I have often admired men—for their strength, courage, beauty, intelligence, or something like that, you know; but with you, Algernon, it's all love—nothing else!"

The Cohens now outnumber the Smiths in New York. The new city directory shows 49½ columns of Cohens and 46½ columns of Smiths, with the Browns third and the Levys fourth.

For reinking typewriter ribbons an inventor has patented a tubular container for ink which is distributed by a roller as a ribbon is passed over it.

With a vaccine against hydrophobia of his invention an Italian scientist has saved about 99 per cent of his human patients and even has cured rabid dogs.

LUNCH BASKETS.

What to Pack In Them and How to Pack Them.

The basket lunch is harder to plan and also to prepare than the lunch at home. To begin with, there are many foods which cannot be included in it either because they are not good cold or because they cannot be conveniently packed or easily carried. This leaves fewer foods to choose from, and so extra care is necessary to prevent sameness. Extra care is needed, too, in the preparation of foods that must be packed in small compass and kept for several hours before being eaten.

Variety in breads, too, is more important at this than at other meals because of the danger of monotony. Wheat bread, whole wheat bread, corn, rye or oatmeal breads; nut, raisin and date breads; beaten biscuit, rolls, crisp baking powder biscuit or soda biscuit and toast, zwieback and crackers may be used in turn to give variety. Rolls hollowed out can be made to hold a large amount of sandwich filling, which is an advantage at times.

In packing the lunch basket put at the bottom the things least likely to crush and wrap the sandwiches, etc., into neat parcels, not all in one. Paper cups, jelly tumblers with covers, which can now be bought in several sizes; bottles with screw tops, such as those in which candy and some other foods are sold, and small jars such as those in which some goods are sold by druggists can all be used for packing jellies, jams and honey as well as the foods mentioned above. When clean and in good condition empty receptacles of this kind can be saved for use in the lunch basket.

1. Sandwiches with sliced tender meat for filling, baked apple, cookies or a few lumps of sugar.
2. Slices of meat loaf or bean loaf, bread and butter sandwiches, stewed fruit, small frosted cake.
3. Crisp rolls hollowed out and filled with chopped meat or fish moistened and seasoned or mixed with salad dressing, orange, apple, a mixture of sliced fruits or berries, cake.
4. Lettuce or celery sandwiches, cup custard, jelly sandwiches.
5. Cottage cheese and chopped green pepper sandwiches or a pot of cream cheese with bread and butter sandwiches, peanut sandwiches, fruit, cake.
6. Hard boiled eggs, crisp baking powder biscuits, celery or radishes, brown sugar or maple sugar sandwiches.
7. Bottle of milk, thin corn bread and butter, dates, apple.
8. Raisin or nut bread with butter, cheese, orange, maple sugar.
9. Baked bean and lettuce sandwiches, apple sauce, sweet chocolate.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: If we are to have conscription of wealth I hope the first money to be conscripted will be that which is being sent to the foreign mission field.

In these trying times every dollar is needed at home to take care of the soldiers whether they be in the trenches or returned and unable to take up their old duties. The so-called heathens in China or India is at least no worse off than some of the families of soldiers right here in Peterborough, people who hear the wolf howl every day at the door. It is our solemn duty to take care of our own first of all. Charity should begin at home but caring for soldiers families is not charity but a solemn obligation. The man who provided not for those of his own household has denied the faith and is worse than an infidel.

BUDD DOBLE'S HORSES MADE MANY RECORDS

For Fifty Years Californian Drove Greatest Harness Speeders, Including Nancy Hanks and Dexter

There was much mourning in 1911 when Budd Doble announced that he had stepped out of the sulky for the last time. The famous driver of light harness horses then resigned as superintendent of the Hemet Stock Farm in Southern California. For over 50 years Budd Doble had been a prominent reinsman, and he undoubtedly ranks as one of the most famous of the old-timers in sulkydom. The remarkable thing about Doble's turf career is the way he stayed in the sulky and held up his end with the younger generation that came along.

Deservedly Popular

It was away back in 1872 that the famous Budd was winning the plaudits of California racing followers. At that time he brought out that wonderful trotting mare, Goldsmith Maid. A series of match races were held at Sacramento and San Francisco, and Doble drove Goldsmith Maid to victories over Lucy and Occident. The mare also defeated Golden Gate, a thoroughbred runner, in a handicap contest in which the runner was to negotiate 13-16 mile while the trotter was going one mile. This string of successes made Doble a hero in California, even in those early days.

Budd, however, achieved even greater prominence, for he broke the world's trotting record time and again. At Buffalo, N.Y., in 1867, he drove Dexter a mile in 2.17¼, which was the fastest ever negotiated up until that time. Then at Boston, in 1874, he drove Goldsmith Maid to her world's mark of 2.14. He topped off the performance with Nancy Hanks in 1892 with a mile in 2.04. This is just a small list of Budd's wonderful rides.

The Old Master

To show that he still retained his old skill and touch on the leather ribbons Doble annexed another world's record at Snotock in 1912 with the three-year-old Wilbur Lou. The colt was driven by Doble, the fastest five heats ever travelled by a three-year-old trotter. It was a great sight to see the veteran outgeneral and outdrive a number of youngsters, and this was almost 50 years after he had hung up his first world's record.

Driving Out of Dumba and Bryan, Boy-Ed and Von Papen—Reporter as Von Bernstorff's Trusted Secretary

Amazing examples of the part played by The Providence Journal in foiling German plots and in bringing the United States into the war were given the Canadian Press Association last week by Mr. John R. Rathom, the Editor of that publication, in several addresses. Following are a few of the more remarkable feats of the staff to whom their chief gave all the credit:

A reporter on The Providence Journal acted for seventeen months as one of the private secretaries of Ambassador von Bernsdorf, the accredited diplomatic representative of the German Empire to the United States, and the evidence of the Ambassador's activities thus exposed by the Journal resulted in his departure from American shores in disgrace. Another staff reporter followed Dr. Heinrich Albert, exchanged suit cases with him and secured the evidence which defeated the plot to involve Ireland in rebellion and ended in the execution of Sir Roger Casement. A sixteen-dollar-a-week stenographer in the office of The Journal outwitted Captain F. von Papen, German naval attache at Washington. How she did so would make the plot of a moving picture scenario.

Wireless Gave them Start

The boys and girls of the paper fearlessly took their lives in their hands for years. "Without them," said John R. Rathom, "we could have done nothing." Yet he himself is a man of remarkable personality, shrewd, courageous and very good-humored. Born in Australia, he was brought up in the United States and is a thorough-going American, a patriot with breadth and sympathy enough to accord full praise to Canada for her sacrifices in the war. [illegible] aim throughout was to bring his fellow-citizens to see that Germany was their natural foe. "God bless Canada," was his simple conclusion.

Mr. Rathom explained that for years before war was thought of The Providence Journal had had a "bug" for wireless telegraphy, and had two stations of its own on the Atlantic coast. When war broke out they conceived the idea of tapping Sayville and Nantucket, and in that way, long before any exposures were made in The Journal, they had accumulated evidence of German complicity in mischief-making in the United States which would amount to a hundred times more than was already published. Then had come the following-up in which the reporters had been invaluable, and the romance of spy-hunting had surpassed all fiction.

Of the Ottawa Parliament Buildings fire, Mr. Rathom said they had no positive information, but three weeks before it took place they had information of a plan to destroy the Parliament Buildings about that time, with two munition plants in Canada. Both Parliament Buildings and the munition plants were damaged by fire or bomb within forty-eight hours of the time of which The Providence had information. "That is all I know of the Ottawa fire," said Mr. Rathom, "but I am content to believe that it could not be charged to carelessness nor lack of ordinary precaution at Ottawa, because we know how difficult it is to circumvent these men."

Horn's "Green Blubber" Brain

Mr. Rathom caused a burst of laughter by describing the brains of every German diplomat as "green blubber." He always made a mistake which nobody with real brains would be guilty of. The speaker gave several instances where the most elaborate plots had fallen through because of this characteristic German stupidity. One of these was the case of Lieut. Werner Horn, the young German officer who had been deputed to blow up the Vanceboro bridge. This man had gone to the trouble of growing a beard, and, disguising himself as a rough, uncouth workman—old clothes, dirty boots, worn-out carpet bag, etc. He, however, gave himself away by riding in the parlor car of the best train running through New England. He was "spotted" at once. Afterwards when asked why he did not travel in a different sort of a train he replied that he was an officer and a gentleman, and that was the way he was accustomed to travel.

Three days after the Du Pont explosion in Delaware, which killed 31 men, Boy-Ed, the German Military Attache at Washington, and Capt. F. Von Papen sat in an hotel and toasted the men who had been successful in bringing about this Du Pont explosion. A Journal reporter at a dictagraph in the next room was able to report the occurrence in full.

Rathom Convinced Wilson

The whole story of how one sole newspaper was enabled so to expose German secret plottings in the United States that it resulted, first, in recall of one official after the other up to Count von Bernstorff, and then proved a great weight in convincing President Wilson of machinations against the State, could never have been told if the enormous initial difficulty of the wireless codes had not been overcome. After five months of war and after nearly 100,000 messages had been stored in the vaults, the Journal was fortunate enough to discover the code to read some of these messages. Armed with facts thus revealed by its four operators, the Journal's reporters were sent out to take jobs in the German Consulates and other places named in the messages.

"The material we got in five months would keep us going for 25 years," said Mr. Rathom. "We have not touched 50 per cent. of it. We have not printed 10 per cent. of it. We would have gone on doing so, but the result we wanted came about."

"We were working under a cloud for the first nine months of our exposures," said Mr. Rathom. "Nobody would believe us. The authorities took no action. Finally I went to the President and showed him the messages that had been going to Berlin via Sayville about 'Little Emily.' 'Little Emily' was part of a secret code. These messages sometimes told of her death, sometimes of details of her funeral, but the strange part of it was that Emily died as many as nine times in one week. The President was convinced, and the Government then put a large staff at work to decipher the codes, and handle the information that had been received by the Journal from the wireless messages going to Germany."

Making Fool of Bernstorff

Most daring of all the adventures of the Journal staff during the subsequent "exposure" period was the part played by the reporter who got a position as a private secretary to Count von Bernstorff. For seventeen months he maintained his disguise and played his double part, keeping the Journal informed of all that the German Ambassador was doing. The Journal kept this information to itself until it was quite ready. Then Bernstorff was completely discredited. When he was recalled, his private secretary went with him as far as the boat.

"Hurry up," said Von Bernstorff who did not in the least suspect he had been fooled; "you will lose your boat."

"I think I'll be safer on this side," smiled the reporter, and this is how Von Bernstorff learned the truth.

Overheard Bryan and Dumba

The pacifist sentiments of William Jennings Bryan, American Secretary of State at the opening of the war, were rudely dealt with by the Journal. It happened that a Journal man overheard the conversation between Bryan and Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, in which Bryan agreed to influence President Wilson to suggest that United States citizens refrain from sailing on ships carrying munitions, in return for Germany's putting an end to submarine warfare.

"Don't pay any attention to the President, he means nothing," Bryan was heard to say, referring to President Wilson's notes. The Journal printed the terms of this agreement and the remarks of Bryan in full, with the result that Bryan, unable to deny the story, was eliminated from the Cabinet.

In the case of the attempt to involve the United States in a war with Mexico, it was a Journal man that engaged the room where Huerta and the German agents discussed the terms. "Of course being our man he engaged suitable rooms, and we were enabled to hear every word and send the information to the Department of State."

The "Pierced Hearts" Trick

The story of the stenographer, a young girl who was employed by Dr. Heinrich Albert, the Austrian Consul-general in New York, was perhaps the most romantic of all. This girl had no previous experience of plotting and counter-plotting, or city experience whatever, having come to the Journal from the country some 20 miles outside of Providence. She simply used her native New England wit. A certain package of papers was to be sent to Germany through England on a Swedish ship, according to information that the Journal had secured. These papers told who were the agents of the Teutonic Governments in the United States, what their services had been to date, how much they had been paid, and how much was still to be paid. The case was to be shipped with other cases of similar outside appearance containing harmless freight.

The girl's task was to identify the particular box so that it could be picked out when it got to England. She saw the box in Albert's office and kept her eye on it. So did von Papen, the German naval attache at Washington, who was hanging around Albert's office for the purpose. The girl, during her watch sat down on the precious box and began to eat her lunch. The unsuspecting von Papen struck up a flirtation and invited himself to share the sandwiches. Before long he was talking sentimental twaddle, and the girl encouraged him by taking a red lead pencil out of her hair, and coyly drawing two big red hearts on the top of the packing case. Von Papen himself drew the arrow through them.

The box duly arrived at Falmouth on the Oscar II., to be examined. Neutral American cargoes were allowed to go through if they did not contain contraband. The authorities had been warned about the box with the two hearts and the arrow, and had no difficulty in picking it out of hundreds of others.

"And yet there are no brilliant people but the Germans," smiled Rathom.

The Changed Suit Case

An assignment to a Providence Journal reported involved the shadowing of Dr. Heinrich Albert himself on one occasion. He was seen to go into a leather goods store and buy a suit case. He left it for his initials to be attached. The reporter then bought a similar suit case, and left it to see whether he liked the initials on the one that had just been ordered. Next day he called, saw Albert's initials, took away the suit case and had initials put on by another dealer. Later riding in an elevated train a scuffle occurred at the front end of the car, and, Dr. Albert stood up to see the fun, while his suit case was exchanged by the reporter in the seat behind. The scuffle in the front of the car was caused by Mr. Rathom's men, too. Heinrich went on with the wrong suit case and discovered his loss two days later. Then he reported to the police that his suit case had been exchanged. However, it was too late. What was found in that suit case, published in the Providence Journal, sent Baron Konstatin T. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, home to Austria within a week.

Dr. Gartshare, Austrian Consul-General at San Francisco, was ordered to blow up the torpedo plants at Seattle. He refused. "When I heard that I thought it was so unusual that I looked him up," said Mr. Rathom. Gartshare proved to be disgusted with his job and with his Government and its methods, and gave information to the Journal resulting in the securing of an immense amount of material. He was denounced by the Austrian Embassy and placed at the head of the American Secret Service operations for four months.

The New York Ships

The discovery that the German ships in New York harbor had been damaged was made by the Journal, but the authorities would not believe it, as their own man had reported that they were all right. It was not until Mr. Rathom had shown the officials samples of the carborundum sand that had been poured into the engines that they would believe. Then the officials admitted that their inspector had only been above decks. That the ships were not blown up as planned was due to the watchfulness of 60 or 70 Italian workmen, working around the wharves in various disguises, employed by the Journal.

"We always found that if we looked enough into any German scheme we should find a hole big enough in it for a school boy to crawl through," commented Mr. Rathom. Then he traced the disclosures throughout 1916 and down to the present year which had brought success to the Journal's aims.

Partial List of Triumphs

It was in April, 1915, that The Providence Journal exposed the German Embassy plot to discredit the Washington Administration, and these disclosures focused the eyes of the world on that paper. In the early months of 1915 powder plants in Illinois and New Jersey were blown up with loss of life, and merchant ships were ruthlessly destroyed, but it was not until July that the real carnival began. It was then, too, The Providence Journal exposed the Sayville wireless frauds, the result being that the United States Government seized the station.

The celebrated conversations between ex-Secretary of State Bryan and Ambassador Dumba were next published, causing a profound sensation throughout the world, and readers will remember that a bomb was next placed in the east wing of the Capitol at Washington and an attempt was made on the life of J. P. Morgan, both by the same person, Frank Holt, a German sympathizer, who afterwards committed suicide.

Lusitania Plot and After

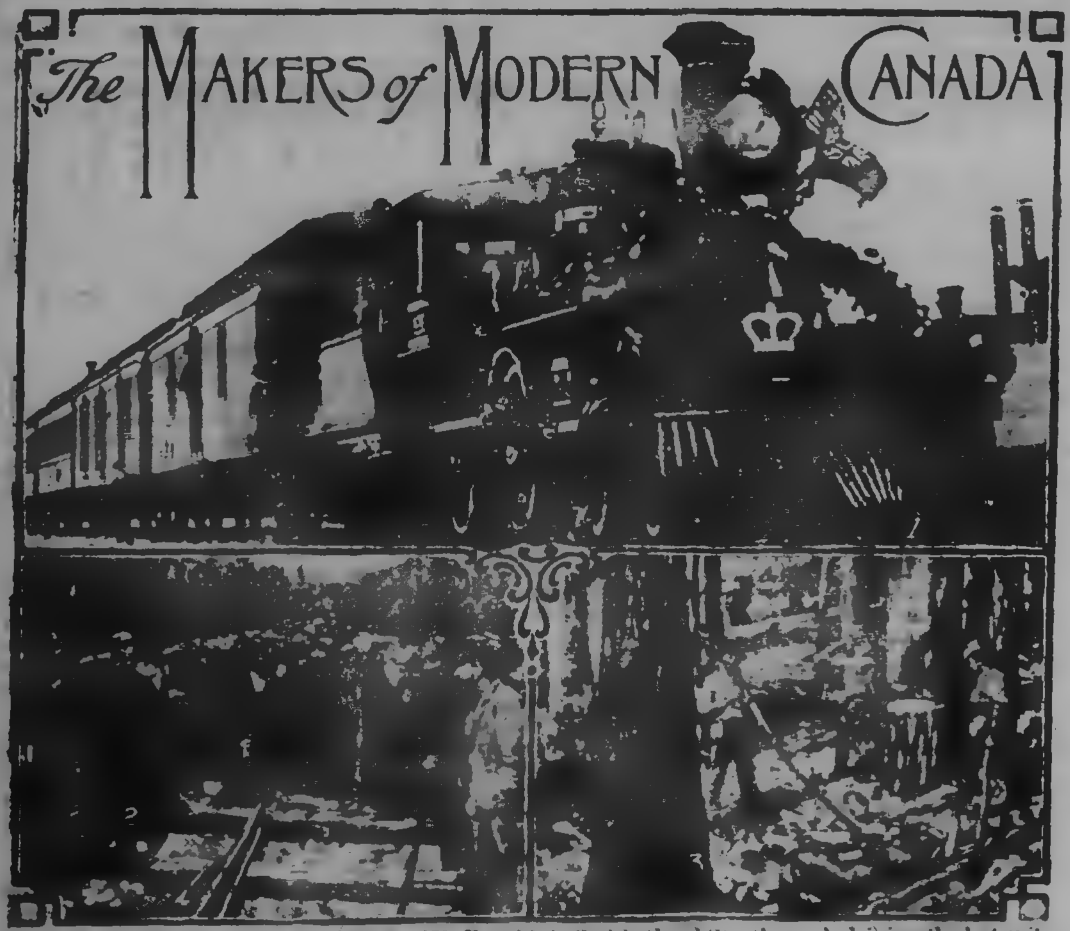
The story of the Embassy's part in the Lusitania sailing was first told by Mr. Rathom's paper. The attempt to bribe Samuel Gompers, who twice refused enormous fortunes if he would betray labor and help Germany to foment strife in industrial plants, was disclosed in The Journal. Boy-Ed's and von Papen's activities were published, and the publicity forced the Government to act, and they were declared objectionable persons.

It was The Journal which first told of the fact in September, 1916, that England had bagged 80 per cent. of the German submarines, a fact afterwards admitted by the British Government. The plot to blow up the Welland Canal, the intrigues of the Germans in using the Red Cross as a cloak for spy work, the bomb plots, the activities in Mexico and the help of Huerta were all exposed first by The Providence Journal. The year 1916 was in the main a repetition of the atrocities of the year previous. But Boy-Ed and von Papen and von Igel and Deruberg and von der Goltz and Dumba were sent back to Germany and Austria, while dozens of others, of lesser degree, are languishing in United State prisons.

The story of 1917 has been full of great honor for The Providence Journal and Mr. Rathom. Munition plots multiplied, but a pitiless publicity made the going extremely hazardous. The end was in sight in February, when Germany announced her new submarine policy. As he sailed Bernstorff termed The Providence Journal "villainous liar and creature of England." Germany's activities in Mexico were exposed, the trouble-making of Mr. Bryan was shown to be a part of a plan to keep the United States in a state of inaction, the story of the Mexico-Japan deal proposed by the German Foreign Secretary, Zimmermann, were all first published in The Journal, as was the story of the plot to destroy the ships interned in New York harbor.

The Boston Transcript wrote editorially: "The Providence Journal is entitled to the thanks of the country for the remarkable success of the inquiries into the German spy system and the German propaganda in this country which it has conducted. The Journal's discoveries have been the basis for about three-quarters—possibly a larger proportion than that—of the Government's proceedings against the German plotters. It was upon the Journal's information that most of the judicial proceedings were taken. The Journal has a good many more sharp arrows in its quiver. It has taught the metropolitan press a lesson in enterprise. The Journal is now known in Downing street and Wilhelmstrasse as well as on Westminster street; and it has performed a work that will be remembered in the history of the war."

The MAKERS of MODERN CANADA



(1) First C. P. R. train to Vancouver. (2) Donald A. Smith (Lord Strathcona) driving the last spike of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Craigellachie, B.C., Nov. 7, 1885. (3) Before confederation.

THE Dominion of Canada is celebrating the bi-centenary of Confederation. But what is Confederation? Within the last half century Canada has been confederated at least twice: once when her scattered provinces were united politically to form the Dominion, and again when the builders of the first transcontinental flung a line of steel across the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

What was Canada before Confederation? It was a land of vast distances, more or less unmapped, and practically unexplored west of the Great Lakes or east of the Rocky Mountains. When the late Sir Charles Tupper was High Commissioner of Canada in London, just a quarter of a century ago, he delivered an address at St. Petersburg, before the International Railway Congress. He described how Canada, prior to 1867, consisted of three groups of provinces: the Maritime Provinces, Upper and Lower Canada, and British Columbia. These three groups were isolated physically as well as politically.

The Maritime Provinces were separated from "Canada" by a wilderness of forest and flood hundreds of miles wide. Canada, in the west, was separated from British Columbia by a thousand miles of forest, a thousand miles of prairie land and a chain of mountains five hundred miles wide. Which was the real confederation the one that brought the representatives of the three groups of provinces together in Parliament, or the three thousand miles of steel rails which alone made the political union worth having?

Confederation was first, last and all the time a problem of transportation. British Columbia agreed to come in if it got a railway from the western limit of "Canada" to the Pacific Coast and it got the Canadian Pacific.

The political confederation of Canada began in 1841, when Ontario and Quebec, which had been separated in 1791, were re-united. On July 1st, 1867, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were united as the Dominion of Canada the first Federal union in the British Empire. The Prairie Provinces were bought for £300,000 in 1870. British Columbia joined the union in 1871, and Prince Edward Island in 1873, and the inclusion of Newfoundland is more probable every day.

Who made modern Canada by making the confederation of 1867? Certainly, no one man. Sir John Macdonald has been styled the Maker of Canada, but, on the other hand, Sir Charles Tupper declared a few years before his death that without Sir George Etienne Cartier there would have been no confederation. At the first interprovincial conference, held at Quebec in 1864, there were thirty three representatives present, and these have been termed the Fathers of Confederation.

But that was not by any means the origin of the project. As far back as 1690, Sir Francis Nicholson proposed a confederation of all the Anglo American colonies, and the idea was revived every few years subsequently. To the Hon. A. T. Galt belongs the honor of having first advocated it in Parliament. That was in 1858, and his speech made a tremendous impression all over the country. Confederation was formally adopted as part of the programme of the Cartier Government in 1858, in the following terms: [illegible] of the North [illegible] will be [illegible] considered and communications with the Home Government and the Lower Provinces will be entered into on this subject."

Confederation owes its political success to the men at Ottawa, its economic success is due to the railway men of Montreal, Mountstephen, Strathcona, R. B. Angus, Van Horne, Shaughnessy, who by linking the steel rails across the continent, linked up the trade between the east and west and annihilated distance. Quebec to-day sells 70% of its manufactures, with the exception of army supplies, west of Winnipeg, and the western prairies provide the wheat for the bread of the east. Moreover, the railway itself has new feeders in its fleets on both Atlantic and Pacific, which link China and Japan through Canada with the ports of Great Britain. Canada is now on the highway of traffic round the world, instead of being merely an outpost of the Empire.

Canada: "Here's your Empire route a right of way whose value to compute will tax the prophets."

Britannia: "Links me closer still with all my wondering sons who came and till the world's wild wastes, and throng each paradise. In tropic seas or under southern skies, see, Halifax, Vancouver, Sydney, set fresh steps upon a path whose promise yet even ourselves have hardly measured. Lo, far China brought within a moon or so of tea-devouring London. Here it lies, the way for men and mails and merchandise striking athwart your sea dividing strip of land: one iron road [illegible] well thought well done."—(From Punch, Oct. 15, 1881.)

What Do These Words Mean to You?

They mean greater safety in the Home. Surely something that interests you keenly!

Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation, "No fire left when blown out," on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The splints or sticks of all matches contained in these boxes have been impregnated or soaked in a chemical solution which renders them dead wood once they have been lighted and blown out, and the danger of FIRE from glowing matches is hereby reduced to the greatest minimum.

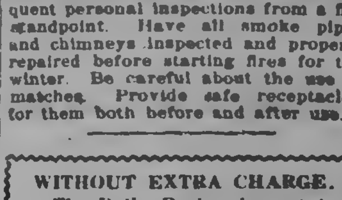
Improvised Typewriter Desk



Travelers and others who carry typewriters on their journeys frequently find it inconvenient to use the tables provided because they are usually too high for typewriters. A method of overcoming this difficulty is to withdraw the drawer from the table and invert it in the slide shown. The typewriter may then be placed upon the bottom of the drawer and will be considerably lower than if placed upon the table top.—From Popular Mechanics.

Prevention of Fires

Keep waste paper, packing material and rubbish cleaned up. Make frequent personal inspections from a fire standpoint. Have all smoke pipes and chimneys inspected and properly repaired before starting fires for the winter. Be careful about the use of matches. Provide safe receptacles for them both before and after use.

TWO WAYS TO ACQUIRE AN ESTATE

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family, and yourself maybe, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

TWO WAYS TO BEQUEATH AN ESTATE

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape at court. Requires court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator—you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of court proceedings—no expense of court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

Which is the SAFER and BETTER Way to Bequeath an Estate?

POPULAR WARSAW TEACHER IS REMEMBERED BY PUPILS

Of Both Sunday and Public School Upon the Occasion of Her Departure.

Miss Clara M. Dewart, who has been teacher in the Warsaw junior room for the past six years, and who has resigned her position, received a complete but very pleasant surprise when, at the close of school, her little pupils presented her with a beautiful parasol and the following address:

Dear Tteacher:

We, the boys and girls of your room, wish to show you in a small way our appreciation of your work amongst us.

As our teacher, you have taken such an interest in each one of us, and have inspired us to do our best work, and we know that when you have been firm with us it has been for our good.

We are so sorry that you are leaving us, and we wish you to know that we shall always have happy recollections of our relations together as teacher and pupils.

Wishing you every success in your future life, we beg you to accept this small token, from

Your Pupils.

The address was read by Florence Clare and the presentation made by Marion Payne.

Miss Dewart felt very lonesome in leaving her pupils and replied briefly, thanking them for their useful gift and beautiful words of love.

Sunday School Also.

The boys and girls of the intermediate class of the Warsaw Methodist Sunday school gave their teacher, Miss Clara M. Dewart, a very great surprise when, during the closing exercises of the school last Sunday morning, Miss Dewart was called to the front and presented with a handsome leather bag beautifully lined with pretty flowered poplin and fitted with coin purse and mirror, also the following address, which was read by Alice Wasson, the presentation being made by Birdie Greystock:

Dear Miss Dewart:

We, the members of your Sunday school class, learning of your departure from amongst us, could not consent to part with you without leaving in your hands some memorial, however trifling, of deep and abiding gratitude for your unceasing efforts to benefit us.

We appreciate the many activities that you have been connected with. Yours has been a leading part. You have acted with a public spirit, in an unselfish manner, making sacrifice of time and ability for the benefit of others. We assure you that your advice and counsel have not been sown on barren ground but on receptive minds.

We ask you to accept this small token of esteem and good will, and when in the future days you look upon this memento, let it be a pleasant token of the deepest love and reverence of our young hearts.

Signed on behalf of the class,
Alice Wasson,
Birdie Greystock.

Miss Dewart was much touched by the token of love and thoughtfulness of her pupils, and expressed the pleasure that had been hers in connection with the class during the years she had been with them. She carries with her kind recollections of each pupil and of their loyalty and faithfulness from Sunday to Sunday.

HOW UNITED STATES WILL CONSCRIPT THE WEALTH

Heavy Tax to be Levied on War Profits, Incomes, Drink and Tobacco.

WASHINGTON, July 4. — War wealth, incomes, drinks and smokes will pay the bulk of the first great war tax.

Of the $1,670,000,000 to be raised under the revenue bill drawn by the Senate finance committee, $1,277,800,000 will be derived as follows:

From incomes taxes (incomes as low as $1000 for single persons and $2000 for married, are hit), $532,700,000; from excess profits, $523,000,000; from distilled and rectified spirits, $111,000,000; from fermented liquors and wines, $44,500,000; from soft drinks, $10,000,000, and from tobacco products, excepting the poor man's stogie, $56,500,000.

This schedule of taxes represents, authors of the bill insist, a heavier burden on the rich and a lesser weight upon the poor than the committee originally contemplated.

Tea, Coffee and Sugar Hit.

It will cost more to buy sporting goods; more to own yachts; the girls will suffer from a tax on cosmetics and perfumes; patent medicines will cost more, and cameras, too.

But the tax that will hit the average household will be that on tea, coffee, cocoa and sugar. Some of these levies are: Coffee, 2 cents per pound; tea, 5 cents per pound; crude cocoa, 3 cents per pound; sugar, ½ cent per pound; saccharine, $2.50 per pound; glucose, ¼ cent a pound; grape sugar, molasses and can syrup, from 1 to 2 cents a gallon.

Extra theatre taxes, amounting to one cent for each ten cents' worth of tickets are imposed, except in the case of movies, where there is no levy except on shows costing over 25 cents.

Beer and Soft Drinks.

Beer is hit $1.25 per 31-gallon barrel, in addition to its present tax, and still wines are taxed double their present figure. Sweet wines must pay an additional tax of $1.10 per proof gallon the grape brandy or wine spirits used in fortifying them.

Syrups and extracts used in soft drinks and soda will be taxed, on a scale ranging from 8 cents a gallon for those selling at no more than $1 a gallon, to 12 cents a gallon for those selling above $4 a gallon. A tax of 1 cent a gallon is imposed on all unfermented grape juice, ginger ale, pop, and kindred thirst quenchers.

It will cost 1 cent for each 25 cents or less paid to ship packages by express or parcel post.

Second-class postal rates are increased ¼ cent a pound, and net incomes of all newspapers are taxed 5 per cent, when exceeding $4,000.

NOVEL PLOWING MATCH WILL BE HELD THIS YEAR

Farmers to Have Chance to Stay at Home and Compete on Their Own Farms ---Conditions Explained.

At a meeting of the directors of the County of Peterborough Plowmen's Association held on Saturday afternoon in the Court House, arrangements were completed for the holding of a new kind of plowing match, which it is proposed to hold this year. Owing to the fact that many farmers do not find it convenient to attend and take part in the county match each year, and because also a considerable number of plowmen, who might like to compete, feel backward about doing so for fear they might not make a good enough showing, the proposal was made some time ago that prizes might be offered for the best plowing done on the farms of competitors.

In all, $50 will be offered in prizes, divided as follows: $15, $12, $10, $8 and $5. Competitors will have to plow five acres of land or upward on their own farm and have the work completed by October 15th next, and ready for the land to be inspected by the judges. Entries must be sent to the secretary of the County Plowmen's Association, Charles Brown, R. R. , Peterborough, by Sept. 15. The judges will be Messrs. Joshua Smithson and Wm. Cleghorn, Otonabee. District Representative McRae is to take the judges around in his automobile to visit the farms of the competitors.

Several of the local township councils have been asked to contribute $5 each towards the expenses of this competition, and so far the townships of Belmont, Asphodel, Ennismore and Smith have responded. It is expected that the rest will do so shortly. It is hoped there will be a number of entries for this competition. The directors feel that at least fifteen entries should be received before they will be justified in holding the competition.

County Match.

It is proposed to hold the county match this year in Smith township if possible. Messrs. J. H. Garbutt, H. Weber, John Gillespie, Wm. Cleghorn and Joshua Smithson were appointed a committee to select a field. Messrs. H. B. Cowan and Charles Moore were appointed a finance committee.

MR. GILLESPIE SWEEPS CHEESE BOARD AT 21 5-16

This is Advance of More Than Five Cents Over Price a Year Ago---To Color or Not to Color.

At the meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board this morning there were present the following buyers: Messrs. Gillespie, Morton, Thompson, Kerr and D. Riddel.

Before the cheese was boarded Mr. Gillespie moved that the agricultural exhibitions of East and West Peterborough be voted a grant of $10.00 as in former years. This was seconded and carried.

Mr. Riddel drew the attention of the salesmen to the saving of quite a sum of money by making white cheese. The commission were quite willing to accept the uncolored product without preference. He had been informed that it cost 11c per cheese to color it.

Mr. Gillespie thought that as Peterborough had a reputation for colored cheese the world over it would be a mistake to change now as most of the factories had their coloring in.

Mr. Ward thought that it was a mistake to color the cheese. It was money thrown away and cost about 1-8 cents per lb. to color it.

Mr. Gillespie did some figuring and stated that it only cost 1-32c per lb. to color a cheese.

The matter was dropped.

Mr. Gillespie drew the attention of the salesmen to the necessity of stencilling the weight of the cheese on the box. It had been usually marked in pencil and had to be stencilled at Montreal.

President Duff then called on the salesmen to board the cheese.

The cheese boarded from the different factories was as follows:

Keene	95
Warminster	135
Shearer	150
Selwyn	170
Villiers	100
Missing Link	80
Westwood	230
Oakdale	110
Warsaw	190
Lakefield	105
Pine Grove	70
Young's Point	160
Myrtle	190
Ormonde	175
Lang	150
North Dummer	90
Stony Lake	38
East Emily	140
Mt. Pleasant	60
Norwood	229
Killarney	112
Fleetwood	135
Apsley	80
Total	2994

Last year at the same board in July there were 2869 cheese on sale and the price realize was 15 7-8c.

The bidding started at Mr. Thompson offering 21c, Mr. Gillespie 21 1-16, Mr. Thompson 21 1-18, Mr. Gillespie 21 3-16, Mr. Morton 21 1-4, and Mr. Gillespie 21 5-16.

This was the highest bid and Mr. Gillespie took the whole board.

The Board adjourned for two weeks.

40 Year Debentures for Overhead Bridge

FINANCE COMMITTEE HAS BEEN EMPOWERED TO DEAL WITH MATTER.

There were many matters discussed by the City Council after the regular routine of work had been completed.

Mr. F. D. Kerr was present on behalf of D. McMillan, one of the snow ploughing contractors, who lost a horse by electrocution last April. Mr. Kerr asked that the council deal sympathetically with Mr. McMillan, and even if they were not legally liable, endeavor to assist him. The matter was sent to the Legal Committee. Some of the aldermen though it was a matter for the Utilities Commission.

Ald. Stratton asked that the Finance Committee have referred to it the mater of applying for special legislation to allow the term of the Bridges Debentures to extend over a period of 40 years. As it stands now the city would have to raise $24,804.90 each year for 20 years to pay the interest and sinking fund. The bridge would last longer than 40 years.—The suggestion was adopted.

Ald. Saunders, Chairman of the Property Committee, was instructed to arrange for icing the drinking fountains.

Ald. Dobbin was of the opinion that expert advice should be secured by the city to assist the city engineer in finally preparing the plans for the construction of the overhead bridge. He questioned wheather concrete was the best or not.

As the bridge will not be built this year the matter was left over.

Ald. Saunders, as chairman of the Property Committee had his attention drawn to the necessity of looking over the band instruments and rifles owned by the city. Mayor Duffus thought that all the rifles should be in the hands of the city and sold to the best advantage possible. A good price could be got for them at present. Ald. Saunders will attend to both these matters.

The City Treasurer was instructed to issue monthly checks for the payment of the dump ground rental.

Mayor Duffus found fault with the engineer's department last night for not taking the dust off the streets before they were oiled. He referred to the condition of Romaine street.

It was pointed out by Chairman Weir of the Board of Works that the scarcity of labor made this almost impossible. The streets are brushed with the rotary brush before being oiled, but the weather conditions were most to blame.

Ald. Duncan was informed that Thomas, King and certain parts of Park streets would be oiled shortly.

School Attendance for Month of June

During the month of June there were 228 pupils enrolled at the Collegiate Institute and the daily average attendance was 225.

The attendance at the public schools were as follows:

	Enrolled	Daily Average
Central	435	416
Queen Alexandra	282	250
Queen Mary	428	401
King George	256	235
South Central	382	357
Kindergarten	250	216

COUNCIL'S USUAL ROUTINE

List of Small Matters Disposed of at Regular Meeting of City's Lawmakers.

The City Council met in regular session last night, and the following communications were read and dealt with:—

From Street Commissioner Harry Evans asking that his fourteen years of service be recognized by an increase in salary.—The Board of Works will bring in a recommendation.

From the City Engineer and City Solicitor Gordon reporting on the encroachment of the E. Green estate on the Government reserve north of Charlotte Street. — The Board of Works were given power to act in this matter.

From the City Engineer recommending that Gemmel and Co. be given a permit to re-construct their building on Charlotte Street with certain changes in their plans regarding the size of the walls.—This was adopted.

From Isaac Fife and a number of the residents of Stewart Street north or McDonnell Street asking that some action be taken to remedy the dusty condition of the street.—This was sent to the Board of Works.

From a person in Scranton, Pa., regarding the chances of the city getting a coal supply. This was ordered placed on the Fire, Water and Light file.

From the Utilities Commission promising that the Water Department would repair Smith Street at an early date.

From Geo. W. Powell asking a refund of his butcher's license.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Cannot Change Track

From the Peterboro Hydraulic Power Co., stating that it was impossible for them to make any change in the position of their spur line at the end of Douro Street at Driscoll Terrace. They claim that they are not making any change from the old right of way.—Board of Works will consider this.

Ald. Smith pointed out that the people were making a great kick regarding this track. He would not stand for it himself.

From the British Whig of Kingston offering to print the Voters' Lists at a reduced rate.—This was handed over to the Finance Committee for consideration.

From the City Clerks of Ottawa, Fort William, Toronto Hamilton and other places acknowledging receipt of the city resolution regarding grants by the Government to the G. T. R. and the C. N. R.

From the Workmen's Compensation Board giving information as to the city's liability for doctors' bills. —This was sent to the Legal Committee.

From the Minister of Railways and Canals regarding the objection of the city to giving further grants to the C. N. R. and G. T. R.

From the Sewell Cushion Wheel Co. drawing attention to the advantage received by using their wheel on motor fire apparatus. The Fire, Water and Light Committee will look them over.

MADE FROM A TIN CAN

Useful Little Articles Manufactured From Waste Material

Being in need of a cheese grater and finding it inconvenient to go many miles to town, I constructed a satisfactory makeshift. I took a heavily tinned can and cut it in two, as shown in the sketch. By punching holes through it from the inside a practical grater resulted. From the remaining half of the can I made an ash tray, as shown at the right of the sketch. The semi-circular ends were bent over to form a rest, and by cutting portions at the sides and bending them in, a convenient rest for a pipe or cigar was afforded.—Gus Hansen, Peachland, B.C., in Popular Mechanics.

Clever Plants

The cleverness of some plants is indisputable. A sundew, or fly-eater, deceived by a piece of chalk, seized it in its tendrils, but upon discovering the fraud immediately withdrew them. A fly, held just out of its reach, did not tempt it to move, but as soon as it was brought a little nearer the plant prepared to take possession of it. Darwin showed that a begonia had a habit of searching for a hole to insert its tendrils into, and even of withdrawing the tendril to insert it in another hole, if the first proved unsuitable. Nor is this power of selecting confined to any particular class. Climbers like the lianas will refuse to coil round a branch not strong enough to bear their weight.

A lumberman writes: I have seen, an hour and a half after a spark dropped out of the fire-box of a moving donkey, an entire camp wiped out as thoroughly as though packed off by a cyclone. All that was left was a large black cloud of smoke, which cost about $3,200.

Do not tear the corn roots. Make cultivation shallower as the season advances.

Harrowing whenever practicable reduces labor cost of cultivation by the saving of work with the cultivator.

If machine cutting of the ensilage crop is intended it will be well to make enquiries regarding the price of binder twine at once.

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

Printers Win Two From King Pins

In the 5 Pin League at the Water Street Alleys last night the Printers took two out of the three games from the King Pins. Borden was the high man for the Printers with a total of 474 and a single count of 186. Jones for the King Pins had high single with 185 and also high three games with a total of 468. The King Pins were handicapped by the absence of two of their men and had to take 2 Dummy scores, but put up a great game and with any luck would have taken two games as the Printers went to pieces after the first game. Following are the scores:

WRITERS TO FACE McGRAW

Reopening of Case Listed for Friday, Says Tener.

New York, June 4. — President John K. Tener, of the National League, has notified the chairman of the local chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association that there will be a rehearing of the McGraw case on Friday, July 6. The meeting will be attended by all the members of the Board of Directors of the National League, and the Writers' Association has been notified to have present all those necessary in the capacity of witnesses.

Every league club president, who is also a member of the Board of Directors, has announced his intention of being present. According to the report, it is the intention of the directors to sift the case to the bottom. Manager McGraw will be confronted in open session by the writers whose alleged statements he repudiated at the last meeting of the league.

Jess Willard's the king of them all;
He's strong and, lordy, he's tall;
There's no one has stopped him,
They've tried, but he's dropped 'em
Till they've longed for the bell's saving call.

Something has happened to old Walter Johnson. He's been sort of wabbly lately. His worst exhibition in many days came recently when, in a game against the Tigers, he gave eight bases on balls, hit two batsmen and was generally wild. You've got to do better than that, Walter, or the fans won't like it.

Hard work is telling on Cicotte, star moundsman of the White Sox. He's doing the major part of the twirling for his team and as a result he has lost fifteen pounds. If it keeps up, there won't be anything left of him.

Well, the umpires have certainly won out, in the National League, at any rate. It will very likely go hard with any of the players in that outfit who take the bit into their mouths, besides words that aren't nice, and try to run away. That is, everything will run along serenely, until the next time. Human nature is human nature, and all the rules in the world can't make a man glad when he feels like being mad.

Some great long distance artillery work is being done these days by Harry Hooper, and everybody concedes that he's the top notcher among the right fielders of the American League. He can throw a ball a longer distance and more accurately than any other player in the game.

The Yankee fans are willing any day to pass a resolution nominating Hendry as their next candidate for presidency or any other job he may select. Just ask them and you'll see. The reason is that Hendryx is doing some great work at the bat these days and he's doing it when it counts, too.

Optimistic Oscar Says:

"Uncle Sam is going to give our boxers a chance to do some real fighting pretty soon and they'll all have a chance to be champions—champions of the cause of world freedom."

Everybody stand up while the band plays "Hail, the conquering hero comes" for Ivan Olson of the Robins. He certainly has come through with the goods for Robbie in every department of the game. His hitting is good, his fielding is excellent and he's as fast as a race horse. Altogether he is one of the most valuable players the Robins have got and has made himself indispensable after O'Mara failed last year and after Fabrique flivered this spring.

No Man Can Tell.

No man can say who'll win the game
The finest pitcher may go lame,
Or what the score will be;
The catcher sprain his knee.
It's just like that with other things
In every walk of life;

Today, perhaps, you'll dine with kings,
Tomorrow—hock your knife.

Did you ever hear the story of the secret fight between Jim Jeffries and Sam Langford back in 1910, a few days before the former heavyweight champion met Jack Johnson and lost his title. The story went the rounds a few years ago and was to the effect that Jeffries' trainers, in order to see just what the prospects were for their protege, arranged a bout with Sam Langford. Only a few chosen friends were present during the encounter and what they saw didn't give them much encouragement for the impending battle with Jack Johnson. Langford was altogether too much for Jeffries, who displayed but little of his old form. In the third round Langford twice floored him and soon after the fourth round got under way Jeffries went down for the count. A great many people who later heard the story believed that it was this beating at the hands of Langford that put Jeffries out of the running for his bout with Johnson which took place a few days later. Jim Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, swore that Joe Woodman, Langford's manager, told him the story as being absolutely true. The account was kept secret for a long time and when it was made public a great many people considered it a "pipe dream." But anyway, it aroused a great deal of talk among fight fans and it is interesting, whether it is true or not.

The $114,000,000 raised by the Red Cross will last till January, at which time another drive is contemplated.

The proceedings of Congress were interrupted by a crank in the gallery proclaiming the existence of a secret treaty between Great Britain and Germany.

When Robert Aldoes, of Watertown, N. Y., returned home he found his wife and a National Guardsman dead in each other's arms as a result of a suicidal pact.

Suspension during the war of all cannon salutes to visiting dignitaries at army posts, fortifications or encampments has been ordered by the U. S. war department.

HICKEY—SULLIVAN.

An exceedingly pretty wedding took place this morning at 8 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, when Alleen Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, became the bride of Mr. Francis Joseph Hickey. The Very Rev. Dean McColl performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked lovely gowned in duchess satin with pearl trimmings and sliver lace and wearing a tulle veil in Mab Cap effect. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, and was attended by Miss May Sullivan as bridesmaid, wearing pink georgette crepe, while the bride's two young nieces, Marcelle and Margery McNulty, made very charming flower girls. They were attired alike in frocks of white net over taffeta, with pink satin coats, white felt hats with long black velvet streamers and carrying huge bunches of daisies.

Mr. Butler Hickey, brother of the groom, was best man. Mr. Fred. Sullivan acted as usher.

During the mass Miss Genevieve Sullivan sang very sweetly "Ave Marie," and "O Salutaris," by Wiegand.

After the ceremony a buffet breakfast was served at the home of the bride, which was looking its lovliest with its profusion of roses and peonies.

After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Hickey left on the C.P.R for a trip to Montreal and points east. The bride travelled in a sand colored silk poplin suit and caperine of crepe with trimmings of ermine and a hat of leghorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickey will reside at No. 5 Fleming Place on their return.

Mr. E. P. Lyman and family, of Syracuse, N.Y., have taken Mr. J. M. Brooks' cottage at Chemong for the summer.

Mr. G. N. Gordon Mrs. J. W. Gordon and Miss Grace Gordon have returned from a trip to Presque Ile. where they spent the holiday at Mr. Gordon's summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Winslow, of Ida, were in the city to-day.

Mrs. M. Nichols and children, of Chatham, are visiting in the city.

Mrs. E. Weir, of Elmira, was a visitor to the city this morning.

Mr. W. S. Laidley, of Omemee, was in the city to-day.

Mr. E. W. Bailey, of Lakefield, was in the city this morning.

Mr. D. L. Thornburn, of Lindsay, was a visitor to the city to-day.

Mr. Wm. Truscott, Chemong Road, has returned home after a two months' business trip through the west.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy are visiting Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, 600 Water street.

Miss Francis Ward is visiting Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, 600 Water street.

Dr. Herbert Sullivan of Hamilton was in the city for the Hickey-Sullivan nuptials.

Mrs. A. J. Johnston has received word from her daughter, Mrs. M. R. Hilford, telling of their safe arrival at Freetown, Sierva Leone, West Africa. Owing to the irregularity in ocean traffic they had to go farther south, down the coast, and then return by another line to Freetown.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. H. Flewwelling, of Toronto, returned yesterday by auto after spending the holiday with Mr. Hunter's sister, Mrs. J. A. Dickson, 321 Rogers street, East City.

Mrs. John Gilchrist and Miss Eva Turner are attending the Gospel Hall conference in Orillia.

Miss Florence Staurt, who has been suffering from an attack of bronchitis, is slowly improving.

Mrs. Annie Brown, Toronto, is visiting relatives in city preparatory to spending the summer at her cottage at Stony Lake.

HER WALKING DRESS.

Do You Wear Your Pagoda on Your Frock?

THE LAST WORD.

One of America's best designers puts out this frock of finest quality blue serge cut jumper effect. The front is richly and vividly embroidered with a mass in Chinese pattern, pagodas in fact, and a heavy silk cord girdle accentuates the idea, this also being in oriental colors.

CHILDREN'S DIET.

How to Give a Youngster the Needed Mineral Salts.

Vegetables and fruit are now considered a necessary part of the diet of the child. The reasons are many, but most of them may be summed up by saying that they furnish material needed to form bone and tissue and to regulate body processes. The mild acids which some of them contain help to prevent constipation; so, too, does the cellulose or fiber, especially when it is raw. Green vegetables are also a valuable means of introducing into the diet mineral matters, particularly iron, in a form in which the body can utilize them. Even at city prices green vegetables have been shown to be an economical source of iron.

Fresh vegetables and fruits must be prepared with care, for there is danger of transmission of disease by means of foods that are served raw. Most people will agree that apples, pears, etc., as picked from the tree in an orchard far enough from the road to escape dust are clean. If they drop to the ground upon clean grass they may still be eaten without much risk, although there would then be more chance for dirt, with its attendant disease producing bacteria.

All fresh fruits and vegetables which come from the market should be thoroughly washed in several waters. Most fruits may be safely dipped in boiling water, and many can be kept there for several seconds without injuring their flavor. This kills many, if not all, of the bacteria and other organisms that are likely to cling to the fruit. A convenient way to do this is to place the fruit in a wire frying basket. Grapes, apples, pears, peaches and plums are not injured by this treatment, and unripe strawberries are often improved by it. Large fruits, such as bananas, apples, oranges and others with unbroken skins, may be safely washed with soap. Dried fruits should be particularly well washed. If they are then put into a warm oven to dry they are likely to absorb the water which clings to them and thus to be softened and improved in taste.

Cleaning White Shoes.

With the approach of summer seasonable shoes become a matter of much consideration to many persons. If white buckskin shoes are worn it would be well to purchase at any drug store a white magnesia ball, then take a piece of cheesecloth, place the ball inside and rub one way until the shoe is covered with the powder. If possible let them stand overnight; then take a clean, stiff brush and rub lightly over the shoes. This will give a clean and neat appearance and will not make them look streaky or stiffen the shoes as liquid polish often does. If this is done before the shoes get too dirty and kept up it will enable you to wear your shoes two seasons instead of one.

A New Bag.

A bag to hold scraps of the children's cloths can be quickly made from a yard square of any desired material. Hem each of the four sides and sew a brass ring at each corner. Hang all four rings on a hook, lay the bag out flat, and you will see at once just what you want without any waste of time.

Technical School Wanted for this City

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED FROM PROMINENT PUBLIC BODIES.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education last night communications were received from various committes of the Greater Peterborough Association and from the Manufacturers Branch of the Board of Trade urging the establishing of a technical school in this city. The Board will reply to these communications expressing appreciation for the sympathy that is shown for the movement.

The report of School Nurse Miss Jory for the month of June showed that there are 680 school children suffering with lesser ailments; eight were excluded because suffering from rash and 25 for uncleanliness. The number of homes visited were 28. There were no serious contageous cases. There are some mental defectives whose cases will be considered when a representative from the Department of Education visits the city.

There are three unusually bright pupils, all members of one family who are suffering from enlarged tonsils and the parents are unable to secure the necessary medical attention. These cases it was decided, should be taken up by the Health Association.

THE TURBAN'S RIVAL.

Huge Hats Are Again Asserting Themselves.

BEAUTIFUL TILT.

Black chip straw in a charmingly graceful flare makes this good looking hat on such generous lines. Narrow black grosgrain ribbon affords the banding and clever rosettes that sit on the wide brim.

Old Styles Revived.

Small coronation braid, which was used in quantities a few years ago, is now being used to form large daisies on centerpieces.

Lazy-daisy and thousand flower stitch will again be among the leading stitches for the coming season. They are easily worked, and by lengthening and shortening the stitches all sorts of charming flowers are quickly formed.

Cross stitch, especially the conventional design in several shades of blue, is still a great favorite. Naturalistic designs in cross stitch are frequently seen worked in many colors, but they are not as popular as the conventional designs which adapt themselves so readily to cross stitch.

Child's Apron.

A child will not object to wearing an apron if it is attractive, but to be attractive does not mean that it necessarily has to be expensive. A very good looking model recently seen was made of blue checked gingham, cut kimono fashion with sleeves. The neck line was bound with blue braid, and the same trimmed the narrow cuffs into which the sleeves were gathered. Across the bottom of the apron there was applied a strip of white muslin, on which little Bopeep and her sheep were painted. This applied strip of muslin formed a sort of deep pocket. It could, however, be stitched down.

Crocheting Hint.

It is quite an effort to press the crocheting needle through a stiff edge of material. A good idea is to unthread your sewing machine and, using a heavy sewing machine needle, stitch around the edge, adjusting the length of the stitches to the requirements of the edge. The effect will be that of perforations through which the crochet needle can be easily passed.

For Blonds.

For a blond nothing could be more effective than a bathing suit of apple green taffeta, collared and cuffed in white crepe de chine, and with green silk stockings and satin shoes matching exactly. The shoes should be laced in white. Purple is another shade beloved of the fashionable bather and is at its best with dainty white lingerie collar and cuffs.

RUSSIANS STILL GAINING GROUND

BRITISH ADVANCE ALONG SIX HUNDRED YARD FRONT

Airships Drop Tons of Bombs on Enemy Stations---French and Russians Report Successes --- Germans Look for New Offensive by British.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, July 5.—An Admiralty announcement says: On Tuesday night bombing attacks were carried out by naval service machines on airdromes at Ghistelles and Nieuminster, and also on seaplane sheds and a train at Zaaran. Several tons of bombs were dropped. All the machines returned safely.

British Advance.

LONDON, July 5. — The official announcement says: Southwest of Hollebeke we advanced our lines slightly on a front of 600 yards. Last night we carried out successful raids in the vicinity of Wieltje and Nieuport, and captured several prisoners.

BIG GUNS BUSY.

PARIS, July 5. — There was rather pronounced artillery activity in the region of Moronvilliers, Prunay and Hill 304. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

GERMANS EXPECT OFFENSIVE

COPENHAGEN, July 5. — Lieut.-General Von Stein, Prussian minister of war and state, told a committee of the German Reichstag yesterday that a further British offensive was expected north of Arras, where General Haig apparently is preparing for action on a large scale.

RUSSIA REPULSES FOE.

PETROGRAD, July 5. — Austro-German forces in Galicia yesterday attacked the Russian advanced positions east of Brzezany, but were driven off by Russian artillery fire, the war office announced today. East of the Naraiuvka River two attacks were delivered after artillery fire on the Russian positions near Lipnica-dolna. Both were repulsed.

SAXONY NOT FIGHTING FOR KING BUT FOR COUNTRY

Socialists in Diet Call for Reorganization of German Empire.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

COPENHAGEN, July 5. — After a debate almost unparalleled in any German legislature since the stormy days of 1848, the Saxon Diet yesterday adopted a resolution, introduced by the Socialists, demanding that the government make an effort to secure a liberal reorganization of the empire. All parties in the Diet except the Conservatives declared the Saxon soldiers are not fighting out of loyalty to the king, but for love of the Fatherland and the monarchial principle, that Saxony suffers sadly from mistakes of an incompetent bureaucracy and that all parties are forced to warn the government of the dangers confronting the kingdom.

REPORT SHOWS BUSINESS GOOD IN PETERBORO

BANK CLEARINGS ARE EVIDENCE OF INCREASED BUSINESS.

The bank clearings for the week show another remarkable increase, not only over the same week last month but also over the same week a year ago. The figures and comparisons are:

Clearings for the week ending July 5, 1917	$688,876
Same week last month	611,120
Same week, 1916	520,429
Same week, 1915	477,669

Barton township council will enter into an agreement with Hamilton city council for a water supply.

LABOR PROTESTS AGAINST IMMIGRATION FROM EUROPE

Arrival of Fifty Russians in City Results in Action on Part of Trades Council—Favor the 57th Regiment Band.

Upwards of fifty Russians and Poles arrived in the city yesterday in a body, and they will soon be provided with work, as there appears to be a dearth of laborers in the city and vicinity. This matter was taken up at the regular meeting of the Trades Council last night. The question was asked why these men should be brought here from Europe where they are needed for military duty, to take the places of Canadians whom it is proposed to conscript for the very work the new arrivals have apparently shirked?

A communication will be sent to Captain Burnham at Ottawa and another to President Watters of the Dominion Trades Congress, asking them to take up this matter with the proper officials.

The Band Grants.

A communication will be sent to the City Council asking them that they divide the $600 appropriated for the bands on the same basis as last year, giving $400 to the 57th Band and $200 to the Salvation Army organisation. The majority of the members of the former band belong to the Machinists' Union in this city, and such being the case the delegates last night decided that they are entitled to the support of organised labor.

Speeding on the G. T. R.

The City Council will also be asked to take steps to compel the Grand Trunk Railway Company to reduce the speed of their trains in the southern section of the city, where, it is alleged, the trains sometimes pass at a speed of 25 to 30 miles an hour. The residents of that community claim that pedestrians are in constant danger of their lives from this source, and that children especially are liable to be killed.

QUEBEC PELTED BY SLEET STORM

CITIZENS ARE INJURED BY LARGE LUMPS OF ICE FROM CLOUDS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Quebec, July 5.—A heavy squall of sleet and rain fell over this district at 1 o'clock today causing heavy damage to all crops and to property. In Quebec city streets lumps of sleet an inch in diameter were picked up and many citizens suffered minor injuries by blows from these.

Practical Joke Ends in Tradegy

Lance-Corporal Hamm Is Shot To Death by Fort Sentry.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 5.—In a thick fog which enshrouded the Fort Howe magazine last night, Lance Corp. Hamm, in charge of the guard there, approached Private Arsenault, the sentry, in a skylarking spirit and disregarded the halt order. He ran away calling out "You can't get me now." Arsenault, not knowing Hamm, fired. Hamm fell mortally wounded and died early today.

Arsenault is under arrest. Hamm, before his death, exonerated the guard.

PTE. COLE BACK FROM EUROPE

WAS REJECTED FOR ACTIVE SERVICE, BUT HAS DONE HIS BIT.

The name of Private Edward Cole was accidentally omitted from the list of soldiers who returned to the city from Europe recently. Private Cole went overseas with the 93rd Bn., but was rejected for service at the front owing to heart trouble. He is one of the most skilled ventriloquists in Ontario, and has been employed for the past year as an entertainer of the soldiers in hospital and at the Y. M. C. A. camps. He has two weeks' leave, which he will spend at his home here, after which he expects an appointment to some branch of the special service.

While crossing on the Scandinavian Private Cole took part in several entertainments held in the cabin of the steamer, and at these functions Major-General Sir J. W. Carson was chairman. The proceeds went to the Seamen's Orphan Institution.

Soldiers Reach Canadian Port

Officers, Men and Civilians Have Arrived at Halifax.

HALIFAX, July 5.—Officers and men of the Canadian expeditionary force, some convalescent from wounds or sickness and others on furlough or returned for duty, arrived here today by steamer from England. Among the officers was major General John Hughes. The steamer also brought several hundred civilian passengers including a large number of women and children.

RED CROSS EXECUTIVE DECIDE TO HOLD TAG DAY ON JULY 14th

Funds Will be Used for the Prisoners of War Fund and to Aid the French Red Cross.

The monthly meeting of the executive of the Red Cross Society was held Tuesday afternoon in the teachers' room of the Public Library, Mrs. T. F. Matthews presiding.

Great pleasure was expressed at the loyal and hearty manner in which the various auxiliaries and societies were responding to the special appeal to endeavor to keep supplies up during the summer months. There is only one month's supply in the London warehouses of the Canadian Red Cross, so in case of a big offensive they would soon be emptied. It is imperative that there be no easing up in the work, for none of us could bear to think of the sick and wounded wanting for anything that it is in our power to give them.

Miss Flora Davidson, convenor of the packing committee, reported the shipping of 29 cases during June, two of which were for the C.W.C.A. (trenches). The cases contained the fololwing: 10 dressing gowns, 92 day shirts, 16 pairs pyjamas, 978 pairs socks (250 pairs for the C.W.C.A., trenches), 294 sheets, 1,210 towels, 125 many-tailed bandages, 89 amputation bandages.

The fololwing societies and auxiliaries sent in goods, and the executive expresses warmest thanks to them all:

The Prisoners of War Department reported 41 prisoners in Germany, each receiving six parcels a month from the C. R. C., London, England. Twenty-four acknowledgments were received by us from Germany during the month.

Five hundred dollars was sent as usual for payment of parcels sent by London headquarters of the C. R. C.

Tag Day July 14th.

It was unanimously agreed to hold a tag day on Saturday, July 14 in aid of the French Red Cross and the Peterborough prisoners of war, the proceeds to be equally divided. Fuller particulars will be given later regarding this effort. The executive feel that of all the tag days held in Peterborough, not one will meet with a warmer or more generous response from the citizens generally, young and old, than will this one.

France, our loyal and faithful ally, has been bled white, her men have died in thousands crying "Vive La France." Her cities, towns and villages have been laid waste. Her women, girls and children have suffered most terribly. All this in support of a true democracy, of liberty and freedom, of national and individual rights.

A most urgent and earnest appeal has come to Canada from the London Committee of the French Red Cross asking for aid, and we will not refuse the request

Our Peterboro Prisoners of War Department also needs funds, and so instead of having two tag days the executive are combining the two objects. Peterborough, if convinced that a cause is needy and worthy of generous support, always rises to the occasion. We can conceive of no two more worthy causes for support than the Peterborough Prisoners of War and the French Red Cross: and we feel sure that one and all will give as liberally as they possibly can on Saturday, 14th July.

Sixty-nine persons murdered since January 1, 12 of them by holdup men, with a total of 424 violent deaths in six months, is the unenviable record of Wayne county, Michigan.

GERMANY'S MILITARY POWER HAS LONG BEEN EXHAUSTED

Army Had Reached Highest Point of Efficiency at Beginning of 1916---Reinforcements Now Consist of Boys and Wounded From Hospitals.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 5. — The Reuter correspondent at the headquarters of the British army in France has made an examination of the German power, from which he concludes that at the beginning of 1916 the army bad reached its maximum effective strength. Compulsory mobilization of civilian labor last winter probably brought the army numbers at the beginning of the 1917 campaign to the same total as at the corresponding period of 1916, but failed to replace the reduction in fighting efficiency.

The number of divisions is perhaps larger now, but the quality of the battalions is lower. This is demonstrated in the development of the policy of relying on small forces of highly trained gladiators for carrying out the difficult operations. It is certain that the Civil Mobilisation Act enabled the enemy to raise his number to the highest point.

There are no more contingents from industry or from agriculture now available. The present reinforcement consists of youths attaining military age and of the wounded from the hospitals.

VOTE TODAY ON CONSCRIPTION

EXPECTED BILL WILL PASS SECOND READING BY A MAJORITY OF SIXTY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

OTTAWA, July 5.—Three more Liberal members spoke in the House and all favored conscription without a referendum. The motion for the six months' hoist will be voted on late tonight and the Laurier amendment calling for a referendum will also be passed upon. When these matters are disposed of it is believed the bill will pass its second reading by a majority of forty five.

Local Golfers Win from Oshawa Visitors

YOUNG GIRL RUN OVER BY AUTO

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH, BUT INJURIES ARE SERIOUS.

A little girl, Viola Cooney, was badly injured when she ran in front of an auto on Aylmer street last evening.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the girl, who lives at 340 Aylmer street, attempted to cross the street to Mr. T. Parringon's house, and apparently did not pay any attention to the approaching auto, and before the driver of the car could stop it the girl was beneath the wheels.

She was at once picked up and taken to her home, and medical aid summoned. It was feared that a number of bones would be broken, but this morning it was stated that none were broken, but that severe internal injuries have resulted besides painful abrasions of the skin and badly bruised eyes. How the young girl escaped death is beyond explanation.

HAVE CAPTURED SMALL ARMY OF ENEMY SINCE WAR BEGAN

TWO RECRUITS FOR LIBERALS

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, July 5.—Messrs. Mondou and Achim, who have been sitting on the Government side of the House, joined the Liberal party today and formally took their seats on the Liberal side being cordially welcomed, especially by Mr. Carvell who has condemned them without stint since 1911. Other French-Canadians will follow. The parties are lining up for a new era in the history of Canada.

TWO FINE FISH CAUGHT AT CHEMONG LAKE.

The cottagers and residents of Chemong Park and Bridgenorth were roused out of bed early this morning to witness a battle for supremacy between Mr. Harry Gravelle and a "Maski." It was a sight that will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the catch, and when the victor administered the death blow to the fish he paddled to the shore and weighed his prize, when it was found that it tipped the scales at 24 pounds. A short time previous the same fisherman landed an eight-pounder. The fish are in the window of Jopling & Sons, George street. The large one will be mounted for one of the tourists.

Number of Prisoners in British Hands is 117,776.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 5.—Since the beginning of the war the British have captured 117,776 prisoners exclusive of natives taken prisoner in the African campaigns, many of whom have been released, said Major General F. B. Maurice, director of military operations at the war office today. The British have lost to the enemy 51,088 men, including Indian and native troops these figures take in all the allies of the war.

The British have captured 739 guns during the war and lost 135. Of the guns lost thirty-seven were recaptured and of 96 remaining in the enemy's hands 84 were lost by the British on the west front early in the war. The British have not lost a single gun on the West front since April, 1915.

NEW ELECTORAL REFORM DEFEATED IN ENGLAND.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 5. — Proportionate representation as a part of the new Franchise Reform Bill was defeated in the Commons yesterday by a vote of 201 to 169.

London board of education may ask for a judicial inquiry into charges concerning A. E. Nutter, architect, who is now under suspension.

On June 22 there were 7,271 invalided members of the C. E. F. under the care of the Military Hospitals Commission in Canada.

ARTHUR VOYCEY, THROWN FROM RIG, MEETS DEATH

Minden Farmer's Neck Broken When Team He Was Driving Ran Away---Brother John, Who Was With Him, Badly Hurt.

MINDEN, July 5.—Yesterday afternoon Arthur Voycey and John Voycey, two well known farmers residing about eight miles northeast of Minden, were engaged in breaking in a colt. They had the yoenger animal hitched up with an older horse, and for some reason or other the team became unmanageable and both men were thrown out of the rig.

Arthur Voycey was instantly killed, his neck being broken in the fall, while his brother had his left shoulder dislocated and other parts of his body badly bruised.

Dr. George Bowes, who was summoned from Minden, stated that the death of Arthur had been instantaneous. The young man was 25 years of age and resided on the homestead.

Mrs. John Howland, of 289 Burnham street, Ashburnham, is a sister of the man.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1917

"THERE GOES THE BRIDE."

SOME DAY an account of a wedding in which the scribe has omitted to state that "the bride looked charming" will reach a newapaper office, and the shock may prove too much for the copy reader. That is a term which seems as inseparably connected with a union of hearts and fortunes as the bridal veil itself. Even if it has become something of a stock phrase, it is nevertheless true, and no one would have it abolished any more than a demand is likely to arise for doing away with the harmless diversion of pelting a newly wedded pair with confetti, rice, old shoes and other articles, and in other ways treating them as if they were proper subjects for exhibition in a dime museum.

But the bride, while she may be congratulated by her friends, seldom lacks the sympathy of the worldly wise. Her hopes are high, her faith in the man with whom she links her life is unbounded, or at least it should be. And those who know life realize that the trusting creature is sooner or later to be roused from her roseate dream to discover that her idol is after all a creature composed largely of common clay instead of the precious metal which her imagination pictured. No matter how good a man he is, he is certain in some particular to fall below the standard that the bride has set for him. The statue will eventually tumble from the pedestal to be somewhat marred, if not hopelessly shattered. But such is life. After everyd ream there comes the hour of awakening.

The June bride, or the star in a wedding celebrated in any other month of the year, should start right in the management of her household. If she has earned her own living as a girl, spent her own money for the trifles every feminine heart prizes, she will find it vastly different if obliged to ask her partner in life for every cent that is to be expended either for the household or for her own pleasures and adornment. Marriage is, after all, considerable of a business partnership, and as such both parties have their rights when it comes to either a question of outlay or a division of the profits.

FARMERS SHOULD ORGANIZE.

A MEETING is to be held at the Public Libary Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the object of forming a local branch of the United Farmers. Good speakers will be present to explain the objects of the association.

Why should not the farmers of Ontario unite for their own protection, when every other department of industry is so thoroughly organised? The men to whom the farmer sells his produce, the dealers from whom he buys his agricultural machinery, have their organizations, and the farmer consults his own interests if he decides to meet such unions with one of his own.

WHAT LABOR DEMANDS.

PRESIDENT WATTERS, of the Dominion Trades Congress, has issued a statement with regard to organsied labor's stand on conscription, in which he says that the workingmen will favor the measure provided provision is also made for the conscription of wealth. This must be taken as final and official. It is evident that in the probable event of a general election, the candidate who favors universal conscription—that is, of wealth as well as men—will receive the support of organised labor.

Of all classes in Canada, the workingmen have the least reason to look forward to the selective draft with anything like uneasiness. The man usefully employed at home will be left where he is. His efforts are as essential to final victory as if they were employed in actual warfare. It is the idler who will be taken while the other is left.

The selective draft will prove a beneficent measure to hundreds of men now at home. There are those who really cannot go to the front. When their case has been passed upon under the draft system their status will be established officially. With conscription, or the draft, in force, no man left behind can be called a slacker, but it will be established that he is doing his bit according to his opportunities and his gifts.

THE FRIENDLESS NEGRO.

LINDSAY MAY BE a trifle slow as a town, but it certainly produces some horses that can clip the seconds off the race records.

THE NEGRO of the South has always been taught to believe that the white population of the Northern States were his brothers. Preachers and political orators, the former probably working under an altruistic delusion, the latter on a hunt for votes, have told him so. The negro has been deluded into believing that the North fought the South with the single purpose of liberating the slaves, whereas that was simply an issue that arose when the conflict was two years old, and as a military necessity. The question of trade and commerce figured in the origin of the war rather than the problem of the rights of the negroes to their freedom.

There has within the past year been a steady migration of negroes to the North. Labor conditions accounts for this. But the eyes of the former slaves have been opened by this time. If the people of the North love the negroes, they prefer them at a distance. In a city in Ohio there has been a race riot fiercer and more deadly than anything of the kind ever pulled off in the South. Negroes were not only shot down indiscriminately by the whites, but their humble dwellings were burned above their heads. The innocent were made to suffer with the guilty.

The race question in the United States grows yearly more intense. The increase of the colored population makes it more and more serious. It seems, however, that the colored people fare best if they remain among their former owners instead of putting themselves in competition with the white labor of the North. Sociologists are still wrestling with the problem. The proposition that the negroes be restored to their former homes in Africa is met with the practical objection that it would require something like a hundred years to transport them to that country, even if every ship in the United States navy were commandeered for the purpose of carrying them to the regions from which the progenitors of the race were originally taken by force.

CANADA'S INDUSTRIES.

Effect of War on the Wealth of the Country.

Intensified by the patriotic determination of citizens everywhere in the Dominion, the development of agricultural production in Canada, judging from present indications, will show a greater increase this year than has ever heretofore been recorded in a single year. With the upward tendency of prices, there is little likelihood that there will be retrogression in the movement to subjugate and make productive larger areas of the rich prairie and cut-over forest lands, extending alternately across the vast stretches of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Agriculturally, Canada is rapidly finding itself. The demand of its Allies for goods, and the rapid advance in the price of all staples consumed at home, have been and are sufficient incentives to enlist all loyal and prudent citizens in the common cause. The thrift of the people, coupled with the proof that, in Canada, industry in agriculture is certain of a just and adequate reward, will insure added activity along the line of increased production.

There are also assurances that, with the return of peace, and with the larger development of the agricultural resources already accomplished, there is to come an era of great activity and prosperity in other lines of industry. This newer development will utilize, in the manufacture of steel products and machinery, the undeveloped mineral resources of the Dominion. It is announced in Montreal that one of the richest of the European nations has already arranged, through a corporation representing some of the leading capitalists on both sides of the Atlantic, for the financing of manufacturing industries, in Canada and the United States, with a capital of not less than $300,000,000. These industries are to produce the vast stocks of vessels, tools, machinery, and vehicles, which the European nation referred to will need for use as soon as the war is ended, if not before. Already, it is announced, plans are under way for the erection of a $2,000,000 shipbuilding plant at Newcastle, New Brunswick, where the International Shipbuilding Corporation has acquired a sawmill, planing mill, and foundry, and expects within two months to begin the construction of 3,000-ton wooden ships. The development of ore bodies is to be undertaken at once, so that the plant will be equipped for the building of both steel and wooden vessels. Future plans of the same company relate to the early erection of similar plants in Halifax and Vancouver. In Montreal, according to present plans, there are to be aeroplane and engine manufactories, where machines of a certain modern type will be built. If other patents, which are being negotiated for, can be obtained, it is announced, a $500,000 plant will be erected at Laval de Montreal. The syndicate interested in this project is said to have already financed a $22,000,000 steel corporation at Tacoma, Wash.

WANT SELF DENIAL.

Appeal Made to the Daughters of the Empire.

The Daughters of the Empire have been called upon by the leaders of the Order, which is the largest women's organization in the Dominion of Canada, to help the food situation by voluntary self denial. The following appeal has been issued to the members:

"In the present crisis of our Empire, when we are assured by those most competent to know, that world hunger stares us in the face, and that it is absolutely necessary that we help those who are fighting for us by increased production and greater economy at home, the National Executive, at a meeting held on May 10th, 1917, decided to make the following appeal to all members of the Order, and through them and their influence to all the women of Canada.

"It is in no spirit of arrogance, but in the spirit of humble service that we deem it incumbent on the Order to do its utmost to give the light and leading so vitally essential at this crucial period of Canada's welfare.

"We ask that members pledge themselves to observe two meatless days, and two potatoless days a week, the meatless days to be Wednesday and Friday, and also to abstain from the use of veal and young lamb.

"We also ask that every member should realise for herself, and impress on others the terrible gravity of the situation, and the imperative need of loyal and immediate cooperation, and acquaint herself with the various aspects—scientific, economic, social—of this many-sided problem."

He Was Honest.

In a Canadian camp somewhere in England a second George Washington has been found. He, in company with several others, had been granted four days' leave, and, as usual, wired for extension. But no hackneyed excuse was his. In fact, it was so original that it has been framed and now hangs in a prominent spot in the battalion orderly room. It ran as follows: "Nobody dead, nobody ill; still going strong, having a good time, and got plenty of money. Please grant extension." And he got it!

A French Tribute.

The Echo de Paris contains a detailed account of the part played by Canada in the war. The paper says in part: "Every week brings us news of the unvarying generosity of the Canadians, who never cease to offer invaluable assistance in money and lives. Moreover, although everywhere else Germans are traitors to the country of their adoption, German-Canadians give proof of their loyalty, and do their whole duty just like the other inhabitants of Canada."

Queen Sophia of Greece Played Dangerous Game And Lost Husband's Crown

THE name of Queen Sophia of Greece may be added to the list of those women, like the Empress of Russia, whose intrigues cost her husband a throne. As everyone knows, she is the sister of the German Kaiser and a very clever and sinister woman. For several years soon after the marriage of Constantine of Greece and Sophia of Prussia there were strained relations between the families at Berlin and Athens, and they continued until the present war brought the Hellenic couple directly under the influence of the Kaiser's agents at Athens. The marriage of Princess Sophia of Prussia to the then Duke of Sparta in October, 1889, was one of the last diplomatic feats of Bismarck. The Kaiser himself attended the wedding and was seen to be on most intimate terms with his brother-in-law. He even purchased an estate on Corfu to be near him. The break came two years later, when Sophia joined the Orthodox Church of Greece. The Kaiser is said to have been so furious over his sister's apostasy that his grandmother, Queen Victoria, felt compelled to intervene and ask him to treat Sophia with more consideration, as she doubtless had acted "from the inspiration of pure and lofty ideals."

Constantine's throne began to totter in less than two years after he became King. With the entrance of Turkey into the war the question of the intervention of Greece came at once to be seriously considered. The King insisted upon a policy of strict neutrality. In this attitude he turned a deaf ear to the powerful arguments and the shrewd advice of Venizelos, then Premier.

EX-QUEEN SOPHIA

Later Constantine went out of his way to insult Venizelos by publicly accusing him of mendacity and by repudiating negotiations with foreign Governments undertaken with the full knowledge and consent of the throne. In the beginning the attitude of the Greek war party was largely to the effect that if the country had no part in the war her interests would suffer greatly when the time came to arrange terms of peace.

It was at the instigation of his Prussian consort that the King committed himself to a policy diametrically opposed to one of the shrewdest statesmen of southern Europe and a man whose affection for Greece was deeply rooted. Since the very beginning of the war Queen Sophia, according to persistently repeated reports never denied, has received from the military attache of the German legation in Athens copies of the often mendacious reports issued by the War Department in Berlin; reports which convey the impression that the Teuton arms are almost uniformly victorious on every front.

She was also in constant communication with the Kaiser, with whom she became completely reconciled years ago. In all the succeeding crises when Greece seemed on the verge of entering the war and when Venizelos and other leaders used their eloquence to induce the king to adopt a course fair to the Allies, the hand of Sophia, checking him from any course in opposition to the Kaiser's wishes, may be seen.

Of less influence but yet not without effect in holding Constantine to a policy of so-called neutrality in the first days of the war was his military entourage, headed by General Metaxas, which was composed exclusively of officers who had received their training under German officers at Potsdam.

With the beginning of operations against the Dardanelles Venizelos and his followers renewed their plea for an alteration in Greece's position. The Entente Powers asked for the nation's co-operation in these activities, but the king argued that the sending of a force to the Dardanelles would dangerously weaken Greece's defences on the Bulgarian frontier. Venizelos meanwhile suspected the queen. He began to realize that she was exerting a powerful influence in her effort to prevent action with the Entente. The challenge was thrown down, and from that time until now both sides have played with cards on the table. For a while the queen's influence triumphed, but in the end she lost her husband his throne.

HISTORY OF MATCHES

Three million Matches Used Every Minute

The first Lucifer or friction match dates back to 1829. They were made and dipped by hand, and sold for a little over two dollars per hundred.

To-day the same quantity may be bought for a couple of cents, or even less. This cheapness is due to the fact that all matches are made, and most of them are dipped by machinery. In making matches by one process, a cylinder of pine wood the length of seven matches, which has been soaked in water to make it tough, is placed in a sort of lathe and as it revolves the circumference comes in contact with a sharp blade which cuts off a continuous shaving the thickness of a match. As this shaving comes away from the log it is cut into seven strips, each as wide as a match is long. These ribbons are cut into lengths of about eight feet, and one hundred and twenty or so are piled on top of each other, and fed into a cutting machine, which cuts as many splints at each stroke as there are ribbons in the pile. Rapid as this process of making splints is, it has been displaced in America by another method in which very little hard work is required. In this case the raw material is received at the factory in the shap of a two-inch white pine plank. This is sawed into blocks the length of the match.

The blocks are then fastened by means of clamps, to the bed of the machine, and cutters groove out a set of splints from the surface. The cutters do not turn the entire surface into splints at one impact, but cut them out one-fourth of an inch apart. The ridges left between the places from which the first set of splints was cut, are then worked up, and so on until the whole block is consumed.

As soon as the splints are separated from the block they are seized in iron clamp plates, which form an endless chain. The endless chain carries the splints across a steam-heated drum, which warms them nearly to the temperature of the paraffin, into which they are next dipped. From the paraffin bath the splints move on continuously to the rollers, that carry the "heading mixture"—phosphorous, chlorate of potash, etc.—and, as the matches are carried past the rollers each one receives a red or blue head, as the case may be. From the rollers they continue on through a room swept by a blast of cold dry air.

The matches move on until, just before they reach the starting point again, an automatic punch thrusts the matches out and places them side by side in a box, put in the right, at the right time, by another endless belt. It is estimated that the nations of the civilized world use, in round numbers, three million matches a minute. Fifteen hundred billion is the enormous number for the entire year.

GLUE FROM FISH WASTE

Some attempt has been made in Canada to produce glue from fish waste, but hitherto it has usually been found that production involves too much technical knowledge and too many highly paid officers. That fish glue, however, can be manufactured in Canada at a profit is clear from the success of the Russia glue works at Gloucester. These glue works were started by two very humble men, some years ago; they bought fish skins and fish heads and have manufactured glue and fertilizer and such a success has their venture been that the company which they have organized, has become very prosperous. The works are now about ten times the extent they were a few years ago and they cannot adequately supply the demand for their product—a demand created by the excellence of the glue. There is quite an opening in regard to fish glue products. Canadian fishermen waste an enormous amount of material, which would produce fish glue, on the banks and in the Gulf of St. Lawrence fisheries, and the amount per annum would startle anybody. The fish waste is now simply dumped into the sea.

FEEDING MILCH COWS

Judment in Feeding Will Result in Profit

The law of diminishing returns applies nowhere more truly than in the feeding of dairy cattle. The more food eaten and digested the greater the flow of milk, is an infallible rule in dairying. But there is a point where the increase of milk will not be sufficient to defray the cost of the extra food. This point depends entirely upon the relative cost of the feed as compared with the market value of the milk, cream, butter, or cheese.

Thus it follows that if a farmer feeds all his herd alike, irrespective of their capacities for producing, he is bound to suffer considerable loss. The cow's capacity for producing milk is limited. It is doubtful if a maximum yield of milk is ever profitable from all the individuals of an average herd.

The liberal use of concentrated foods will increase the flow of milk, but it will not convert a bad milker into a good one. But it generally pays to give a good milker a reasonable amount of cake and meal. Unless such an animal is well fed she will "milk herself away." The quantity of such feed should be determined and regulated by the yield of milk, the heavy milkers getting an extra supply.

Thus in the feeding of milch cows for profit the law of diminishing returns should always be kept in mind. If an accurate record is kept of the milk of each cow, and its butter fat content known, little trouble will be experienced in gauging the feed so that a maximum of profit may be gained from the herd.

A married man says that a wife should be like a roast lamb—tender and sweet, nicely done, but without sauce.

Listeners seldom expect to hear any good of themselves, but they are usually satisfied if they hear something bad of others.

Some women who marry in haste are kept so busy trying to support their husbands that they have no leisure for repentance.

More advice would be taken if it were not given in a manner leading the recipient to believe that the giver is anxious to get rid of it.

FALLEN TIMBER PROBLEM

In the Rocky Mountain Reserves fires have killed large areas of mature growth, and as a result there are thousands of acres of windfalls covering the ground with a labyrinthian maze of down trees, which make the areas almost inaccessible and unmanageable for cropping. What can be done with this unfortunate condition? After some time this material rots, disintegrates and becomes a part of the soil, but in the alpine climate this process takes a long time. Meanwhile, these areas form also dangerous fire traps.

Here again, the Forest Products Laboratories may be able to work out a solution, devising means of utilizing such material. Altogether, the problem of finding use for minor wood materials is one that would often make it economically possible to solve the silvicultural problems.

There are a host of problems which it takes time to solve. Their solution should be attempted at an early date. This is possible by experiment on a small scale before the necessity of solving them on a large scale arrives. But it should be realised that the answers to these inquiries by experiment come as slow almost as the crop itself for which they are made.

Why Front Tires Wear

Numerous complaints are registered because front tires wear out more quickly than the rear tires. The fact is that front tires should last considerably longer than the rear tires, in that they are relieved of driving strains. Excessive wear on front tires is more generally due to misalignment of the front wheels. Drivers forget that they often hit the curb with the front wheels and in this manner throw them out of the alignment.

EDITOR'S MAIL

DREDGING REQUIRED

Editor Review.

Dear Sir,—Will you please draw to the attention of the proper authorities of the Department of Railways and Canals the necessity for dredging the harbor at Bewdley. Yesterday I was down the river with Knox church picnic, and the difficulty the Stoney Lake had in making a landing caused me to make some inquiries. The Government has built a fine wharf there, and a few hours spent with a dredge at the landing would make the debarkation of passengers very easy instead of a crowded outlet as at present. The steamer had to run her nose hard into the mud to allow one outlet for the passengers.

Surely the Government would let one of the T. V. C. dredges spend half a day at this splendid picnic point.

Yours truly,
A lover of Rice Lake.

Editor Review: A matter of ten days ago I read in The Review that a farmer in Harvey township had stumbled upon the discovery that Paris green is not in it as a potato-bug exterminator with ordinary coal oil mixed with water. He applied such a compound to some of his potatoes and found that the bugs just naturally turned up their toes and went the way of all flesh.

I have been waiting with breathless interest to read of further results. There is no doubt in my mind that the bugs were done for. The great question, however, is, did the potatoes survive the operation? It seems to me that the leaves of the plants will wilt under such an application as completely as if they had been subjected to a temperature of 220 degrees or so. The amateur gardener bad better pause before trying the experiment.

Your article says that the mixture is to be well shaken before used. A clear case of wasted energy. A man can shake a bushel of oil and water until the sun sets or the cows come home, and cannot induce the elements to coalesce any more than Sir Robert Borden could induce Sir Wilfrid Laurier to consent to a union of forces at Ottawa.

THE REGIMENTAL BAND'S FIGHT FOR EXISTENCE—KIPLING'S VIEW.

Buildings were blazing on either side of [illegible] street as the Australians entered Bapaume to the strains of a triumphal march by their regimental band. The censors have permitted a picture of this scene in the British papers. It does not require a very vivid imagination to think of how that march tune would find a response in the heart of every Australian soldier that marched into Bapaume that day. But military music has not always had a cordial welcome. There have been those who favored banishing music from the business of war, and so the regimental musicians were transformed into stretcher-bearers when their units to the field.

But that did not stop music in the army. You might as well bid the sun to stop shining as attempt to do away with the army's music. Break up the regiment's band! Then, empty cigar boxes, biscuit cans with the aid of wire and catgut are made into mandolins, guitars, violins, and with bones, tin whistles, mouth organs and an occasional concertina thrown in you have a new band whose accomplishments are simply wonderful. During the South African war a similar band became so proficient that they gave public concerts in Pretoria and other places.

Speaking at a meeting in London, Rudyard Kipling said: "A few drums and fifes in a battalion are worth five extra miles on a route march, quite apart from the fact that they swing the battalion back to quarters composed and happy in mind no matter how wet and tired it may be. We are a tongue-tied breed at the best. The band can declare on our behalf without shame or shyness, something of what we feel and so help us to reach a hand toward the men who have risen up to save us?"

Military music accomplishes something nothing else can accomplish. How and why military music has survived all opposition and entrenched itself more strongly than ever in army life is told in a detailed way by A. P. Hatton in the London Musical Opinion. His account boiled down and condensed is this: Military music has had its stern fight for existence even in recent times. Fve years ago a powerful offensive was initiated against it by a college professor. In 1912 one of our generals pleaded strongly for the abolition of all army bands so that their members might be added to the fighting ranks. French generals too were prejudiced against the music. One of the latter who was war minister by a stroke of the pen swept drums out of existence. So he thought; but today the drum which Napoleon called the king of instruments has reached in France a pinnacle of more than pristine glory and importance. And it is certain that we have never in our history had so many military bands as we have today or found them so indispensable for marching and recruiting purposes.

Piano Tuning

when your piano requires tuning or regulating. All work guaranteed

The military value of the drum, fife, bugle and bagpipe lies in their compelling blood-quickening—as though their noisy vibrations started hidden springs of vitality into life. The secret is reiterated rhythm—perhaps the primal fundamental of all music. Indeed almost the sole musical mission of the military drum is to accentuate marching steps to make the pulses leap with punctuating thumps or rat-a-tat-tats or provide intervals to be bridged by soldierly yells. It braces one to a fierce fight for life.

The regimental band is one of the mainsprings of esprit de corps. It adds to the educational influences among the masses. Its programmes afford the compositions and the street music of the day. The band is the army's best advertisement. Military music has clearly come to stay. Has it not been said that "the history of a nation is writ on the parchment of its drums?"

The march is distinctive of military music. Formerly it was merely an air played in quick tme. Now there are four kinds of military marches—slow, quick, double-quick and funeral—and the greatest composers have expended their skill on these productions. Handel, for example wrote the regimental "March-past" for "The Buffs" and Queen Victoria's mother wrote the slow march of the "First Life Guards." Each regiment is the proud possessor of its own peculiar march, of interesting historical origin, to which it marches past on every occasion.

MASCAGNI'S NEW OPERA

Music Which Produces a Sweet Sense of Comfort.

With the scene laid in Holland and Paris, taking place in the year 1853, "Lodoletta" the new opera by Mascagni has been given its first stage performance. This took place in Rome just thirty-sven years after this same composer created a name for himself in the same city with his Cavalleria Rusticana. The opera was produced under the direction of the composer himself and it won great praise from those who anticipated the work with keen expectation. The end Mascagni had in view in writing Lodoletta is shown in an interview with the author who said: "In writing Lodoletta, I have desired that the music should produce a sweet sense of comfort, and a restoring virtue for the moral life of humanity, passing as it is through the dramatic period of the present war. Therefore in this opera, look only for the simple intention of doing good, and I am confident that the spirit of the public will be in a condition to appreciate this intention for everywhere we see signs of a tendency back to purer things and to the humble joys of the domestic hearth."

Mr. J. M. Greene, managing director of the J. M. Greene Music Co., Limited, left this morning on a business trip to Belleville and Kingston, where this company has branch stores, and from whence record sales of the Williams pianos are reported.

With the closing of the schools comes the adjournment of musical instruction in the Conservatory of Music and by private teachers for the holiday months. Students, however, should avail thmselves of every opportunity to keep up their practice.

MUSIC AND ANATOMY

Singing, Like Other Human Activity, Learned By Imitation

Some lovers of music are beginning to grow weary at the insistence of some singing masters upon the structure of the vocal organs. Since Manuel Garcia invented the laryngyscope many thousands of his successors have believed it incumbent upon them to fill their minds with anatomical detail and to explain, to the last cell every organ of the throat. If knowledge of anatomy enabled men to sing, the throat specialists in the hospitals would have all the opera roles. Read the following instructions from a "vocal" instructor and shudder: "When the cricoid cartilage is held in position by the styloipharyngei and sternothyroidcles, the sterno-hyoid muscles draw the thyroid cartilage down over the cricoid, and the vocal cords being fixed to stationary points at their posterior ends, and to the movable tryroid at their anterior ends, become stretched with the down-swinging thyroid, while the crico-thyroid muscles becoming engaged, contract, and in so doing close the crico-thyroid niche, and hold the vocal chords in a stretched, breath-resisting condition. Should the cricoid move downward with the thyroid, the swinging action will be missing, and cord-stretching, proportionately lacking; while, should the thyroid and cricoid move upwards together, the tensing action will be completely reversed, and the vocal cords remain unstretched!"

That is a fine explanation, for a medical college. Its relation to a singing studio is not so clear. If that method of instruction were applied to the art of running how many half-milers would it develop? Imagine an athlete trainer giving a lecture on the cell-tissue of the anterior muscles of the left hind leg. Or, to make the parallel musical, imagine a piono-teacher giving a lecture on the seven bones of the human wrist—if seven be the correct number.

Singing, like every other human activity, is learned by imitation. It is the same in the learning of languages. Many a man who knows thoroughly all the grammar rules of French or Italian is unable to utter a single sentence correctly because he has been too timid to practice or because he has not been accustomed to hearing the language spoken. The schoolmaster who began the study of French by describing in revolting detail the mechanism of speech would be the laughing stock of his neighborhood. Yet we regard the singing anatomists with respect—whether they produce good pupils or not. We breathe without concerning ourselves about the action of the involuntary muscles which make breathing possible. In like manner should we sing.

Perhaps if pupils were taught to recognze good vowel tones when properly produced and then stimulated to self-criticism and imitation we should have fewer half-baked singers.

PIANOS AND HOMES.

Great Increase in the Sale of Baby and Miniature Grands.

An American piano manufacturer declares that in the United States in recent times there has been a great increase in the sale of Grands of various types. The Baby and the Miniature styles have become deservedly popular, not only because of their uniformly good tone, but because they lend themselves to home decoration. Musicians may not care to admit it, but the fact remains that pianos are sometimes bought because of their looks rather than because of their sound. The non-musical parents who have determined to give their children a chance for a musical education are somewhat reconciled to the expenditure for a good instrument if the parlor looks the better vecause of their investment. Fortunately that attitude does not persist, especially after the children become competent musicians. The value of the upright no one can deny, especially in these times of small houses. Its shape spells convenience. But the shape of the Grand with its flowing lines spells Art.

The best some men can do is to place themselves on home made pedestals.

HIGH VS. LOW VOICE.

Controversy as to Which Uses the Most Energy.

We have it from a professor of science that by actual and delicate measurements he has concluded that the baritone singer uses far more energy than the tenor, and that the bass uses more than either baritone or tenor. With the difference of ranges in voices there is a variation in the percentage, but generally speaking this professor declares that the tenor uses only from one-seventh to one-sixteenth of the lung power used by the baritone or bass.

The difference between the force used by the contralto and the soprano is also quite marked, and the low contralto uses at least ten times the force of the thrilling soprano. The Scientist in question gives by way of explanation that the tenor or soprano brings the vocal cords close together and keeps the edges only vibrating by the emission of air. The bass or contralto leaves the space between the cords wider open and has to vibrate much more of the membranes to a considerably larger amount of air required.

These statements, however, are not allowed to pass unchallenged by the London paper "Music." This paper asserts that it may be plausible enough from the point of view of the professor but to the singer it merely illustrates that foolish things may be said and done in the name of the so-called science. It says the singer knows that much more intensity and breath pressure is necessary in producing high notes than in low ones, and the same is true of the specially good lung capacity needed by possessors of high voices, breath-pressure being the main essential. The idea of singing at all with one-seventh to one-sixteenth of the lung power is ridiculous.

The loss of one-half of one's lung power, it is said, would prevent the emission of a well-produced high note. It is added that the professor may have measured the voice cords correctly, but he appears to be quite unaware of the scope of the science of acoustics.

When you hear a Talking Machine reproduce voices you hear sounds that resemble a "Punch and Judy," and which no more sound like the original singer than vinegar would taste like honey.—J. M. Greene Music Co., Charlotte Street.

SAND MARTINS BUILD QUEER, SAFE NESTS

World's Most Industrious Bird—Small Boys Meet Clever Opposition in These "Swallows"

A writer from Western Canada says: The sand martin or bank swallow, as it is sometimes called, is possibly the most industrious of its feathered brethren, as it persistently rebuilds its nest in the face of the sternest opposition. It is not a large bird, being about five inches long and of a dull greyish brown color, with white on throat and breast; but is extremely graceful as it appears on a calm evening skimming in beautiful curves almost to the ground, then gracefully rising above one's head into the blue.

In Strange Places

They usually build their nests beneath the beams in vacant huts, in eaves of old stables or in steep cut banks of the rivers, and are particularly partial to a district where limestone abounds. In these banks they have been known to excavate two or three feet, working with their bills and feet, making a hole just about big enough for a man's hand at the entrance and widening gradually at the inner part. These holes are usually about four feet from the crest of the bank and only a few inches apart. They are lined with dry rootlets of grass or feathers. On these downy cushions are laid the five little white eggs with spots of reddish brown, where the mother bird may hatch her young.

Crows Are Enemies

The moisture necessary for making the walls firm is readily carried in their beaks from the shore of the river, and while these banks are practically safe from intrusion by man, the crows learn to know the hatching season and are on the alert to devour the young swallows as they emerge from the nests. The small boy has been known to lie flat on mother earth, and reaching over the edge, obtain the eggs, but it is a risky undertaking as the steep banks are of shifting sand. From the river bank below, the hill with its myriads of holes presents a honeycomb effect, and almost seems to move as the little heads peep up and out.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Canada's Backward Position Shown in a Government Report

In 1910 the Dominion Government appointed a Royal Commission to enquire into the needs and equipment of the Dominion respecting industrial training and technical education, and into the systems and methods of technical instruction obtaining in other countries. The following is from the report of the Commissioners, showing the need of industrial and technical education in Canada: "Until recently Canada was an interested and debating spectator of the movements for industrial efficiency. The training of young workers to deftness in manipulation and technique, and to an understanding of the principles and sciences which lie at the base of all trades and industries, was not provided for in the courses. When manufactured goods were wanted in increasing quantities and variety, and towns and cities were growing by leaps and bounds, it was discovered that there had been practically no organization of means for preparing the hundreds of thousands of young people to beome the best qualified artisans, farmers and housekeepers in the world. The country's growing wealth was ample for the cost; but the educational work was becoming bookish in the extreme, and, worse than that, was developing into school systems that had few points of contact with or relation to industrial, agricultural or housekeeping life."

WEDDING RING FINGER

There is a very ancient belief that a blood vessel extenus from the base of the fourth finger of the left hand to the heart, whence, as is alleged, the choice of that finger for the wedding ring. In litetature allusion to it is made as the "vena amoris," or love's vein. Unlike most notions of the kind, this idea is entirely correct, for a vein does arise directly at the root of the ring finger and, running over the back of the hand, finds it way through the "royal" vein, the "axillary," the "subclavian" and the "innominate" to the heart. This vessel is very conspicuous, standing out clearly when the hand hangs limply downward.

The reason for putting the ring on the fourth finger, however, is probably quite different. Its use for the purpose goes back to prehistoric times, and its selection is likely to have been due to the fact that it is the least free in its movements of all fingers. Accordingly, a ring encircling it will interfere less with the use of the hand than if placed on any other digit. It happens that the extensor tendon of the fourth finger is attached to those of the third and fifth fingers by cross-bands which restrict the movements of the ring finger considerably. Anybody may test this for himself by holding the third and fifth fingers forcibly bent and trying at the same time to extend the ring finger.

Haill the Dairy Cow

Because she converts a larger percentage of her feed into a form suitable for human consumption, the dairy cow is considered a more efficient producer of food than any other animal. Aniamis slaughtered for beef return only about one-fourth as much of the energy in their feed as milch cows.

An auto tire will not be hurt by the rise of a few pounds' pressure due to running. Tests have shown that it is not possible to obtain an increase in pressure due to overheating while running sufficient to injure the tire.

Francis Scott Key

Beneath the monument erected to his memory in the old historic cemetery of Frederick, Maryland, is the resting place of Francis Scott Key, writer of the "Star Spangled Banner," which our Allies and American cousins are singing now as they never sang it before. There in the same place are the graves of Barbara F[illegible]tchie, Whittier's character familiar to us all in our school days; Admiral Schley, hero of the battle of Santiago; and many confederate soldiers who fell in battle in that district during Lee's first invasion of Maryland.

Applying Indian Folk Themes

Several composers who have realized the beauty of the Indian themes have harmonized them. Charles Wakefield Cadman, whose song "The Land of the Skyblue Water," is a household classic, is one of those composers; so also is Alberto Bimboni, who made an arrangement of a Sioux Indian Song for Mme. Marcella Sembrich, which the celebrated soprano used recently in one of her historical recitals.

Peculiarities of the Indian Rhythm

It is remarkable, says Miss Densmore, that the Indians do not keep a regular rhythm throughout a song, and yet preserve the rhythmic completeness of the song as a whole. By experiment, Miss Densmore has found that the melodic and rhythmic forms of the songs express their ideas.

When Mme. Sembrich heard the song of the Sioux Sun Dance, she was quick to recognize the charm of the native rhythm and the beauty of the melody. The song was greatly enjoyed by the audience at her recital, and will be published shortly, with Miss Densmore's rhythmic translation and the original Sioux words.

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, July 4.—The First of July went off very quietly in our village, the only celebration being a Red Cross tea which was held on the grounds adjoining Coronation Hall, from 4 until 6 o'clock. The grounds looked very pretty with the decorations of red, white and blue, and the many small tables. The villagers turned out in large numbers, making the affair a huge success.

Among the school teachers who have arrived home for the summer vacation are the Misses Maud and Grace Laidley, Ethel Colwell, Phyllis Brown, Carrie Post, Jessie Nichols, Lulu Bushnell.

Miss Clarke, principal of the public school here, left for her home in Ennismore on Friday. Miss Clarke's many friends in Omemee will regret to learn that she is not coming back.

Miss McNeil of Toronto was the guest of Mrs. Stanley Sluggitt over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Parsons and little daughter Edna, Toronto, were visitors to Omemee over Sunday.

Mr. George Carey of Toronto spent the week-end under the parental roof.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray of Peterborough were visitors to Omemee over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lang of Toronto were among the holiday visitors to the village.

Mrs. Harry Shearer and Miss Maye McCaffrey of Buckhorn are spending a week with their father, Mr. C. McCaffrey.

Miss Lyla Beatty, of the State Hospial saff in Rocheser, N. Y., arrived home for a month's vacation Monday evening.

Miss Amy Hill of Mitchell, who has been visiting the Misses Parsons, left on Tuesday for Peterborough, where she will visit her uncle, Mr. T. A. Rehill.

Mrs. Rutherford and daughter were visitors to Peterborough last week.

Dr. and Mrs. Thompson and children of Tweed were among the holiday visitors to Omemee and were the guests of Mr. Chas. McCaffrey.

Mr. Chamberlain of the Hydro-Electric Co., spent the holiday with his wife and family in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lamb and daughter Jessie were visitors to Dalrymple over Sunday.

Rev. J. W. Downe preached a farewell sermon Sunday evening to a large congregation, after which Mr. W. Kennedy, on behalf of the congregation, presented the departing minister with a purse, accompanied by all good wishes of his people. Mr. Downe, though overcome for the moment by surprise, thanked his people for their great kindness and assured them that the latch-string would always be on the outside of the parsonage for his many friends, should they find it convenient to visit him in Pickering. Mr. and Mrs. Downe and family left Monday morning for their new home.

Miss Rita Johnson, who is attending the Academy of Music in Toronto, was home over the holiday.

Rev. Calvert Carew of Toronto spent the week-end with his brother, Mr. S. Carew.

The many friends of Mr. Charles McDairmid ("Scotty") will deeply regret to learn that he is reported missing in Saturday's casualty list.

A large number of young people from Omemee attended the W. I. garden party held in Reaboro on July 1st.

Mr. Bennett of Toronto spent the week-end with his daughter, Mrs. Wylie.

Miss Eva Fee, who has been teaching near Orillia, arrived home Friday evening.

The English Church garden party was a decided success, considering the inclemency of the weather. The function was held in the basement of the church and the people turned out in large numbers. The sum of $85 was raised. The play entitled "The Old Oak Farm" was given by the young people of the church, and was a creditable performance, all the characters having excelled themselves. The pantomime "Wanted, a Wife," was decidedly funny, seven young ladies applying for the position. The beauty of the young ladies did not swerve the bachelor in the least, he having studied human nature to know that beauty is only skin deep, and that other qualifications are necessary to man's happiness.

Dr. and Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Staples of Lindsay motored to Omemee on Monday and were the guests of Mrs. Wm Earl.

Lieut. Jamieson of Bethany was a visitor to Omemee last week.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCaffrey were visitors to Omemee over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Scott were the guests of Mrs. H. Shields of Peterborough over Sunday.

Mr. Dave Morden of Peterborough was a holiday visitor to Omemee.

Rev. Mr. McCutcheon and Mrs. McCutcheon of Beaverton motored to Omemee on Monday and were the guests of Mrs. F. Fee.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Rowan, of Bethany, were in town this week.

Three rinks of Millbrook bowlers took part in the tournament at Oshawa on Monday. The rink skipped by Mr. L. C. Russell won two games and would probably have carried off second prize in consolation had they remained to finish. The other rinks skipped by G. W. Sayles and Mr. S. E. Eakins were downed in the first round. The following were the Millbrook rinks who took part: W. L. C. Russel, skip. Basil Richards, Hutchinson, H. B. Allen, R. Deyell, R. Stone, F. Bradley, S. E. Eakins, skip. C. W. Richards, J. C. Kriegger, W. B. McCririck, G. W. Sayles, skip. It was a splendid trip by auto and the boys enjoyed it very much, even though they were not successful in winning out.

Swiftly another year has fled, for Thursday last was again Decoration Day, by which is meant that the Oddfellows, and this year for the first time the "Rebeccas" muster in full strength and proceed to the different cemeteries in which their deceased brethren lie, decorate their graves with choice flowers, and hold a brief memorial service in each. The turnout last Thursday was exceedingly creditable to all concerned. The men looked well and the ladies lent much charm to the company. About 2.30 on their kindly and brotherly errand, the long procession of cars started and seven cemeteries were visited in rapid succession. The graves were found in every case to be well cared for, an improvement on former years, and about 6.30 the lodge returned to Millbrook, highly gratified, for all had been accomplished that was planned. Those who gave addresses were Revs. Dr. Lee, William Higgs, W. H. Clarke and Canon Allen, and their messages were timely and appropriate.

They never quite leave us, our friends who have passed
Through the shadows of death to the sunlight above
A thousand sweet memories are holding them fast
To the places they blessed with their presence and love.

Died, in St. Marys, on Thursday, June 28, 1917, Jessie Chambers, relict of the late John Porter, aged 71 years. The funeral took place from Mr. W. J. F. Gillott's undertaking parlors, Millbrook, on Saturday, June 30, at 9.30 a.m. Interment at Presbyterian Cemetery, Centreville.

BAD DREAMS ARE SYMPTOMS

Ill Health the Cause—Many Alarming Symptoms of Women's Ailments—How Cured.

Paterson, N.J.—"I thank you for the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies as they have made me feel happy and healthy. Sometime ago I felt so run down, had pains in my back and side, was very irregular, tired, nervous, had such bad dreams, did not feel like eating and had short breath. I read your advertisement in the newspapers and decided to try a bottle of Lydie E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It worked from the first bottle, so I took a second and a third, also a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and now I am just as well as any other woman. I advise every woman, single or married, who is troubled with any of the aforesaid ailments, to try your wonderful Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and I am sure they will help her to get rid of her troubles."—Mrs. ELSIE J. VANDER SANDE, 7 Godwin Street, Paterson, N. J.

Women suffering with any form of female ills, or any symptoms that they do not understand, are invited to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. (confidential), and receive advice wholly free of cost.

BACK FROM THE WAR.

Privates Hunter and Bird Reached Home Last Evening.

There were a large number of friends and relatives at the G. T. R. station last night to welcome home Private T. Hunter, 588 Chamberlain street, and Private K. Bird, 483 Albert street, both of whom have spent many months overseas. The city reception committee met the train and took the men and their friends to their homes in autos.

OBITUARY

CHARLES HENRY JAMES

Charles Henry James, a munition inspector at the Henry Hope Co. died at the family residence, 174 Stewart street, last evening, after an illness of about five weeks duration. He was born in England 45 years ago, and is survived by a wife and three children.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

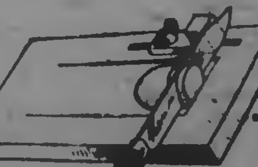
To decrease the number of accidents a French city is building a street with a separate roadway for each kind of traffic, motor, horse and foot.

Solidified alcohol in the cake form is coming into use in Germany for cooking and other purposes for which small amounts of heat are sufficient.

A cooking utensil on the double boiler principle has been patented in which the inner and outer sections are permanently attached together.

An Englishman has invented combs to be sewed to women's hats to hold them in place without the use of pins.

Slicing Board For Kitchen



The board illustrated was suggested by a device used by a "sandwich man," and proved practical for use in the home and especially in the camp. Potatoes, or other articles of food to be sliced, are placed in the hollow portion of the board and moved against the edge at the right, under the knife. The guide, which may be adjusted by means of the wing nut, permits slices of varying thickness to be cut.—Popular Mechanics.

FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

Canadian Pacific Railway Houses and the West

The houses which the C.P.R. is building in the West for the returned soldiers will cost them about $1,000 each, with out offices. They will consist of four rooms each—two bedrooms, dining room and kitchen. Each farm will consist of 160 acres and there will be 80 additional acres which may be availed of in the course of time, and as the settler concludes that he can work it. The C.P.R. has several designs for homes which will be submitted to the intending settlers. These offer a variety of design to suit different tastes and different pockets, it may be said. The settler can choose a house which will cost him $2,000, but the payments will be made exceedingly easy. In all there are probably 8,000,000 acres of land held by speculators in the West; but, apart from that, there are literally hundreds of millions of acres of cultivable land lying idle over the West—not close to the tracks, of course, but good land which many have longed for so ardently that they have sat on the steps of the land office all night to be the first in the morning to get their application in. The C.P.R. is going on on its own account with the colony homes; but it expects that the Government will shortly outline a plan of a comprehensive nature which can be generally applied to the situation.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm labourers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honourably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

COFFEE CUSTARD MERINGUE

Housewives Will Find Careful Guide In Making This Dish

Whip the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth with a very little powdered sugar. Heat one pint of milk, adding to it a few grains of baking soda. Lay the meringue upon it in large spoonfuls and turn when the lower side is poached. Lift out with a skimmer and lay upon a sieve to cool and drain. When all the meringues are out of the milk pour it upon the yolks of three eggs that have been beaten with half a cupful of sugar; turn into the upper part of the double boiler, and cook—but without boiling—until well thickened. Remove from the fire; flavor to taste with very strong, clear coffee. The coffee extract is excellent for flavoring, but it must be carefully used. When both meringues and custard are cold put the former in a deep glass dish, and pour the custard over them. The meringues will rise to the top, coated with custard. Chill on the ice before serving.

Wash to Perfume the Breath

Cloves, bruised, three teaspoonfuls; boiling water, one pint. Infuse for an hour in a covered vessel—exactly as when making tea. When cold add a few drops of coriander oil and three tablespoonfuls of listerine. Wash the mouth with this as often as may seem necessary.

AN HISTORIC CONTEST

Bill Donovan Pitched a Two-hit Game in Long-remembered Duel

Because its winning meant the pennant and a share in the world's series spoils, the closing American League contest in 1908 is ranked as one of the game's greatest contests.

Four days before the close Cleveland, Detroit or Chicago could have taken the flag. It was the greatest finish in the League's history. Chicago, following a memorable duel between Walsh and Joss at Cleveland, met Detroit in Chicago, having to win three straight games to get the flag. The team took the first two and fans were goggle-eyed on the final day.

"WILD BILL" DONOVAN

Jennings out-lucked Jones, having Bill Donovan in reserve, while Chicago had used Walsh. And Donovan was "right." "Doc" White, usually master of the Tigers, started, but was lifted in the first, with two runs over. That inning gave Detroit the game, for Donovan was invincible, holding the Sox to two hits and blanking them.

What might have been will never be known, because of a play in the first inning—a play that gave Detroit the game. McIntyre opened with a single, Bush fanned and Crawford doubled, McIntyre stopping at third. White put Cobb in a hole, when Billy Sullivan called for a pitch out, to catch Crawford off second.

White pitched out, but Cobb, reaching, lifted the ball to left for three bases, double crossing the Sox and scoring two runs. White retired in favor of Walsh then, but the White Sox broke under the strain and successive errors by Isbell, Walsh and Tannehill sent two more runs across. The final score was 7-0 in Detroit's favor with six errors tabbed up against Chicago.

Old garden hose may be used to protect spark plugs by cutting it into the correct lengths and forcing into place around the projecting part of the plugs. This forms a good method of carrying plugs loose in the tool box.

The work of the garden creates an interest in the home, and an influence for good in the lives of those directly responsible as well as those of the neighborhood.

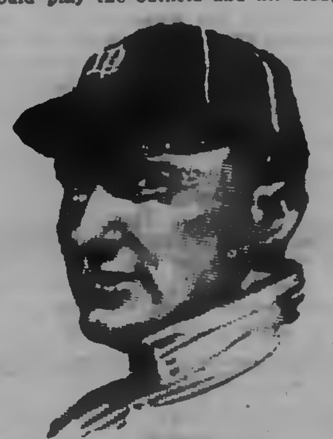
COBB'S FUNNY STORY

Tyrus Says This is the Funniest Thing He Ever Saw

The funniest thing I ever saw or heard in my life happened on the ball field at Philadelphia, says the great Ty Cobb. It was during a game between the Atheltics and Detroit in 1908, and in those days a game between those teams meant a battle for blood.

We arrived at Philadelphia with the team crippled because Davy Jones was sick and Jennings was forced to send George Mullin, our great old pitcher, to the outfield. You know George could play the outfield and hit along with any of them, and probably had he chosen to be an outfielder instead of pitcher, he would have been one of the best.



TY COBB

George and Tommy Connolly, the umpire, never got along very well because George always was kidding him, and that day Connolly was working back of the bat. On the old Athletic grounds was a bell that hung from the stand in right field and was used to start the games.

It was a hard game, and along in the seventh inning a foul tip hit Connolly on the ankle, and he fell to the ground. He was badly hurt, for such blows hurt a man more than he will admit.

Everyone ran up excepting George who dashed for the bell and commenced clanging it—one, two, three—counting Tommy out.

The players and the crowd commenced to laugh and Tommy, hearing the bell, forgot all about his injury. He jumped to his feet, chased clean out to first base, and put Mullin out of the game. He did not speak to George for five years, but finally they made up and are good friends now.

ISN'T GOLF TERRIBLE?

Women Become So Mannish And Horrible, They Say

A writer recently bemoaned the fact that women have taken to golf. "It has made them mannish to an extreme, it has brought about a corsetless age, has made women muscular and has hardened their hands robbing them of their feminity."

Isn't that too bad? Isn't it just horrible when you think what golf has done; that it has transformed its feminine devotees from pale, anemic house decorations to red blooded, clear-eyed women, with buoyant health. Was it a doctor or a corset dealer who inspired that condemnation of golf?

What Shall We Do For Our Crippled Soldier?

By J. S. DENNIS, of the C.P.R.

It is interesting and gratifying to note the application of thought and skill with which Canada is undertaking the great problem of caring for those of our soldiers who have received injuries in the battles against the Huns. Napoleon would change his opinion that "Republics are ungrateful" could the "Little Corporal" learn of the plans now being worked out for the care and retraining of our boys who are returning crippled and maimed from the trenches of Flanders and Belgium, so that they will be able again to take their places in the ranks of self-supporting soldiers of industry.

We have only to turn back to the history of the civil war to learn the reason for Napoleon's declaration. The maimed veterans of the Union Army were received as heroes, banqueted and feted, provided with artificial limbs, consigned to the class of public charity, and all too soon permitted to drift into the almost hopeless battle for a livelihood in a world that promptly forgot their heroic deeds. Little wonder that alms houses under the name of soldier homes were soon found necessary in every section of the country.

Canada is going about this great problem in an entirely different manner. The Military Hospitals Commission has inaugurated the principle that it is as much the duty of the State to prepare the crippled soldier for the battles of civil life as it is to provide him with the proper medical and surgical care for his injuries. Vocational training even during the period of convalescence in the hospitals, has already demonstrated the wisdom of this plan. Many men who have suffered such severe losses as that of an arm or a leg, or the sight of an eye, have been enabled through the training provided under the Commissions directions to earn a better living than before they enlisted for overseas.

But so far Canada has only worked out the test, as efficiency men say. It has been demonstrated that vocational training of our crippled soldiers is an economic saving to the body politic—that their value to the state is greatly increased and that in place of being public charges they can be made independent and self-supporting. There is an insistent demand for a broadening of operations however. The Military Hospitals Commissions and the Provincial Commissions have not as yet been able to handle all cases promptly. We cannot blind ourselves to the fact that we will have a much larger number of charges yet to care for. Were the maimed and crippled from the Canadian Army now in the hospitals in France and England to be suddenly transported to our shores we would be literally swamped with patients and could care for but a small percentage.

This enlargement of the scope of this work should not be undertaken upon a temporary basis. It will take time to properly train these men. Some will be more adept than others. But the initial investment required to build training schools and homes will bring a big return during the years to come.

At the present time the United States maintains nine National Homes for disabled soldiers, which were erected at a cost of $6,771,427. The number cared for in these homes is upwards of 25,000 yearly—mostly disabled veterans of the Civil War, which was ended more than 50 years ago. In addition to these national homes practically each one of the Northern States maintain state homes for disabled soldiers, in which some 12,000 veterans are cared for annually. These homes are practically alms houses with Federal and State Governments providing the maintenance.

No attempt was made in establishing these homes to train the maimed so that they could overcome the handicap of their injuries. The loss of an arm or limb, or an eye was considered of such a permanent nature that the patient must be cared for as a public charge for the balance of his life. Perhaps this was because of the lack of knowledge of the wonders of vocational training; perhaps it was but the shifting of governmental responsibility. It must be said, of course, that all disabled soldiers of the Union Army did not enter these homes. There were many who fought out their individual handicap and finally succeeded in training themselves to fight life's battles successfully.

Let us assume that Canada invests one-half of the money in so-called soldier homes that the United States did, roughly, $5,000,000, and that we started out to make these homes technical schools as well as hospitals. How many lines of industry could eventually be supplied with trained workers from such a source! Canada needs skilled farmers to wrest the wealth that nature has so abundantly stowed away in our prairies, or even in the farms of the older settlements of Quebec and Ontario. What better way for the state to provide these expert farmers than to educate as many of these disabled soldiers as show a leaning toward agriculture!

There is too much haphazard employment at the best of times; and with the flood of men having to be placed simultaneously, there is a greatly increased danger of shoving them into places without regard to suitability. Putting square pegs into round holes does not pay. We must use brains and ingenuity in forming our plans for doing the best that can be done for and with the returning men. Good people often say to them "Nothing is too good for you." It is easy to talk like that, in vague generalities, but we have got to come down to particulars and find out in detail what is best for the men—yes, and for each particular man, with his individual capacities and aptitudes.

Surely the soldier who has risked his life and lost his limb or has been otherwise disabled, deserves the very best that the state possibly can give him. It is not charity—but justice. The productive value of these retrained soldiers will be an addition to our assets rather than a charge and a liability.

During the fifty years since the Civil War the United States has paid out more than a billion dollars in pensions to veterans and their dependents. No one can deny the duty of the state to provide for the disabled soldiers. The pension is but a partial payment of the debt to the disabled hero. The debt includes, as well, all possible help so that he may, with the assistance of his pension and the special training in suitable vocations, be able to provide as well or better for his family as he could have done before he volunteered his services in defence of the Empire. This, like all other assistance, however, merely puts the man in a position to compete on an equal footing. He is in a better position to fight the "Battle of Life." But no matter how much the state helps him it is up to the man himself to make the best use of the advantages and to succeed.

WAGNER AND LAJOIE

Why Right Hand Sluggers Do Not Get On So Often

Frank G. Menke writes: Once upon a time we asked Wilbert Robinson, the brainy Dodger leader: "If a youngster, aspiring to become a big leaguer, asked you from which side he should swing at a ball, what would you tell him?" Robinson, who has been in baseball since 1882 answered: "My first advice to him would be to swing from the side in which he packed the most shoulder power. That's the main essential in hitting. In cases where a youngster has almost equal power in his shoulders, I would advise that he bat left handed, especially if he were somewhat speedy.

"A left handed hitter always is from three to six feet nearer to first base than is the right hander. When a right hander takes his position he is on the far side of the plate; the left hander is on the near side. When the right hander hits the ball the swing pulls him farther away from first, whereas, a swing actually sends a left hander nearer to the initial bag. When you take into consideration how often during a season that a throw beats a man to first by just one stride you can appreciate the great advantage there is in hitting left handed. But this fact shouldn't influence a youngster who bats left handed normally to shift to the other side—unless he has as much or greater power in his left shoulder as his right."

And then we shifted the subject to Lajoie and Wagner. "How much better to you think those two men would have batted if they had been left handed hitters—and fast afoot?"

"From 20 to 40 points each season during their prime," answered Robby. "Both men rank among the greatest sluggers the game has produced. They never scored fluke hits. When they made safeties they earned them by terrible walloping.

"At least 25 times each year Lajoie and Wagner have been beaten out of hits on infield bounces they arrived at first just a fraction of a second behind the ball. That means the stride. Batting from the left side would have put that stride in their favor and those outs would have been hits. But both those men are normal right handers. They have the real swinging power in their shoulders. Had they shifted to the port side they would have gained that stride but would have sacrificed their mighty slugging ability. So in their case, as in the case of any normal right hander, it would be folly to change to the left side."

HOW FIRES COMMENCE

Many Ways In Which Smokers Become Responsible

Smokers are responsible for many fires. Along any street, cigar and cigarette stubs, and partly burned matches may be seen almost everywhere, carelessly thrown aside by smokers. Similar carelessness occurs in public and office buildings, business places and factories. Men enter office buildings where smoking is not allowed, drop their cigars on the stairs, on the floors of the corridor or possibly in the elevator, where they may roll to the bottom of an elevator shaft, into a possible accumulation of waste paper, and cause a fire. Others forgetfully throw their cigar or cigarette stubs and matches into the wastepaper basket. If the basket is of combustible material the smouldering stub will eventually burst into flame.

Factory smoking is another serious hazard. While most factories have strict rules against smoking, it is a common practice for employees to "light up" before leaving, and drop their lighted matches; these, falling among inflammable materials, later break into flame. Many evening fires in factories and business places may be traced to this cause. Cigar cuttings and broken prisms in sidewalk lights are other common receptacles for these dangerous fire-starters, pedestrians dropping stubs and matches regardless of results.

An insulating material made from milk curds has been invented in Russia.

HENRY—PARKER

Christ Church, Omemee, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday, June 27, when the Rev. E. James united in matrimony Beatrice Maud Henry, youngest daughter of Mr. Alex Henry, Emily, and Herbert Johnson Parker, of Omemee. The young couple were unattended and will reside in Omemee.

BEATTY—MONCRIEF

A very pretty wedding took place at Trinity Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, when in the presence of a number of their friends and relatives, the Rev. Dr. Wilson united in marriage, Hazel Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Moncrief of North Monaghan, and Mr. Archie Harold Beatty of Otonabee. Miss Margaret L. Johnston was the bridesmaid, and Mr. Norman Moncrief the best man.

The bride was beautifully attired in a natural shade silk Champaigne suit, wearing a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses and carried a kid Bible with streamers. Her hat was a white leghorn trimmed with pink satin. Mr. George King presided at the organ.

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty left on the afternoon C. P. R. train for Toronto and points west, and on their return will reside on the Moncrief Farm in North Monaghan.

HUNTER—DAVIS.

A quiet wedding took place at the George Street Methodist parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, July 4th, when Miss Mary Davis was united in marriage to Mr. James Hunter, Aylmer street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Thomas. The happy couple left on the afternoon C. P. R. train for their honeymoon, and on their return will reside at 585 Aylmer street.

CANADIAN TROOPS REACH FRONT

ENGLAND IS IN NO DANGER OF BANKRUPTCY

War Will Never Be Terminated by Financial Collapse.

CAN STAND THE STRAIN.

The Outlay Is Heavy, but the Revenue Exceeds All Estimates.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, July 6.—In a cable to the Tribune from London, Arthur S. Draper says Britain has spent more than three and a half billion dollars for all purposes. Since April of three years ago she has spent nearly twenty five billions and collected over six and a quarter billions in revenue, the differece representing loans to Allies and the Dominions.

At first sight, he says, these colossal figures might be expected to crush Great Britain and bring the war to an end but further examination shows such predictions to be folly. Placing the total debt at twenty five billions it represents approximately two years income of the British people while the total capital wealth of the country is conservatively estimated at one hundred billions. The revenue continues to surpass all estimates and this year's will reach three and a half billion, or three times any peace year revenue. The strain has been great, he concluded, but there is no danger of a financial collapse.

FARMER IS RUN OVER BY WAGON

ALEX. LAING SERIOUSLY INJURED ON FARM IN N. MONAGHAN.

A serious accident occurred shortly before noon to-day at the Dobbin Farm in North Monaghan, when Mr. Alex Laing was run over by a load of hay and sustained very serious internal injuries.

Mr. Laing had loaded a wagon of hay and was busy fixing the binders when he fell between the horses and frightened them, and the load of hay passed over him.

He was picked up and taken to the house where Dr. Malcolm McCulloch was at once summoned, and on his arrival and noting the serious condition of the injured man, ordered his removal to the Nicholls Hospital, which was done in Comstock's ambulance.

CONSCRIPTION BILL PASSES SECOND READING BY MAJORITY OF SIXTY-THREE, TWENTY-NINE LIBERALS VOTING WITH THE GOVERNMENT

Heavy Adverse Votes on Six Months Hoist and Referendum---Disorder Marks Closing Scenes When Vote Was Reached at 5.10 This Morning---French Members Solid Against Bill---New Liberal Amendment Designed as Vote of Censure on Administration Also Voted Down.

Bill passes second reading by vote of 118 to 55. Majority 63.

Barrette amendment for six months hoist voted down 156 to 9. Majority 147.

Laurier's amendment providing for a referendum defeated, 111 to 62. Majority 49.

(Special to The Review)

OTTAWA, July 6.—The debate on the Borden bill and the Laurier and Barrette amendments was concluded at 2.45 a.m. The Barrette amendment was beaten by 156 to 9, the Laurier amendment was beaten by 49 and the bill carried by a majority of 63 at 5.10 a.m.

Considerable disorder marked the proceedings, especially when Mr. Copp introduced a Liberal amendment censuring the Government's administration of the Patriotic Fund and provision for soldiers' dependents. This was supported by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and condemned by Sir Robert Borden as merely a dilatory motion. The house goes on with the bill in committee of the whole to-day.

FRENCH QUEBEC SOLID.

French Quebec was solid against the government except Blondin and Sevigny. Impassioned speeches by French Canadians, praying for a reference to the people, marked the night's proceedings.

HOW THE HOUSE DIVIDED.

OTTAWA, July 6.—The vote on the Conscription Bill came off at 5.10 this morning. The bill was carried 118 to 55, a majority of 63. Prior to the vote on the main motion the six months' hoist was defeated by 165 to 9, the nine in favor being all Quebec Nationalists, including Hon. Mr. Patenaude, former secretary of state. The Laurier referendum amendment was then defeated, 111 to 62.

LIBERALS OPPOSE REFERENDUM.

Nineteen Liberals, namely, Graham, Pardee, Guthrie, Carvell, Maclean, Cruise, Charlton, Turriff, Nesbitt, McLean, McCraney, Loggie, Dr. Clark, Buchanan, Douglas, Champagne, Neely and Ross voted with the majority against the referendum.

SPECIAL AMENDMENT DEFEATED.

A special amendment by Copp of New Brunswick, seconded by Molloy, providing for more adequate support of the dependents of the men at the front was then defeated, 115 to 55, after which the house voted on the main motion with the above result.

LIBERALS SUPPORT BILL.

The following Liberals voted with the Government on the second reading: Pardee, Guthrie, Carvell, MacLean (Halifax), Cruise, Charlton, Turriff, Graham, Nesbitt, Ducan, Ross, Nesbitt, McMillan, Macnutt, Buchanan Loggie, McLean (New Brunswick), McCraney, Clark, Sinclair, Champagne, German, McCoig, Neely, Levi, Thompson, Truax, Douglas and Knowles. Only twelve English speaking Liberals voted against the bill.

The following Conservatives voted against the second reading: Patenaude, Descarries, Forget, Paquet, Girard, Boulay, Guibault, Bellemare, Barrett.

Only four members from west of the Ottawa river voted against the conscription bill. They are: Oliver (Edmonton), Murphy (Russell), Molloy (Provencher), and Proulx (Prescott), all Liberals.

Million and a Half Germans Have Been Killed Since War Began.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, July 6.—Artillery fighting was rather spirited for a time between the Miette and the Aisne. Three attacks on small posts in this region were repulsed by our fire. In Champagne there was very active artillery fighting especially at Lecasque and Leteton. We easily repulsed enemy attacks west of Mont Carnihet and southwest of Tahure. On the left bank of the Meuse, on the Vedun front, our batteries directed destructive fire on German defenses west and north of Hill 304. Patrol encounters near Louvemont on right bank of river enabled us to take prisoners. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

Huns Killed Total 1,500,000.

The total number of Germans killed from the beginning of the war to March, 1917, is not less than 1,500,000, according to an estimate reached by French general headquarters. This computation has been made after study of documents bearing on the subject.

From April 15 to June 30, the Franco-British troops on the western front captured 63,222 prisoners, including 1,278 officers, says an official summary of the operations issued today. The war material taken in the same period includes 509 guns, 503 trench mortars and 1,318 machine guns.

A German airplane attack on the Russian aviation base on the south end of the Island of Oesel, off the Gulf of Riga, was rendered futile by gunfire from Russian ships and land batteries, says an official announcement. The statement reads:

"On the Baltic Sea on July 3 nine enemy airplanes executed two flights over the southern extremity of the Island of Oesel. Twenty-four bombs were dropped on batteries, hangers, and buildings. The enemy's attacks were diverted by the concentrated fire of our navel units and shore batteries, which prevented the bombs from hitting their mark. There were no casualties or dama-

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON July 6.—The enemy gained a temporary footing on the ridge west of Doljeli, south-west of Lake Doiran, but was driven out by a counter-attack, says the official report from the Macedonian front. Nineteen tons of explosives were dropped and considerable damage inflicted by British airplanes in June.

Troops in Egypt

The following official from the Egyptian front was given out here to-day:—"The situation is unchanged. There has been considerable artillery fighting. We put out of action thirteen enemy guns and destroyed many gun emplacements in June. Sickness of troops was lower than the average in Egypt in the five years preceding the war."

PREMIER ASSURES PARLIAMENT THAT DRAFT WILL BE ENFORCED

Government Evidently in Earnest With Regard to Conscription---Copp's Amendment Branded by Sir Robert as a Purely Dilatory Measure.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

OTTAWA, July 6.—A. B. Copp's amendment was an unexpected and eleventh-hour feature. It read: "That further consideration of the Bill be deferred until such time as such adequate provision has been made for the dependents of the men on active service as will remove the necessity of raising money by public subscription for their support."

It caused the utmost disorder Sir Robert Borden characterized it as a purely dilatory amendment intended as such and nothing else and said the Government would not allow any such amendment to stand in the way of the second reading of the Bill. To ease the honorable gentleman's mind he would also tell him that the Bill would be enforced.

Frank Wilson and Roy Sanford Are Held Without Bail.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BELLEVILLE, July 6.—As a result of investigations by the Belleville police and detectives of the C. P.R. and C.N.R. Frank Wilson, aged 18 years, and Roy Sanford, aged 17 years, both of this city are under arrest charged with having on June 19th broken a lock and opened a switch in the C.P.R. station yard in this city and having on June 29th broken the lock off a switch and placed obstructions in said switch on the line of the Canadian Northern railway. In the latter case a passenger train proceeding westward was partially derailed.

The accused appeared before Police Magistarte Masson today and were remanded to jail for a week as the Crown was not prepared to proceed. Bail was requested but refused.

PTE. KEARNS TELLS HOW HE WENT OVER THE PARAPET

Gallant Youth From this City was Wounded in the Charge.

PTE. W .D. KEARNS.

Mrs. W. J. Kearns, 492 Elm St., has received the following letter from her son, Private W. D. Kearns of the 87th Canadians, and who was wounded in the recent fighting. He is now at the Military Hospital at Boscombe, Eng., and is in the Lady Wills Ward:

Dear Mother:—Just a few lines to let you know that I am in a nice hospital in England being nursed back to health again, I got wounded in the right arm and shoulder on June 8th about 12.50 or a quarter to one. Well, mother, I will try and describe our preparations for the trip over the top and my experiences up till the time I was wounded. About a week before we were to pull this stunt off, as we call it in France, we were practising going over taped line on a field back of our trenches. The taped ground that we were practising on was just the same as if we were walking over Fritz's own ground, because it was laid out by the Engineers and the plan was taken from an aerial photo some of the flying corps had taken for our benefit.

Well, after we had practised on this ground for a few days we moved into our trenches and then the artillery started cutting his wire. We were taken out of the front line and sent back to some supporting trenches while the artillery was playing on the wire. We went out about ten in the morning and did not get back until about six at night. During that time the artillery was continually pounding at his wire so you can see what a strain it is to be under a few hours' bombardment.

Well, we were to go over at a quarter to twelve (midnight), so we took up our positions in the front line and waited until the picked time.

About sixteen or seventeen minutes to twelve we got the order to "stand to" and the next thing we heard was the pounding of the guns and then we we just put our hand on the parapet and "hopped over" into No Man's Land, and waited while the barrage played on his front line and when it lifted you charge the front line, but I was in the second wave, and when our officer a fine

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1917

THE BILL NOT YET SAFE.

THE CONSCRIPTION BILL has passed its second reading in the House of Commons by a vote of 118 to 55, a majority of 63. Before this result was reached the Barrette amendment calling for the six months' hoist was voted down by a majority of 147, and the Laurier amendment for a referendum was defeated by a majority of 49. The vote on the bill itself was taken at ten minutes past five this morning after a wearisome night session.

The bill, however, is not yet safe, as its adoption last night simply advances it another stage. It will be taken up today again, the House sitting as a committee of the whole and it is on the third reading that the real test will come. The chances are that the measure will yet be talked to death. The debate on he second reading dragged its weary length for over three weeks, when no member was allowed to speak more than once on the question.

When the House sits as a committee of the whole, there is no limit to the number of times a member can speak. Unless closure is applied, the debate with which the country is now threatened may be prolonged indefinitely. All sorts of fillibustering can be resorted to by the opponents of the measure. Continuous sessions, in which those in opposition set out to make it a mere test of physical endurance, are not unlikely. Such sessions were held in the closing days of the Tupper Government in 1896 when the Remedial Bill was the issue. They recurred again in 1913, when the Borden Naval Aid Bill was the question. Important as either of these measures may have been, they lacked the interest which has been aroused throughout the country by the Borden Conscription Bill. French Quebec voted solidly against conscription, a record that was not made on either of the other questions referred to.

Even if the bill passes a third reading with the same or an increased majority, its safety will not yet be assured. It has to run the gauntlet of the Senate. As that chamber now stands, it is evenly divided, consisting of 39 Liberals and the same number of Conservatives. The French-Canadian senators will vote as their compatriots in the House did. Even if every senatorial vacancy was filled by men who could be counted upon to support the measure, the number may not be sufficient to offset the votes of the hostile members from Quebec.

Canada is likely to witness another legislative fiasco, when the will of the elected branch of the Federal Legislature, the members of which are directly responsible to the people end who are supposed to give effect to the wishes of their constituents, is nullified by a body over which the people have no control.

What is all this likely to lead to? A general election seems inevitable. If the Senate blocks popular legislation, the Government has only one recourse, and that is an appeal to the country.

AUTOISTS AND PEDESTRIANS.

THE MAN WHO IS NOT fortunate enough to own an auto, but who is obliged to make his way around on foot, has no just cause of complaint that the man who rides has any the best of it so far as the law is concerned. The rights of the pedestrian are amply safeguarded; the duties of the other are clearly defined. The man on foot has the right of way at the street intersections. He is given by law the opportunity to board and alight from street cars in safety, so far a the automobile is concerned. If he is driving a horse or vehicle on the country roads and meets an auto the law protects him again. The autoist is limited to a certain rate of speed in different localities, and a vigilant police force sees that this is not exceeded.

There is always a conflict between pedestrians and vehicular traffic. In former days it was the man with the fast-stepping horse who was regarded as a public menace. Then came the scorcher on the bicycle. The danger from these sources became insignificant when the automobile began to thread the highways, and the risk to human life increases in proportion to the number of these vehicles in use in a community.

There are over one thousand autos in Peterborough today. Day or evening the procession seems endless. It is just one motor car after another. At street crossings the pedestrian is comparatively safe, but it is when he attempts to cross from one side to the other at any but the regular intersections that he exposes himself to the risk of death or injury. But even if he is run down under such circumstances, the man in the car is required by law to stop and lend such aid as lies in his power, even to the extent of taking the injured pedestrian to his home or to a hospital if required.

Children playing on the streets are in constant danger from passing automobiles. If they are injured, no blame can be legally attached, it may be, to the autoist, but that is not sufficient. Let the average car owner cripple or cause the death of a child—or of an adult for that matter—and even though the law, after an investigation, holds the driver guiltless, life for the latter will never be quite the same again. This is especially true if the person steering the car happens to be a woman.

Children must be kept from playing on the streets, in their own interest and on behalf of the thousand car owners in the city. Only the other day a little girl was injured by an auto on Aylmer street near the firehall. There is a peculiar attraction for children, and grown-up people as well, in such a place. A few hours before the accident referred to, Chief Howard lined up his men and instructed them to see that no children used the space in front of the station as a playground, and to exert their influence to keep them off the roadway in the neighborhood. Had this step not been taken and if the child had been injured in front of the firehall, Chief Howard and his men would have been held, in a measure at least, responsible by the public.

The public playgrounds, maintained by private enterprise, solves the problem of children on the streets to a certain extent. But two playgrounds in the city are not sufficient. Children must be allowed in the open air if they are to thrive physically and mentally. Spaces must be provided for them, and such provisions will never be complete until the city authorities take the matter up. The ladies who are behind the playground movement have done all that can in reason be expected of them.

MORE PARTY STRATEGY.

THE AMENDMENT that was introduced in Parliament at the eleventh hour of the debate on conscription, that providing for more adequate aid to the soldiers' dependents, was simply another partisan play, designed to embarrass the Premier in a crisis. Such an amendment practically amounted to a vote of censure on the Government, and it is encouraging to note that it was defeated by almost double the normal Conservative majority.

It is well known that the Government has in mind more liberal allowances, if not to the soldiers themselves, at least to their dependents who are deprived of their support. An expression of opinion was recently invited from those most directly interested in that proposition. But now is not the proper time to take this matter up. The conscription bill must first be disposed of. In the meantime the dependents of the soldiers can rely upon the Government taking all reasonable steps to adequately provide for their wants by taking note of the increased cost of living.

There are still Liberal members in the House who cannot refrain from playing party politics, even in the face of national danger. The amendment in question is another example of an attempt to anticipate governmental action and steal credit for a measure already under consideration. But the Liberals have members at Ottawa who are patriotic rather than partisan, the twenty-nine who voted for the selective draft standing at the head of the big men in their party.

THE BARTER IN TITLES.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS of London openly charges that peerages and baronetcies are sold to the highest bidders, just as goods are disposed of at auction. It seems to hold the opinion that the money so raised is turned into the treasury of the political party that is lucky enough to have the handling of these matters by being in power at the times. The News calls such transactions colossal embezzlement.

Commenting the other day on these sales, carried on with about the same discrimination as a coster displays in vending spring onions or kippered herrings, the News pointed out that, whatever might be thought of the traffic, the money arising from it was public property. Even if the "fountain of honor" be so polluted by this abominable traffic as to become little more than a squirting cesspool, nevertheless the man who buys a draught should pay his money to the proprietors of the fountain and not to a Party Corruption Fund. In fact, as we said, the sale of public property and the diversion of the money to private pockets — apart from its prostitution of the King's name for the purposes of a vile system of debased bargaining—amounts simply and purely to malversion or downright embezzlement. In the Times recently, Sir Frederick Milner told the story of a friend who bought a peerage, and subsequently admitted, in reply to questions, that he had paid $500,000 for it. Now that $500,000 is public money. If it has not passed into the public exchequer to be used for national purposes, there has been committed an act of embezzlement which, whether criminal or not in the technical sense, is flat theft from the public pocket. In fact, we cannot see what possible defence could be pleaded if the managers of the party funds who have received this money were put in the dock at Bow street under a carefully framed charge instituted by the public prosecutor. Nothing whatever can be expected, however, from the House of Commons, which is itself an openly consenting party to these acts of corruption. But everything should be done to disseminate among the democracy the fullest knowledge of this dirty trade so as to emphasize public indignation and strengthen the torrential rush of national anger and abhorrence which will sweep these things into the oblivion they deserve.

Is the Canadian who receives a title required to "come across" with something handsome for the honor? If so, it would be interesting to learn the prices set as between a baronetcy which descends from father to son, and a plain knighthood which perishes with the man who holds it. And is this money turned into the public treasury or devoted to either party or private uses? The London News makes a rather finely drawn distinction as between embezzlement and a legitimate use of monies so received. One thing is certain, the customs followed in England with regard to such matters are more than likely to be taken as a precedent, safe to follow, in this country.

REV. CARPENTER TO RECTORSHIP IN QUEEN CITY

WENT TO CAMPBELLFORD AFTER LEAVING ST. JOHN'S HERE.

Rev. Charles Carpenter, who for the past six years has been rector of Christ Church, Campbellford announced to his congregation on Sunday last that he had been asked to take charge of a parish in Toronto, and that he would leave here before the end of August. The parish to which Mr. Carpenter has been called is just being organized, a larger one having been divided. The duties incident to organization will be arduous, but we believe Mr. Carpenter is well fitted for the work.

Since coming to Campbellford, Mr. Carpenter has won a high place in the esteem, not only of his own people, but of our citizens generally. He has proven himself to be a man of broad sympathies, having shown a deep interest in the religious, moral, educational and social welfare of the town.

While we regret the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter from town, we congratulate him upon having been called to such an important work.—Campbellford Herald.

Mr. Carpenter was in charge of St. John's Church a few years ago, during Canon Davidson's absence in England. He made many friends here who will wish him success in his new parish.

NEW ART OF FIELDING

Comiskey and Welsh Invented Outfielders' Shift For Batters

Not alone did Comiskey insist upon his pitcher's covering first base when a ball was batted to him, but he required his outfielders to shift when different styles of batters came up to the plate. The old-time outfielders did not play for certain batters the way they do now; that is, they did not familiarize themselves with the weaknesses of the different hitters, and they could not therefore surmise where the ball would go.

This meant that the old-timers would sometimes have to go pretty fast to get the ball, for by playing in the same position all of the time a new style of batter would frequently drive a ball to an altogether entirely uncovered spot and the fielder had necessarily to try to get under it. Curt Welsh, then playing with Comiskey, was one of the first really to become proficient at the new practice.

Welsh, it is claimed by George Moreland, the statistician, watched the battery signs from where he stood, and he sensed just about where each batter was likely to hit the ball. Moreland declares that he has seen him turn around just as the pitcher was ready to throw and sprint for a certain section of the field at full speed; then he would reverse and catch a fly that the other fielders would not even have tried for.

WHY SWING TWO BATS?

Ball Players Want One To Feel Much Lighter

Why doesn't some baseball manager have built for his team a "swinging" bat that is three or four times as heavy and as large as the ordinary mace? You've noticed that every man about to take his turn at the plate approached waving two or three bats. And you know the reason; he swings all three so that when he actually retains the selected bat it will seem much lighter in comparison.

But why not a single bat built along giant lines? One that has a handle three or four times as thick as the ordinary bludgeon and three or four times as heavy? If a player swung that it would give off the real effect of swinging one bat. When he swings three regular bats they slip around and he has trouble in holding them together long enough to get the full effect of their weight while making a few practice swings.

Heated Gloves For Aviators

A British firm has introduced electrically-heated gloves for aviators. Cold hands and feet are among the prime discomforts experienced by airmen flying at great altitudes, and it is obvious that numbed hands in particular may lead to disaster. Ordinary gloves, irrespective of their thickness, are of little use. The electrically-heated gloves maintain the hands at a comfortable temperature. As in the instance of the electrically-heated gloves for automobile drivers, electrical connection is made between small brass discs on the gloves and metal plates on the steering wheel of aircraft.

BUSY RAILWAY CENTRES

Spencer's Brook in Western Australia Busy Centre for Wheat Traffic

One of the busiest railway centres in Western Australia at present is Spencer's Brook, some sixty miles from Fremantle. Nearly 750,000 bushels of wheat, worth approximately $900,000, is passing through this junction on its way to the seaboard every week. This enormous quantity is being handled without working overtime or on Sundays, and without putting any special strain upon the resources of the railway department. Some fifteen trains of 3,270 tons of wheat are dealt with every day. This represents 122,000 bushels per day.

So complete are the arrangements for the traffic that there is no danger of any ship arriving at Fremantle and not being able to load her wheat. Large quantities of wheat are also being handled at the ports of Albany, Bunbury, and Geraldton.

Use Right Grease For Auto

Some motors require grease in the timing gears. Others are lubricated by means of oil from the crank case. Where grease is required it is advisable to use a lubricant which will not affect the lubricating oil in the crank case. When the main bearings have become worn the grease from the timing gears is bound to work into the crank case. The manufacturer of your motor usually recommends a certain type of grease to use.

LONDON'S PRIDE WAS GIBSON OF PIRATES

"Iron Man" Catcher Was Welcomed To Home Town After Making Fine Record In Professional Sport

When "Mooney" Gibson, once famous catcher for the Pittsburg Nationals, retired the London, Ont., Advertiser said: George Gibson, one of the greatest ball players of the last fifteen years, has given up his professional career. He first saw the light of day in this city on July 22, 1880, and made business of baseball for thirteen years. William Reid, an umpire in the old city league, first saw the possibilities of Gibson at the time the latter was playing with the Londons. Mr. Reid also recommended City Treasurer Bell, a remarkable "London" outfielder, to some of his big league friends.

Gibson went to Buffalo and showed up well, but as Stallings had a great many catchers, the young player was sold to Montreal, and after two seasons went up to the great Pittsburg organization which Clarke and Dreyfuss were just commencing to build into championship form. He has been a tower of strength to the Pirates, and in 1909, with Adams, had his most spectacular year, when he caught 150 games, breaking the record, and then by his masterly work behind the bat practically generated the Pittsburg team to the world's championship against Detroit.

Honest And Brainy

He and Adams will go down in fandom's history as one of the greatest batteries of the age. They went to Pittsburg at about the same time, and they have been with the club in victory and vicissitude, refusing tempting offers to break with their team and standing firm until the time came for them to relinquish the premier positions in favor of younger men. That Gibson's experience and ability still are held high was indicated in the New York club's request for him. McGrew evidently believing that there were brains of a high order to use in the constant rebuilding of the great Giant machine.

Able And Modest

Gibson has always been a credit to his city. He has never sought the limelight, either at home or away. He took his honors in a quiet, gentlemanly manner; he lived a clean, wholesome life, and in all ways measured up to the tribute paid by President Dreyfuss, who said that Gibson was "a true blue, loyal fellow." During the off season Gibson has spent his time in London or on his farm, taking his pleasure and exercise in the game of curling.

That he loves his old town and his old friends, that he would rather be among them than to continue an inactive career in baseball, is all good to know. London welcomes him back as a worthy citizen, who has achieved a remarkable success through unusual ability and sterling character.

TO TOE IN OR OUT?

Foot Delicate Mechanism—Do Neither is Advised

"Shall we toe in or toe out?" asked the Journal of the American Medical Association. The writer comes very near to recommending a neutral course. "Like the child's toy house built with blocks," he says, "the foot stands when balance is maintained and becomes weak and wobbly when a single block is moved sufficiently to disturb its balance. In correct position, the foot carries the weight of the body with a wide margin of strength to spare. Change the posture and the demand upon this reserve strength becomes often too great to be permanently borne. The foot is then under a strain it tires, becomes painful, and, finally, by yielding of the ligaments, the shape of the foot is altered, its efficiency is impaired, and our whole physical being feels the loss of a stable foundation. Body posture directly influences the maintenance of foot comfort, and foot posture has a direct bearing upon correct attitude of the body.

"The old method of toeing out, as taught to the recruits of the army in Civil War times, was really a position of weakness. To utilize its power to best advantage, the walking position of the foot should be with little or no outward pointing of the toes. In standing, slight turning out of the toes is permissible. To add to foot comfort, shoes should not cramp the ball of the foot, and the heels should be low and broad, to give stability without calling upon the muscles to maintain balance. Mechanically the foot is a wonderful creation, but, like all delicate mechanisms, it must be kept in good condition and used intelligently or its efficiency disappears."

Aged Speakers

Although the Speaker's office is an exhausting one, all its holders of recent years have lived to a hale old age. Lord Selby, Lord Ossington, and Lord Hampden were well over seventy when they died, and Lord Peel lived to eighty-three. Lord Eversley, who filled the chair for thirteen years, attained the age of ninety-four, and was so keen on outdoor pursuits to the last that he bought a new pair of guns when he was ninety-two. Speaker Shaw-Lefevre found his experience as a shot useful in the House. Someone asked him once how he contrived to single out his man when twenty members sprang to their feet at once. "Well," he replied, "I have not been out shooting rabbits all my life for nothing, and I have learned to mark the right one."

Breeding for Quantity

To have a 200-egg strain it would be necessary to make that mark the average. That would mean not a few hens in the flock to lay from 200 to 250 eggs per year. Such hens, for breeding purposes, would be physical

BATHROOM DANGERS

Electrocution in Bath Tub of Water Happens Very Simply

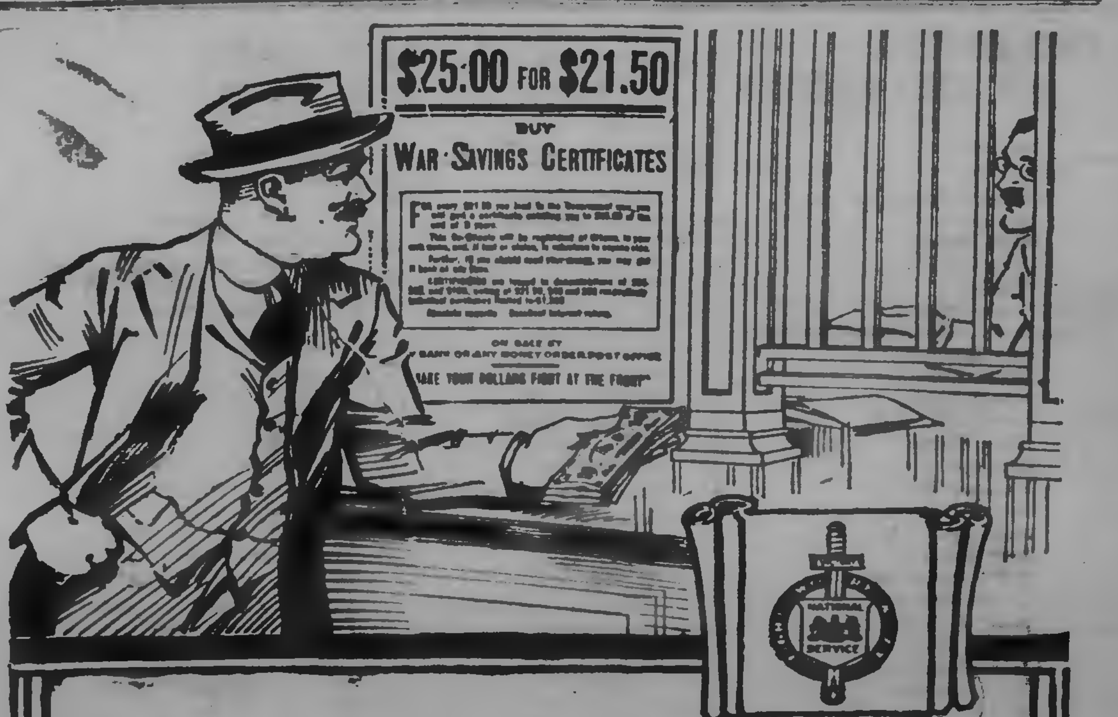
Few persons realize the risk which they may run when turning electric-light switches in a bathroom. Several lives are lost annually by accidental electrocutions which take place in bathtubs. In some instances these deaths have been popularly attributed to faulty insulation. But it has been shown that a bather standing in a tub of water, by turning a switch with his wet hand may cause enough moisture to penetrate the electric socket and establish a circuit, thereby permitting the current to pass from the wires, through his body into the water and thence to the ground. Thus the body acts very much as a lightning rod.

Electrocution may occur if one hand in a washbowl of water and the other, being wet, is used to turn a switch. If only the key is touched and no moisture penetrates, of course no ill effects will follow. Fatalities are believed to have resulted also when a bather in a tub has accidentally struck his head against a projecting light socket.—Popular Mechanics.

Queen Elizabeth's Coal

Queen Elizabeth was the first English monarch to realize the value of the coal mines as a State-owned monopoly. She obtained a lease of all the Durham fields for $450 a year, and then proceeded to manipulate a corner in coals with much success. She annexed the private pits of the Percys when they were profitably developing themselves, and only consented after a time to allow them a small percentage on their own stuff. She chartered a company in Newcastle as virtual monopolists in the sale of Northumbrian coal to shippers, and so engineered matters that the Lord Mayor of London formally complained that the Newcastle Freemen's rights had been bartered away to a monopoly, and begged for some limitation to the price, which had now been forced up to a pound a chaldron. Coal had previously been sold in London at $1 a chaldron.

A power barge built in Indiana for river service has been equipped with a pump in the bow to force a powerful stream of water out of either side to help turn the craft around.



Are You Your Country's Partner?

Save and Invest in "Canada Unlimited"

"A great struggle still lies before us."
Sir Robert Borden.

To defend your freedom—your family—your right to live secure from intolerable Prussian despotism—Canada is paying a heavy price in blood and treasure.

Are you paying your share?

Are you a real and active partner in Canada's tremendous effort? Are you devoting your money as freely as thousands have devoted their lives?

This is no time for careless indulgence, but for earnest thrift and systematic saving. Invest every dollar you can spare in Canadian War Savings Certificates. Take an active interest in Canada's stern struggle now, and thus become a worthy partner in her unlimited future after the victory is won.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% Interest. Should you need it, you can get your money back at any time.

NOTED SINGER'S TESTIMONY

Redferne Hollingshead, Canada's famous tenor, writes:

It affords me great pleasure to express my encomium of praise for the splendid qualities of the New Scale Williams Piano we are using on our Western tour.

Possessed of brilliancy of tone ideal for the needs of a pianist, your instrument also embodies a lovely singing tone of velvety softness when needed, affording ideal support to my voice in both fortissimo and pianissimo passages.

I am observing its magnificent durability in the midst of constant moving in bitter cold weather, which it sustains constantly by keeping in perfect tune.

NOTE

Pupils who do not try these final examinations on account of illness or for other satisfactory reasons will be given consideration on the reopening of school in September.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

(From The Review of July 6, 1900).

The ladies of Peterborough reorganized the W.C.T.U. Mrs. S. D. McPherson was elected president; Mrs. John Manning, corresponding secretary; Miss S. J. Robertson, recording secretary; and Mrs. G. E. Whiten, treasurer.

There were 397 pupils enrolled in the two separate schools, and the average daily attendance for June was 362.

Mr. J. S. Knapman, on retiring from the position as manager of the Bell Telephone Co., was presented with a travelling bag by the employes.

Will clear a big stock of White Canvas Shoes at low prices which will be appreciated by every customer buying for Summer Wear.

White goes with any street costume and our black, high-top sandals are also adaptable to any shade of dress desired.

Our reputation for quality and comfortable footwear at living prices is building up for us a big business.

LADIES' WHITE CANVAS HIGH BOOTS—Just received the balance of our Spring order, and can still sell at prices that prevailed at the first of the season, though much less than if bought now. They are in canvas, reignskin, poplin, with wooden or leather heels. All the popular American styles of toes. Sizes are from 2 to 7. Special prices to clear:
$2.50 $3 $3.50 & $4

HIGH TOP ROMAN SANDALS — With eight straps, made in patent colt, the popular hot weather boot. By wearing hose of the same shade as the costume it gives the effect of being carried right through to match the dress. These sandals sell all over, and we sold them before at $7.00. Our Week-end Price is only $6.00

LADIES' WHITE PUMPS — There are several very new styles in these, all the newest and most attractive New York models. For the week-end trade we make special low prices at:
$2.50 $3 $3.50 & $4

MEN'S FINE BOOTS—Any kind that's wanted; any heel and toe, any shade, any shape, any size. Any price from .... $4.50 to $6

A big selection of Sport Shoes for Men, Women, Boys, Girls or Children, in the lacrosse or running shoe, Mary Janes and a great variety of other styles. All reduced for the summer trade.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

BROWN—McCOY

The marriage took place on Wednesday, at the bride's home, Madoc, of Mr. Brown, B.A., of Lakefield, and Miss Kathleen McCoy, B.A., who for the past six months has been teacher of Modern Languages in Campbellford High School. Miss Marion and Helen Moore, of Town, cousins of the bride, attended the wedding.

HAIG—JOHNSTON

The marriage of Miss Mary Isobel Johnston and Mr. Earl Haig took place quietly at the Methodist Parsonage, Campbellford, on Wednes- evening, Rev. A. R. Sanderson officiating.

The bride wore a gown of pale blue satin, trimmed with gold lace and tassels, with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Ada Bayes, wore white silk, trimmed with blue, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Thos. J. Craighead was best man.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a gold necklace, and to the best man gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Haig will reside in Peterborough.

ENTRANCE RESULTS READY VERY SOON

The examiners of the papers at the recent entrance examinations have completed the work, and the list of the scucessful candidates has been sent to the Department of Education, Toronto, for confirmation. As soon as the authority is given the list will be published.

OBITUARY

MRS. ALEXANDER HERON

Maud Rutherford, wife of Mr. Alexander Heron, 304 Brock Street, died this morning as a result of a shock received when an explosion took place at her home last Monday. The deceased was born in Ireland 53 years ago, and was a daughter of the late Edward Rutherford. She is survived by her husband, one daughter Ethel, and one son, Jack, who is at the front with the 5th Battery.

The funeral will take place Monday afternoon from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery at 2.30 o'clock. Funeral service by Rev. J. A. Mackenzie at 2 o'clock.

fellow and full of courage—shouted "Come on, Ten"—that was our platoon number—we went after him and we were about 50 yards or so from our objective when I got hit. We started back (all the wounded fellows) for our lines and then to the dressing station, and I can safely say we were a happy lot when we were on the train going to Bologne to get the boat for dear old Blighty, as the wounded fellows call England. Well, mother, don't worry, as everything will come out O.K.

Your loving son,

BILL.

P.S.—The wound is not serious and they certainly use a fellow fine in this hospital.

P. A. FERGUSON AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. P. A. Ferguson, district manager for the Dominion Life Assurance Co. met with an auto accident on Wednesday while on his way to his summer home at Beaverton. In company with his mother-in-law Mrs. Jones, two children and the maid, Mr. Ferguson was driving his car at a fair rate of speed when about two miles past Woodville the rear end of the auto swerved, causing it to turn turtle.

The top was up and that was the only thing that saved the occupants from serious injury. Mrs. Jones and the children sustained a bad shaking up as well as a few bruises while Mr. Ferguson injuerd his knee.

The party were taken to Mr. Ferguson's summer home later.

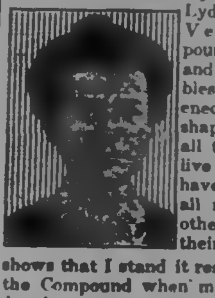
WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.



West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, backache, headaches, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

AN OLD CITIZEN.

An Anecdote of Early Days in Ontario.

One of the oldest citizens in Ontario is Mr. Simon Powers, aged 90 years, who lives in one of the counties bordering Lake Ontario, where his father was a pioneer settler. He lived in Clarke in the early days of that township, and one of his recollections is an example of the crude but effective surgery of our great grand-parents. Telling the story, Mr. Powers says, "About the time of the Rebellion, a family named Latimore, from the neighborhood of Kingston, came into the settlement. Latimore was a local preacher, and shortly after his arrival the Methodist Conference sent a regular minister to the circuit. Latimore was chosen to guide the new minister to his appointments, but as it was not convenient for him to do this his wife undertook the task. Mrs. Latimore and the minister started early in the morning for the first appointment, Ballyduff, nine miles distant, in Manvers township. The journey was made on horseback, through a pine forest, and, just as the settlement was reached Mrs. Latimore's horse took fright and threw her to the ground, breaking her collar bone. The minister helped the injured woman into a nearby log cabin, made her as comfortable as possible, and then hastened back for assistance. Lumber waggons were the only available conveyances, and the injured woman was too badly hurt to venture a ride of nine miles over rough roads in one of these. Twelve young men accordingly undertook to carry her home. They made a litter of poles, placed borrowed bedding on them, laid the suffering woman on the bed and carried her all that weary nine miles to her home, reaching there the same evening.

"There was no doctor short of Port Hope, twenty-three miles away, and so Latimore asked my father to go over and see if he could set the fractured bone. Father found that, with the contraction of the muscles, the ends of the bone at the break had slipped past each other. He had the woman put in bed, placed hot irons at her feet, and then administered 'medicine No. 5,' the prescription for which was taken from the 'Thompsonian Doctor Book,' issued by a Dr. Thompson. This medicine was very heating, and it and the hot irons together caused a profuse perspiration. Then, placing a ball of yarn in the armpit, and using the arm as a pry on this, father forced the broken bones into place; bandages were next applied, and in a few days Mrs. Latimore was able to resume her household duties."

DON'T INJURE YOUR EYES

By Use of Unreliable Lotions Recommended by Misleading Foreign Advertisements.

In the interest and protection of our readers, attention is drawn to the following warning published in The Trader, the official publication of Canada's jewellers and opticians:

The Postmaster-General,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir:—

Your attention is respectfully called to the advertisement of an American concern having an eye lotion to sell, said lotion being advertized in such a manner as to create an entirely false and misleading impression as to its alleged "curative" properties and do irreparable injury both to those persons who, suffering from mechanical eye defects (faulty focus), are impelled to discard their glasses, and others who, requiring medical attention for serious cases of acute disease, are led to employ this "patent" remedy when they should consult a physician. Added to the cases I have cited are those of elderly people suffering from cataracts and others who are partially blind that are led to waste their money when they read that "one man says after trying it: 'I was almost blind. . . . Now I can read everything without any glasses, and my eyes do not water any more.'"

It will be noted that two unidentified physicians and two anonymous users of the remedy are made to testify, and the dread of blindness is skilfully played upon, all in the space of one short advertisement, not one line of which bears the earmarks of truth or sincerity.

It is to be hoped that the Department can see its way clear to take action against this fraudulent enterprise.

Respectfully yours,
ALBERT MYER

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

HYGIENE FOR BABY

How to Give Your Precious a Good Start In Life.

THE VALUE OF DISCIPLINE.

Some Expert Points About Regular Feeding, Exercise, Sleep, Bathing and Fresh Air For Young Children—Establish a System and Stick to It.

[Prepared by Ohio state department of health.]

When a baby comes into the world he is nothing but a wonderful piece of machinery. He may be trained to operate perfectly or very imperfectly, but the time to begin training for perfect action is during the first twenty-four hours of life. Much is said today about the lack of balance among our young people, but do we realize that much of it is due to lack of discipline while they are very young children?

The baby's day should begin about 6 o'clock in the morning, when he needs food. From the time that the child rises the day should proceed with very regular duties. Meals should be taken at regular hours, with long periods of complete rest for the stomach between feedings. Furthermore, a baby must be aroused if napping when this hour comes. If not the regular night's sleep will be materially disturbed.

The child's bowels must have regular attention at the same hour each day. This is as true of the baby as of the older child, and if patient care is observed habits of cleanliness may be established in a normal child at two months of age. This is a matter of great importance in relation to the child's general health.

The daily bath should be given at a regular hour, preferably in the morning directly before a feeding, after which the child will quite naturally take its long nap. This routine is best for children through their first five years. The hour may be arranged to tally with the comfort of the household at large, but should recur regularly.

For the tiny baby the hours for eating and sleeping may be alternated throughout the greater part of the day, but as the child grows older the two naps, one in the morning and one in the afternoon at first and then one morning nap, to be replaced at the kindergarten age by the afternoon nap, is the regular order of events.

The little baby needs a romp during the late afternoon hours, of course, and a baby must be handled rather frequently at first in order that there be no danger of stagnation of the circulation, but a romp too late in the day is disastrous for many little ones.

From the very beginning long hours of sleep at night should be fostered. At one month of age or earlier the one night feeding should be dropped and the child have uninterrupted sleep between 10 at night and 6 in the morning. It is scarcely necessary in these days to say that the child must sleep in the fresh air. This means a free delivery and circulation of air all night. Many mothers have a tendency to put a baby in an unheated room with the windows closed. Cold air need not be fresh air. The little child wants a full supply of rapidly changing or fresh air that is not too cold.

The Climate of Africa.

There are only two seasons — the wet and the dry—at the equator in Africa. The former is the summer season and lasts eight months. The thermometer averages from one hundred and ten to one hundred and twenty-five degrees Fahrenheit. The other four months are the cold or dry season, and the thermometer rarely goes below seventy degrees Fahrenheit. During the rains the natives live in houses made principally of bamboo and roofed with leaves, but as soon as the rains stop, which is some time around June 1st, they desert their towns and set out for the forests and jungles. The few household furnishings are transported on the heads of the women and children.

CARE OF MILK.

How to Keep Down Bacteria During Hot Weather and Illness.

Keep your milk bottles covered either with caps or by placing glasses over them. Keep them covered in the refrigerator and in the kitchen or dining room.

Never pour milk into an unsterilized bowl or pitcher. Scald all vessels into which milk is poured for keeping or serving. Cool these utensils after scalding before you put milk into them.

Before you open a bottle of milk wash and wipe the outside of the cap with water and a clean cloth. The little depression at the top of the bottle collects dust or water or milk, which may attract flies. Lift out the cap with a pointed instrument, so that the outside of the cap, which may be contaminated, will not be pushed down into the milk.

Clean and scald the refrigerator where milk is stored regularly with hot salsoda solution. See that the drip pipe is kept open and clean.

Even in the cleanest refrigerator never keep milk in an open vessel. Milk absorbs odors easily.

Finally clean empty bottles. Rinse thoroughly with cold water every milk bottle as soon as emptied and then wash with hot water. This helps your milkman to give you clean milk.

Never take milk bottles into a sickroom. If you have an infectious or contagious disease in your home boil the milk bottles and do not return them without the express sanction of your local health officer or attending physician.

Special Notice to Drivers

JULY 3rd, 1917.

On and after July 1st, the local regulations giving the right of way to vehicles going north and south over those going east and west, will be cancelled, and the following amendment to the Highway Travel Act substituted therefor:

"Where a person travelling or being upon a highway in charge of a vehicle or on horseback, meets another vehicle or person on horseback, at a crossroad or intersection, the vehicle or horseman to the right hand of the other vehicle or horseman shall have the right of way."

Drivers of all vehicles are therefore requested to note carefully the amendments to the law, and govern themselves accordingly.

TRAVEL HUMOURS IN SUNNY SPAIN

From Sombre North to Sunny South, Spain Shows a Wide Variety Both of Scenery and People

"Spain and Russia," says Hamilton Fyfe in the London Daily Mail, "are the two most interesting countries left in Europe for the traveller who enjoys the humour of life. They are so different from the rest. In Madrid I look out of my window on to one of the finest open squares in the city. I see among the motors and electric street cars carts drawn by huge, slow-moving oxen, strings of mules, boys and men riding on donkeys, flocks of little black sheep, herds of woolly red pigs. The oddest mingling of old and new. Spain is a country that offers so wide a variety of scenery, of people, of food, of everything. As you travel you see all kinds of landscape. In the north the prevailing note is one of sombre reserve. In the south all is colour and gay, laughing sunshine. The same difference marks off the Castilian, grave and proud, from the chattering, smiling, quick-tempered Andalusian, always ready to make friends.

Rice and Snails; Delicious

"Then, if you are wise and eat the food of the people in preference to the imitation food which is served in hotels, you find that many districts have their own special dishes. There is the Valencian 'paella,' for example, a stew of rice with meat and snails and shrimps, a most appetising mixture served in a wide pan taken straight off the fire. Malaga has its 'boquerones,' fried anchovies, delicious. Cartagena smacks its lips over octopus. All through Spain the 'puchero,' or national stew, is good, with special flavours in different parts.

"All who meet on the roads of Spain offer kindly greeting. 'Vaya Usted con Dios,' is the usual form ('God be with you'). If you pass people who are eating they will always invite you, if only as a formal courtesy, to share with them.

Lost! A Station Bell

"The starting of Spanish trains, by the way, requires a vast effort. First a handbell is rung, then a large bell is tolled. Then a shrill whistle is blown, to which the engine replies with a hoarse blast. Finally, there is combined waving and shouting by all the officials, amid which movement begins.

Until the handbell has been rung no engine-driver may put on steam. At one junction, called Albacete, arrived a commercial traveller one day with half an hour's business to do in the town. The train was scheduled to stay only five minutes. He picked up the handbell, put it in his overcoat pocket, and went and did his business. At the station everyone was hunting for the precious bell, without which the train could not start. The traveller came back, slipped the bell into its place again, jumped into his compartment, and the journey was resumed. Nobody much minded. Nobody much minds anything in Spain. What would annoy one elsewhere under grey skies is turned to a joke by the radiance of blue and gold in the clear, exhilarating air. In such a climate peevishness is impossible."

ANIMALS IN WOODLOTS

Permissible only in Rarest Cases—Ground Fire Damage

One of the most important steps to be taken in the care of the woodlot is its protection from fire and animals. Fire should never be allowed to run through it, for not only does this destroy seedling trees and injure large ones, but it also destroys the litter and vegetable matter on the ground and leaves the soil exposed to the drying influence of the sun and wind. Pasturing animals in the woodlot is a great hindrance to the proper development. Cattle, in addition to eating off the tops of small trees, destroy the undergrowth and thus allow the sun to act on the soil and grass and weeds to establish themselves. The result is the larger trees begin to slowly die at the top and decay sets in.

In woodlots that have in the past been neglected and now contain many more or less open and grassy spots it may be advisable to pasture hogs for a time in the fall. These animals by rooting about stir up the soil and put it in good condition to receive the seeds when they fall from the trees and thus a new growth of young trees is started.

CANADA'S AREA COMPARED

Provinces that are Vaster Than Many a Kingdom

The total area of the Dominion of Canada is 3,729,665 square miles; the total area of Europe, including the British Isles, is 3,800,000 square miles, being about a third of that of Africa, a fourth of that of America, and a fifth of that of Asia (17,225,890 square miles). Canada's area is as great as that of the whole continental Europe, plus the area of England proper. Ontario is nearly as large as the combined area of France and Germany (416,220 square miles). The area of Quebec is almost as great as that of the combined areas of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Austria, and Italy (708,600 square miles). Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have each about the same area, which is more than double that of the United Kingdom (121,500 square miles). The area of England proper (50,851 square miles) is almost equal to that of the Maritime Provinces (51,597 square miles).

Gold and silver mines that have been worked for more than three centuries still form the principal resources of the Mexican state of San Luis Potosi.

China, which is believed to have the greatest deposits of iron ore in the world, is beginning to export pig iron.

Keep the hired man and keep the stock rather than sell the stock and "sack" the man.

NEW BLOUSES.

Distinctive Points About the Late Spring Models.

One of the unusual features of the new blouses is the use of gingham and of dish toweling. To be sure, the latter is of the aristocratic type, made of linen and having crossbars of blue or red threads and mainly associated with the drying of fine china and silver.

Both gingham and linen models are intended to wear with the sports skirt of washable fabrics or of silk or jersey cloth. They are made on tailored lines, but it is permissible to have them trimmed with cross stitching in linen threads or with bands of rather heavy fillet lace.

Another sort of blouse that is out of the ordinary is made without sleeves and is fastened down the back. It is very likely that it will be worn with a guimpe by the normal woman. But for those who like freedom of the arms for tennis or golf and who do not mind sunburn the sleeveless model will prove very acceptable.

Back fastened blouses have come into favor again. They are found not only in the waist length models, but also in the peplum effects, which have gained somewhat on the vogue established for them last fall. Many of them are nothing more or less than Russian blouses, and, while some of them are made with deep collars, there are others that are without the neck finish, excepting for a Chinese band.

A vagary of fashion has brought about a revival of the high neck blouse for spring. Surely it would have seemed more logical to have withheld this type until fall, when the more seasonable period would have tended to popularize the resuscitated model. However, there are women who profess to be a little bit tired of the blouse built with the big collar and the open V neck and who will doubtless patronize the old-new type.

For more dressy wear there are blouses of chantilly lace, principally in white and mounted in white and flesh colored mousseline. A model that has recently arrived from Paris shows the front cut much longer than the back to give an apron suggestion. The blouse is a bit short waisted and is belted in by a wide rose colored ribbon tied in a pump bow, this treatment being repeated at the back where the lace drops below the waist line to form a postilion.

Erster, believes in having first quality goods, in the wanted styles, and selling at prices that mean substantial savings to his customers, and bringing them back again when they need anything in the boot and shoe line.

The illustartion shows the store interior, when the front Silent Salesman was dressed with the new showing of 1917 Sport and other white shoes.

Fine Art in Candle-making.

The making of candles is not ordinarily considered a fine art, but the Italians have made it such. The distinctively Italian votive taper is made by hand. The materials are pure beeswax, which is kneaded and tempered, and mixed with a secret ingredient to retard combustion, and which has special Egyptian cotton for wicks. The cotton too is treated with chemicals to keep it from feeding too fast. Small candles are moulded. Large ones are made by rolling up sheets of wax. That gives the candle great strength and enables it to stand erect when a moulded candle would bend under the heat.

After the candle is fashioned it goes to the decorators—men who are skilled in the use of the brush. "The Sistine Madonna" and "The Madonna of the Chair" are favourite subjects with them, and they also make very charming miniatures of other famous works of art.

Paperhanger's Paste.

Five pounds of flour, two gallons of water. Make a thickening of your flour, then when it is nice and smooth pour your boiling water over gradually, stirring all the time. Then when this is finished take two tablespoonfuls of powdered alum, pour warm water over and gradually add this.

DO NOT BE SELFISH.

Try now and then to do good to others. If we live to and for ourselves only our life must necessarily be a small and poor life since it is limited to our situation and our powers. But if we forget ourselves and open our doors of work, thought and sympathy into the great overflowing life of the whole world we step into so large and full an existence that we can never exhaust or tire of it.

TOOL TALK.

Some Witty Remarks Overheard in a Machine Shop.

IT was midnight in the machine shop, and all was silent until the rasping voice of the file was heard to say, "I have rubbed up against lots of hard things in my life, but this harveyized steel job has completely worn me out."

"Well," said the lathe sympathetically, "I have done many a hard turn myself."

"Life is a great bore," supplemented the gimlet.

"A continual grind," put in the emery wheel roughly.

"With many a broken thread," added the steam pipe in hollow accents.

"Calm yourselves," advised the damaged flywheel; "there may be a revolution soon."

"Don't mind him," said the soldering fluid acidly. "Every one knows he is cracked."

And in the confusion that followed the gas escaped.—Judge.

Fishing Yarn.

During the salmon fishing season an Englishman was the guest of a highland laird, and one day he hooked a fine salmon. Being inexperienced as a fisherman, he became excited and in the struggle with the fish fell into the river. The keeper, seeing that he was no swimmer, hooked him with the gaff and started to drag him ashore. "What are ye aboot, Donal'?" cried the laird. "Get haud o' the rod and look tae the fush. Ma friend can bide [illegible], but the fush [illegible]!"—Independent.

Fashion Fancy.

Some amusing little tricks found in French dressmaking are used to get the effect of a barrel skirt [illegible] a suit of reseda-green homespun that has the sweater style of coat the skirt [illegible] ward [illegible] below the knee with a short strap and buttons so as to give a slight barrel effect.

British Officer Shows No Fear

A FRENCH officer, Captain Philippe Millet, one time military writer for The Paris Temps, in his new book, "Comrades in Arms," a series of sketches of incidents of the war, pays many compliments to the British "Tommy" and his fearlessness in the face of danger. He quotes an English officer as accounting for this trait as follows: "What constitutes the strength and at the same time the weakness of our men is their absolute want of imagination. None of them tries to picture to himself what might possibly happen to him a moment ahead. As long as a bullet has not hit him, it is non-existent to him. That is the reason of his good spirits and also of his indiscretion."

Of Waller, an English staff-officer, Captain Millet writes as follows, quoting first from one of the officer's letters:

"'The other day I had rather an exciting time. A shell from the seventy-sevens came over the parapet and burst near me in the trench. Result: Forty-three small splinters in the face, the drum of the left ear smashed, bruises on the left arm and shoulder, a hole in my boot and ankle, my tunic in shreds, also my cap—yet here I am, more active than ever, and thinking very seriously of going away on leave. Yours ever.'

"I can picture the scene: Waller standing with his eye glued to the periscope, refusing to take into consideration a few wretched seventy-sevens, and confinding himself to an oath or two during the commotion. Still, I doubt if he really enjoyed the amusement of which he writes. Of all the bravery I have ever known, Waller's is perhaps that which makes me feel the keenest admiration for the English character, because it does not exclude a frank horror of danger.

"Although an officer by profession, this great boy with bright black eyes appeared to me like an amateur in the art of war. It was not that he was ignorant of his trade, nor that his attachment to it was only half-hearted—I have often had occasion to notice the accuracy of his technical knowledge—but this professional energy remained at all times, as it were foreign to him. He was first and foremost a sportsman and a man of culture. If a piano was within reach, he could be seen rushing towards the keyboard in a frenzied sort of way; at table he displayed a pronounced taste for general topics. He seemed to me less military than many French officers of the reserve who, when they don their uniforms, divest themselves entirely of the civilian; Waller, on the contrary, was a gentleman in khaki.

"And so war, for him, was only an exercise rather more dangerous than the rest. I saw him train at it gradually with as much facility as tenacity. He seized every opportunity to run to the trenches. Once there, he performed his duties calmly, without ever exposing himself uselessly or blushing to take cover when the place where he was became untenable, in which case he confined himself to saying to his companion of the moment with a touch of temper: 'I suppose we'd better wait a minute.'

"Then he would sit down on the firing-step, leaning his back against the parapet and crossing his legs.

"One day a novice went with him to the firing line, and the two men found themselves in an exposed road at the moment when, by curious bad luck, an enemy machine-gun took it into its head to fire in their direction. They were about two hundred yards from the next shelter. Considering it superfluous to alarm the other man, Waller coolly continued the conversation. It was only when they were under cover that he made known to him the danger they had just run, adding simply: 'It was better not to lose one's head.'

"The best of it is that, even today, after many a month of war, this man, who does not know what fear is, confesses unaffectedly and without any false shame that the sensation of danger remains disagreeable to him. At a recent battle he was entrusted with an exceptionally perilous mission. He made a preliminary reconnaissance which afforded him a foretaste of the risks he was about to run. I saw him before his final departure. He was a little more absorbed than ordinarily, but had breakfast with a good appetite. Suddenly he broke silence.

"'It's beastly out there,' he said to me. And smiling with a certain restraint, he added: 'As I am not personally brave, I hate it.'

"I like this sincerity. The English speak of their fear as if it were a toothache, and, on that account, face death all the more bravely. Turenne, I fancy, would have commended them for it."

TWO WAYS TO ACQUIRE AN ESTATE
1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family, and yourself maybe, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.
2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered or mortgaged.
Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?
TWO WAYS TO BEQUEATH AN ESTATE
1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape at court. Requires court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.
2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator—you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of court proceedings—no expense of court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the deceased.

NEW USES FOR CORN MEAL

(By Maud Meredith)

This talk of making soup from pea pods and greens from a few lettuce leaves is all hysteria. But a wondrous saving of wheat can be made by using corn, rye, and buckwheat and the people be immeasurably the better for the addition to the diet.

Begin with the farmer as he selects his seed corn. Here an ear, there another, and always the very fullest and best. A wisp of the inner husk is left on each and all put aside. When enough are secured they are braded in about yard lengths and hung to dry in some airy place ready for next year's planting.

Then comes the selection of more best ears, this for hulled corn, and put through the corn sheller by themselves. These will give large, full kernels and are boxed separately. When the family calls for hulled corn the housemother puts a shovelful of ashes in a huge iron kettle, pours in he amount of corn wanted, stirs it briskly with a wooden paddle and lets it boil till the outer husk breaks. Then the corn is skimmed out into a ten quart pan and put under running water, rubbed gently between the palms until all the husks separate and are floated off, leaving the great white kernels. To serve, heat in sufficiently salted water, drain and srve with milk. The kernels are whole and white, very attractive in appearance.

Hominy is made from this assorted best corn cracked in the mill, each kernel broken into six or eight pieces. This is boiled a long time and eaten in bowls of milk.

Again, samp is ground on closer stones and comes out fine enough for breakfast food. All breakfast foods made from wheat could be well and wisely replaced by samp.

In the South this dish is served as a vegetable, or goodness knows just what, to be eaten on the plate with potato and meat. I have tried to eat it that way, but I could never like it.

Another turn of the screw on the miller's great stones and we have corn meal. Let us see what we can do with it.

First let's bake "rye"n'injun" bread. One-third rye flour, two-thirds yellow cornmeal, molasses (to suit the taste), salt and a little yeast. Put in the round bottomed iron pan well greased, let rise, and bake. This loaf is delicious cut hot and just about as good when sliced thin and served with meat dinners for a week.

Then make jonnycake. One-third flour (or rye), two-thirds yellow corn-meal, a little shortening, salt, and if you have sour milk use soda; if not, use baking powder and water, with a little molasses or brown sugar. Bake in a pie tin and when served on the plate alternate each slice, one the golden yellow top, and the golden brown bottom.

If preferred to make muffins—just the same recipe except that the muffin tins make attractive little cakes. Take a Yankee woman's advice and don't attempt to make hoe-cakes or corn pone out of meal and water. That is chicken feed and don't seem to a northern person to be fit for anything else. And don't waste your eggs on "egg bread." Put your eggs into a custard and use your muffins without.

Corn griddle cakes are excellent. Always remember the one-third flour or rye, sweeten a little and use soda or baking powder as you do or do not have sour milk. And salt. Serve with sprup, and if made right there will never be any left.

A well cooked cornmeal mush makes a delicious breakfast food, and well cooked mush set over night in a mound and fried a crisp brown for breakfast is an attractive dish.

I could give an endless number of recipes for cooking cornmeal if desired. There is a cornmeal pudding that cannot be beaten. Thin cornmeal gruel well cooked and served with milk makes one of the very best foods for the sick. If only one spoonful can be taken at a time it will be found more nourishing than broths and far more appetizing.

TWO CONVERSATIONS OVERHEARD ON TUESDAY

Hello, Fatty!

Hello, Bill! , What'd youse do yesterday?

Nuffin' much; went to the Ex'bishon ground. What'd youse do?

Went down the river picnickin'. Had a great ole time. Had six swims an' a gorgeous feed; caught three fish, and fell in the river wiv me clothes on comin' home.

Oh, gosh! wish I'd been there. What'd youse have to eat?

Oh, all kinds; boiled ham an' potted meat, an' pies an' tarts, an' bananas an' oranges, an' maple sugar an' canned fish, an'

Oh, gosh, Fatty, youse might have ast me. What's the matter wiv your nose?

I found a hornet's nest.

Gosh, Fatty! looks as though it found youse. Where'd youse get all those things to eat?

Muvver got 'em at Paskins' Store. She says it's the best and cheapest store in Peterborough. She only give'd 29 cents a pound for the ham and boiled it herself. An' she got the pies an' tarts there, too, cause she says it's cheaper to buy pies at 12 cents each than to make 'em. An' them pure maple sugar bon-bons is fine, and only 25 cents a pound.

I'm goin' to git some now.

All right. I'll go wiv youse.

Good morning, Winnie.

Same to you, Florrie How are you feeling after yesterday?

Oh, fine! Feel as though I could run a yard if my shoes weren't so tight. How's yourself?

Oh, I'm tired. We went for a picnic yesterday, and it's such a rush getting things ready.

Oh, you are silly to spoil your outing that way. We went for a picnic, but we had no trouble. We just got our things ready packed for us in a basket.

Why, where can you get that?

Oh, that would make it too expensive.

That's where you're wrong. We had a lovely basket for two, and it had beef sandwiches, tomatoes, rolls, pot of butter, cakes, fruit, candies, soft drinks, and even cups, plates, and table cloth, and it only cost $1.

Oh, my, How nice! I'll try that on Saturday.

Yes, do. They will put up a lunch from 50c, or if you want anything special you can have it included. Oh, say, is my hat on straight?

Yes, but you've a black spot on your nose. That's better.

Well, good-bye, dear. See you later

Good-bye.

FOOD CONSERVATION

The thrift and conservation committee of the United States has issued the following suggestions along the line of food conservation:

1—Plan at one time for two or three meals.

2—Use few materials for any one meal.

3—Use different methods for preparing the same article.

4—Balance light soup by heavier main course.

5—Alternate salad and dessert. Do not have both at same meal.

6—Make contrast between courses.

7—Avoid monotony in texture, color or preparation.

8—Serve enough, but not too much.

The following menus show the use of four common foods, beef, cabbage, apples and potatoes, for twelve meals differently prepared each time. This is a satisfactory and feasible way of obtaining a pleasing variety:

No. 1—Porterhouse steak, mashed potato, cabbage salad with nuts, baking powder biscuit, apple pie, coffee.

No. 2—Tongue, cabbage and potato salad, popover, apple turnover with cream, tea.

No. 3 Roast ribs of beef, baked potatoes, cabbage salad (some cream dressing), plain bread baked apples with cream, coffee.

No. 4—Creamed dried beef, stuffed potatoes, creamed cabbage with peppers, Graham muffins, brown betty with cream, coffee.

No. 5—Shepherd's pie, creamed cabbage, white muffins, apple souffle with whipped cream, cocoa.

No. 6—Corned beef, boiled potatoes, boiled cabbage, butter rolls, apple pudding, coffee.

No. 7—Short ribs, French fried potatoes, steamed cabbage, apple dumplings and cream, Graham gems, coffee.

No. 8 Rolled stuffed steak, browned potatoes, hot slaw, baked apples, cream, jelly, nuts, coffee.

No. 9 Hamburg steak, riced potatoes, escalloped cabbage, Graham bread, apple tapioca, coffee.

No. 10—Corned beef hash, potatoes with butter and parsley, cabbage au gratin, entire wheat muffins, Dutch apple cake, lemon sauce, tea.

No. 11 Beef loaf, creamed potatoes, cold slaw, nut bread, Dutch apple cake with cream, coffee

No. 12—Pan boiled flank steak, escaloped potatoes, fried cabbage, French rolls, apple shortcake, cocoa.

PEANUT BREAD

Two cups of flour one cup peanut butter two teaspoons baking powder, one cup milk, one teaspoon salt, half a cup of sugar, and two eggs. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt into a bowl, add peanut butter and sugar and mix. Beat eggs and milk together, add flour and mix well. Put in greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven thirty to thirty-five minutes. This is best not cut until the day after baking, but will keep well (if allowed).

SPICED RHUBARB

Use two-and-a-half pounds rhubarb, two pounds sugar, seven-eighths cup vinegar, one teaspoon cinamon, half a teaspoon cloves. Wipe the rhubarb, skin, and cut stalks in one-inch pieces. Put in preserve kettle, add remaining ingredients, bring to boiling point and let simer until of the consistency of a mixture, cool, and seal.

If salt water is used when washing vegetable greens such as lettuce, spinach, etc., it will effectively drive out small insects that might not otherwise be reached.

TO REMOVE MILDEW

The housewife who does not iron her clean clothes soon after sprinkling them, sometimes finds them mildewed when she shakes them out. Mildew is a rather difficult stain to remove, but it is frequently possible to get rid of it. First try stretching the stained fabric over some hard substance and rubbing it with a dry cloth, then rub salt over the stains and squeeze the juice of a lemon over the salt. Let this stand a short time, and shake off and wash. Another way is to mix together French chalk and water, making a paste which may be spread smoothly over the stained cloth. Put it in the sun to dry, if possible; if not, somewhere else where it may dry slowly. When well dried, brush off the chalk. If th stains still remain, after rinsing the material in cold or, better, tepid water, repeat the process.

SUBSTITUTE FOR POTATOES

One-fourth pound of cooked rice, 2 small cooked turnips, 4 cooked carrots. Pepper and salt to taste. Mash all together in a basin, then spread on a pastry board to about the thickness of an inch, an dallow time to cool. Cut into round cakes and fry in lard and dripping. If made while the rice is hot, this dish requires no egg, but if the rice is allowed to become cold, an egg is needed to bind the mixture together.

BREAD AND BULLETS

Brad waste is bullet waste to-day. Every crumb should be saved, and the person who eats a slice of bread more than he needs, the servant who throws away a crust, the housewife who fails to exercise most careful supervision over the rationing of her household is helping the enemy—and retarding the fulfilment of the ideals for which our gallant soldiers and our brave sailors are giving their lives.—Kennedy Jones, M.P.

WEATHER FORECASTS.
Moderate southwest winds, becoming variable. Showres and thunderstorms in some localities but generally fair and warm today and Sunday.

London, July 7th, (C.P.)--Thirty-seven persons were killed in raid on London and 141 injured, it was officially announced this afternoon.

STEADY RAIN OF BOMBS WAS SHOWERED ON LONDON BY FLEET OF GERMAN AIRCRAFT

Bombardment Lasted Fifteen Minutes and Raid Was Greatest Ever Yet Made on London---Impossible at This Time to Estimate Amount of Damage or Loss of Life.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 7. — About twenty enemy airplanes bombarded London today, according to the official statement by the war office.

Lord French reports that about 9:30 o'clock this morning hostile aircraft in considerable numbers, probably in two parties, appeared over the Isle of Thanet and the west coast of Essex. After dropping some bombs, the raiders proceeded in the direction of London. Moving roughly parallel to the north bank of the Thames, they approached London from the northeast. Then changing their course, they proceeded north and west and crossed London from the northwest to the southeast. Bombs were dropped in various places in the metropolitan area.

The number of airplanes is at present uncertain, but there were probably about twenty. They were attacked by artillery and a large number of our airplanes, but not reports have yet been received.

London, July 7. — Damage was done in the heart of London by this morning's raid, which was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, ever attempted by the Germans over the metropolis. Late this morning it was impossible to say what the loss of life had been. For a quarter of an hour the raiders dropped a steady rain of bombs.

CAME IN CLOSE FORMATION.

The west end and the fashionable northwestern residential suburbs had a superb view of the approach of the visitors. From the farther northern fringes of the metropolis the raiders swept onward in fairly close formation, more than a score in number.

The squadron, which had been flying high before, began a swift toboggan downwards. Its speed increased tremendously under the assistance of gravity, and the planes soon reached a level, evidently less than a thousand yards, in their swoop toward the central objectives. Meanwhile from all directions anti-aircraft batteries were working like machine guns. Bursting shrapnel dotted the air around the oncoming raiders with snarling, vicious black puffs of smoke more numerous than the planes. It seemed impossible for the raiders to completely escape from the atmosphere of the curtain of fire surrounding them. The raiders, however, pursued their course, keeping their cargo of bombs until they had crossed the suburban districts and the outlying parks.

LONDONERS URGE REPRISALS.

London, July 7.—The German raiders came from the north and left going south. The streets were littered with glass from broken windows. People of the capital are urging that quick reprisals be made.

An official statement issued this afternoon by the British Admiralty said three German airplanes which had dropped bombs on London have been brought down at sea.

PTE. HERBERT NICHOLLS HAS DIED OF HIS WOUNDS

Injuries Reported a Few Day's Ago Have Fatul Termination---Three Other Local Men Figure in the Casualties

Peterboro soldiers suffered greatly in the battles at the last of June, according to the messages received by relatives here this morning. One soldier is dead as a result of wounds and three others are severely injured.

Private Nicholls Dead

Mrs. Maud Nicholls, 272 Charlotte Street, received word this morning that her son, Private Herbert Nicholls, who was repored wounded a few days ago, had died of wounds at No. 7 Clearing Casualty Station on June 30th. He was dangerously wounded in the hand and in the head.

Private William Fair Wounded

Private William Fair was wounded on June 28th, according to word sent to his wife, Mrs. Margaret Fair, of Queen Street, this morning. His injuries are a severe multiple gunshot wound.

Private Joseph Hobbins.

Mr. Dennis Hobbins, of Queen Street, received word from the War Office this morning that his son Private Joseph Hobbins, had been wounded on June 28th, and had been admitted to No. 4 General Hospital, Camiers.

Private Victor Sedgwick

Mr. Albert Sedgwick, of Otonabee, received word yesterday, that his son, Private Victor Sedgwick, who went overseas with the 93rd Batt., had been wounded, and was in the General Hospital at Bologne. He was suffering from a gunshot wound in the left thigh, and the message says that the wound is a severe one.

"HEART PILLS" CAUSED DEATH OF SMALL BOY

LINDSAY PARENTS WERE BEREAVED IN VERY SAD MANNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kelcher of Lindsay lost their two-year-old son after a short illness of two hours.

It appears that Master Morris Joseph was playing about the house, and, while his mother was looking after a younger child Morris climbed up on a chair and succeeded in getting some "heart pills" from a shelf, which had been prescribed for Mrs. Kelcher. It is not known how many the young lad took, but ordinarily one would be sufficient to cause death.

A doctor was hurriedly summoned, but within two hours the little fellow had passed away.

BLIGHT NOTED IN POTATOES

MYSTERIOUS DISEASE IS PUZZLING FARMERS AND GARDENERS.

A blight in potato tops has been noticed both in the farmers' fields and the back yard gardins in the city. Mr. R. J. Sanderson of Braidwood Avenue, has a patch of potatoes the leaves of which near the ground are wilting. They are punctured, too, as if from the work of insects but there are none of these visible.

No one who has seen the blighted leaves are able to explain it. The Review called up District Representative McCrae at Norwood, to ask him to investigate but Mr. McCrae is away from home and will not return for two weeks.

Foreigners Are Safe From Chinese

Republican Troops Are Having the Best of It in the Fighting.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 7.—A despatch to the Times from Peking says danger to foreigners in Chinese capital is not feared. A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Tien Tsin says fighting is going on at several points and republican troops thus far have the advantage.

FRENCH SUBMARINE WAS TORPEDOED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, July 7.—A French submarine was torpedoed in the Mediterranean on June 19th by a German U-boat. Only nine of the crew were saved.

FARMERS ARE IN SESSION TODAY AT THE LIBRARY

Prominent Speakers Make Addresses on Agricultural Topics.

BANQUET AT THE EMPRESS

Farmer From Omemee Says the Crops Will Be Fair, Not Heavy.

Farmers from all over Peterborough County and from the surrounding counties joined in a banquet at the Empress Hotel at noon today. Among the banqueters were a number of local business and professional men. The gathering was in honor of Mr. John Kennedy, of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Grain Growers' Grain Company, and who is also an officer of the Home Bank.

Another guest of honor was Mr. J. J. Morrsion, of Arthur, Wellington County, the well-known and popular secretary of the United Farmers' of Ontario. Covers were laid for one hundred and three.

Every farmer present was a member of one or other of the numerous farmers' clubs in this district, and these clubs are all affiliated with the United Farmers' organization. The gathering in this city was designed to hear the agricultural situation discussed by such prominent farmers as Mr. Kennedy, Secretary Morrison and others.

After the banquet these two gentlemen made brief addresses and the gathering then adjourned to the Public Library hall, where the speaking was resumed and topics of interest to the profession were ably discussed.

One of the farmers present at the banquet, Mr. Johnston, of Omemee, says that the crop outlook is fair, but that the farmers do not look for an extra heavy yield. The season, to begin with, is about two weeks late, and the cool weather in the early part of the summer has retarded the growth of all kinds of crops, corn especially. Straw will be short, whatever the yield of grain may be.

Mr. Johnston says it will be the part of wisdom to avoid all waste and that the person who lays in his stock of flour now will not make a mistake as there is sure to be a scarcity and higher prices later.

GERMAN MORALE LOWER AFTER EVERY REVERSE

Significant Letter Picked up on Battle Field Shows That Troops Are Discouraged.

(By Stwart Lyons)

Canadian Headquarters in France, Friday, July 6, via London.—Fosse 5, the pithead which overlooked our outposts in Avion, disappeared yesterday in a cloud of dust and fire. It had been for some time a mark for our heavy artillery, but whether the destruction was caused by our shells or by the Germans themselves is not known. If they anticipated a further immediate advance of our men they may have blown up the mining works themselves, for it is their policy to leave behind them nothing that would aid in speedy resurrection of mining operations in this important coal area.

Much evidence of the lowering of German morale continues to be discovered in captured trenches and raided houses. A remarkable letter was found recently which had been written to a Bavarian at the front three weeks ago. The letter said in part:

"One can well understand that you are sick of this horrible business. I believe that the climax has been reached, for now one hears nothing but complaints. The German Social-Democrats have announced that if a single shot is fired in August revolution will follow. The situation is no longer good. They are on the track of the German kaiser, too, and if it lasts much longer it will be the end of Prussia, for the Prussians and the English are the masters. These two alone are carrying on the war. The others are merely in their hands."

If much of that sort of stuff is reaching Prince Rupprecht's men, the decline in fighting spirit of the Bavarians is removed from the realm of a matter for wonder.

I understand that our casualties have been very light during the past two weeks, and exceptionally so in the killed and missing classes.

ALD. DUNCAN IS MAYOR PRO TEM

SELECTED FOR OFFICE IN THE ABSENCE OF MAYOR DUFFUS.

At the council meeting last night Mayor Duffus asked the aldermen to select one of their number to be acting mayor during his absence from the city on military duty.

It was the unanimous choice of the council that Ald. George Duncan be the Chief Magistrate during the Mayor's absence.

Ald. Duncan thanked his colleagues for the honor, and promised to use his best endeavors in the city's interest.

LITTLE RED CAR IS ALL RIGHT

CHIEF HOWARD'S RUNABOUT IS WHAT SPECIFICATIONS CALLED FOR.

Ever since the Fire Department was equipped with a motor runabout for the Fire Chief irresponsible critics have been throwing out insinuations that the car was not up to the specifications as approved of by the Council.

Ald. Smith at the meeting last night drew the attention of the Council to the criticisms that were being made and asked for information.

Ald. Dobbin informed the East City alderman that the car would accommodate two persons in addition to those on the front seat and would also carry the pulmoter.

BODY RECOVERED.

Remains of Mary O'Connor Interred At Edmonton.

The body of Miss Mary O'Connor, who was drowned at Edmonton on Monday last, was recovered yesterday and was buried at Edmonton this morning. The unfortunate young lady was a daughter of Mr. James O'Connor of Otonabee.

BRITISH MAKE ADVANCE ON LINE EAST OF WYTSCHAETE AND REPULSE ALL ATTACKS

Violent Fighting Has Begun, on Russian Front and City of Pinsk is in Flames---French Bring Down Nineteen Airplanes---German Employes Ordered to Leave United States at Once.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 7.—"To the east of Wytschaete our line has again been slightly advanced. The enemy attempted a raid on our trenches in the vicinity of Acheville, but was repulsed. Elsewhere there were no important events."

PINSK IS IN FLAMES.

Petrograd, July 7. — Violent fighting has begun on the Russian front west of Pinsk. The city of Pinsk is in flames, according to an announcement sent out by an official news agency.

RUSSIANS TAKE TRENCHES.

"Fighting on the front of the eleventh army continued until late this evening. Troops of the Fifth Siberian Corps as well as of the Seventeenth and Forty-ninth Corps took the first line trenches, and at some points the second line of trenches. On the front of the Seventh Army the situation is unchanged."

20 AIRCRAFT BROUGHT DOWN.

Paris, July 7. — Nineteen enemy airplanes and one captive balloon were brought down between June 21 and 30.

GERMANS ORDERED FROM U. S.

Washington, July 7. — All Germans formerly connected with the German embassy or any of the numerous German consulates in America, chiefly clerks or servants, have been requested to leave the United States, as their presence is intolerable.

CHANCELLOR TO SPEAK MONDAY

Berlin, July 7. — A despatch from Berlin to the Exchange Telegraph at Amsterdam says the chancellor will deliver his speech to the Reichstag on Monday, and it is reiterated that specially important developments are expected.

ARTILLERY KEEPS UP DUEL.

Paris, July 7. — Heavy artillery fighting occurred last night near Laroyers and Pentheon, on the Aisne front, and in the region south of Moronvillers, in the Champagne, according to an official announcement.

J. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of Agricultural Societies, was presented, as "the friend of the farmers," with a goldheaded ebony case by Ontario expert judges at Ontario Agricultural College.

CITY RECEIVES OFFER OF FIVE CAR LOADS OF COAL

This is Declined by Council But Ald. Dobbin Will Take Matter up With Toronto Dealers.

The City Council held a special meeting last night and received and dealt with the following communications:

From Miss Sophie Kohen, stating that she had secured six cars of egg coal for the city at Scranton and that five cars of it would go forward shortly. When this matter was taken up later on in the evening, Ald. Dobbin, chairman of the fire, water and light committee, stated that he had been handed a price from two local dealers for the coal supply for the city buildings. Fitzgerald had quoted $9.20 per ton for broken lump hard coal. This is a little larger than egg coal. The Hicks Co. quoted $9 for furnace coal and $10 per ton for egg size. Neither of the firms had made any price for the smaller sizes.

Ald. Weir stated that the broken lump had been used in the Armories, but was usually 25 cents a ton cheaper than other coal.

Ald Smith thought that the figure at the mine quoted by Miss Kohen was too high. It would cost about $10.45 delivered.

Ald. Dobbin pointed out that it was a gross ton quotation, and the coal could be delivered in Peterborough for about $9.50.

Some of the aldermen were of the opinion that according to the letter someone must have ordered the coal. Aldermen Dobbin and Worth stated that no order had been given and if the coal arrived in the city it would be at the shipper's risk.

Ald McIntyre thought that if the coal arrived it should be secured, and moved accordingly.

Ald. Saunders agreed, and seconded the motion.

The question arose as to the legality of the city getting coal without the necessary authority. City Solicitor Gordon had the matter of the coal yard bylaw before the Municipal Board, but as yet their approval had not been secured.

Ald. Worth was strongly of the opinion that the city should have a supply of coal on hand to provide for "what might occur."

Mayor Duffus was not in favor of entering the coal field if the dealers could guarantee a supply of coal for the winter. He asked Ald. Weir as to present conditions

Ald. Weir stated that the coal situation was easing up, but that he could not guarantee anything at the present time.

Ald Taylor thought that the city building coal should be purchased from the local dealers.

The vote to accept the five cars of coal was taken, and the motion lost, but it was later decided that Ald Dobbin should go to Toronto on Monday and interview the parties, and report as soon as posible on the situation.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1917

WHY THE PREMIER HESITATED.

PREMIER BORDEN has been urged for the past year to introduce some measure of compulsion into the military service, and he has been censured by political friend and opponent alike for hesitating. Sir Robert had all this time the responsibility of office, something that did not encumber his critics. He must have foreseen the turmoil that would be created in the country by a proposal to introduce conscription, and his fears in this regard have been amply justified by the events of the past week. The old political alignment has been broken up, neighbor has been set against neighbor, faction against faction, race against race and province against province. One section of the country has openly threatened revolt, and the situation in Canada is more serious than it has ever been known either before or since Confederation. The country is passing through a crisis, and only the wisest statesmanship can avoid the rocks and shoal water.

The voluntary system was tried to the limit. If it has failed, it has not been for lack of organized effort on the part of the Government. The Premier and his colleagues may have been slow in facing the problem, but they were able to forecast the trouble that was in their pathway.

The Conscription Bill is to be passed and there is to be no further hesitation. The people have the assurance of the Premier that once it becomes a law it will not be allowed to remain a dead letter on the statute books, but will be enforced to the letter.

The recent events at Ottawa have been fruitful in results aside from the success that has crowned the efforts of the Government in the strenuous task that they have undertaken. It has been demonstrated that the country still has in its service public men who, with the true spirit of patriotism, can rise above party when duty points the way.

REPRESENTATION IN PARLIAMENT.

THE LIBERALS in the Western Province propose to organize along entirely new lines. They are to have what they call group representation in Parliament, and the members of one community or section of the country are to stand together on any public question that directly affects their interests. This is the principle of organization applied to parliamentary representation, and the result will be the breeding of more factions than ever in the public service of Canada. The new party may not long survive a trial, but the move shows the tendency of the times to centralize interests and work for the good of a particular section rather than for the nation as an entirety.

There is still talk of a coalition government at Ottawa, in which every profession and grade of society is, so far as possible, to have representation in the cabinet. The farmers, the professions and the workingmen are to be given a voice in shaping the affairs of the country. No other form of government can be truly representative. Farmers cannot be represented in the proper sense by a member of one of the learned professions. Labor can look for little sympathy from a corporation lawer entrusted with the oversight of their interests.

Proportionate representation, a recognition of the rights of the minority, has for years been a moot question. In England it has just been defeated in parliament by a majority so narrow that it is evident that the reform is on the way. There is something radically wrong in any system of government, especially in a confederation of states and provinces, where it is possible for an administration to hold office by a minority of either the popular vote or of the different sections. In any country where the two parties are almost equally divided, manipulation of ridings that gives one party an unfair advantage in numbers should be impossible.

It is of vastly more importance to have the different classes in a country represented in parliament than that the representatives be chosen according to location. The learned professions are entitled to representation. So are the farmers and the working classes. This is the principle upon which all government should be based, and the same principle should be carried out when it comes to the question of forming a cabinet.

THE FATAL RELIGIOUS DISCUSSION.

OUT IN HASTINGS COUNTY a number of farmers were putting in their statute labor on the highway. Among them was a raw youth of eighteen years. A religious discussion arose, in which the faith of the boy was spoken of in terms of derision. The dispute waxed warm, and it is alleged one man lost his temper and attempted to assault the boy. The latter defended himself with the shovel with which he was working. The result was a tragedy. The man is in the cemetery and the youth is in jail awaiting trial on a charge of murder.

The religious discussion invariably breeds trouble, whether it is conducted from the platform or in private circles. A man's creed is something that is sacred, in his own opinion, a matter that is strictly between himself and his Maker and which does not, or should not, concern an outsider. No man likes to hear his faith lightly spoken of, any more than he is willing to have his affection for his wife and children derided and the objects of that affection spoken of in terms of contempt. The day of the agitator is passing, either in public or in private life. His disappearance, will make for greater harmony and peace in the community.

Wit and Wisdom

Won His Wager.

A stupid looking recruit halted before a blacksmith's forge, the proprietor of which was forging a shoe, and eyed the performance with much interest. The brawny smith, dissatisfied with the man's curiosity, held the red-hot iron suddenly under his nose, hoping to make him beat a hasty retreat.

"If you give me a half crown I will lick it," said the soldier.

The smith immediately took half a crown from his pocket and held it out. The cunning son of Mars took the coin, licked it, and walked away whistling. "The girl I left behind me."

Willing To Help.

"John, dear," said Mabel as her lord and master entered the house, "I've just had a letter from mother, and she is coming to spend Christmas with us. It is a pretty expensive trip for little mummy, and I wondered if we couldn't help her out a little."

"Of course we can," said John, giving his wife a generous kiss. "Just you write and tell her that I'll be only too glad to pay for her railway ticket back home again as soon as she decides to go."

Explained.

Pat was strolling about one day with an Englishman when they met a very poor looking old woman.

"Pat," said the Englishman, "I will give that woman sixpence for every penny you give her."

"Right!" said Pat, and he gave her ninepence.

When the Englishman had given her his share, "Pat," said he, "which of us was the biggest fool?"

"It was you," said Pat.

"No," said the Englishman, "it was you, for you gave her all you had."

"But," said Pat, "that was my mother!"

On the Wrong Side.

A poetic contributor submitted to a newspaper an effusion entitled "The Lay of the Lark." It was returned with this note:

"Rejected with thanks. Send a few specimens of the lay of the hen just now. We will gladly accept them."

COST OF HANDLING EGGS.

That is what it costs to get eggs in car lots from the farmer to the consumer in the city:

	Per case of 30 doz.
Profit of country store	$0.30
Cost of case and fillers	.30
Profit car lot packers	.30
Profit freight and cartage	.20
Profit car lot buyers	.15
Cost of candling	.15
Profit distributor to grocerymen	.30
Loss on inferior and bad eggs	.60
Profit of grocer	.90
Total—10 2-3c per doz.	$3 20

The foregoing figures, while not exact to the mill, are approximately correct and illustrate very fairly the cost of grading and distribution.

The dealers are all middlemen, but none could well be dispensed with in handling eggs. None except the grocer, who sells only in a small way, profits more than 1 cent a dozen.

The freight in the foregoing estimates will vary with the distance shipped, and the loss in bad and inferior eggs will vary with the season.

GRACE FOR GARDENS.

The fololwing poem by Louise Driscolle in the New York Times should be preserved by every amateur gardener;

Lord God in Paradise.
Look upon our sowing.
Bless the little gardens
And the good peas growing!
Give us sun, give us rain.
Bless the orchards, and the grain!

Lord God in Paradise,
Please bless the beans and peas,
Give us corn full on the ear—
We will praise Thee, ord, for these!
Bless the blossom and the root.
Bless the seeds and the fruit!

Lord God in Paradise.
Over my broken field is seen.
Trembling and adventuring
A miracle of green.
Send such grace as you know,
To keep it safe and make it grow.

Lord God in Paradise,
For the wonder of the seed,
Wondering, we praise You, while
We tell you of our need.
Look down from Paradise,
Look upon our sowing,
Bless the little gardens
And the good green growing!

Give us sun.
Give use rain.
Bless the orchards
And the grain!

THE ANCIENT HOME GUARD

"I haven't seen your husband for several days," remarked Mrs. Turpentine. "Is he out of town?"

"No, he's in the house," replied Mrs. Curfew, "but his head is badly dented and bruised and he is threatened with nervous prostration, and I won't allow him to leave the premises until he is more like himself.

"I'm sure I don't know what's going to become of Mr. Curfew unless he can get rid of some of his patriotism. I'm glad to have a husband who is willing and anxious to make sacrifices for his country, but I can't help thinking that even patriotism may be carried too far.

"My husband has been trying to enlist ever since diplomatic relations with Germany were broken off, but the officials won't accept him. They take one look at his flowing white whiskers and advise him to get a plush lined rocking chair and a pair of carpet slippers and spend his declining years by the fireside. One sergeant or corporal or other nlisting officer said the country was trying to organize an army, not an octogenarians' club, and Mr. Curfew was boiling mad.

"Finally, seeing that he couldn't break into the army, he decided to organize a regiment of home guards to police the town when the able-bodied young men are called away. He went around and interviewed a lot of the patriarchs in the neighborhood and they all said it would be a fine thing and they would be glad to take part.

"Mr. Curfew elected himself colonel or brigadier-general or somthing. He felt that he was entitled to the commanding position, as the idea was his own, and the old men admitted that it was fair, and so the other evening they assembled for a drill on Johnson's vacant lot across the alley. Mr. Curfew had dug up a sword and a big brass helmet with a plume on it, and he had a red sash around his waist and large spurs on his boots, and when he walked he clanked like a keg of nails.

"He cetrainly was an imposing figure when he went out of the house in all his martial array, and I was proud of his apparance, although I feared the worst, for I didn't believe the old men of his brigade would stand it to be bossed around. I knew most of them personally, and they are a cantankerous lot, and their wives can't get along with them.

"My husband shouted some order and some of the men obeyed and others just stood around grinning. Mr. Gooseworthy said there was no sense in such an order and that it was contrary to all military rules and the ethics of West Point, or words to that effect.

"My husband reprimanded him severely, which was perfectly proper, for if the commanding officer of a home guard can't maintain discipline there is going to be anarchy. Mr. Gooseworthy said he'd be everlastingly drawn and quartered if he'd be spoken to in that tone of voice by anybody and he picked up a chunk of vitrified brick and threw it at my husband.

"It struck his brass helmet and jammed it down over his ears so that we had to get the blacksmith to pry it off. Meanwhile all the members of the home guard indulged in a riot, some supporting my husband and some backing Mr. Gooseworthy, and they were all bunged up more or less, but most of the bricks and things hit my husband, for he was where the weapons were thickest, as he always is, and I really don't want the neighbors to see him until his head is healed up."

CARRYING HOME THE PACKAGES

There was once a time when the well known husband and father was accustomed to return home late in the afternoon with his arms full of bundels. The packages contained household supplies of various kinds—groceries, dry goods and hardware, ten-penny nails to crackers and cheese and the spool of No. 30 cotton which mother had told him to be sure and not forget. Also, in those days even the most fashionable of housewives would go to market and bear home in her own basket or reticule whatever of produce might be required to supply the family table.

This simple arrangement has been largely forgotten for many a year by this time. A very large proportion of city dwellers regard it as undignified or something of the sort to be seen carrying parcels homeward. In conseqeunce there has grown up a delivery system that adds materially to the cost of common commodities.

This, however, is the era of change. A laudable effort to modify this custom and to induce people to carry their own purchases is being made by the commercial economy board of the council of national defense. This is a good measure of communal thrift. It ought to result in considerable savings which can be profitably invested in diverse ways—including additional purchases of war bonds when next the government issues these not many months hence, probably.

Therefore, the man in the crowded car who takes up much room with his bundles should now be treated indulgently. He is practicing war economy and he is perhaps a better patriot than his discommoded neighbor, who scowls at the bearer of burdens and has all his own goods delivered by an expensive system.

ODDS AND ENDS FROM THE AMERICAN PRESS

The Decadent West.

(Emporia Gazette.)

Are we becoming effeminate in our pleasures? Last week a Missouri mob got the rope around its victim's neck and then grew chicken-hearted and let him go. This week an Oklahoma mob chased a negro more than a hundred miles and when the man finally was captured failed to hang him. What's the matter?

Telling All About It in Kentucky.

(Paintsville Herald.)

With the morning sunshine and its effulgence to brighten the heavens, his splendor as threads in the skirts of the robe of the Deity, after the night wrapped in the sable mantle, woven with gems and stars which shined as ornaments worked by the needle of God in that brilliant piece of tapestry which had spread over our heads as a dwelling tent, the beautiful and accomplished Miss Golda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, and one charming Hugh Peters, with the immediate family and friends, was summoned to the bridal altar in the parlor of the bride's home.

A Philippine Medicine Tree.

(Christian Herald.)

Between the provincial building and the Filipino school house, part of which is used as a girls' dormitory, stands the sacred tree of the Ifugaos, with a span of its branches of 300 feet. Nor is it a tree at all in the true sense, for it is a gigantic example of the baleto, which begins as a parasite vine, kills the tree on which it rises, and then hides it in its twining trunk. The Ifugaos think that when that huge tree dies they, too, will perish, but there is an industry, a solidity and a stamina in that obscure race that should remove from their hearts all fear of extinction.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

From The Review of July 7, 1900:

The officers of the 57th Regiment held their annual dinner when Lt.-Col. R. W. Bell and Major W. Langford, who had been identified with the 57th for years, severed their connection with military affairs.

The W. C. T. U. elected Mrs. Jas. Kendry superintendent of mothers' meetings and the purity department.

Col. Montizambert inspected the 57th Regiment and complimented Col. E. B. Edwards on the showing made.

The names of the pupils promoted in the separate schools occupied a scant half column in The Review as against the columns of space required to record the results of the recent examinations.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.

Two out of the last three Lord Mayors of London have been Catholics. There is no Orange monopoly as in Toronto. The present Chief Magistrate of the City of London is a particularly ardent Catholic, Sir William Dunn, who was made Baronet on the King's birthday. Sir William's charitable and philanthropic work has known no limitations of creed, although Catholic institutions have had special cause to feel grateful for his sympathetic and friendly interest. He received his knighthood in 1907; in 1909 he was created Alderman of the Ward of Cheap; and sat as Unionist M.P. for Southwark in 1910.

Guard Baby's Health in the Summer

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentry, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realises he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE TRUSTED AID

Lloyd George's Private Secretary Holds State Secrets.

THIS GIRL LONDON BORN.

All the Stupendously Important Affairs of an Empire Pass Safely Through the Young Lady's Hands—Secretaryship Held by Men Heretofore.

Next to David Lloyd George, prime minister of England, Miss F. L. Stevenson, his private secretary, is perhaps the most important person in the British empire. She performs duties for which men have been knighted amid the plaudits of the nation.

Everything that reaches Lloyd George necessarily passes through Miss Stevenson's hands. The private secretary of the prime minister is his chief confidant, his tactful counselor and, in a sense, even the keeper of his conscience.

Some prime ministers, as for instance Lord Beaconsfield, have caused peerages to be bestowed on their private secretaries. Herbert Asquith not only rewarded his private secretary with a knighthood of the Order of the Bath but with the hand of one of his daughters.

MISS F. L. STEVENSON.

In view of the fact that many distinguished men have occupied the position of alter ego to the British premier, Lloyd George overturned an almost prescriptive precedent when be appointed Miss Stevenson. The nomination created a sensation, being particularly welcome in the ranks of those who are working to broaden the estate of women in the realm.

The woman who now occupies the spacious private secretary's room at 10 Downing street, the historic official residence of the prime minister of England, is London born, the daughter of a Scotch father and a French mother.

After serving him as a private secretary in connection with his preparation of the national insurance act, she was continued as one of his official secretaries when he became chancellor of the exchequer in 1913. She was retained in the same capacity when he became minister of munitions two years ago. Of five secretaries she was the second in rank. When Lloyd George succeeded to the war office be took Miss Stevenson along in the secretarial capacity.

As the chief private secretary of the prime minister Miss Stevenson receives a salary of $4,000 to $5,000 a year.

She is a graduate of the London university and the Royal Holloway college. Her only brother was killed on the French front in the battle of Guinchy last year.

THE CHIEF CHARM OF LOVELY WOMAN

Soft, Clear, Smooth Skin Comes With The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

NORAH WATSON
86 Drayton Ave., Toronto.
Nov. 10th, 1915.

A beautiful complexion is a handsome woman's chief glory and the envy of her less fortunate rivals. Yet a soft, clear skin—glowing with health—is only the natural result of pure Blood.

"I was troubled for a considerable time with a very unpleasant, disfiguring Rash, which covered my face and for which I used applications and remedies without relief. After using "Fruit-a-tives" for one week, the rash is completely gone. I am deeply thankful for the relief and in the future, I will not be without "Fruit-a-tives".

NORAH WATSON.

Spring Tints.

Japanese colors, dashing, splashing reds and yellows, with streaks of celestial blues, are the real tints for spring. Bright colors took a back seat last winter, some say on account of the lack of dyes. Whether the manufacturers can meet the spring decree for a Japanese riot of shades has not been announced. These oriental colors will be particularly noticeable in the spring ribbons. It is to be a ribbon season. Hats will be made entirely of ribbon ruffles, many of them in a new grayish green that is said to be having a wide swing in the Paris millinery salons.

Scotch Hash.

An onion cut fine and cooked a little in beef dripping, then add cooked meat that has been put through a meat chopper and a quarter as much fine crumbs of dried bread. Add salt and pepper and some gravy. If small amount add a little hot water after cooking awhile. Cook slowly half an hour or more, turning carefully to brown it all. This is very rich and is better made of cooked roast beef which is generally the poorest meat for hash No potatoes in this hash.

BANG GOES ONE MORE MYSTERY

DYNAMITE FOUND IN THE RIVER NOT MEANT FOR EVIL.

The mystery of the dynamite which was found in the river near the C. P. R. bridge has been solved by the local police.

It was not the work of Germans or any one with designs on the railway, but simply that of a local teamster who thought that dumping the sticks in the river was the easiest way of getting rid of the damaged stuff. One of the local hardware merchants had the dynamite spoiled at the powder magazine by a leaky roof, and knowing that is was useless ordered it taken away and destroyed.

Electric traction has been applied to one of Spain's most important mineral carrying railroads.

TWENTY-FIVE ARE INJURED

LOADED STREET CAR FELL FROM TRACK OF ELEVATED LINE.

COBB IS FAR AHEAD OF HIS CLOSEST RIVAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, July 7. — Cobb has up to last Wednesday night made one hundred hits for a total of one hundred and fifty-three bases, has made three home runs, twelve triples and twenty doubles, and his average is .383. He has crossed the home plate forty-seven times and stolen twenty bases. Speaker's average is 350.

LIQUOR MUST BE LABELLED

BOARD OF LICENSE COMMISSIONERS TO ISSUE NEW ORDERS.

Toronto, July 7.—For the information of inspectors the Ontario License Board will next week issue instructions governing the delivery of packages containing intoxicants not properly labelled so as to show their actual contents, and name and address of consignor.

It is also a violation of the act to send liquor improperly labelled to a fictitious person or address otherwise than the actual consignee, and the common carrier is also made liable in such cases. Section 3 of the act provides a penalty of from $50 to $200, or imprisonment up to six months or both.

A Nervous Breakdown

Can Be Averted by Feeding the Starved Nerves With Rich Red Blood.

Nourish your nerves—that is the only way you can overcome life's worst misery, nervous exhaustion. The fits of depression and irritation, the prostrating headaches, the weakness and trembling of the legs, the unsteady hand and the imperfect digestion that mark the victim of nerve weakness, must end in nervous breakdown if neglected.

Nourish your nerves by the natural process of filling your veins with rich, red, health-giving blood. Your nerves are crying out for pure blood and the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to make new, rich blood. This explains why these pills have proved successful in so many cases of nervous diseases that did not yield to ordinary treatment. For example, Mr. Wilfrid Donald, West Flamboro, Ont., says:—"Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was in a serious condition. I was not only badly run down, but my nerves seemed to be completely shattered. I slept badly at night, and when I got up in the mornng was as tired as when I went to bed. I seemed to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown. At this stage I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the course of a few weeks I felt much relief, and continuing the use of the pills they completely restored my health. I can sleep soundly, eat well, and am enjoying complete freedom from the old nervous troubles."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pnk Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Special Notice to Drivers

JULY 3rd, 1917.

On and after July 1st, the local regulations giving the right of way to vehicles going north and south over those going east and west, will be cancelled, and the following amendment to the Highway Travel Act substituted therefor:

"Where a person travelling or being upon a highway in charge of a vehicle or on horseback, meets another vehicle or person on horseback, at a crossroad or intersection, the vehicle or horseman to the right hand of the other vehicle or horseman shall have the right of way."

Drivers of all vehicles are therefore requested to note carefully the amendments to the law, and govern themselves accordingly.

By Order,

DANIEL THOMPSON,
Chief of Police.

Satisfied Customers

As a merchant, you realize that one of the greatest essentials to the prosperous growth of your business is a good list of Satisfied customers. You rely upon them for continued patronage. You Regard them as the best advertisement for your store. How important it is then to make and keep customers satisfied.

Service is the keynote of satisfaction. And one of the most successful systems for giving service is the National Cash Register.

With a National Cash Register your salesmen will be able to make a complete record of a transaction, give the customer a printed, infallible receipt in much less time than is possible in the ordinary way. The customer's time is not wasted. A customer can send her child to the store with confidence because she knows that she will get an unerring receipt for the money she spends. Temptation is removed from the child and the clerk.

This is merely suggestive of what a National Cash Register will do for you. Have us demonstrate to you the National Cash Register System. It is worth dollars for you to investigate.

At a picture show the Battle of the Somme film now so familiar to Canadians was being shown, and sitting side by side were a Highlander and an English Tommy. When one picture showed the English regiments going over the parapet Tommy turned to the other and said, "Where are all the Jocks now—the men who get the credit of doing all the fighting?" "Awa'," was the reply. "They're up in the front line haudin' the Germans back tae let the English chaps get their photo ta'en!"

Sport Colors.

Fuchsia red, Japanese scarlet and Indian crimson are the vivid shades of red that will be used for ornamentation.

In blue there are marine, navy, Egyptian and especially Chinese.

In green there are jade, nile, bottle and chrysoprase.

Before Buttonholing.

Great difficulty is often experienced in trying to keep the edges that are to be buttonholed from fraying. The best thing to do is to run a line of machine stitching along the line to be buttonholed. This will not only prevent the goods from fraying before and during the work, but will insure a stronger and neater effect after it is buttonholed.

What Do These Words Mean to You?

They mean greater safety in the Home. Surely something that interests you keenly!

Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation, "No fire left when blown out," on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The splints or sticks of all matches contained in these boxes have been impregnated or soaked in a chemical solution which renders them dead wood once they have been lighted and blown out, and the danger of FIRE from glowing matches is hereby reduced to the greatest minimum.

"The Kind of Car we Want"

"NOW that is what I call a real car! Jones was surely wise when he chose a BRISCOE. There is nothing like it at anywhere near the price—I know that, for I've been looking around. Take that car, point by point, and it has 'em all stopped. There's Style and Quality sticking out all over it. Why, with a car like that we wouldn't need to take anybody's dust. Then—there's the matter of economy—both in first cost and upkeep. The gives all the comfort and luxury of the more expensive cars at a price we can afford to pay. Not only that—the regular equipment includes everything—no 'extras' to buy. For $935 the BRISCOE, B "4-24" offers: Electric Lighting and Starting System—Tilted Eye Saver Windshield—Floating Type Rear Axle—Full Elliptic Springs, front and rear—One-Man Top—Crown Fenders—Speedometer—Gasoline Gauge—Ammeter—Trouble Light Socket—Automatic Switch with Key Lock—Electric Horn—Extra Demountable Rim—Tools and Repair Kit.

The 'Half Million Dollar Motor' cuts the cost of operation to a minimum, because it gets every possible ounce of explosive force out of the gas, and makes possible 30 to 35 miles to the gallon.

The control is so simple that you can drive for hours without effort. You can change the gears with your finger tips, and the slightest pressure operates the clutch and brake pedals."

LABOR TOO SCARCE.

Work on Sewers Will Not Be Taken Up Again.

The City Council decided last night that for the present the work on the South Ward sewers would not be re started.

Ald. Weir stated that the trip hammer for placing the sheet piling had arrived and he wanted the council's sanction to resume the work.

The aldermen thought that the labor market at the present did not warrant proceeding with the work.

TO FLUSH GEORGE STREET.

Ald. Worth Succeeds in Plea For a Clean City.

Ald. Worth, at the council meeting last night was successful in having a motion passed asking the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to see what could be done towards having the Fire Department flush George street from Brock to Charlotte street. Many of the merchants had asked that this be done. Ald. Worth pointed out the beautiful clean streets of the American cities, all due to the streets being regularly flushed.

If you want help of any kind a "Want Ad." in The Review will bring you good applicants.

COMPLAIN OF DUST.

Blasting Operations Source of Annoyance to Residents.

Mayor Duffus informed the City Council lats night that the residents of Brock and Sheridan streets were complaining of the dust and stone coming from the blasts of the work at the Quaker Oats Co. He was informed that there were several cases of sickness near there and if anything could be done to alleviate the discomfort, it should be done.

Ald. Duncan stated that the Leonard Construction Co. had given him instructions to put in all glass that was broken as a result of the blasting operations.

City Solicitor Gordon stated that the Council were not responsible for any damage caused by the explosions. Th City Engineer will interview the Construction Co. regarding using a rope blanket to prevent dust and other material doing damage.

NOISES OF THE NIGHT.

Hotel Guests Object to Din Made By Railway Trains.

James Head, the proprietor of the Montreal House, complained to Ald. Langford, the chairman of the Railway Committee that the engines of the G.T.R. were making too much noise during the night and disturbed the guests of the hotel. The North ward alderman thought that some action should be taken to have the noise stopped.

Mayor Duffus stated that Supt. McMillan had had detectives here for several days watching for engineers who had disregarded orders relative to bells and steam blowing off at night.

The City Clerk will write Mr. McMullan giving specific instances of violation with the eng.ne number.

If you have property for sale, a "For Sale" Ad. in The Review will sell it sure.

WANTS A DOG CATCHER.

Mayor Duffus Thinks Such An Official is Required.

The dog question was again before the City Council last night and it was pointed out that the police were ready to render every assistance in ridding the city of stray animals if a duly authorized dog catcher was appointed.

Mayor Duffus thought that if one was put on for a few days it would be a good thing.

Ald. Smith stated that the police complain that they are unable to find out who own the dogs running at large owing to the owners not putting the tags on them.

When You Feel It Coming

—When that old Headache sends its warning that you are going to suffer—take ZUTOO. When you feel a Cold coming on take ZUTOO. At the first sign of a pain—at the first feeling of sickness—take ZUTOO.

You will be all right in 20 minutes if it's a headache, or the next morning if it is a cold. Pain all gone, and the whole body refreshed.

Don't wait—don't take chances. Get ZUTOO Tablets to-day—and have them ready to take at the first sign of a Headache or cold and TAKE THEM.

Names of Pupils Omitted From the School Reports.

The names of two pupils were omitted from the published reports of the recent examinations for promotion in the public schools by an oversight on the part of the teachers and not through any fault of the newspapers.

In the South Central School Phyllis Grose was promoted from Junior I. to Senior I.

In the King George School Laura Jones was promoted from Senior III. to Junior IV.

WANTS MORE OIL.

Ald. McIntyre Protests Against Treatment of His Ward.

Ald. McIntyre entered a very strong protest over the treatment that the North Ward was receiving in the matter of oil. The main thoroughfares should receive attention before the side streets of the West ward.

Ald. Smith wanted the north ward residents informed that East City had not received any oil yet.

City Engineer Parsons stated that the streets would be oiled as soon as repaired.

PREMIER DENIES CHARGE MADE BY SIR SAM HUGHES

Never Suggested to Ex-Minister of Militia That He Should Let up in Recruiting—Sir Sam Sticks to His Guns.

Ottawa, July 7.—The House yesterday afternoon went into committee on the Military Service Bill. At the outset Sir Robert Borden rose to refer to certain statemens made by General Sir Sam Hughes, ex-Minister of Militia, with regard to alleged representations made by the Premier to the latter's looking toward a slackening in recruiting.

General Hughes listened for a few moments and then got up. "I haven't heard one word the Prime Minister uttered," he said; "would he mind speaking up?"

The Premier flushed and raised his voice. "I desire," he said, "to take the strongest possible exception to statements to the effect that I at any time advised a letting-up on recruiting. I repeat what I already said on January 29th last. I assure the House and the country that at no time did I ever convey any such intimation or anything which might be tortured to resemble such an intimation.

Advised Wise Selection.

"In January of 1916 I told the House that the raising of half a million men would be a big task and that in securing the men care must be taken to maintain the national force and efficiency of the country. Later the ex-Minister of Militia had suggested to him that instructions could be given to recruiting officers to use discrimination in the nature of recruits secured so that essential industries might not be injured unduly. The course we were endeavoring to carry out was based on practically the same principles as the bill, namely, on a policy of wise selections."

The Premier explained that while he, himself, had been administering the Militia Department during the early months of July, the Minister of Militia had authorized new regiments. He was perhaps within his rights in doing so.

Voluntary System Hadn't Failed.

General Hughes replied, and declared that an agitation had been commenced in the latter part of 1915 and the early part of 1916 against recruiting too many men. The agitation had had its backing in German gold. It spread and affected members of the Government.

The Prime Minister had informed him that the Finance Minister had told him there was strong opposition in Toronto against much more recruiting. "The Prime Minister told me he thought I had better let up on recruiting as far as possible. I did let up on recruiting, but our did not let up on recruiting, but our activities were slaikened."

"On what date did I make the statement referred to?" asked Premier Borden.

"Before I went to England, and that was in Marih," replied General Hughes. "The Minister of Finance stated on one occasion that if he had his way not another man would be recruited. What is the use of denying these things?"

General Hughes declared that, despite handicaps, the voluntary system in Canada had secured a greater number of men according to population than in any other country. (Applause.) The voluntary system had not failed.

What You Get for Your Money

When you buy a Studebaker car, you get the best work of one of the largest automobile makers in the industry—a real Made-in-Canada product, built with a knowledge of just what is required of a car for continued service on the roads of Canada.

The workmanship in Studebaker cars is experienced, skilled and painstaking. The inspections are rigid and exacting in the extreme.

The quality of Studebaker cars is evident in their finish and equipment.

Studebaker bodies are obviously substantial in construction. The paint and varnish work is excellent. The upholstery is genuine leather throughout. The cushions are made entirely of long curled hair. The front seats are adjustable—the right hand one reversible. The carpet in the tonneau is bound with leather—so is the edge of the top.

But the real proof of quality is durability. Studebaker cars stand up and give long, continued service under the hardest usage.

Studebaker cars are guaranteed. When you buy a Studebaker you get proved quality, proved economy and the guarantee of a great Canadian manufacturer behind them both.

Let us demonstrate the Series 18 models.

SANITARY DRINKING CUPS.

Sanitary drinking cups will be placed on the fountain at Central Park, if they can be secured at a reasonable price. The matter was left with the chairman of the Property Committee with power to act, by the City Council last night.

This White Lead has been making good for nearly 200 years.

Not only is it absolutely pure, but it is whiter, of greater covering capacity and of longer life than any similar product. The paint in which it is used works easily and produces a tough, elastic film that is very durable.

Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead

Brandram Bros. & Co. of London, England, invented their process for corroding white lead in the reign of George II. Although almost 200 years have since passed and many other white leads have appeared on the market Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead has maintained its preferential price and position wherever it is sold throughout the world.

Salvation Band Will Play for W.O.W. and Orangemen.

The Woodmen of the World will unveil two monuments at Little Lake Cemetery tomorrow afternoon at 2.30. The Salvation Army Band will furnish the music for the parade. In the evening the same band will escort the Orange lodges to St. James' Church where the annual sermon will be preached by Rev. D. Greatrix.

FOUGHT IN GALLIPOLI.

Newfoundlander Writes Book Telling His Adventures.

Only a few Canadians took part in that tragic failure of the first two years of the war, the expedition to Gallipoli, which John Masefield has described in a book that is one of the epics of the great world struggle. John Gallishaw is about the nearest thing to a Canadian who has written anything about his experiences there, his book being entitled "Trenching at Gallipoli." Mr. Gallishaw is a Newfoundlander, who was assigned to work at the War Office in London in 1914. He paid a visit to a body of Newfoundlanders at Aldershot, and there he caught the war fever, so that he embarked with his old regiment. He has written out of his experiences a personal narrative of the ill-fated expedition to the Dardanelles. The Newfoundlanders enjoyed their stay in Egypt en route for Gallipoli, but the latter part of the book is a tale of hardship. Mr. Gallishaw describes it all very simply, but none the less graphically. For example, he tells us of the landing and of the warm reception accorded them by the Turks. A Turkish battery, called by the men "Beachy Bill," got their range, and the author says: "As soon as the first shell landed near us, the officer in charge shouted nonchalantly: 'Take cover, everybody!' He waited until he was certain every man had found a hiding place, then effaced himself. The courage of the officers of the English army amounts almost to foolhardiness."

There are a few stray bits of grim humor in the book. He describes how a big Newfoundlander discovered that the Turkish bombs exploded very slowly, and hit upon the plan of seizing them and hurling them back against the enemy. He had treated several in this way, when an English officer noticed his action and drawled: "I say, my man, what is your name and number." The soldier thought he was in for a reprimand for doing something not according to the rules, so he replied defiantly, "What in hell have I done now?" Later on he discovered that the officer had merely wished to recommend him for a decoration of some sort.

Gallishaw speaks well of the Turkish soldiers, though not of their German officers. He says that the Turks, if left to themselves, would not fire on burial parties, and he also says, "Some men wounded by snipers, tell of dark-skinned visitors who crept up to them after dark, bound their wounds, gave them water and helped them to within shouting distance of their own lines, where at daylight the next morning their comrades found them. Once one of our batteries was very near a dressing station when a stray shell, fired at the battery, hit the dressing station. The Turkish observer heliographed over and apologized. That is why we respect the Turks. When we tried to shoot him, he chuckled to himself, and sniped us from trees and dugouts, and when we reviled him and threw tins of apricot jam at him he gave thanks to Allah and at the jam."

By just giving the facts as he noted them, the Newfoundlander helps the reader to realize the heroism of the British Tommies under the terrible conditions which they faced in Gallipoli. They were determined to go through with it, though longing secretly for a "Blighty one" to get them out of it. The author was talking one night to a Scotchman who had been through all the terrible months. He pointed out the positions of the enemy trenches. "It's just about fower hundred yairds," he said, "but you'll no get a chance to fire; there's wurrking parties oot the nicht." . . . "There's no chance of your gettin' hit either."

"Why," Gallishaw asked him in astonishment, "you don't want to get hit, do you?"

Mac looked at him pityingly. "Man," he burst out, "when ye're here as long as I've been here, ye'll be prayin' for a 'Blighty one.'"

Gallishaw was fortunate enough to get a "Blighty one" at last, and he was glad to go back to England, though sorry to part with so many brave comrades. Reading "Trenching in Gallipoli" one realizes again that the ill-fated effort stands as one of the most heroic campaigns in the history of the British army.

The Boer War.

The first contingent sent from Canada to South Africa was the Royal Canadian Regiment, which sailed from Quebec in the SS. Sardinian on October 30th, 1899. Others followed, sailing from Halifax in January and February, 1900. Altogether 1,150 officers and men of this force were sent to South Africa. To these were added a detachment of 398 Mounted Rifles, one of Royal Canadian Dragoons, numbering 379, and an artillery corps of 539 officers and men. Over and above these Lord Strathcona sent over at his own expense a mounted force of 597 officers and men. In all, 3,092 officers and men were despatched to South Africa. In 1901, there was a further enlistment in Canada of 900 Mounted Rifles, at the expense of the Imperial Government, and also of 1,200 men for service in the South African Constabulary.

The Dairy Industry.

It is most emphatically true, says The Toronto Globe, that the outlook for dairying was never so bright as it is at this moment. The cattle used in producing milk are of a higher standard than ever before; farmers have clearer knowledge of feeding problems than they had in years gone by, and the prospect for profitable returns from dairying, not only for to-day, but for the comparatively distant future, were never so promising as they are just now. True, labor scarcity is a handicap, but this handicap is being overcome by the increased use of labor saving appliances, including the milking machine.

THE BAND GRANTS AGAIN.

Council Declines Request of Labor Men for Another Division.

The Trades and Labor Council wrote complaining that the trains of the Grand Trunk Railway enter the south end of the city at a too high rate of speed. This was referred to Trainmaster McMillan along with other matters.

The labor body also wanted the band grants divided on a basis of 57th, $400, and the Salvation Army $200.

When this was up for discussion Alderman Weir moved, seconded by Alderman Dobbin, that a bylaw to amend the bylaws regarding band grants be prepared. On a vote being taken the motion was lost, and the 50-50 division still stands.

GOOD INDIANS OUT AT CHEMONG ATTEND CHURCH

MISSIONARY REPORTS DAN WHETUNG'S TRIBE ARE DEVOTE AND SINCERE.

Rev. Francis Johnston is putting in a strenuous summer preaching on the circuit near Peterborough this summer. On Sunday last he preached three sermons to Orange Orders at Wesley, Lakefield and Chemong.

He reports that at Chemong the congregation comprises nearly all Indians, Chief Whetung being the head of the community. The choir would put many a good Methodist choir in other towns to shame, the singing being excellent. He also reports that the hospitality of the chief and members of the tribe cannot be excelled.

The Indians make good churchmen, are devoted and sincere, and take a deep interest in spiritual matters. They are also quite responsive and intelligent.

TRIAL ORDER SOLICITED

FROM LABOR'S VIEWPOINT

(By the Official Scribe.)

There was a fairly good attendance at the Trades Council's meeting this week, J. J. Hartley of the Bricklayers presiding with customary ability.

The 57th Band's Proposition.

There are quite a number of machinists in the 57th Band, good union men and while not wishing to cast any aspersions at the Salvation Army Band, it was felt that the City Council had not acted just right in making equal grants for the season. It must also be remembered that the 57th Band are not receiving any regimental assistance at present so that makes the reduction more severe. A committee from the Trades and Labor Council will open negotiations with the city fathers upon this question.

Labor on Conscription.

When comes the time for responding to the call of the country, are the foreign born going to step into the jobs of native born Britishers? It looks like that. In that case organized labor is going to protest and that strongly. It has been shown that the worker has borne his full share of the present war. Now comes the probable additional burden of witnessing foreigners enjoy lucrative positions while natives are compelled to accept $1.10. A lively discussion ended by a committee being appointed to watch and wait developments.

Labor Day Celebration.

Dominion Day was a success, but Labor Day is going to eclipse all that happened last Monday for a live committee of labor men are going ahead with a programme which will be for better than any yet attempted.

SPLENDID NIGHT TRIP DOWN THE OTONABEE.

The Triple Link Club ran their first moonlight excursion down the river last night per steamer Stoney Lake, and had to refuse admission to large numbers owing to such a large crowd. Tucker's orchestra was on board and supplied delightful music for dancing, which was commenced before the boat left the wharf. Dawson Bros. did the catering in a most satisfactory manner. Those who had their tickets and were disappointed last evening will have their tickets redeemed at next moonlight on July 20th by returning them to the committee and securing new ones in their place.

WILL DESTROY DOG.

Animal is Nuisance and Bit Little Girl.

Two dog cases occupied the attention of the Police Magistrate at this morning's session. One was a case of the dog being at large and despite protests the owner was forced to pay up $2 and $2.60 costs.

The other case was that of a Harvey street resident who kept a dog that was a source of fear to the children of the neighborhood. The other day it nipped one of the children and Magistrate Dumble issued an order to the police to destroy the animal.

Right Hon. Walter Long, Colonial Secretary, yesterday opened the new extension of the Ontario military Hospital at Orpington, England, the capacity of which is now doubled, with accommodation for 2 880 beds.

Council Holds on to Instruments

ALDERMEN OBJECT TO LOANING THEM TO KINGSTON BAND.

General Hemming wrote Col. Johnston, late commander of the 93rd Battalion asking him to intercede with the city council for the use of the band instruments by the military district band at Kingston.

Col. Johnston took the matter up with Mayor Duffus, who reported on the matter to the council last night.

Ald. Smith and Saunders were opposed to letting the instruments go away from the city for another band.

Mayor Duffus pointed out that if the instruments were lent that it might help next fall in getting military units quartered here.

Ald. Dobbin suggested that the Mayor interview General Hemming and report on what guarantee the Militia Department would give for the safe return of the instruments.

Ald. Smith was not satisfied with the treatment that Peterborough had received over the formation of the 247th Battalion, and would oppose any lending of the instruments.

It was finally decided to have the Mayor see Gen. Hemming and report to the council.

Alexander Drummond, a wealthy farmer on the 6th Concession of [illegible]gan Township, was found dead in a field.

MARKET PRICES

SUGAR WILL BE HIGHER CONSUMPTION IS INCREASING

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week:

There is an uncertain tone to the flour market, due to the possibility in large measure to speculation as to what the Canadian food controller is likely to do. In the United States it is anticipated that the food controller may take full control of the purchase and distribution of wheat and that millers will come under this control. This would place the handling of th flour in the hands of the Government. Should this be effected in the United States there is strong probability that it might have a bearing on the Canadian situation as the food controllers of both countries are avowedly working in harmony. There was a decline in flour during the week.

Sugar held in steady position, although there was a disposition to look for higher prices in view of the advancing market in the United States. Consumption of sugar is reported to be increasing, as the preserving of fruit necessitates heavier drains on stocks. Strawberries will be at their point of heaviest production during the latter part of the present or first part of next week.

Butter was in easier market, declines having been recorded due to the big production. Eggs are also easier in price, but there is a disposition to anticipate the bottom of the market is somewhere near on eggs. Live hogs commanded considerably higher prices, with fairly heavy arrivals. Poultry arrivals were better during the week, but the demand is light and prices have declined. New potatoes are reaching the market in larger quantities from the United States and prices are now down to a basis of old potatoes.

Among the lines in which changes were recorded in an upward direction are cotton clothes lines, cotton twine, lampwick, hand cleaner, shoe polish, salt, sulphur, jar rings, vinegar, rolled oats, cornmeal cornflakes. Business continued to be quiet during the week.

PETERBORO MARKETS

The market this morning was a fair one and prices generally were a little easier than last week. New Spring Chickens made their first appearance and sold for $1.25 to $1.40 a pair. Some of the broilers weighed over 4 lbs. to the pair.

Hens sold at 18c to 20c per lb., while Ducks, Geese and the few odd Turkeys were sold at whatever price that the buyers cared to pay for them. The demand for them was not great.

Eggs were sold at various prices according to size, the lowest being 33c and the highest 37c. The average price was 36c.

Butter sold anywhere from 36c to 38c, the regular good makers getting the latter price.

Strawberries sold at from 18c to 20c a box.

Hogs are unchanged this week and the quotation for next week is $15.50 for selects.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

The sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be, a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months, residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot serve a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm laborers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

'Twas Ever Thus

Have ye ever met Tommy McGinty?
Sure he is a wonderful man;
His years are just seven and twenty;
He can fight sure if anyone can.

Now Tommy once met Mike McCarthy—
The divil's own feller is he;
At scrapping he sure is some shmarty
And, sure, it was some jambouree!

First one, then the other was winning;
Their wallops were heard for a block,
But both always kept right on grinning
No matter how hard was the knock.

And so, when the shindig was over
They shook, just like true Irish men;
They both had a drink, and—what do ye think?
They shtarted all over again!

Indianapolis fans are wild over Jack Hendrick's team for the fine showing it is making. Jack has put a lot of ginger into his bunch, and they deserve the high place they hold. Incidentally the American Association is playing a fine grade of ball.

The more the Clevelands think about it, the more they are mourning those $15,000 they forked up for Joe Hood's release. Wood is still warming the bench—in fact, he is wearing quite a hole in it; and also in his trousers.

Bill Steel likes himself in the role of a Pirate. Ever since the Cardinals sold him this southpaw is showing signs of an awakening.

Bill Kenworthy has taken the reins and while Frank Chance was ill handled the Los Angeles team very well.

Out-fielder Kenneth Williams of the Portland Coast Club League is now making his bow with the St. Louis Browns, who purchased him recently. Williams was tried out with the Reds two years ago.

Optimistic Oscar says: "Rain, rain, go away. Never mind the crops and the high cost of living. You're spoiling a good ball game. So beat it."

There is a certain tinge of sadness on the part of the Giants when they contemplate the good pitching being done by Rube Schauer. Rube has perfected his control since he went to the Athletics, a thing which he lacked when he was in the McGraw Outfit.

Old Uncle Sam's a patient man;
He shuns all trouble if he can
But when he bares his fists to fight,
He soaks his foes with all his might.

When Josept J. Lannin, former owner of the Red Sox, sold Speaker to the Clevelands for $50,000 he purchased Clarence Walker from the Browns to fill the place of the famous centre fielder. At first Walker didn't make much of a hit with the Boston fans. In fact they looked upon him with disfavor. He lacked experience, and his work with the stick was not much to talk about. All of which is forgiven now that he has shown some ability to learn. Not alone that, but he has developed into the heaviest hitter on the Boston team, and his fielding is excellent. And just to make the measure of his achievements full, he is considered the greatest long distance thrower in the big leagues. Now, will you be good, you Boston fans?

Georgo Carpentier, the French boxer, who has been flying for his country on the battle fronts, may yet come to America. He is trying to get permission from the French War Department to be sent to the United States with the first squad of French Flyers who may come over to instruct Americans as to the best methods of handling their machines over trenches under war conditions. If he gets the assignment he also hopes to give several boxing exhibitions in the United States for the benefit of the Red Cross.

PUGILISTIC ANNALS

1907.—Bill Lang, the Australian heavyweight, knocked out Dick Kernick in two rounds at Melbourne.

Harry Powers defeated Charley Lawrence in ten rounds at New York.

Major Gordon Smith, second in command of the Canadian Mounted Rifles depot at Hamilton, will resume his duties as Indian superintendent at Brantford.

Canada's War Efforts.

Writing in "World's Work," Mr. Burton J. Hendrick, a noted American journalist, has this to say of Canada's effort in the war: "But, properly to appreciate the magnitude of this effort, let us seek comparisons that will bring it nearer home. The continental population of the United States—exclusive of dependencies—is about thirteen times as large as that of Canada; if we, therefore, multiply all these items (figures of Canada's participation in the war) we shall have the magnitude of Canada's performance, measured in terms of our own capacity. That is, if we should do no more than Canada has done, we should enlist roughly 5,000,000 men, send overseas 3,640,00, of whom 3,275,000 would have already seen service at the front. We should constantly keep in the firing line fifty-two divisions, casualties would have reached, up to date, 910,000, and nearly 200,000 Americans would have sacrificed their lives. Certainly, if the United States could show any such record as this, we should probably think that we had made a solid contribution to represent precisely what Canada has done." The writer might have gone further and added that in order to equal Canada's record the United States would also have to vote $11,700,000,000 for purposes of war—Canada having voted $900,000,000.

The Test.

Of manhood here's
The greatest test;
Do God and country
Gest your best?

Indifference.

And with a master touch,
Success is only doing well,
The little tasks that others think
Do not amount to much.
Indifference makes more failures than
All other weaknesses of men.

Signs For All.

An Irishman was suddenly struck by a golf ball.

"Are you hurt?" asked the player. "Why didn't you get out of the way?"

"An' why should I get out of the way?" asked Pat. "I didn't know there was any assassins round here."

"But I called 'fore'," said player, "and when I say 'fore,' that is a sign for you to get out of the way."

"Oh, it is, is it?" said Pat. "Well, thin, whin I say 'foive,' it is a sign that you are going to get hit on the nose, 'Foive'."

FINED $200 AND COSTS FOR SELLING LIQUOR

A well known resident of Anstruther was up before County Magistrate Langley this morning on a charge of keeping liquor for sale contrary to the Ontario Temperance Act. The offence was admitted, and a fine of $200 and costs was imposed. Inspector Stewart and Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuted, and G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused.

FOUNDMAN WITH LIMB BROKEN

LOCAL MASONS ON WAY TO LINDSAY PROVE GOOD SAMARITANS.

A number of the members of the local Masonic lodges motored to Lindsay last evening and assisted in the initiation of several new members. The trip north was a very remarkable one, first on account of the number of minor accidents that happened to the cars and the other was the finding of a man named Quinlan on the road who was suffering with a broken leg, the result of falling from his rig. First aid was administered and the injured man moved to a nearby farm house where medical attention was summoned.

THE REVIEW'S NEW SERIAL

The Review will on Monday begin the publication of that well-known serial story, "The Salving of a Derelict," written by that master of the art of modern fiction, Maurice Drake. The plot of this play is interesting from cover to cover, and there is something about the entire work that appeals in some particular to every class in the community.

The people who like adventure will find their tastes gratified. Those with an appreciation for the finer feelings of mankind will find a love story that is certain to stir their interest. Readers who insist upon literary finish will not be disappointed in Mr. Drake's style.

You should not miss a single instalment of this story. Begin with the opening chapters, and you are sure to follow it to the end. It will appear from day to day until completed.

Lance-Corp. Nichols Expected Home From Front

Mayor Duffus received a telegram this afternoon from Kingston stating that Lance-Corporal Nichols, who has been invalided home, had left Kingston for Peterboro at 1.45 this afternoon.

He will arrive this evening, and will be met at the G.T.R. Station by some members of the reception committee.

HYPNOTIZED PLAYERS?

The sleight-of-hand card artist who visited Cobourg recently is said to have given several midnight performances for the benefit of the Poker Circle of that town. The attendance was not large, but those present were hypnotized long enough to be relieved of about six hundred dollars.

OBITUARY

ANNIE SWAILES.

Annie Swailes, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Richard Swailes, 257 Princess street, died very suddenly this morning. She was born in Montreal thirty one years ago but has resided in Peterborough ever since the family moved here with the DeLaval Co. She is survived by her parents and several brothers and sisters.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Benj. Greatrix of St. James Methodist Church.

DROWNED IN SHALLOW WATER.

Harwood Boy Fell In While Suffering From Fit.

Thursday at noon Everet V. O. Hogg, the 16-year-old son of Mr. George Hogg, of Harwood, was drowned at Harwood. He was subject to epileptic fits, and while fishing for frogs from a board, close to shore he fell over into the water, and was drowned in twenty inches of water. Coroner Dr. T. C. Lapp went out and investigated, and decided an inquest was not necessary. Deceased was an excellent swimmer, and had been fishing with a number of smaller boys previous to his death.

FOE FLEE BEFORE RUSS CAVALRY

FURTHER SUCCESS REPORTED FROM ENTIRE BATTLE LINE

British in Raid Capture Prisoners and Ward off all Attacks---Russian Cavalry in Pursuit of Fleeing Foe --- French Retake Trenches Lost Sunday.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, July 9. — Today's official announcement says: "In a successful raid by us last night southeast of Hargicourt, we captured thirty-five prisoners, including one officer. Hostile raiding parties were repulsed early this morning to the southeast of Loos."

CAVALRY IN PURSUIT.

Petrograd, July 9. — Several villages and more than seven thousand men have been captured by the Russians west of Stanislau in Galicia, the war office announces. Forty-eight guns, including twelve of large size, and many machine guns also were captured by the Russians. The Russian cavalry is pursuing the retreating enemy and has reached the Lukva River.

FRENCH RETAKE TRENCHES.

Paris, July 9.—Another attack in strong force was made by the Germans last night on the Aisne front in the region of Chemin des Dames between Dovetts and Chevregny Ridge. The war office announces the attack was without success. In a brilliant counter offensive the French recaptured the major portion of the trenches occupied by the Germans yesterday between Pantheon and the Froidmont Farm.

AUSTRIANS HEARD FROM.

Vienna, July 9.—Sunday night's official report says heavy attacks by the Russians near Stanislau Sunday afternoon failed. The Russians entered the foremost trenches but were promptly ejected. There were also unsuccessful Russian attacks in Bystrita, the Solotvina valley and southwest of Zborow.

NEUTRALS IN CONFERENCE.

London, July 9. — An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Berlin via Rotterdam says Emperor William invited the neutral ambassadors to a conference on Saturday.

STREET CAR MEN THREATEN TO GO ON STRIKE IN TORONTO

Will Walk Out Unless Company Acceded to Demand for More Pay by Tuesday Night ---Reject Offer of 2 Cents an Hour Bonus.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Toronto, July 9.—Mass meeting of fourteen hundred street railway employees threaten to strike Tuesday night unless a large wage increase is granted.

It was with difficulty that the leaders of the union restrained the members from voting favorably for an immediate strike on Saturday night. To persuade the members to permit of one last effort to make the company grant the proposed conditions, the leaders cited the position of the travelling public, the mayor and civic authorities generally.

Say Company Prospers

As an answer to the company's declaration that the war bonus would meet the so-called high cost of living, the speakers quoted from the company's annual statement issued February, showing that the corporation had a surplus of $381,000, was paying dividends of eight per cent. on its stock and paying its indebtedness and had surplus earnings amounting to $5,000,000.

It was also pointed out that Detroit men were earning 40 cents an hour after 18 months' service, that Cleveland men received 36 cents an hour after one year's service, Chicago men 39 cents an hour and Buffalo 34 cents an hour. Carmen of Winnipeg, in which the system is owned by the directorate of the Toronto system, receive 36 cents an hour after two years' service, it was declared.

The Men's Demands

The Toronto Street Car Union ask the adoption of the following scale of wages:—Men of six months' experience, 36 cents an hour; men from six months to one year's service, 38 cents an hour; and men over one year with company, 40 cents an hour. Pay and half for one hour's overtime, and double pay if overtime exceeds one hour.

A minimum rate of $3 a day to be paid motormen and conductors who take cars from the barn regardless of the dstance they are run. Pay and a half for public holidays. Motor men and conductors to have choice of runs in order of their seniority at the barns to which they are attached. Other clauses in the draft agreement are the same as in that which terminated April last.

SAN FRANCISCO IS SCENE OF EXPLOSION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

San Francisco, July 9.—Two store houses on Mare Island in San Francisco were destroyed by an explosion this morning. The shock broke thousands of windows in Vallejohaj a mile away. It has not been ascertained yet if there was any loss of life but naval men admitted that great numbers were injured.

Is is probable the Great War Veterans' Association will co-operate with Hamilton Trades Council regarding this year's Labor Day Celebrations.

OFFICIAL ACCOUNT OF WHAT TROOPS FROM CANADA DID IN THE VICINITY OF LENS

Wore Down the Enemy by Strong and Repeated Offensives---Resorted to Every Possible Military Strategy.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 9. — The following communication, covering Canadians around Lens for the latter part of June is issued by the Canadian war records office. The week ending June 20th was full of incidents and distinctly fruitful in results. On the afternoon of that day the report was received that the enemy had retired from Hill 65 and that patrols had been pushed forward. On receipt of this news, the Canadians sent out patrols to gain touch with the enemy who was believed to be retreating. Acting on information received from these patrols, the Canadian trenches were occupied and posts were established in various communication trenches in advance of this.

Early on the following day the advance was resumed and further trenches taken and new posts pushed forward.

MANY GERMANS KILLED.

In this attack a machine gun was captured and a considerable number of the enemy were killed. The hostile opposition was not strong, and their artillery fire was somewhat wild. Meanwhile the troops on the flanks had pushed forward. the patrols were followed by supports, and by 1 p.m. were reported on their final objective. The enemy were reported to be holding Avion trench and also Eleu Dit Leauvette lightly. At the same time there was a good deal of sniping.

Early on the morning of the 27th a strong patrol, which had got to within 150 yards of Avion trench, came under heavy machine gun fire and, being unable to make further headway, was forced to retreat.

HOW THEY PUSHED FORWARD.

During the night of the 27th-28th the Canadians again pushed forward and were successful in establishing posts in a portion of Avion trench, and a patrol worked its way through Eleu Dit Leauvette at 7 a.m. on the 28th, and after heavy fighting succeeded in capturing a sunken road where a number of the enemy were killed and some machine guns taken, and during the day patrols entered the outskirts of Avion.

Shortly after 7 p.m. on June 28th the Canadian troops, in conjunction with the British on their flanks, continued their advance. This operation covered by accurate barrage came as a complete surprise and was entirely successful. As a result they took up a position through houses south of Fosse 4. round the east and north sides of Eleu Dit Leauvette to the canal. At the same time troops on the left captured two important trenches while those on our right seized the enemy's front line between Gavrelle and Oppy. Our casualties throughout were slight in spite of the Germans.

The line was again advanced slightly on the night of the 29th.

WHY GERMANS RETIRED.

Reviewing operations of the past week, it is evident that the causes which led to the German retirement in the first place were due to the ceaseless and implacable offensive which had been maintained during the past six weeks, ably seconded by the troops on either flank. The Canadian troops have explored to the fullest extent the natural advantages of their positions and attacked again and again with the greatest persistence and galatntry coupled with the adequate artillery support and ample ammunition.

These efforts have had their inevitable result of forcing the Germans to acknowledge defeat and their inability to hold on any longer to their carefully chosen and prepared positions. In fact, these operations have reproduced on a small scale the results achieved on the Aisne and the Somme, where the Germans had to quit the field for the simple reason that they were outfought and could no longer face fire.

RED CROSS TAG DAY

There are a great many calls upon the charitable in Peterborough these days, and all the objects are worthy, all backed up by public-spirited men or women whose connection with the various plans is the best possible guarantee that could be given them. Foremost among the requests for contributions, the Red Cross is entitled to a place.

The Peterborough branch of that organization has charged itself with the care of forty-two prisoners of war in Germany. The drafts upon the resources of the society have been heavy, and unfortunately the number of Canadian prisoners is likely to keep on increasing.

There can be no question as to the necessity for this work. The prisoners—and there are Peterborough boys among them—would starve to death but for the assistance sent them from outside. Their case is desperate, and the assistance forwarded by the Red Cross is the only present hope left them.

To raise funds for their work, the members of the society propose to hold a tag day next Saturday. The funds raised will be shared evenly with Britain's faithful allies, the French, whose prisoners suffer the same hardships as the Canadians. The society is justified in the request for contributions, and hope that the amount raised will not be less than $1200.

CANOE UPSETS BOY IS DROWNED BODY RECOVERED

FRANK JUDGE OF TORONTO MEETS DEATH IN STURGEON LAKE.

Bobcaygeon, July 9.—Once more the treacherous canoe gets in its work of destruction, the said accident happening at Birch Point on Friday when Frank Judge, Toronto, aged 16, was drowned in Sturgeon Lake, three miles south of Bobcaygeon. The young man was one of the popular summer visitors.

Young Judge, with his comrade, Fred Grant, left Bobcaygeon in the morning in a canoe, landing at Birch Point, where they started a fire to prepare dinner. While Grant was thus engaged Judge paddled out in the lake to procure a pail of water and, in leaning over to do so, upset the canoe. His comrade was unable to reach him, and as Judge could not swim he sank immediately. Word was conveyed to the village, and a searching party was sent out, when the body was discovered by Mr. W. D. Grant, father of the other boy, at 4:30 p.m., afer being in the water about four hours.

Young Judge was previously employed in a bank in Toronto, and was visiting at the home of Mr. H Gilliece in the village.

The body was taken to Toronto on Saturday afternoon.

ALLIED NATIONS TO HOLD CONFERENCE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, July 9.—The Entente Allies have decided to hold a conference in Paris for the consideration of questions of military and political interest in connection with the Balkans.

MORE DETAILS OF ACCIDENT TO YOUNG FARMER

WHO WAS PICKED UP BY LOCAL MASONS ON WAY TO LINDSAY.

Mr. George Quillan, South Ops, met with a painful accident Friday night near the Riverside cemetery, when he was thrown from his wagon The young man was drawing home a load of chop, and drove a pair of four-year-old colts that scared at an automobile, which started them on a brisk run.

Quillan hung on to the lines after being thrown from his seat, and was dragged a considerable distance before letting go. It was probably half an hour later when he was discovered by an automobile party from Peterborough. As it happened, there was a trained nurse in the auto, who had the injured man removed to the residence of Mr. P. Murphy, where she skilfully placed the young man's leg in an improvised splint that consisted of a broom handle.

Dr. White was 'phoned for, and found the young man suffering from a dislocation of the left hip. Mr. Quillan was removed to the Lindsay hospital.

TWO WAR HEROES REACH THE CITY

PTE. BISHOP A COMPLETE WRECK AS RESULT OF SHELL SHOCK.

Two invalided soldiers arrived in the city on Saturday evening and were met at the station by several members of the Reception Committee and given a warm welcome. The two men were Privates Bishop and Bickerson, both from Keene, and they had been undergoing treatment at the convalescent home at Whitby. Private Bishop presented a very pitiable sight when he appeared with Private Bickerson. His nerves were all shattered and it was with great difficulty that he was assisted to Ald. Worth's car in which the two men were taken to their homes in Keene.

Major Archibald of the Whitby Convalescent Home called up the city officials on Saturday afternoon and asked that the men be taken to their homes by auto. Ald. Worth at once tendered his services and transported the invalids to the village without mishap.

SECRET SESSION OF HOUSE WILL DISCUSS REPRISALS

London Citizens Urge Government to Retaliate on Germans For Air Raid of Saturday ---French Airships Busy Over Hun Towns

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 9.—In the Commons today Bonar Law announced a secret session of the House to be held this evening to discuss air defences of the country. The question of reprisals will likely be taken up.

An intensified demand for reprisals has followed the air raid of Saturday. All the Sunday newspapers delare the people of London are furious at the inadequacy of the city's defense as it was revealed yesterday.

The Sunday Times says the crying need of 1917 is for airplanes as it was for shells in 1915, and declares the government must be compelled to realize that the airplane will be the ultimate and deciding factor of the war. It insists that thousands must be built with the help of America to carry the war into enemy territory. An aviation expert says in an article in The Times:

"There is a huge output to be had from America if our new ally will consent to accept ready-made designs from Europe and not insist on wanting to do her own experimenting."

The Observer asserts that most of the enemy machines were comparatively slow biplanes, and that the fast British machines made rings around them. It is held that the low altitude maintained by the Germans showed their contempt for our defenses.

Bitter Public Feeling.

The Journal quotes the lord mayor as saying that the case of reprisals has been enormously strengthened by yesterday's happenings.

Reynolds' Newspaper suggests it would have been well if members of the war cabinet and the government had gone among the people and heard their comments on the defenceless state of the capital.

French Adopt Reprisals.

A despatch from Paris says:

"On the night of July 6 eighty-four machines took the air. Several of these raids had as their objectives towns situated very far in the interior of the enemy territory in reprisal for bombardments against our open towns.

"Eleven of our aeroplanes flew over Treves, on which they showered 2650 kilos of shells. Seven fires broke out, one of great vioelnce in the central station. Six other machines bombarded Ludwigshafen, doing considerable damage. Among other buildings the important Badische aniline factory was devoured by flames.

"Another aeroplane pushed as far as Essen and dropped projectiles on the buildings of the Krupp factory.

GERMANS IN FULL FLIGHT BEFORE CAVALRY OF RUSS,

Over Seven Thousand Men, 131 Officers and 48 Guns Captured in Sunday's Fighting.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Petrograd, July 9. — The withdrawal of the Russian forces on the front near the border between Persia and Mesopotamia is announced by the war office today. Under pressure from the Turks the Russians evacuated Panjwin, Khanikin and Kasri-Shirin.

In the direction of Zelochoc there has been artillery firing on both sides. In the direction of Dolina, 35 miles west of Stanislau, the troops of Gen. Korniloff's army about midday on Sunday attacked after an artillery preparation fortified positions of the enemy west of Stanislau on the Lomnica front. Having pierced the foremost and most important positions of the enemy, our troops advanced and captured in the battle the small town of Jezupol and the villages of Ciezova, Pavelche, Rybno and Starylyaloc. Our cavalry, giving immediate pursuit to the enemy, reached the River Lukva. During the day 131 officers and 7,000 men and 48 guns, including 12 of heavy calibre and numerous machine guns were captured.

BERLIN STATEMENT.

Berlin, July 9.—An official statement issued today says the Russians who attacked yesterday in eastern Galicia were brought to a standstill by German reserves after the Russians had pressed back the defenders in the direction of the wooded heights of Csaruvlas.

Berlin, July 9.—French trenches on a front of three and a half kilometres on the Aisne front have been captured by Germans, who took 800 prisoners, the war office announced today.

(Note.—A despatch in another column says these trenches have been retaken by the French.)

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, JULY 9, 1917

WHO IS TO GOVERN?

THE PRESENT Government is living on borrowed time, which will expire on October 1st next. There may or there may not be an election before another session is called. Public opinion is divided on this issue. There are some, and beyond a doubt they represent the most patriotic element, who dread the idea of an election while the war is in progress. Others with just as lofty ideals as the former, take the stand that a general election would clear the air and silence all mischief-making factions effectually. On the one hand it is held that the life of Parliament can be extended again only by unanimous consent. If that is the case, an election is inevitable, and the anti-conscriptionists are thus provided with a weapon to use against the Government.

The majority given the Borden Government in the election of 1911 was forty-seven, but there are now over twenty vacancies in the House, and this has reduced the normal majority to considerably below thirty on a straight party division. On the second reading of the Conscription Bill, the most drastic measure ever brought into the Canadian Parliament, the Government was given a majority of sixty-three, or more than twice that which its recognized supporters are able to muster on a roll-call.

This is certainly an unmistakable mandate from the people, in which all the Liberals from Ontario joined. It does not appear that anything further is required in the way of a warrant for the enforcement of conscription. The people of Canada have spoken through their elected representatives in terms that the most bigoted partisan cannot fail to understand. The electors want to see the war brought to a successful conclusion, and there is no popular demand for an election, the necessity for which has disappeared in the verdict of Parliament recorded the other day.

But if an election was forced on the country, what would be the result in the present spirit of the electorate? Such a contest would not be fought on the old political lines. Conscription would be the main issue. The country is no longer divided into Liberals and Conservatives but into conscriptionists and anti-conscriptionists, those who are willing to make every sacrifice to win the war and those who profess to believe that Canada has done enough.

The conscriptionist believes that adequate assistance should be sent to Canada's fighting forces overseas, those gallant men who in every charge are adding lustrous pages to Canadian history. The anti-conscriptionist would leave them to a merciful Providence and the fate of the soldier. One party would save civilization, the Empire and their own country. The other party are at least indifferent to anything that the future may have in store.

Which of these two parties is to get the upper hand in Canada, which is to be entrusted with shaping the destiny of the nation? Let the Canadian people dispassionately ponder that question and there will be no hesitation with regard to the answer. The country must be saved. The men in the trenches must be supported. The anti-conscriptionists would let the one go by the boards and desert the other in their extremity.

There are public men in Canada whose unselfish stand on the Conscription bill has brought new honor to themselves and their country. Canada is not so cancerous with partyism as some have imagined. If there was a general election in Canada, the chances are that the country would witness the spectacle of representative after representative, in Ontario especially, sent back to Ottawa by acclamation, his politics entering not at all into the consideration, his stand with regard to conscription being the deciding factor. The war must be won. There are no political divisions among the men who are carrying the burdens and making the sacrifices in the trenches. There should be none among those at home charged with the responsibility of giving them every possible aid.

Neither should there be vexing and useless delay in extending that assistance. The foe is implacable. Day after day we read that the Germans have been repulsed. Day after day the cables tell us that they have returned to the attack, and every attack means more vacancies in the ranks of the Canadian contingent, vacancies that the soldiers ask those at home to fill up.

THE FARMERS AND POLITICS.

MR. JOHN KENNEDY of Winnipeg, who addressed the farmers here on Saturday, is a prominent figure not only in the business life of the West, but among the agriculturists. As a politician, if such a term can be applied to him, he belongs to the new school of non-partisans — self-styled as such — that appear to be springing up everywhere.

In his address at the luncheon in the Empress on Saturday, Mr. Kennedy brought out three outstanding thoughts. The farmer has set out to do away with the middlemen engaged in certain lines. He has no quarrel, however, with other retailers who deal in small commodities.

The farmer is beginning to insist on direct tax and direct legislation.

The farmer must abandon his old political heresies and think for himself.

The middleman has been for years regarded as an obstacle in the pathway of modern progress. Attempt after attempt has been made to eliminate him, but, like the poor man, he promises to be with us always. Shifting the duties of the middleman from one person to another, and this is really what every effort in this direction amounts to, does not do away with him. The Farmers' Club that invests in a car load of binder twine purchased directly from the producer, is simply acting as a middleman. If the middlemen used in the transaction give their services for nothing, the members of the club are so much to the good, but that does not solve the difficulties. The farmer who takes his own produce from the farm direct to the Peterborough market is his own middleman. It is yet a question whether his time is more valuable at home or on the way to market, and whether the work could not be done more cheaply by an experienced middleman who makes a business of that work.

The retailer is not invariably looking for victims. He is not always a financial harpy. Competition is generally sufficient to keep him in line. Retailers are today selling binder twine at a lower figure than the present wholesale price, because they laid in a supply before the recent boost in prices by the manufacturers.

The single or direct tax has been before the people for years, and it seems as far from general favor as ever. When the Ontario farmer realizes that the single tax really means the confiscation of the holdings his fathers rescued from the wilderness, he is likely to cling to the old order of things, politically and otherwise, more tenaciously than ever.

With regard to direct legislation, the principle of which is sound beyond all doubt, the necessity for it is lessened by selecting the proper brand of representatives for Parliament.

One of the farmers at the luncheon Saturday, and there was no more intelligent or progressive member of the profession present, said to those seated at the table with him that men will not part lightly with their old-time political faith. Ephraim is still wedded to his idols.

Probably this farmer was right. The men who made Canada a garden instead of a wilderness, those sturdy pioneers whose graves are in every cemetery, took their politics almost as seriously as their religion, making the casting of a vote a matter of conscience. The influence that they exerted over their sons and daughters still lives. With many of these a departure from the political teachings of their parents would be as sacrilegious as the mutilation of any greatly prized heirloom among their possessions.

THAT CATCH PHRASE.

"CONSCRIPTION of wealth" has served its purpose as a catch phrase. It rings pleasantly in the ears of the masses. None of those who use it so glibly have so far offered any explanation that will stand the acid test of thorough investigation. The politicians declare that the man who cannot fight should pay, and there is no question as to the soundness of his contention. But how is wealth to be conscripted?

An Ottawa newspaper proposes that all business profits in excess of seven per cent. be confiscated by the state, and offers to submit to that form of conscription itself. Seven per cent. is a safe margin. No business man will object so long as he is permitted to remain in business at that profit. The excess that would go into the public coffers and the war chest would not really be a tax upon the wealth of the country, but upon the consumers. They, and not the manufacturer, would actually pay the tax, and the higher the amount confiscated the greater would be the burden imposed upon the people. The men who make the conscription of wealth their creed should set themselves to the task of preparing another solution.

The farmer needs men, and the manufacturer, too, is short of help. To find these men is the question foremost in their minds. Where the money to pay them is to come from is a secondary consideration.

The same conditions exist with regard to the military service. The men in the trenches are calling for help, not for money. If financial assistance was what they asked for and all that they required, it could and would be sent to them in unstinted measure. But if men are not sent, there can be only one result. The war will yet be lost, and once the Germans are in the ascendant, wealth in every allied nation in the world will be conscripted, whether it be in the form of the poor man's life savings or the money chests of the millionaires.

AS OUTSIDERS SEE US

Writer in the Toronto Sunday World Writes Appreciative Description of Peterborough.

(By Charles E. Crompton in Toronto Sunday World).

To be lifted 65 feet in the air while you sit on the deck of a little lake steamer, is a novel experience that few Canadians have yet enjoyed. Many have climbed towers, trees and telegraph poles, and not a few have become proficient with the airship, but for the general public this is the most unique of all. What makes it so unique is the fact that you are still on the little steamer, on which you sailed across the lake, through channels and down rivers, and you have left terra firma, but, not content to go alone, you have taken aloft, vessel, water and all with you. The vessel is still floating in the water, which bore its weight 65 feet below. Now all is suspended in mid-air.

Such is the operation of the hydraulic lift lock on the Trent Canal near Peterboro. It is acknowledged to be a wonderful piece of engineering, and is the largest of its kind in the world. If Canada is backward, as some unjust critics maintain, in some particulars, this "child of nations" leads the world in at least four instances. Does she not own the largest water power in the Canadian Niagara Falls. Has she not quite recently established the largest hydro-electric systems known to civilizations? If newspaper reports are true, then Young Canada will now be able to lead the world astronomically, with her 7 inch reflecting telescope at Saanich Observatory, near Victoria, B.C., and it is an acknowledged fact that the Peterboro lift lock has broken all records in lock building of that particular kind.

Each city, town or village, no matter how large or small, has its earmarks, or characteristics, if they may be so called, and the city of Peterboro is interlocked with the lift locks of the Trent Canal. All over Ontario, in Canada and perhaps in many other parts of the world the lock has made the city famous. Many excursionists from far and near have journeyed to see this piece of engineering. This huge mechanical monster, working only in the summer time, has been in operation since July, 1904. A peculiar feature about the lock is the fact that, when loaded, from the sense of having a vessel in one of its chambers, it is no heavier or harder strain upon the structure than if it were operated with nothing in it but water.

Displaces the Water

This is simple when one realizes that a vesel displaces its own weight of water. The chambers, or boxes will only contain a given weight of water, and whether that weight is absorbed by water or the laden vessel, it is the same strain. As the record lockage is 6½ minutes, the lock is obviously a time saver. With the antiquated lock of the Rideau canal the time of locking is much longer. A lockman recently said that at Ottawo, where eight locks are used to raise 56 feet it takes a vessel 1¼ hours. This is one decided advantage of the lift lock and, while it may hava some disadvantages it is just as well to let engineers determine that point.

As Walter J. Francis, C.E., of Toronto University, was the engineer in charge, who was employed by the department of railways and canals, it is like an attempt to "paint the lily or add another hue to the rainbow," to improve upon his description. Accordingly, he says that the hydraulic lock is, theoretically, an automatic machine, and is designed to take the place of ordinary locks where a great difference of level is found in a short distance. Besides the Peterboro and Kirkfild Locks, there are three other locks of this type in operation, one being in England, another in Belgium and a third in France.

Roughly speaking the lock cost $500,000, and its sister at Kirkfield which lifts 48 feet 6 inches, was erected at a cost of $298,000.

Indian Associations

Borrowed again from the Red Man, comes the name of the river Otonabee, which flows through the city. As it provides an outlet for Rice Lake and others adjoining, the Indians appropriately named it Otonabee, which means "mouth-water." The city is situate on what is known as the Trent Waterway. Available records go to show that the founder of Peterboro was Peter Robinson, who led a band of Irish immigrants up the river in 1825. After building a long but he made the first journey up-stream with 20 natives and 30 Irishmen.

When Col. Strickland made an exploration trip to what is now the county of Peterboro he found near the Otonabee River a prominence of land that gave the Mississauga Indians lordship of Rice Lake, Stoney Lake and others in the locality. A few miles north of the city is the remains of the old Indian village, Hiawatha. The village is gone, but a park of that name has risen from its ashes, in name if not in nature.

Civic Advantages

One notable advantage which Peterboro possesses is cheap power. It is one of the very few cities that operates its civic pumps by water-power. One gets quite a comprehensive idea of the volume of water passing down the river when he realizes that the city is now developing $30,000 horse-power. Cheap electricity has been an inducement to the manufacturers, and now some 80 large and small industries are doing business. A fertile farming district is also one of the chief assets to the Trent Canal town, for, like the farmer, a city largely gets its life from the land, directly or indirectly.

THhe public buildings have a substantial appearance, many being very imposing structures. The Courthouse, built before Confederation, is the most ancient. Seventeen churches provide for the spiritual needs of the residents, and nine schools accommodate the children. There is also a normal school for training teachers, a collegiate institute and a public library. Eight banks provide saving deposits for the 24,000 inhabitants of the city.

The waterworks system has been in operation since 1882 and is owned by the municipality. The supply is pumped from the Otonabee River, two and a half miles distant, directly into the mains.

With all the natural and artificial advantages, the best railway facilities provided by the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways and every other requisite necessary to make a large city, the future of the Trent Valley city appears to be bright indeed.

Autoists in Ontario and New York

After several years of agitation a law regulating automobile head lights has been placed on the statute-books of New York State, and becomes effective on August 1. In the opinion of William Arthur McLean, Deputy Minister of Highways, the Ontario laws covering automobile traffic are every bit as good as the latest New York legislation.

The New York act says that "the light of the front lamps shall be visible at least two hundred feet in the direction in which the motor vehicle is proceeding, and shall give sufficient light to reveal any person, vehicle, or substantial object on the road straight ahead of such motor vehicle for a distance of at least two hundred and fifty feet."

It also says that "the front lights shall be so arranged that no portion of the beam of the reflected light projected to the left of the axis of the vehicle, when measured seventy-five feet or more ahead of the lamps, shall rise above forty-two inches on the level surface on which the vehicle stands. They shall also give sufficient side illumination to reveal any person, vehicle or substantial object ten feet to both sides of said vehicle at a point ten feet ahead of the lamps."

What Ontario Act Says.

"Our act says that the light shall be visible for a ditsance ahead of 200 feet. It does not say that it shall be sufficient to reveal any person or object 250 feet away," said Deputy Minister W. A. McLean to The Telegram today. "Perhaps the New York Act in that respect tends to the safety of pedestrians. You will notice that they take into consideration only the left half of the beam of light. Our law, if anything, is more drastic. As I understand it, however, they have substantially the same law over there as we have. It does not, however, cover the case. The trouble is not only dazzling the eyes of the operator of the approaching car, but strong lights throw a glare through which drivers of cars cannot see. The strength of the light should be restricted in the cities and kept to a certain candle power. In the country they might be permitted to carry stronger lights with which they can see farther ahead, but which they should switch off when passing an object."

Statutes Are Ignored.

The New York act states that persons operating motor vehicles on the public highways shall, when approaching a crossroad outside the limits of a city or incorporated village, slow down to the speed of the same, and shall sound the bell, horn or other device for signalling in such a manner as to give notice and warning of approach.

"There is a tendency to place many things on the statute books all over the United States which are simply ignored. That is one of them," said Mr. McLean. "After all, it is a question of common sense. Our new law that the vehicle approaching at the right will have the right of way really places the onus upon the operator of the car to see that he exercises every precaution at the intersection. It should have the same effect as the New York law, only it is more comprehensive. Our act, on the whole, is every bit as good as the latest New York law."

THE SALVING OF A DERELICT

By MAURICE DRAKE

CHAPTER I.

A rising full moon, the earliest of young summer, lingered yet behind the black turrets of Dover Castle, sending between them long fingers of light upon the twilight beaches of the harbor below.

Beneath it to seaward the intermittent flash—flash—flash of the South Foreland light wheeled regularly upon a wisp of pale sea mist, that faded and vanished as though the giant beam had wiped it from existence. Upon the sheer face of the chalk chance prominences here and there caught the growing moonlight, the shadows between them making of the cliffs a mighty fairy lacework of frosted silver upon deep dark blue. In its little valley the town lay almost silent, its sea front chequered with lighted windows and strung with beads of light, dependent in long catenaries from lamp to lamp along the promenade. Touched by the moonlight, the trident of piers stretched whitely forth over the still cliff-shadowed waters, their ends dimly illuminate at monotonously cadenced intervals with a sickly light that waxed and waned as the great green lantern revolved slowly around the masthead of the harbor works light vessel.

Beyond, in the narrow straits, threaded with silent traffic, outward and homeward bound vessels announced arrival or departure by high-flung rockets or the blue-white deck flares, disposed after set fashion, fore, aft or amidships, in the night speech of the sea.

Between the swift-shifting traffic and the cliff shore a little cutter-rigged yacht, her sails ghost-white in the eerie 'tween lights, glided slowly and silently on the last soft air from seaward towards the harbor mouth. The head and guernseyed shoulders of a man protruded from the square hatch of her fore-peak, smoke from his pipe drifting aloft in irresolute spirals. On the deck aft by the tiny steering well another figure lay recumbent, bare arms crossed behind head, bare legs hanging overside towards the cool water drifting slowly by. A third man sat in the steering well, the tiller beneath his elbow. He glanced at the scarcely drawing sails, then over at the gliding water alongside, and stifled a yawn.

The man addressed turned lazily over upon his elbow and then sat bolt upright. The light showed him merry of face, with curly hair and twinkling grey eyes.

"Always the way with this old tub," he said, stretching himself. "Either you get wind enough to blow the sticks out of her, or else it's dead flat calms. If I weren't a weak-kneed easily persuaded idiot, Laurence, I'd ha' shipped on a luckier packet 'fore now."

Laurence Averil laughed. Dark skinned and lithe, he had the clear-cut features generally termed "aristocratic" by people who have but the vaguest notion of the meaning of the word.

"Nobody else 'ud have you," he said. "You're no good in a boat, you lazy lawyer."

"Lawyer be—blowed! I'm a true sailor, every hair a rope yarn and every drop of blood in my veins pure Stockholm tar. At least, I only want to learn to 'hand, reef and steer, and ship a selvagee.' I've got a wife in every port we call at already, and that's the prime necessity, as everybody knows. Now there, ashore"—he waved his arm towards the slowly nearing harbor lights—"there's the dearest girl of all girls that ever lived. The only girl I ever really loved, she is, and if I'd been on any boat but this driftin' old raft I'd have been basking in the light of her smiles these two hours past. What's time now?"

As if to answer him, a little yacht's clock in the cabin struck sharply, "ting-ting."

"Two bells—nine o'clock—and the pubs shut at eleven, and we shan't be in for another half-hour at this rate."

"Pubs?" Averil queried. "What about the only girl you ever loved then?"

"She's in one, you simple-minded blighter. Shouldn't love her half so much else. She's in the Badminton and I'm going to rush for a Scotch and soda dispensed by her fair hands before I'm much older. I chucked our last soda-water bottle overboard passing the South Sands lightship. If I'd known how long it would be before I got another, I'd have put in a farewell message to pa and ma to tell 'em I was about to die of thirst upon the high seas, too."

"And to the only girl you ever loved as well?"

"My faith! If I was to start writing farewell messages to all the 'only girls' I've ever loved and lost, drat 'em, the fickle, freckled jades—I should be at it for weeks, till even you got tired of playing at Vanderdecken in the Straits of Dover. I'll bring you a wind, if whistling'll do it."

He whistled shrilly through his teeth. A dull cat's-paw rippled the surface of the water as the night breeze came down the valley off the land.

"There you are. What would you do without me, you sucking financier?"

"Jib sheets," Averil called, and the man forward, leaping on deck, flattened the loose headsails as the breeze—sweet with suggestion of hay fields ashore—reached the little vessel. She heeled to it, coming round with a graceful sweep; the soft ripple of water along her sides became a rising hiss, and the skeleton girder works to the right began to slide rapidly past between them and the lighted town.

The piers foreshortened became end on, and the harbor entrance opened; but Laurence Averil stood on his course until they were well astern. Then at his cry of, "Lee oh!" the yacht flew up into the wind in answer to the depressed tiller, her sails, released from pressure, shaking and flapping briskly. Pat Dwyer, his laziness vanished, tumbled anyhow into the steering well, throwing loose the taut jib sheet and hauling rapidly on the other as he did so. The man forward cleared the heel of the jib over the staysail, and the boat was about, curtseying lightly as she gathered way into the harbor.

"Gar'n," Dwyer mocked him. "One idea'd old cuckoo, you are. Now there's that very thing going about. In your darned twopenny-ha-penny old tub going about quickly's a virtue. Whereas if I hint that I too can enjoy going off on a fresh course, then I'm a Reuben, unstable as water, and I shall not excel." His voice took on the sing-song whine that in some quarters is considered a truly religious adjunct to quotations from Scripture. "Here's the harbor at last. Luxon, ahoy!"

"Sir," came from forward.

"When we're anchored I want you ready to put me ashore—for letters." The man's grin was hidden behind the mast. "I am expecting urgent business letters here, and delay might prove to be fatal. Then you will return and help Mr. Averil snug down for the night. I will now go below and array myself—to meet the Dover postmaster."

He dived into the little cabin. Laurence Averil stooped his head and spoke feelingly.

"You've a cheek of ringing brass, if you like, Pat Dwyer. Aren't you going to help stow sails?"

"I am not, dear one. The mariner from toil released will joyously carouse ashore. If you'd come I'd wait for you, but you won't. You'll tidy up your beloved boat, and then you will gracefully recline on deck and survey the peaceful scene, uplifting your great soul to meet the moonshine—to which, methinks, it is somewhat akin. You will also endeavor to detect the smell of roses on the balmy night air, and kid yourself you have a poet's mind attuned to all sweet nature. I haven't any soul at all. I've got a great and consuming thirst that I wouldn't sell for half a quid, and I'm going ashore to do it justice."

"There's whisky aboard," Laurence grumbled. "Don't see why you want to go ashore."

"A quarter of a bottle—and no soda. Wah, great chief, the heart of the paleface is downcast because of the shortage in the commissariat." He emerged from the cabin, struggling with a recalcitrant collar stud. "Besides, is whisky all? What of Love, my poet? I want to bask in the smiles of Cissie at the Badminton unless she's got the sack by this time. Perhaps she has, alas! Haven't seen her since last September. Ah me! 'Tis a world of fleeting glories. Never mind. Daresay if she's gone there'll be somebody who'll listen to the outpourings of a virgin heart. When are you going to anchor?"

Dwyer protested. "Am I to wait till you've got the sails stowed?"

"Can't leave her like this. We'll get the mainsail and topsail down and then you can go. I'll get in the headsails myself. Why not get the Berthon overside meanwhile?" Aided by the man, he set himself to lower away the mainsail, whilst Dwyer dragged a shapeless crumple of iron and canvas from off the deck into the water, where it floated hazardously. Holding by the main rigging, he jumped up and down upon the folded bottom boards that projected from its centre until the deeply wrinkled mass flipped outwards from under his feet into the semblance of a clumsy boat. Making her fast, he scrambled on deck, threw paddles and rowlocks into her, and went below to assume his coat.

When he came on deck again, the mainsail lay along the boom, strapped by wide canvas tiebands into a shapely roll, and the yatchsman knelt by the bulwarks to steady the dinghy as he stepped down into her.

"Matches and bread. Is that all we want, Laurence?" he asked.

"Any of your stores short, Luxon?"

"Oil's rayther low, sir."

"Bother! Stinking stuff! Chuck the tin in, then. I've got her." He held to the yacht's rigging whilst the man fetched the can. "You can see to the marketing when we get ashore and bring the stuff back with you now. I shall be down at eleven. That suit you, Laurence?"

Averil nodded. "Ay," he assented, busying himself with the waterproof cover of the mainsail. "Keep sober, and don't let any of the girls run away with you."

"'Twill be a struggle. Push off, Luxon." The boat, impelled by short choppy strokes, jerked its way like a great water-beetle towards the pier, Dwyer sitting, knees and nose together, in her stern.

Left to himself, Laurence Averil finished covering the mainsail, and then, going forward lowered jib and staysail. Following on the heat of the day, the dew was heavy and the sails too wet for stowing. So, arranging them on the foredeck to dry in the coming morning's sun, he went below, lighted a lamp, and, filling his pipe, sat down upon one of the narrow cabin lockers that served as seats by day and beds by night. Being short of matches, he used a spill of paper, torn from an old and crumpled letter, to light his pipe. Half the sheet remained, and he re-read it by the light of the swinging lamp. "Should always have wished myself," the last sentence from the destroyed page concluded, and then went on:

"You know, my boy, that although there is no probability of the necessity ever arising for you to earn your own living, it has always been my desire that you should attach yourself to a profession. I need not remind you of the disadvantages of idleness. Perhaps I am inclined to lay undue stress upon this, but you must remember that my position as well as your own is entirely due to a lifetime of severe application and unwearying perseverance. I am happy to say that you have never given me any anxiety whatever. Even during the past two years, during which your lack of definite occupation might well have thrown you into any of the temptations that beset the path of a young man, I have no reason to be anything but proud of your temperate habit of life, but I would nevertheless again urge upon you the desirability of choosing a profession. You already know my own wish that you should be called to the Bar, but that choice I wish to leave unreservedly in your own hands, and am, my dear Laurence, always your affectionate father,

HERMAN AVERIL."

WONDERFUL TALE OF AN ACTRESS

Struggled with Sickness and Discouragement; How Relieved.

Dayville, Killingly, Conn.—"I shall be glad to have every woman know what I know now, after using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Although I am only 24 years old, I have suffered for the past eight years. I hated the doctors, for a doctor told me to give up the stage where I was playing with my husband. I had bearing down pains, my health failed me, and I could not work on the stage, and wasn't able to tend my baby or even get around myself. I was always downhearted and discontented with the world, and only lived for the sake of my little girl. The doctor said to move to some quiet little town away from the noisy city, and I might be able to live and feel well, so I went to Dayville in November. At that time I was so sick I could not walk around, and my husband kept house and I stayed in bed. One day in January I read your advertisement in a newspaper, and I sent for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and started taking it. Within two weeks time I was a different woman, could get around, and felt so good that it was a pleasure to do my housework. I felt contented and happy, and now am the picture of health, and am tempted to return to the stage. We appreciate my health as the most precious thing on earth."—Mrs. H. L. KLENETT, Box 85, Killingly, Conn.

He turned the scrap of paper over and over in his hands. "Ye-es, I suppose it'll be the Bar," he said to himself. "Pity I didn't know my own inclinations ten years ago. Then it might have been the Navy. That's the worst of not belonging to a Service family. Heigh-ho!" He tore the letter across and across at its well-worn creases, and, going on deck, tossed the scraps of paper overboard.

The moon was now high, all the harbor softly bathed in its radiance. Against the Admiralty pier the funnels of a cross-Channel boat shone staring white, save where at their bases deck lights tinged them with an added yellow glow. The noise of escaping steam through them, carried by the still water, thrilled the deck on which he stood, and whilst he watched, the boat train crawled upon the pier, its slow pace and the yellow lighted spots upon its sides suggestive of some giant caterpillar. It stopped, and a bustle of embarkation broke out upon the still evening; hurrying steps clattered across the gangways, and the great derricks commenced their swaying work of swinging luggage aboard. A smaller intermediate cargo boat moored alongside boomed a long deep note from her siren that echoed along the cliffs and up the valley behind the town. In the silence that followed it, the sound of descending feet upon the pier steps was clearly audible, and Luxon came rowing back to the yacht.

Averil caught the painter as he came alongside and took some parcels from him. "Leave the rowlocks and paddles in her," he said. "She'll lie alongside till you fetch Mr. Dwyer"; and then, again going below, he took a volume of Emerson's essays from the little bookshelf and settled down to read.

The book opened at the essay on "Heroism," the first words on which his eyes fell being perhaps the bravest ever written:

"But that which takes my fancy most, in the heroic class, is the good humor and hilarity they exhibit. It is a height to which common duty can very well attain, to suffer and to dare with solemnity. But . . . the great will not condescend to take anything seriously; all must be gay as the song of a canary, though it were the building of cities. . . ."

The words came warmly to him sharply contrasting as they did with the somewhat sententious note of self conscious prosperity struck by his father's letter. The sense of contrast was so strong as almost to faintly accuse him of disloyalty. He closed the book, his fingers between the pages, and gazed through the cabin doorway at the lighted harbor, silent in meditation.

The words lingered in his mind. Our English temperament, for all its strength, was too heavy—too dull. It took this fiery American, product of the best of our old race transplanted to the dry and nervous atmosphere of a great new country, to call so clearly to both sides of the emotions of youth, full as they are of yearnings for the great unknown, of joy and laughter in the present hour. "Gay as the song of a canary—even the building of cities." He pictured for a moment his father's austere life, its sternly unvarying course, its respectable observance of the services of religion and society, and again the thought of disloyalty arose in him. He sighed, re-opened his book, and read on quietly, his mood of contemplation past.

At eleven o'clock Dwyer's hail sounded from the pier and Luxon's bare feet paddled across the deck. Laurence heard him get into the dinghy and push off, and within two minutes his friend was aboard, noisily pleased with all the world.

"Stuffy old freak," he said, in scorn. "Reading—on a night like this! Having slain my thirst, my soul begins to revive—I've got one, after all, it seems. Here's letters for you—one's a wire." He threw two envelopes across the cabin. "Where's the whisky? I want a nightcap:

"A grand piano underneath the bough,
A drop of Scotch, a loaf of bread and thou
Beside me singing in the wilderness."

I am moved by the moonlight to poesy—What's wrong, man?"

For Laurence had thrown the telegram upon the table, and with a face of horror was reading the letter.

"The guvnor's dead," he said huskily. "Pat, look at this." He held out the sheet of paper with a shaking hand. "What in the name of Heaven am I to do?"

Dwyer, sobered at once, glanced for a moment at the letter, and then back at his friend, leaning back against the cushions, his face white and terrified. He pushed his own glass over to him.

"Drink this," he commanded sharply, the merriment gone from his voice. "And pull yourself together. Keep a stiff lip, man"; for the first words of the letter had shown him how serious matters were.

The signature was that of Herman Averil's managing clerk—the date two days before.

"Dear Mr. Laurence," it ran—"I hardly know how to write you, we are all so terrified and upset. The telegram will break the news to you somewhat, but it is far worse than that. Your father died by his own hand. He shot himself in the office here. I cannot tell you how horrified and upset we all are, and we fear that business affairs are at the bottom of it—that matters with the firm are not at all as they should be. . . ."

The letter, hastily written, with erasures and smears on every page, was itself a sufficient symptom of violent agitation. Dwyer ran his eye down over its pages, noting a line here and there—"Trust funds appear to be missing"—"already hints at misappropriation have come to my ears"—and sorrow for his friend made him look up at Laurence again, kindly sympathy in his glance.

"What am I to do?" was all Laurence could say.

"Drink that whisky first. Drink it, I say,"—and Averil obeyed in silence. "Now change into your shore duds and catch the next train to town. There's one at midnight. Where's a time-table?" He rummaged the bookshelf. "No, twelve fifteen. Then you'll be on the spot first thing in the morning. Go to my governor before you do anything else. You'll want a lawyer's help in this. The boat? Never mind about her. I'll run her back to the island and leave Luxon in charge, and skip back to town soon's I can. Now hurry, hurry, hurry—you've only half an hour."

He helped Laurence to dress, and sent him off in the dinghy with a warm handclasp of farewell. "Good-bye, old man. Buck up, and pull yourself together. I'll be with you 'fore the end of the week. Good-bye."

He watched him up the pier steps in the moonlight, and returned to the cabin. The letters and wire still lay on the table. He picked the latter up. "Your father dangerously ill no hope return at once," it read, and Dwyer sat down upon his bunk, the full consciousness of all that this would mean only coming to him slowly.

"Poor old Laurence," he said. "Poor old pal. My word! this means absolute blue ruin for him—the utter smash of all things. He'll be broke to the world; and he's never wanted a penny in his life, and doesn't know how to earn one!"

He shivered, and went to bed.

CHAPTER II.

Cruel as the shock and horror of his father's suicide had been to Laurence Averil, it was as nothing to the shame that followed in the public unravelling of the dead man's business affairs.

The report of the pistol that had startled his office staff and sent his pale faced clerks hither and thither to confusedly announce that "Averil's had gone under," and that the apparently prosperous life of the founder of the firm had ended in failure and self-destruction, had been but a prelude to the common knowledge that the dead man had sunk from legitimate speculation to business actions as shady as the commonest of theft.

Of handsome appearance and suave manner, he had been generally and highly respected. To all appearance, he had been a man of the highest integrity, punctiliously honorable in business affairs, and noted for large and unostentatious charities in his private life. No breath of scandal had ever touched his name. To such men trust is readily accorded, and until the day of his death Herman Averil had enjoyed the trust and respect of all who knew him.

The immense sums he had scattered like chaff in his lately born mania for speculation had in most cases been intrusted to him with but the merest forms of safeguard, and the details of shameless misappropriation of trust funds, of the coldly-conceived ruin of hundreds who had trusted him, that transpired in open court after his death, made Laurence hot with shame for his father's memory.

The wretched man had stopped at nothing. Probably the whole history of his financial fall was never brought to light, so skilfully had he covered his track in the earlier months of his falling fortunes. Shameless lies had concealed shameful theft; crimes had been committed to cover crimes. No less than three forgeries were proved to have been committed by him.

So far as his books and other evidence showed, the firm had done business successfully and honorably until three years before its founder's death. Then some petty Central American revolution had shaken the credit of an engineering association in which Herman Averil had been deeply interested. Even then, there had been every opportunity for retrenchment and a profitable carrying on of the business; but, fatally misled by a carelessly worded code telegram, he had plunged deeply in just such a purely speculative affair as he had a thousand times warned his own clients against touching.

The speculation failed, and the man, lacking the courage to own defeat, had deliberately set out to gamble with funds intrusted to him for investment. Once or twice lucky coups brought him to within a few hundred pounds of the financial position he had enjoyed before that unlucky plunge, but the final small speculation needed to gain those hundreds and his lost honor had invariably failed, and he had again and again been condemned to enter the gambling lists for another losing fight with Fate.

He had perhaps one of the clearest, keenest brains in the finacial world, and his struggles were magnificent. Thousands of pounds passed through his hands to this speculation or that, scattering, grouping, withdrawn for re-investment, never for a moment lying idle. It was as though the man felt that it was the last struggle in which he would embark, and he speculated with unparalleled daring, flinging his golden weapons here and there with the masterful skill and the cool, calculating recklessness that makes empires—or destroys them.

But his nerve was gone. Though scarcely a line on his broad white forehead told of the struggle, in his heart was cold, deadly fear—fear of exposure, of any one little slip that should show the world his real position. He had gone, apparently smiling and quiet, to the very execution of forgery, and the crime went unchallenged; but if any of his clients or clerks could have had a moment's glimpse of Herman Averil in his private office after their inspection of his handiwork, it is doubtful whether the onlooker's belief in his merits would not have been severely shaken. Though even when entirely alone the man was calm-eyed and quiet, the refreshment his steady hand conveyed to his firm lips was spirit—raw spirit—and he drank it, in these his worst hours, as though it were pure water from the brook.

At last, when detection was inevitable, he had gone to his gun-maker and bought the revolver that was to end his days as calmly as he had gone to church the day before. Not a twitching muscle nor a shake in his voice was perceived by the dealer, who, knowing him well, had hastened personally to serve so highly respected a client.

He had chatted to the man for a while of the prospects of sport in the following autumn; had talked of "My son Laurence's holiday expedition to Damascus"—the ostensible reason for the purchase of the weapon; had been driven to his office in the city, had walked quietly to his own private room, and there, without as much as a farewell letter to his only son, Herman Averil had gone to his place in eternity.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

PARALYSIS AFTER INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

A GOOD DEAL has been learned about infantile paralysis in recent years, though we are still far from knowing how to prevent the spread of the disease. One fact learned is that the mortality of the disease is not high. In most epidemics nine-tenths of the patients escape with their lives. Of those who escape with their lives about one-half have no permanent paralysis or wasting.

The degree of paralysis is worse soon after its onset than at any later time. There is always some gain in muscular power after the onset of the disease. Formerly it was held that improvement was not possible after two years. Whatever improvement there was to be would come in the first two years. Efforts to improve the condition of paralyzed muscles would be ineffective unless they were begun within two years of the onset of the disease. The teaching now is that there is no time limit beyond which improvement is impossible.

The dread of infantile paralysis is based more upon the paralysis and wasting of muscles than upon the death rate of the disease. In the great majority of cases of shrinking of muscles the condition exists because of neglect of after treatment. However, there is a considerable minority of cases in which there is too much after treatment.

After infantile paralysis the muscles are weak and easily fatigued. If an over-fatigued muscle is worked further it is liable to give out completely and permanently. Some signs of muscle weakness which should be looked for in mild cases of infantile paralysis are given by Thomas as follows:—

1. Weakness of the back muscles when the child is sitting. A tendency of the spine to curve, the back to bow, or a shoulder to droop is often noticeable.
2. Drop foot. A tendency of the toes to drop and to turn in or out when sitting or lying.
3. Bending of the knee backward when standing.
4. Outward rotation of the thighs when lying down. A tendency of the toes and the knees to turn outward.
5. Weakness or dragging of the leg after play, or a long walk.

In a certain case of recovered infantile paralysis about the only sign left is a tendency to drag a foot and wear out the toe of the shoe, noticeable only after play.

Exercise and passive motion both of the paralyzed and the weakened muscles must be very carefully given. If the muscles are over used they are harmed more than they are helped. The authorities are agreed that electricity is of no service.

HOW TO CLEAN FLOORS.

A correspondent wants to know the best method of cleaning floors, and especially hospital floors. As the correspondent indicates in his inquiry, the answer depends on the floor and in some measure upon some other circumstances to be noted presently.

An unvarnished wooden floor should be swept as often as required and washed with soap and water at longer intervals. Scrubbing roughens the surface and splinters the wood, especially if strong lye soaps are used. Tepid water, light soap, and a rag will clean well enough for ordinary scrubbings, while lye soap and a brush at long intervals will not roughen the wood enough to make it difficult to keep clean.

Putnam, in her book on school sanitation, advises sweeping with a hair broom covered with a piece of cloth from an ingrain carpet. This cloth should be moistened with a mixture of linseed oil, turpentine, and a little paraffin. She tells of a janitor who swept satisfactorily with a hair broom in the wooden cross piece of which there was a small receptacle which held a spoonful of kerosene, this dripping on the hairs of the broom.

The objection to sweeping after dusting a floor with wet sawdust is that fine splinters float up in the dust. Sawdust evenly impregnated with oil in which there is a little turpentine is better.

A varnished wooden floor should not be scrubbed. Hornsby of the Modern Hospital says "scrubbing kills varnish. Tepid water, light soapsuds, and a rag will clean and not attack the surface."

Vacuum cleaners are not satisfactory for bare floors. Linoleum should not be cleaned with a moist cloth or with a hair broom moistened with oil. The cracks in linoleum should be filled with a "hard filler" as often as is necessary. Cement, stone, and mosaic flooring should be cleaned with tepid water and light soapsuds. From time to time they should be scrubbed.

What Do These Words Mean to You?

They mean greater safety in the Home. Surely something that interests you keenly!

Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation, "No fire left when blown out," on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The splints or sticks of all matches contained in these boxes have been impregnated or soaked in a chemical solution which renders them dead wood once they have been lighted and blown out, and the danger of FIRE from glowing matches is hereby reduced to the greatest minimum.

Do not lift the receiver before the ring is finished

Sometimes a subscriber on a two-party line, when called to the telephone, lifts his receiver off the hook before the bell has stopped ringing.

This causes the telephone of the other party on the line to ring also, disturbing him unnecessarily.

For example: when Mr. Brown asks for the number of Mr. Jones on a two-party line, the operator rings only Mr. Jones' telephone. But if Mr. Jones lifts his receiver before the ring is completed, it permits the current to pass to the other side of the line and ring the telephone of Mr. Grey.

You can make two-party line service more satisfactory by lifting the receiver only when the bell has stopped ringing.

OUR RETURNED HEROES

ARRANGEMENTS MADE BY DOMINION TO AID SOLDIERS.

How They Are Classified When They Arrive From England and Details of the Plans for Helping Them to Take Their Place in Civil Life of the Nation Once Again.

WHAT Canada is doing for the returned soldier. Every week shiploads of returned soldiers are coming home. They have been tried in the fiery ordeal and failed not. There are no deserters among the Canadians. Now it is of the utmost importance that nothing should be spared, no kindly or intelligent consideration lacking to give them ALL the return that a grateful country can make. As Horatio Bottomley says so well—"We shall soon be having thanksgiving services in the churches, and I cannot think God will be pleased if 'Tommy' is forgotten.

The Military Hospitals Commission working with the Army Medical Corps is the special body intrusted with this important work. Varied and complex were the problems they had to face, new and unforeseen difficulties confronted them at every turn, and much of the work was of necessity, a gradual development and expansion as the needs arose.

The Commission takes charge of the returned men as soon as they land in Canada. Representatives meet the ships, in company of officers of the Discharge Depot at Halifax, St. John, or Quebec. If the ship docks at Halifax, the men from the Maritime Provinces are kept at the hospital on Pier 2; men from the other Provinces are sent by hospital train to Quebec, where they are classified by the Medical Board.

Class 1.—Men who have no disabilities due to service, who require no further medical treatment, and who have no claim to a pension. With this man's discharge certificate, he is given the balance of his pay, plus 15 days' pay, a suit of clothes or a credit in lieu thereof, his transportation home, and a record sent to the Provincial Secretary, so that employment may be found for him.

Class 2.—Men who require further medical treatment and who are sent to a hospital or convalescent home. These men are not discharged, but are carried on pay. Ten dollars is advanced at the depot, and the balance sent by registered mail to his home address.

Class 3.—Men who have a claim for pension, but who require no further medical treatment, are allowed to go direct from the depot to their homes. They continue to receive full army pay until their pensions begin.

It will be seen then, that it is the Class 2 men for whom Convalescent Homes and Hospitals are needed. After examination by the Medical Board at the discharge depot the men are usually allowed two weeks leave to visit their friends. They must then report at the particular hospital to which they have been allocated in the military district which they enlisted or in the nearest their own homes.

It is the desire of the Hospitals Commission that all men employed by them shall be returned officers or men. Indeed the returned soldiers would object seriously to being placed in charge of men who had not shared with them the perils and dangers of active service. Each unit is in command of a major or captain, and there is also a resident medical man in each home.

The hospitals are intended to meet all the needs of all the men and are as follows:

1. Debarkation hospitals, placed at strategic points to receive the invalided soldiers when they are returned by steamship and these men are kept here until their allocation is determined by the examining board.

2. Active treatment hospitals, which are considered as an extension of the British hospital system and are usually confined to the larger cities where the highest form of medical skill can be secured.

3. Convalescent hospitals or homes where surgical or medical treatment is finally completed. Here the men are able to look after themselves, to take certain forms of exercise which may be helpful and educative and begin that vocational training which will refit them for civilian life and a place in the social fabric.

4. Tubercular hospitals for patients having glandular or pulmonary tuberculosis. The men are taught the value of sunlight and fresh air and how to take intelligent care of themselves.

5. Orthopædic hospitals for men suffering from disability of arm or leg and also for bone surgery in any part of the body—here the men are kept until the limb is made and until the experts are sure the individual has a limb he can work with, or walk, as the case may be.

6. Hospitals for the suffering from nervous or mental diseases. Shell shock is the result, generally speaking of the continuous bombardment to which men are subjected in the trenches. Such cases need long and careful treatment and the highest form of medical skill.

7. The last link in the hospital system is the hospital train, by which patients of whatever class they may be, are transported from the debarkation hospital to the hospital to which they are finally sent. Pullman cars have been fitted up with stationary beds and patients may be sent through as far as Winnipeg without a break.

With the establishment of convalescent homes the work of the Commission is just begun. Functional re-education, or the re-training of men physically, must proceed side by side with vocational education or the technical training for new occupations. The Provincial Legislatures have undertaken to find employment for returned men, but, except in Ontario, vocational training is part of the Federal plan. Its value is threefold—first, it provides occupation for the men and thus assists in maintaining discipline in the homes; second, it affords interest and exercise and thus has a therapeutic value; third, it enables a man to improve his chances for employment after recovery.

In every case, the aptitudes, intelligence and tastes of the individual are consulted, his physical disability is taken into account, and also the needs of the various industries for trained workers.

In connection with this work the Board of Pension Commission was appointed at Ottawa to consider, determine, and award pensions for total or partial disability of returned soldiers, or to dependents of men of the C. E. F. who were killed in action or died on active service. This is a department of returned soldiers to look after the welfare of returned soldiers—the three Commissioners of the Board have themselves seen service in the present war—branch offices have been established to assist and give information to returned men and to the dependents of the men who have fallen. The Board would also call attention to the fact that "no deduction shall be made from the amount awarded to any pensioner owing to his having undertaken work or perfected himself in some form of industry." This in brief, is a general outline of the plan and system adopted by the Government's Military Hospitals Commission.

The Summer Girl.

I.

I met her where the billows beat the beach
And in the summer season bathers teem,
Amid the merry maids who splash and scream,
And I decided that she was a peach.
Her manner did not put her out of reach
She was quite friendly; she would fairly beam
When I approached. I pleased her, it would seem.
I taught her how to swim—I love to teach—
Then we grew confidential; each in turn
Related a life story—what you'd call
Unbosomed—and she caused me some concern
By what she said. Of course it would appall
Most anybody with a heart to learn
That she was not like other girls at all.

II.

She liked ice cream and candy pretty well,
And stuffed tomatoes slopped with mayonnaise,
Nut salads and such truck and had a craze
For pickles—dill—I heard her call them "swell."
Object to smoke? Oh, no; she loved the smell.
She giggled much and gushed in terms of praise
And squealed when mice and moo cows met her gaze.
She wore her shoes too small, the truth to tell.
It took her nearly half the day to dress
When on some special conquest she was bent.
Her dancing she just carried to excess.
A ball to her was always an event.
She may have told the truth, though, none the less
I've since found girls are mighty different.

CZAR OF GIVEADAM GULCH REFUSES TO BE REMOVED

SURPRISED BY THE G. A. R.

Bursts Into Editor's Sanctum and Begins Pumping Hot Lead at Him. Victim's Joyous Career Checked—Tip to King of Terrors.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyrighted, by Associated Literary Press.]

SOME four weeks since we received a postal card posted in New Mexico and signed "Great American Remover." The G. A. R. wrote us a few lines to say that he would shortly be in Giveadam Gulch to remove us to a land that is hotter than this, even in summer.

We read, and we felt obliged and threw the card away with others. Plenty of men feel like removing us, and we always tally one for such as gives us a few days' notice. Nothing so disturbs an editor as to have a man bust into the sanctum all of a sudden and begin pumping hot lead at him. It interferes with his current of thought and his dignity.

We were seated in our sanctum the other morning, engaged on an editorial proving that Canada legally owned the United States and should take possession, when the great remover entered. We thought it was the boy after more copy and did not look up. The first we knew that a crisis was at hand was when bullets began to sing past us. Then we came out of Canada into the United States and began to hustle.

Before we could get possession of our guns the great remover had exhausted one gun and drawn another, but our second bullet checked him in his joyous career. He got it in the shoulder and went down and was counted out. When we had disarmed and revived him and sent for a doctor the G. A. R. could talk.

We take pleasure in informing our readers that the stranger had nothing against the freedom of the press in general or against us personally. It had struck him that there were too many editors in the country for the area, and he decided to begin with us and remove a couple of dozen. He had come several hundred miles on horseback to do us honor.

We found the great American remover an intelligent and well posted man, and there was no doubt of his belief in his duty. The only thing he had not taken into account was the fact that he might meet an editor who would shoot back. He owned right up that this was the one weak point in his case and decided to abandon the somewhat liberal program he had laid out.

When the bullet had been extracted from Mr. Remover's shoulder and he had been bandaged up we led him out in the rear of the office and showed him our private editorial graveyard with its twenty-two headstones marking as many graves of those who had preceded him in the removal business. When the man realized what he had been up against he fainted away, and it was a day and a night before he could mount his broncho and head for home.

Another Individual Calls.

The great American remover had not made twenty miles on his way when a second of his kind appeared at our door. This was an individual who wished to be known to the American public as Rattlesnake Jim, living 200 miles away. He had come to believe that he was a combination of rattlesnake, holy terror and cyclone and that the earth trembled when he walked abroad.

What put it into the head of James to come over to the Gulch and interview our cadaver was reading the four books entitled "Looking Backward," "Looking Forward," "Looking Sideways" and "Looking For a Good Thing." He concluded that we were the good thing. After arriving in the Gulch he took three drinks to plumb up his spine, invited various citizens to our funeral and then headed for the Kicker office. He had two guns, and both were loaded. To that extent he was a prudent man. In other things he was a dire failure.

We had been to the bank, and thus we encountered James on the street. He had our description and knew us on sight. He had a sort of shootish air about him, and we had our suspicions aroused before he opened fire. He got in a shot that went wild, and then he sat down. He sat down because our bullet had raked his skull and he wanted time to think. We proceeded to the office, and some one relieved James of his guns and read him a long lecture on the sin of throwing away cartridges in a country where they are scarce.

Two hours later a man with his head wrapped in bandages paid us a call. He sent word ahead that it was to be a friendly call, and he came in with outstretched hand and a foolish smile on his face. It was the redoubtable James, a redoubtable no longer. All his sighing and hankering to remove us had evaporated. He confessed that he must have read the four books named wrong side up and that the New Testament would be good enough for him hereafter.

James still had a feeling that he was a combination and that Rattlesnake Jim was a name to conjure by, but after a talk of half an hour he dropped the business and announced that he should go to work in a sawmill as soon as he could get back home. We don't claim to go around plucking brands from the burning, but we do say that if any burning brands happen to come our way we are always prepared to extinguish them with promptness and dispatch. We always seek to cure a man before killing him.
